Outward ordinances, such as baptism, and abstaining from contact with evil are legal in their work, but under the "gospel of the grace of God," the pure heart, the cleansed conscience, the fulness of the Holy Spirit, makes a person more closely allied to God, and by these the legal observances are drawn in to become a law, not written with ink, but "with the Spirit of the living God." They become a law of our being, are essential because God is in them and in us.

Under the present dispensation, let the Holy Spirit depart from within the being, and baptism avails nothing. Neither does an abstemious life avail as far as hope of eternal things is concerned. The last has become first, and "if any man be in Christ Jesus he is a new creature." "In Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything nor uncircumcision, but a new creature." In Moses' and the prophets' time the law held sway, and the prominently essential things were those pertaining to outward works, but Jesus Christ holds sway now, and grace and truth through the Holy Spirit dwelling within have become essential. The law is dead, but Christ lives. "He is Lord of all." And as we come to him, and dwell in him and he in us, the works of the law of carnal ordinances become nothing to us, but the fruits of holiness or the Holy Spirit are ours, and they are manifest, even "love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance, against such there is no law."

Then the essential condition for the child of God at this time is, to possess the Spirit of Christ without which we are none of his. With this will come a submissive heart, holiness, obedience, and everlasting life.—Christian Times.

"THE FOUNDATION OF GOD."

A foundation is that which supports in an exalted position whatever rests upon it. A building falls when its foundation gives way, because that held the structure in an elevated position. The foundation of a building is that which supports the building; but the foundation of God is not that which supports God, for he is self-supporting, and needs no power outside of himself to perpetuate his exaltation and glorious position.

The term "the foundation of God" is used to express the authorship, or the one who prepares the foundation. We speak of the foundation of a temple as being A's, because A built it; and so "the foundation of God" is the one that he has laid or provided for man.

Man, to need a foundation, must be in a fallen condition, or liable to fall; it being employed to prevent him from falling or, upon which he can be placed when raised out of the pit of ruin or woe, securing him in that exalted position.

A physical foundation is that which supports a community in political prosperity. A moral foundation is that which secures a moral purity in the heart. Everything is represented in the Scriptures as elevated in proportion to its perfection.

The earth is represented as fallen because it has become imperfect; and so are men fallen because they are imperfect, both morally and physically imperfect. This world is fallen in every part, principle and creature. All needs elevating—perfecting. It is fallen because it is not in that perfect, glorious condition in which God created it. The harmonies, peace, happiness and glory are gone. Sin, war, and death reign supreme. God has determined that this world, so glorious and perfect when it came from his creative hand, shall be restored to its divinely exalted position in the universe, filled with his glory, where peace shall be undisturbed, and life shall be unchallenged by death, and God-like perfection, physical, political, and moral, shall be stamped upon all parts and creatures.

God has offered to human intelligence a foundation for hope that such a renewing of this world may be confidently expected. He has also given assurance that such a world shall be perpetuated in its perfection and glory through the eternal ages. The instrumentality through which he will accomplish this work of restitution, and perpetuate that heavenly state, is the foundation which he has prepared and presented in the gospel. Christ is that appointed and qualified foundation, whom God has offered as the Restorer and eternal Savior of lost men and a lost world. This world has fallen like a building when its foundation gives way, and is plunged into a pit of misery and filth, out of which it must be raised, and placed upon a foundation supporting it, or it is ruined and its utility lost. The earth and beasts are fallen under the curse into physical ruin, while man is fallen into moral and physical corruption. The gospel is a divine arrangement, in which Christ is presented as the instrumentality through whom the work is to be accomplished; and as he was appointed and commissioned of God to occupy this position, he is appropriately called "The foundation of God."

He is not only the foundation of hope to the believer of a future glorious world, but he has become the foundation of that world itself, being endowed with power to rule and control it, so as to perpetuate its glory and blessedness forever.

A king clothed with supreme kingly power to govern a nation becomes the foundation of the nation's political prosperity and happiness. If he rules in righteousness and peace, the foundation of the national prosperity is secure; if not, then it gives way, and the nation falls. So Christ is presented in the gospel as the prospective king of God's everlasting kingdom,—the home and eternal inheritance of the saints. The work of reinstating this world in its perfect condition is the first in order in this wonderful arrangement. This is like raising the building in our figure out of the miry pit, and elevating it upon the foundation where it may securely stand. It would be unwise to paint and ornament it, putting in its furniture with a design to occupy it, while it is in the mire; but first put under the screws, and raise it up on to a good foundation, and then it can, with propriety, be ornamented and occupied with safety and happiness. So Jesus, in the gospel, becomes like the screws to raise this world out of the deep and terrible pit into which it has fallen. He will do this by reversing the action which carried it down, and thus raise it up.

This world was at the beginning put under the rulership of the first man, Adam, and therefore its future prosperity and perfection depended upon his wise and righteous administration of its government. He proved disloyal to God, the supreme ruler of all, and therefore he, being the foundation of its peace and happiness, caused it to fall into sin, war, and woe.

Jesus Christ has been appointed of God to take the place of Adam as this world's future ruler, and has therefore become surety or foundation of its faithful government, thus securing its prosperity and glory.

The work of elevating or restoring this world commences where the fall commenced, in the moral department, or heart of man. The first downward step was yielding to Satan. The first upward step is resisting Satan and yielding to Christ. The first act of disobedience resulted in man's helplessness in resisting evil. His first act of faith secures to him the power through Christ of resisting evil, and obeying God. This is a radical change in his moral status, so that he may be called "a new creature," having received a new heart, that is, a new moral nature,—the "divine nature." This raises him out of the pit of moral pollution into which Satan and sin had plunged him, and restores him to the sinless state of an infant, or of Adam before his transgression. This work of regeneration is accomplished by Christ through the application of his Word and Spirit. It is wrought by the same power which resurrected Christ, and the same that will resurrect his people. It is this same power which sustains and upholds the christian in his temptation and trial, and is the foundation by which his christian integrity and faithfulness is supported.

Human efforts to change the heart and life, unaided by Jesus, are entirely abortive. To trust such efforts, as a foundation by which a pure christian life is to be maintained, is also fruitless. Christ alone can change the defiled human heart, or preserve its purity after its cleansing, as the foundation of pure Christianity.

This world has manifested an unbroken series of failures in each department, for about six thousand years. The earth has failed as a home of peace, happiness and life. It is full of war, woe, and death. Humanity has failed to represent its Creator morally or physically. Cities have arisen in great power and glory, but have fallen in infamy and utter ruin. Kingdoms and empires have been established and defended with mighty armies and navies, but they have been broken and swept away into oblivion with war and revolution. Human society has been established with all the skill and wisdom of wise and great men, designed to be perpetuated, but all that is human has proved insecure, incapable of standing against the battling elements of a cursed world. Everything of this world arises to positions of eminence and profit, only to manifest a lack of support, power of continuance, and fall into decay and ruin. All lack foundation—security—the protection of a God.

But how blessed is the faith and hope which embraces the testimony of Jehovah, that he has provided a "sure foundation," an eternal security of this world in a perfected, glorified condition. The power to perpetuate all things, regenerated, through the endless ages, is invested in Jesus Christ. He has received an appointment from the ruler of the universe to occupy the infinitely important relation to this planet. He came from heaven the first time to give the first installment of proof, by his Father's will, that he had undertaken the mighty work. He met the demands of a violated law. He paid the redemption price of a lost world. He pledged to all, who would trust him for the blessing, purity of heart, holiness of life, and their perpetuity. He gave assurance that he would return to our earth a second time, and give to all the pure in heart physical perfection, "bodies like his glorious body," and constitute the earth a "heavenly country," the blessed and eternal home of his redeemed Bride.

Then shall the mighty power of a God-King be exercised to rule a redeemed world with love and preservation. Then shall the notes of salvation's anthem sound from countless lips in sweetest melodies, unbroken, unhindered. Then shall a King of heavenly birth reign in divine majesty upon the throne of David, in righteousness and peace, unchallenged through an endless age. There shall be no lack of bread or cry for water; no withering drought or desolating flood; no howling tempest or rumbling earthquake; no sweeping pestilence or bloody war; no scorching sunbeam or chilling starlight; no light and dark shades of prosperity and adversity; no fear of an approaching thief or creeping assassin; no battling with Satan or wrestling with angels; no sound of woe or pulse of pain; no sadness of parting or quiver of death. No more sin, no more curse. There shall immortality and eternal glory be inscribed on every banner. Then shall the mighty hosts of God in one universal chorus sound the last note of redemption's song of might, power, and dominion unto the Rock—the immovable foundation of God.

ADDRESS TO MISSION SOCIETY.

(Concluded.)

The present aspect of things calls for immediate and the most determined action. Take another look from the watch-tower. What do you see? A sight sublime to behold. Omens bright and unmistakable, showing that the coming of Jesus is just at the door. We are more sure that the kingdom of God is at hand, than was Columbus certain that land was near when he saw the sea weeds, bits of floating wood, and land birds, appear in his ocean pathway, when seeking the new world. We can only glance at the evidence at the present time. But let any one take prophecy and history, and place them side by side for thirty-five hundred years, passing down the stream of time, and it seems to us that those who do this must be convinced that it will be soon said by the angel, Time shall be no longer.

When we look over the great metallic image described in the second chapter of Daniel, the symbolic beasts in the seventh and eighth, together with Revelation twelvth, thirteenth and seventeenth chapters, which contain the prophetic history of the four great consecutive kindoms of the world, down to the time of the setting up of the everlasting kingdom of God, we find positive evidence that the closing scenes in this long chain of prophetic events are now being accomplished. After Babylon came Media and Persia, then Grecia; next the Roman empire; then its divisions, and the rise of the little horn, or Papal pomer, and the wearing out of the saints of the Most High, for more than a thousand years, called the time of the "great tribulation," closing near the end of the last century. Jesus informed his disciples that "immortality after" this "great tribulation," the signs of his second coming would appear. We read the history of the past, and find the predicted signs, to be seen in the sun, moon, and stars, appeared at the right time; the first in 1780, and the last in 1833. After these, we are instructed to look on the earth for distress of nations, with perplexity; roaring seas, and troubled hearts, causing much fear because of the threatening omens multiplying in all directions. The tidal waves with their terrible velocity and roaring have responded, Here are we, as they have suddenly rolled fifty feet high, rushing on a thousand miles an hour, and tossing the shipping upon the dry land, there to stand as witnesses that "the Scripture cannot be broken."

When these things begin to come to pass, we are taught to lift up our heads because our redemption is at hand. "These things" mark the last generation before the coming of Christ. The prophecies also show that at the same time the dominion of the Roman woman, on "the "seven hills," must be taken away, and she must become the object of intense hatred by her own people in Italy. These things have come to pass since 1859. At 10 A. M., Sept. 20, 1870, the Italians entered Rome, and took away the last vestige of the temporal power of the Papacy. She was to speak "great words" just before the loss of her dominion, and then go to the burning flame, sinking to rise no more. The smoke of her burning in the signal for the shout of triumph from all the saints, hence their resurrection, in connection with the coming of Christ, must transpire at the same time. These grand and awful events are at our doors.

Preparatory for the conflict, called in Scripture "the battle of that great day of God Almighty," we see the hosts of Satan are rallying in all directions with great boldness, and countless numbers, to "make war with the Lamb," and those who trust wholly in the blessed Savior. On the banners of the enemy may be seen the magic words: "LIBERTY, EQUALITY, FRATERNITY," stolen from the church of Christ to which alone they can be truly applied, but now used by the arch deceiver as a cunning device to blind those whom he is seducing by his artful wiles. As the hour of judgment approaches, and perils increase, the unsaved feel the need of protection from some source. The most natural, and what to them seems the safest plan, is to form "a confederacy" for mutual protection. As the alarming tokens have multiplied, people have hastened to unite with the various secret associations, until the masses are in some of these "bundles," Christ is not the acknowledged leader in one of them; and in most, he is not recognized at all. Many professed christians, who look to Christ as their Savior, have been persuaded to unite with these protective unions, for their safety in the approaching "time of trouble; some for one object, and some for another, but all pledging themselves to be brethren to each other, in each respective society, in the hour of danger. They gather around certain principles, good enough in themselves, but they are mere abstractions, destitute of vitality, while Christ is left outside. This is Satan's snare to persuade honest, sincere, religious men, to unite with the covetous, proud, fashionable, liars, blacklegs, fornicators and adulterers, calling them all "brethren," and associating with them in various ways in special friendship to accomplish the result for which the union was established.

We see Beelzebub thus gathering, discipling, and uniting his mighty forces, and inspiring them with despairing zeal and desperate rage against things sacred and divine, eagerly waiting and longing for the approaching contest, confident of success, because of their vast numbers, well drilled, organized and armed, with all manner of offensive and defensive weapons, that can be brought to bear against the word of the Lord and his saints. This is earth's dark side, like Sodom's a few days before Lot was called to leave that wicked city; like the days of Noah a short period before he entered the ark, to wait the coming deluge. Truly, the hour in which we live is full of grand sublimity. No other period since man first breathed the breath of life was ever so thrillingly interesting as the one now impending. The time is at hand when the destiny of every man must be eternally decided. What an hour! Who will "be able to stand?"

Let us now look a moment at the bright side of the picture. While we see the alarming works of Satan, and the astonishing gathering of his gigantic forces to Armageddon's battle; on the other hand the christian soldier may be seen girding on his heavenly armor, that he may be ready for the onset. The Spirit of "the living God" is arousing every true follower of Christ in Europe and America, Asia, Africa, and the islands of the sea, to "put on the whole armor of God," that they "may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil," and to overcome "him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony."

We believe the Bride is truly making herself ready to meet her heavenly Bridegroom. From every part of the world, where true christians live, comes the news that within the last two or three years there has been a special and deep feeling awakened in the minds of the living members of all evangelical churches, that nothing short of entire consecration to Christ would answer for these times. This remarkable, special, and abiding conviction for purity seems to be something peculiar to the present time, produced by the Holy Spirit, and is a most significant omen that the end is at hand. For years we have been looking for something to unite all saints in christian love as a needed preparation to meet our coming Savior. We have waited and watched in vain to see it accomplished on a doctrinal basis. Instead of union, discords and back-backslidings have multiplied. The church—called the body of Christ—has been terribly diseased, abounding in hatred, variance, contentions, discords, pride, selfishness, self-love, self-will, and lasciviousness, producing cold formalism, pleasure-loving, luke-warmness, and general debility. Some either had too much religion thirty years ago, or not enough now. No one will say they had too much then. Many have left their "first love." They have held fast to the glorious truths believed, and have defended them with much zeal and success, but in many their devotional emotions have run down to zero. They do not now feel ready to hail with delicious delight the coming of the Son of man. They are not wholly given up to Jesus, as in other days. They feel an emptiness, a lack of that warm, fresh love for their Savior, that once glowed in their bosoms, causing them to cry from their hearts, "Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly."

When the decisive hour comes, those who have joined confederations and secret societies for protection, must look there for support, but look in vain. Though they be with the multitude, they will meet with an eternal defeat, and "everlasting destruction," while those who have given all to Christ, and look to him alone for salvation in the trying hour, will be safely hid in the rifted Rock, forever delivered from all fear and foes. This grand scene is at hand. Our future destinies must soon be sealed, and eternal life secured or lost.

Was there ever before such a moment as this? Is THERE NOT A CAUSE? Was there ever a people on whom rested greater responsibilities than on those who see these things? Can we quietly fold our hands at this time and be innocent? Can we see the doors opening in all directions, hear the earnest Macedonian cry from the North, South, East and West, make no response, and then expect to hear the Savior say, "Well done," good and faithful servants? Nay, verily. Let us at once consecrate all to Christ, seek "the gift of the Spirit," lay aside "every weight," be clothed with the full armor of the christian soldier, and unite with every one who truly loves Jesus, in a grand union effort to arouse every body to a sense of the alarming solemnities and responsibilities resting upon the disciples of Jesus in this last generation. Let none say, Have me excused. Let us know by happy experience the meaning of self-denial and self-sacrifice for the sake of Him who died for our redemption. Let the coming year of missionary labor tell for Christ as never before.

What is the response? Do we say,

> "My all to Christ I've given,
> My talents, time and voice;
> Myself, my reputation,
> The lone way is my choice."

Look at the results: "This is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life." Will that pay? Is it enough for our sacrifices? Let imagination stretch her wings to comprehend the value of eternal life. Count the stars of heaven, the leaves of the forest, each grain of earth, the sands on the sea shore, drops of water in the ocean; let each represent a million years, and when all these have expired, the life and bliss of the redeemed still reaches onward eternally. What a blessed hope! What a wonderful reward is promised to the saints! This hour, this moment, let us consecrate our little all to Him whose name is "Wonderful," who is "mighty to save," and can save "to the uttermost."

Shall we help the perishing to secure this great salvation? To accomplish this great object the American Advent Mission Society was formed. Let it be a power in the land as never before. Let every friend of the coming One help in giving it a vital force never yet witnessd. Act as seeing Him who is invisible; act as we shall wish we had done when we stand before the throne, surrounded by the redeemed in the presence of the holy Lamb of God.

AG'T.

THE TWO LAWS.

It is said, by those who observe the seventh-day Sabbath, that there are "two laws" in the Scripture—the "Moral Law" and the "Ceremonial Law." We propose to examine this position, and see if it is sound. These two sets of laws are supposed to include all the law in the Bible. The "moral law" is said to consist in the ten commandments; then, of course, the "ceremonial law" must include the rest of the commandments.

We will call the "Moral Law," No. 1, which is the Decalogue; and the "Ceremonial Law," No. 2. No. 1 is said to have commenced with Adam, and is eternal; No. 2 is said to extend from Moses to the crucifixion of Christ, where it was abolished. No. 1 is said to be a "complete code."

We would state our own position as follows: No. 1, the old covenant, is abolished, because it was not a complete code, but faulty. It was not prepared as a system of salvation, but for the temporal welfare of the Jews, as a nation; and was not designed for any other people.

No. 2 contains moral and special precepts. The special ones ended with the old covenant, at the cross; while the moral are perpetual. We further state, that we do not find any scripture that shows "the law" ever means the decalogue, or old covenant. If we find in No. 2 perpetual moral principles, not found in No. 1, then the theory of the "two laws," as taught by Seventh-day keepers, is spoiled for ever.

No. 1 does not contain a single precept that will be needed by the saved in the world to come. Look over the ten commandments. Will these be necessary in the kingdom of heaven? Does any one believe it? Will a holy man need a commandment telling him he must not murder, steal, swear, lie, or commit adultery? This covenant, No. 1, was applicable to a hard-hearted, blind and sinful people, that needed a curb bit. Such were the Jews.

Every thing not found in No. 1, must belong to No. 2. Let us examine. In Luke 10: 25–28, we read—"A certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him, saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life? He said unto him, What is written in the law? How readest thou? And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself. And he said unto him, Thou hast answered right; this do, and thou shalt live." None of this is found in No. 1. Look again. In Matt. 22: 36–39, we find the following: "Master, which is the great commandment in the Law? Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it; Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." These two great commandments are not found in No. 1,—the Decalogue, or old covenant. Then it follows that No. 1 is not "the Law" that contains the two great commandments, on which hang all the rest.

Hence the point is forever settled, that the two-law system, as taught by Sabbath-keepers, is unscriptural. There is not a word in the Bible about a "ceremonial law." The word "ceremonies" occurs but once in the entire Sacred Scriptures. There were definite regulations concerning the various typical offerings, that looked forward to Christ the antitype; but they were a part of "the Law" that contains the two great commandments, just noticed; but these are all in No. 2. From a careful examination, we are satisfied that "the Law" never means the ten commandments. No. 1, or the old covenant, was made out of moral precepts that were in "the Law"; so that No. 1 contains a part of "the Law," but not the two great ones, the second of which is called "the royal law," as is expressed by the apostle James as follows: "If ye fulfill the royal law, according to the Scriptures, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, ye do well." Jas. 2: 9. We look in vain for this law in No. 1. But we find it in No. 2, as follows: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," Lev. 19: 10. In Deut. 6: 5, we find the first of the two great commandments, as follows; "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." "This is the first and great commandment" "in the law"; but neither this nor the second are in No. 1,—the ten commandments.

Only the true Israelites, the holy ones, ever kept these two great commandments. If all of Israel had kept them, there would have been no occasion for a covenant like that given on Mt. Sinai. The keeping of that covenant barely prevented them from the open wickedness and idolatry practiced by the heathen nations around. It does not contain a single commandment that is not embodied in the common statutes of every civilized nation. But who would claim that the keeping of the laws of the United States will secure eternal salvation? While one could not be saved in the violation of any of its moral precepts, he must go further to secure eternal life, and keep the two great commandments in "the Law," which are not in the old covenant, nor in the law books of any nation in the world. Had the Lord insisted on putting these two into the old covenant, the children of Israel, as a body, could not in honesty have said: "All the Lord hath said will we do and be obedient." Ex. 24: 7. But every individual could keep the old covenant as it was given; therefore the whole nation made a pledge to "be obedient."

These two great commandments are eternal in their application to all intelligent created beings, in all generations, world without end. No others are needed where they are kept. But they have no place in Law No. 1. That would have been useless if these great ones had been kept by the children of Israel.

"The Law of God" includes every commandment given to man. The law regulating the sacrifices is just as much the law of the Lord, as the two great commandments. In the Savior's childhood, his parents "brought him to Jerusalem, . . . to offer a sacrifice according to that which is said in the law of the Lord, A pair of turtle doves, or two young pigeons. . . . And when they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee." Luke 2: 24, 39. There is no such law in No. 1.

When Paul says, "Do we then make void the* law through faith? God forbid. Yea, we establish [the*] law" (Rom. 3: 31), does he mean No. 1, or No. 2? No. 1 is not the law, but the old covenant. Then he must mean a part of No. 2. By referring to the preceding verse (30th), we see his point more clearly. He says: "Seeing it is one God which shall JUSTIFY the circumcision by faith, and the uncircumcision through faith." It will be seen that he is speaking of the common law of justification for the circumcised and uncircumcised, and says it is "by faith." But faith does not make void the two great commandments in the law.

When Paul says—"The priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law" (Heb. 7: 12), he means that part of the law of God relating to the priesthood. It is one of the special parts of the law, that was fulfilled by Christ at his first advent. See Matt. 5: 17.

It is certain that Law No. 2 has essential moral principles that are not contained in No. 1. No. 2 has also special things that were fulfilled by Christ at the cross. It is certain that Law No. 1 passes over sins condemned by Law No. 2. Paul says—"We know, that what things soever the law saith, it saith to them who are under the law; that every mouth may be stopped." Rom. 3: 19. Suppose one is talking hatred about his neighbor; No. 1 would not stop his mouth; No. 2 would. Suppose one does not love God or his neighbor; No. 1 will not condemn him; No. 2 would. We begin to see why the Scriptures say, when speaking of "the two covenants," and particularly of the first "one from the Mount Sinai, which gendereth to bondage" (Gal. 4: 24), that "if that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second." Heb. 8: 7. No. 2 contains the great commandments of the new covenant in Christ. No. 1—the decalogue—the old covenant—was not a complete system for all mankind. All the moral principles in No. 1 are based on the two great commandments in No. 2; hence, if No. 2 should be abolished, No. 1 must be also of necessity.

Let us look further at the points of difference between Law No. 2, and Law No. 1; and we shall see still more clearly wherein No. 1 was faulty. No. 2 condemns wrath; No. 1 does not. No. 2 condemns strife; No 1 does not. No. 2 condemns envy, variance, emulation, backbiting, evil surmisings, evil speaking, scolding, pride, selfishness, busy bodies, whisperers, boasters, and the heady; but No. 1 does not. No. 2 condemns fierceness, an unforgiving spirit, unthankfulness, highmindedness, impatience, malice, unmercifulness, and those who have but a form of godliness, and are despisers of those that are good; No. 1 does not. No. 1 does not condemn witchcraft, pleasure-loving, heresies, revellings, vulgar talk, love of the world, seditions, uncleanness, nor drunkenness; No. 2 condemns all these.

With these facts before us, shall we still claim that the decalogue (No. 1) is a "complete system for all time"? It is very evident that Christ was "the mediator of a better covenant" (Heb. 8: 6); because the old one was not "faultless"; "and for this cause he is the mediator of the new testament." Heb. 9: 15. Under which are we now living? The new. But the Sabbath law of the old covenant cannot be found in the new. Then is it binding on those who follow Christ? The lame argument that put the seventh-day Sabbath of the Jews into the new covenant, would also introduce the passover, circumcision, Jewish worship, with all their feast days and ceremonies. They were all peculiarities of the old covenant, and were a yoke of bondage. Gal. 4: 24.

Let those who are in Christ "stand fast, therefore, in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage." Gal. 5: 1.

CALIFORNIA.—The calls from the churches in California are more pressing than ever. After much prayer, we have been convinced that the Lord would have us return to the Pacific coast to spread the news that our Savior is soon coming to set up the everlasting kingdom, and to urge the people to be ready for the glorious event. We earnestly request an interest in the prayers of the friends of Jesus, that we may be instrumental in leading many to the Lamb of God, who will be saved in the day of his coming.

The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. LETTER FROM P. G. BOWMAN.

DEAR BRETHREN:—I would state for those whe feel an interest in our Mission work in So. Carolina that Bro. Andrew Simpson and his wife, from New Hampshire, arrived here about five weeks ago, and have met with a hearty reception wherever they have been. Sister S. has made a very fine impression on our people, and Bro. Simpson's preaching (which has been principally on the prophecies) has carried everything before him. His houses are crowded to overflowing, and the people say they have never seen it on this fashion before. What little reputation I had as a preacher is all gone now, and I think justly so, for Bro. S. is pouring a flood of light upon the minds of the people from the prophetic Scriptures, which I nor no other man in this country has ever done; so that the same effect produced in New England forty years ago from the same cause is being seen here; and pray why not? What is the Bible worth without the prophecies? And what are the prophecies worth without the second advent of our dear Lord? Blot his second coming from the Bible, and the blackness of eternal despair must cover every page within its lids.

The coming of the Lord, the coming of the Lord, the speedy coming of earth's great Nobleman, to make all things new, and to establish a universal and everlasting kingdom upon the final extirpation of all evil, and all evil beings, should be the burden of every man's preaching; and yet no one among all the so-called orthodox in this country ever allude to this stirring theme. Why? Because it is present truth, and present truth has always been unpopular. You may preach about the flood, or the overthrow of Sodom or Jerusalem, or repentance, or death, and no one has any objection; talk ever so long or loud of going to heaven's glories, or hell's torments, at the hour of death, and no one will object. But tell of the coming of Jesus, and that his coming is at the door; of hell fire, that is to burn up all devils and wicked beings; and that heaven is to be forever on earth restored, where the saints of all ages are to meet to part no more forever,—I say, preach these things, and you immediately pull down the wrath of apostate Christendom upon your head, and none will be more fierce than the priesthood; so it always was, and so it will be until the sign of the Son of man shall be seen in heaven.

Now, my dear brethren, in hope and belief that Jesus is near, do help us down here this winter all you can, especially by your prayers.

I still have the same desire for tobacco that I had at Alton Bay, when I gave up its use. I never expect to taste it again; it is a great trial, but, glory to God, it is a great victory. Pray for Bro. Simpson and me, and our wives.

Oakland, Darlington Co., S. C., Oct. 29.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

A. A. Mission Society (by Geo. T. Adams), $20. A sister, Madison, Ind., $2. Loring Morse, Acworth, N. H., $5. From Sr. M. Moody, Lowell, Mass., $5, for freight on a barrel of books and clothing. The clothing is timely and appreciated, and the books a rich gift. We have had no library for our Sabbath school, and although these contain some ideas we do not endorse, yet they contain much that is good, and I esteem them a great help to cultivate in these poor children a love for reading. ☞ Also two packages of "Young Pilgrim" papers, and a single copy, fresh from the office. For all these helps I thank the Lord, and may God bless each donor.

YES, THAT BOOK!

The "History of the Second Advent Message" is just as Bro. N. B. McMurphy says in the Crisis of Oct. 21st—"an interesting and instructive work." I consider it worth reading, even though it might cost twice as much as Bro. Wellcome now asks for it. It for ever puts to shame and silence the "ignorance of foolish men," who claim, as Eld. ——— did some few months ago, that "Grant, Sheldon, and Hastings are the fathers of Adventism." I hope every lover of truth will not fail to get a copy of this valuable book, and investigate for themselves.

Stevenson, Ala. JNO. A. CARGILE.

SALVATION AND SUFFERING.

You love the Savior, and delight in his holy ways, but many afflictions distress you. Do not think this strange. You are in a world of sin, suffering, and death, and why should not you have a portion of the inevitable ills of this fallen state? The eminent saints of old, of whom the world was not worthy, were very great sufferers; our Lord was a man of sorrows, acquainted with grief, and made perfect through suffering; many of the best christians of gospel times have been signal sufferers; even millions of innocent infants suffer, and why should you deem it strange for you to be afflicted?

Do not open the door to unbelief by saying: If God loves me, why does he not hear my prayer and deliver me? This is not his plan. Your exemption from suffering will be in heaven. Now he says to thee: "I have chosen thee in the furnace of affliction." You belong to God, and he is leading you in a safe way, even in the way of holiness. In these trials the Holy Spirit will lead you away from self-trust, away from reliance upon any creature, and enable you to exercise a pure faith in the merit, in the shed blood, and power of Jesus, as your full Savior. And if you already know the blessedness of being blood washed, and filled with divine love, the Lord will, in this way, increase your graces, teach you wisdom, and bring you into more perfect and exalted communion with himself.

It was in the fiery furnace that the form of the fourth was gloriously revealed to Shadrach and his companions; it was when Elijah had fled into the wilderness for his life, and lay in great distress under a juniper tree, that the angel spread a feast before him, and inspired him with courage to bear his burden, and fulfill the residue of his life-work; it was while St. John was banished to the dreary isle of Patmos that he looked into heaven. Lie low at Jesus' feet, and trust in him with all your heart; be swallowed up in his will, and your afflictions will all be gloriously sanctified to you.

Besides all this present spiritual good, "your present light afflictions shall work out for you a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." Oh, how this promise lights up the pathway of the suffering believer! Yes, these racking pains, this bitter trial, and this heart-lacerating bereavement, shall make you more holy and a brighter witness for Jesus here, and then they shall make your heaven eternally blissful and glorious.

Dear suffering brother or sister, is not this enough? Will not an eternal weight of glory more than compensate for a few days of suffering here? Very soon you will be called home; very soon you will be with your Lord. Oh, the eternal bliss and glory that will soon be yours! May you so live and suffer as to be a blood-washed, happy witness of perfect love every moment, even in the fire and in the hour of death.—Guide to Holiness.

Correspondence.

From Bro. Geo. A. Streeter.

Dear Brn. and Srs.:—I am still in the field, witnessing to great and small, rich and free, the great truths of God. I am glad it is my privilege thus to do in these times of great peril and hardship for the church. For "we are living in a grand and awful time," when to be living is "sublime."

I have spent most of my time the past season in places where but few go to preach the truth. Have been a sort of a home missionary, visiting the poor churches in Mass. Jesus said the poor should have the gospel preached unto them; and so as the way has opened I have gone. Have visited North Rutland once a month. It is now three years since I went there for the first time, and preached the first gospel sermon on the Advent in the place. God has blessed. With labors of others the past year there have been some additions to the church.

Have of late visited Charlton. Here was a good church planted seven years ago, and God has blessed the labors of his faithful ones. But fanaticism has found its way. Some have come in among them, bringing tongues (surely, unknown), trine baptism, etc., to the end of the catalogue connected therewith. All this ought not to be, "Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them." Rom. 16:17. O for more bold men in these days to face the foe, and to stand for the right!

I have also visited Southbridge, my native town and home. I went to the spot of my birth, where I spent my boyhood days. How sweet their memory still; but oh, what a change! All are gone,—the old house; brother Henry, who was born here, sleeps in death. Such is life. Here in S. are a few brethren and sisters struggling for life. It is an old battle-ground. While the main stock of Adventists are gone, their offspring may be seen. My prayer is that God may bless them. I enjoyed a good meeting with them. The truth is taking effect. One young brother, Porter J. Smith, has entered the ministry. I talked with him a year ago about it. He is a worthy brother. May God bless him and his labors.

My very being is in the work of God. I am satisfied that our work is most over, and I want to be ready when Jesus comes to gather his saints.

"I love to tell the story,
Because I know it's true;
It satisfies my longings,
As nothing else can do."

Glory to God! My heart yearns for poor sinners and cold-hearted professors. Pray for me in the highways and hedges of Mass., hunting up the lost sheep of the second house of Israel. God help us all to be really good; to be pure and holy in this world, then eternal life we shall have. Your Bro. in Christ.

WAR IN EUROPE.

From the following, which is clipped from a paper printed in Chicago, it appears evident that we are upon the verge of the most terrible war that earth has ever witnessed, combining, as it is prophesied it will, the religious, political and financial interests of the world. Truly we are in perilous times, and may be just entering upon "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." Dan. 12:1. May the Lord help us to be ready and stand when he shall appear.

E. McCulloch.

FOUR DISTINGUISHED MEN PREDICT A EUROPEAN WAR.

Father Hyacinthe and Victor Hugo have joined Mr. Disraeli and the Pope in prophesying the approach of a tremendous war, which shall rage all over Europe and elsewhere. Mr. Disraeli predicted that the war would convulse the globe. The Pope described the impending struggle as one between the armies of the Archangel Michael and the hosts of Satan. According to the prognostication of Father Hyacinthe, the coming war will be three-fold, and will include a fearful conflict between popular rights and the power of capital, in which the combatants will tear each other to pieces. According to the vaticination of Victor Hugo, the great and inevitable encounter is to be "between two principles, republic and empire. He says that "we have before us—in Europe—a series of catastrophes which engender each other, and which must be exhausted;" that "we can get a glimpse of peace only across a shock of arms;" that "between the present and the future there is a fatal interposition;" that the "kings must expiate their crimes;" and that the separation of the people will result in federation and fraternity. He thus closed his prophecy of the "Universal Fatherland:" "The solution is this: The United States of Europe. The end will be for the people—that is to say, for liberty and for God—that is to say, for peace." There must surely be something in the atmosphere of Europe that leads so many prophets to prophesy the approach of war—war about religion, republicanism, and the rights of nature.

Dailey—Dickinson. At Sandy Hill, N. Y., Oct. 21st, 1874, by Elder A W. Sibley, Mr. Charles A. Dailey, of Ft. Miller, N. Y., and Mrs. Harriet C. Dickinson, of Sandy Hill.

Obituaries.

Huntress. In Boston, Oct. 13th, 1874, Charles W. Huntress, aged forty-four years.

He was an honest man, a sincere friend, a tender and loving husband, and a faithful, devoted christian. Ten years of unbroken friendship taught us to love like brothers. But the last friendly greeting is over, the farewell message spoken, and the never to be forgotten look of dying love given. He leaned his head on Jesus' breast, closed his weary eyes to the dreamless moments of time, and so fell asleep, calmly walking down the valley. And now the autumn leaves fall on his silent grave, where the weary one rests from months and years of pain. Sweet and peaceful be thy slumbers, my dear, dear brother! but the voice of thy Beloved shall waken thee ere long; and when the light of morning breaks through night's murky darkness, thine eyes shall catch its rays afar, and glisten with the sunbeams of heavenly glory, for thou shalt "see the King in his beauty." Thy hands shall bear the palm of victory; thy brow wear the crown of glory, bedecked with many stars of heaven. No more we hear thy voice ring its clarion notes of entreaty and warning. We vainly listen to hear thee chant the songs of Zion. All is silent and lonely now! but in the light of coming glory thou wilt join the new song of redemption, and its notes of triumph will blend with the golden harps of heaven, thrilling their sweetest notes of melody for the day that has come, over sorrows that are ended, over friends re-united again, never more to part.

Sleep, sleep a little while, thou blessed one! and when thou dost awake, may I with thee hail the sweet day of peace and joy for the weary sons and daughters of sorrow.

J. N. Berry.

Worthington. In North Bennington, Vt., Oct. 18th, 1874, William C. Worthington, aged sixty-three years, six months, and ten days.

The subject of this notice died from a cancerous tumor, and suffered severely from the same during the last three or four weeks of his life; but amid the sufferings to which he was subjected, his mind was clear respecting the future, and he fell asleep after talking with his wife and children, and bidding them good bye, with the hope of eternal life in a world where death can never come. He leaves a wife and children, and a large number of friends to mourn his departure.

May this afflictive dispensation be sanctified to the good of this mourning circle. A sermon was preached by the writer on the occasion to a large concourse of people, who assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to a friend and citizen, from Ps. 116:15.

A. W. Sibley.

Frost. In Sterling, Mass., Sept. 21st, 1874, Miss Maria A. Frost, daughter of Wm. and Ann C. Frost, aged seventeen years.

Funeral services were held in the Second Advent Chapel at Worcester, Mass. Words of comfort were spoken by Eld. J. F. Nickerson, from Eccl. 9:10.

FOREIGN NEWS.

London, Nov. 5. Advices received to-night from Rome, state that the Pope has declared that he will never receive an ambassador of Great Britain at the court of Italy. The Vatican has issued an order convoking an International Catholic Congress at London. The order declares that it is necessary that, on the eve of a religious crisis, the world should have a demonstration of Catholic doctrine through a free press. Archbishop Manning, in delivering the opening address at the Drew College of London, to-day, said that within the last twenty-four hours, it had been intimated to him that the Catholic world was threatened with a controversy on the whole decrees of the Vatican, and the Council of Catholics is on the eve of the mightiest controversy the world ever saw.

New York, Nov. 9. Additional advices from Macao and Hong Kong report the damage by the typhoon and tidal wave as more than confirming previous reports. It is estimated that a total of 20,000 lives were lost. At Macao the typhoon was of the most terrific character. The tidal wave broke on the shore with awful violence, sweeping everything before it.

A CITY IN RUINS.

Macao was laid in ruins, and the misery thus entailed upon hundreds of its residents is fearful, while the loss of life is enormous. It is computed that over 10,000 lives were lost in Macao alone.

DANGER OF A PLAGUE.

Four days after the storm the effluvia arising from thousands of decomposing bodies was so great that the soldiers revolted and refused to bury any more bodies. The Governor fearing that the plague would follow if the bodies were not disposed of ordered them burned. Four thousand bodies were cremated, the troops first covering the corpses with tar and then setting the heaps on fire.

A NUMBER OF EUROPEANS LOST.

The loss of lives around and in the vicinity of Hong Kong will exceed 4000. A large number were killed.

Great activity is observable in all the military departments of France, in obedience to the recent Government decree ordering an increase of the active strength of the army.

To Vermonters.—At our annual conference at Bethel, the State Committee were urged to carry the gospel of the kingdom into every new field which opened a door, and especially to offer a week of labor for any five dollars pledged by an isolated brother or sister living in a new field. We want to hear immediately from those places where labors are desired, that we may make due arrangements to meet the demands. If you are too poor to raise five dollars, and yet the door is open for a meeting, write us just the same as though you raised the money. Write to me at Waterbury, Vt., or to A. A. Hoyt, Plainfield, Vt. Write full particulars of circumstances, people, time, and place. Write soon.

As I have received many pressing invitations to visit Maine, and other parts east, and labor with the Lord's children in the cause of Jesus and the salvation of the perishing, I will, by the help of the Lord, arrange to devote from four to six weeks to this special work. I am preparing to leave about the 15th of Nov. A NEW BOOK.
"THE BIBLE DOCTRINE OF THE SOUL."

An Answer to the Question: "Is the Popular Conception of the Soul that of Holy Scripture?"

BY CHAS. L. IVES, M. D.

Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Yale College.

This is a pamphlet of 119 pages, in which the Author discusses the above question in an interesting and able manner,—showing the material nature of, the mortality and destiny of the Soul,—A future immortality to be the special portion of the Righteous,—What the Bible teaches as to the future of the Wicked,—The intermediate state,—The Resurrection,—That of the Righteous and of the Wicked, etc.

The Author claims that the doctrine set forth,—"Honors God, exalts the Bible, insures preaching of future punishment, subverts Universalism and Infidelity, errors of Romanism, of Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, helps in work of Missions, rightly values the body, brings Christian unity, and promotes personal holiness."

We are much pleased with this work. It ought to have a wide circulation. We have a good supply, and hope the friends will order freely. We will sell at the following prices:—25 cts. per copy; $2.00 per dozen, sent by mail; $15.00 per hundred, by express.

It is devoted to a critical exposition of Bible Truth, and an earnest advocacy of Bible Salvation. Only One Dollar a year, with a book or engraving free. Address The Bible Banner, New York City, Box 2289.

GERMAN TRACTS.

A new German Tract just out: "Does the Bible teach the Immortality of the Soul?" A reply to a letter from a German theologian in Prussia.

Other tracts as follows: "The Fifth Universal Kingdom, or Kingdom of Christ on Earth." "What is Man?" "Future Doom of the Ungodly." "Resurrection," etc.

THAT BOOK.
"History of the Second Advent Message, Doctrine and People."

This work is now ready for all. It contains the history of the rise and progress of the proclamation of the Second Advent of Christ, near at hand, from A. D. 1820 to the present time, in America, Europe, Asia, and Africa; with sketches of the great reformations accompanying it; of many of the chief pioneers associated with it; the great opposers, and their futile efforts to defeat the work. Records of its rapid progress, and of many of the remarkable manifestations of God's guiding hand in the work. Discussions, lectures, sermons, dialogues, and chief points of doctrine advocated by the various classes of believers in the Lord's soon coming.

Records and tables of the prophetic times of Daniel and John, as advocated by the chief Protestant writers, all of whom terminate the periods between 1836 and 1880. A sketch of Luther and his times, compared with ours. His portrait, and portraits of twenty Second Advent pioneers, with discourses on Daniel 2nd, 7th and 8th chapters, illustrated with fine wood cuts, with much other valuable matter.

Our subscribers will be supplied at prices agreed on when orders with cash (and 20 cts. for postage) are received. All who wish to buy the work will be supplied, postpaid, at $3.50. As our object is not to make money, but to have this message and its history go as far and as cheap as possible, we put it as low as we can. We have endeavored to make it a book that all who are really associated in this great movement will buy, and that real inquirers will think best to buy. The book contains 711 octavo pages, neatly bound in cloth, gilt side.

LOVED WITH AN EVERLASTING LOVE.

There's a song of praise in my heart to-day,
And a gladness no words can tell,
As I think of the love that is holding me,
That never can change or fail.
Other love may grow cold as the years roll by,
Other friends may forgetful be;
But Jesus will never forget his own,
Through the years of eternity.

That love everlasting what tongue can express?
What heart can its strength understand?
The love that can reach to the depths of sin,
And seat us at his right hand.
He hath dwelt among us, he hath known our grief,
He hath suffered with us below;
And now from the throne he in pity looks down,
To comfort all human woe.

Life's sorrows may gather about my path,
Dear friends may be borne from my side,
But the arms everlasting around me fold,
And still I in peace abide.
He hath promised me strength for the stormy days,
As well as for those that are bright;
He hath bidden me rest in his loving care,
In the darkness as well as the light.

My footsteps may falter along the way,
And I may lie down to rest;
But nothing can sever me from his love,
In life or in death I am blest;
For he knoweth each grave where his dear ones sleep,
They are safe in his tender care,
And though I may pass through death's gloomy vale,
His love will surround me there.

As the living plant to the sunlight turns,
Unconscious of all beside,
So my heart would forget all its earth-born joys
In the love of the Crucified.
Oh I cannot be satisfied till I shall see
The light of his smiling face,
And hear the sweet welcome he hath for me,
Forgiven and saved by his grace.

There's a song of praise in my heart to-day,
For all pleasant things that are mine;
But I praise him most for this wondrous gift,
The riches of love divine.
Earth's sunshine is brighter, its beauty more dear,
And sweeter life's blessings to me,
Since I rest in the love that will never fail
Through the years of eternity.

NEWS FROM ENGLAND.

From our English Correspondent.

Dear Brethren:—Still onward goes the cause of God in this land, prospering and winning to its ranks men of the truest and noblest types. Where but a year or two ago only ones and twos were believers in the good hope, there are now many. And one of the most encouraging features in the state of England at this time is that whereas but a few, say a dozen or so, could be got together to hear on the themes of the gospel, now in many parts large audiences are moved to come, who listen with marked interest. Instances of this are present to our memory from which we select two.

In Bacup there is a Baptist church, presided over by Jonas Smith, its pastor. Mr. Smith has come to lay hold on the truth of immortality and the kingdom of God. Not being careful to hide his light under a bushel, because not being a mere man-pleaser, a few Sundays ago he told his people in a sermon of the ultimate end of the refuse of men, that is, of the ungodly. Of course, he was misunderstood, and industrious persons were ready to propagate a wrong version of his remarks. The consequence was, he took the town hall, and laid the whole truth before an audience of a thousand thoughtful men and women, who had the good sense to behave themselves decorously throughout.

Mr. Smith then wrote to the church of his connection, placing himself in their hands to retain him as their minister or dismiss him, as they pleased. Their decision is not yet at hand. It is reported in many quarters that this Mr. Smith is a thoroughly godly man; that he really lives Christ; that he does not take hire money, but lives of the free-will offerings of the unconstrained brethren; and more, that out of his income, whatever it may be, he finds something to distribute to the necessities of the poor. He has acted so wisely and honorably and kindly in this matter of profession of long-forgotten truths, that inquiry is very active in Bacup, and surely the outcome of all will be that God will be glorified, and Jesus the Christ more highly exalted. We are sure this will be to our united mind.

In Oxford, too, Mr. Charles Underhill has taken the town hall, and delivered an address to five hundred persons, on "Fallen Man not an Immortal Being." The happy results anticipated, we do not believe will be dashed to the ground.

In America you will think little of this, as in some places you find it easy to collect a few hundred, and occasionally a thousand persons, but we in England take it as a very hopeful sign, when prejudice so abates as to allow men to come together to listen to what is itself powerful to convince any candid mind.

The Bible Echo, our weekly organ, is yet but a skiff in the great ocean, and many would sink it; but it yet survives, to echo the word of God. God grant it soon a less boisterous sea! It is going up in circulation, but is not yet self-supporting. If we can secure its life, it will co-operate with the speaker in diffusing the gracious light of the merciful and just revelation of God. There is one section of the professing church in England who are doing all they can to "kill" it. They have, but too successfully we fear, brought their influence to bear upon a wholesale publisher and a retail agent. But we fear nothing at their hands, for if this work be of God it will stand, and if not we are not the ones to desire its continued existence. But though we thus speak we have no misgivings as to Who is at the head of our enterprise.

We are very much rejoiced that our Bro. Grant has written us that he is impressed that God directs him to this land the next year. We shall be glad to receive him. Doubtless many doors will be opened to him. And may he be able to deliver the truth with unction and hope. Blessed be God, that we ever heard such good news as it is now our privilege to proclaim.

W. Kellaway.

The Sun and the Clock.—The Scripture is the sun; the church is the clock, whose hand points us to, and whose sound tells us the hour of the day. The sun we know to be sure, and regularly constant in his motion. The clock, as it may fall out, may go too fast or too slow. We are wont to look at and listen to the clock to know the time of day, but where we find the variation sensible, we believe the sun against the clock—not the clock against the sun. As, then, we would condemn him of much folly that should profess to trust the clock rather than the sun, so we cannot but justly tax the incredulity of those who will rather trust to the church than to the Scripture.—Bishop Hall.

RELIGIOUS LEECHING.

A physician lets blood out of a patient by the application of leeches. The leech is an ugly looking customer to come into such close intimacy; and he is a contemptibly dark featured fellow to claim a blood connection. But he is subject to the physician's orders and uses; and a sick man's bad blood must be either purified or got out of him, so the leech is introduced, professionally, and sets to work. He bores and drinks and gorges himself and enjoys himself well. The leech has rather a better time for a while than the patient.

Now, the physician's object in this operation is one thing, and the leech's object is quite another thing. The leech draws blood to satisfy itself; the physician has the blood drawn to cure his patient. Although the process is grievous and not joyous to him whose blood is pumped from one body into another, yet the end in view is the life of the man, even though a dozen leeches be put to death by their own greed.

So it is among christians who become spiritually sick or distempered. God deals with them as a physician, and he uses wicked people as leeches. And while it seems from one side to be persecution, from the other side it is love. God permits his church to be persecuted in order to purge away its sins. He makes the believer better by the buffeting of Satan. Security, worldliness, and pride, are often so thoroughly inherent in the life-current of the disciple, that he must needs be leeched. He is seized by a half dozen fiery tongues, sacrificed by slanders, annoyed, vexed, and tormented by ungodly persons. Wicked designs are accomplished upon him; rage and malice have vent in his face; he is troubled and afflicted. But the evil extracted from him will be the utter ruin of the human leeches that bore him for it, get it, and make it their own. The leeches have their ends and get their deathful deserts; but God has other purposes in view. As Joseph said to his brethren, so it is still: "You did intend me hurt, but God did intend me good."

Christless, mammon-natured men may, to all outward appearances, do evil to the church, but by the same deeds they poison and destroy themselves. Enemies may intend persecution and death to the christian, but the Almighty intends to thwart all their contrivances and break off in due time all their leeching holds. He will preserve and keep, purify and bless his own people who trust him as a Physician and love him as a Father.

It is a pity for the disciple who suffers the processes of such severe correction; but it is infinitely a greater pity for the carnal minded leeches who plague him only to bless him, and get everlastingly cursed for their pains.—Methodist Recorder.

GRACIOUS LESSONS.

Rev. Henry Belden, in writing to a friend, speaks of precious lessons recently more fully learned.

1. Deeper confirmation of the views I have been gathering for several years concerning every christian's need of frequent baptisms of the Holy Ghost; the practicability of having them; the motive that should influence us in seeking them; the way to seek them; the certainty of always obtaining; and the manner in which the gift is bestowed, often gradually.

2. The importance, and even, oftentimes, the necessity of silence. "Be silent to the Lord."—Marginal reading of Psalm 37: 7.

3. It has become easy to have "my mind (thought, imagination) stayed on God." It is done by a look to Jesus. It is rather a resting than an acting. Formerly I have had great and sore conflicts here. Read Isa. 26: 3, in connection with next verse.

4. Increased boldness in standing up for Jesus. This is given to me both as a lesson and a power; and, indeed, all of Heaven's lessons bring, or are associated with, more or less of power.

5. Love to opposers. I have been led to pray much for them. Then I saw that their opposition was not so much of themselves, as of the evil one tempting them; and if they were delivered from their enemy, and had the good Spirit, they would receive and love the truth. These thoughts filled me with pity for them, and led me deeper into a universal benevolence.

6. I have been filled with a deep spiritual realization of my privilege to rejoice in the Lord evermore, and an expectation that I should finish my course with joy, as Paul said, Acts 22: 24.

7. Increased sense of responsibility to testify for Jesus. "That the communication of thy faith may become effectual by the acknowledgment of every good thing which is in you in Christ Jesus." Philemon 6: 5. A christian friend giving this passage in exhortation, it came to me with unprecedented power. It becomes more powerful as I obey it.

8. I was given to see, that, if devoted wholly to Jesus, one's weakest points become his strongest points; even as God said to Paul, "My strength is made perfect in weakness." This lesson was spoken to my soul by a christian brother.

9. I was enlightened and delivered from a subtle and long-standing temptation to apprehend trouble in Christ's service. A christian brother said, quoting the passage, "The Lord scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." "It reads, 'whom he receiveth;' and this does not mean that he continues to scourge them. Even we earthly parents do not keep on thrashing our children always."

10. I have been taught a deeper death of self-will. The words in John 5: 30, were powerfully impressed upon me.

11. I have been taught to discern more clearly in regard to the path of duty. One says, "When we are in simplicity before God, willing to be led in any way, we may walk in confidence that the path before us is in the divine order."

12. It has been given me to have that form of self-denial by which I acquiesce in God's will, when it might deprive me of privilege and withhold me from doing desirable things.

13. Joy in having others instead of myself employed and blessed.

14. Deeper self-annihilation, especially in this, that I have been made to feel that the trusts committed to me are the Lord's, and not mine. We are only the helpers, if God is pleased to use us; hence, we need not mourn or be displeased at opposition.

15. Clearer understanding of what it is to have Christ in us.

16. Reliance upon the Holy Ghost to give me utterance in preaching the word. A very special lesson.

17. Greater ability to count it all joy when I fall into divers temptations; so much so as to desire that God would not take them away till all his will was accomplished.

18. Deeper love to the saints.

19. My consecration to Jesus has assumed a deeper and sweeter form. It seems now to be more a consecration into which I am drawn by divine love, and has less of self-resolution in it. It is apparently without effort; rather a repose in Jesus than a purpose to be faithful to him.

20. The same may be said of my faith. It seems to be more clearly and fully a fruit of the Spirit, in which my own spontaneity joyfully mingles, than a trust that requires effort.

21. God has enabled me to lay aside a spirit of fastidiousness in regard to the utterances and doings of my brethren when I see them to be quite mistaken. If the blessed Master kindly bears with their mistakes, why should not I?

22. One of the most delightful lessons taught me during the year, was, that I might everywhere be a partaker of the joy of others. This lesson was flashed upon me instantaneously, and with great spiritual power, while enjoying the hospitality of a christian family in a distant city. The husband and wife were singing together a sweet song of praise as we sat down at the dinner-table. In a moment it was given me to realize with great power, that I did then enjoy their happiness the same as if it had been my own, and that I might everywhere so enjoy the happiness of others. No words can describe the sweetness of this lesson. It delivered me from one of those subtle temptations with which Satan has long influenced me. I had thought, that, if called to frequent and long absences from my home, I might find it a great trial; but, in that flash of heavenly light, I saw that the joy of every christian family wherever I sojourned, was my own in the pure oneness of Jesus and his saints. That is, I saw the Lord Jesus made me to rejoice in others' joy just as if it were my own.—Guide to Holiness.

ANNUAL A. C. CONF. OF P. Q.

The first annual session of the above conference was held in "The Old Meeting-house," Hatley, P. Q., from Oct. 7th to the 11th inclusive; and although it was the first annual session, the conference being organized but a year ago, it was one of special interest. We never have attended a better one anywhere. The preaching brethren belonging to the conference were mostly present. Those who were not, reported, and some were received into the conference. Those present—J. Porter, C. P. Dow, Norman Stevens, N. O. Coates, Loren Marsh, David Merrill, N. D. Chadsey, A. H. Tilson, D. W. Sonberger, and L. C. & M. McKinstry. We were also favored with the presence of Bro. Nathan Wheeler, of Sugar Hill, N. H., as a delegate from the New Hampshire A. C. Conference, who aided us much by sympathy, counsel, co-operation, and effectively preaching the word. Bro. E. A. Stockman was also appointed a delegate, but for some reason unknown to us was not present, and many were disappointed. Preachers not present and reported, or were reported—E. G. Chadsey, J. Ward, and Thomas Davidson, who are all striving together for the kingdom of heaven.

The attendance of the people was somewhat light at first, but increased during the session of the conference, until the Sabbath, when the house was crowded, filling all the sitting room in the galleries, and making extra seats necessary. More than one hundred horses were tied about the house, along the road-side, and in the neighboring yards; making things look lively, and, as some remarked, "like old '43 times." It was a grand sight to see so many vehicles outside the house and the crowd inside, and evinced the deep interest which the people felt in the meeting, some of whom had come on the cars, and some over the hills with their teams during the week, a distance of forty miles, and some even that Sabbath morning as far as fifteen or twenty miles. The preaching, most of it, was excellent. Bro. Wheeler gave us several excellent sermons. On Sabbath morning he rode on "high places" so high that he found it necessary to "put the brakes on." The people deeply felt the force of the truthful message which he delivered. Bro. D. N. Chadsey followed in the afternoon, telling us that man should "not live by bread alone, but by every word which proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Those who preached during the conference beside these were—L. C. McKinstry, L. Marsh, A. H. Tilson, J. Porter, and M. McKinstry.

The business sessions were characterized by united action and earnest effort to do what was deemed to be for the best interests of the cause. The President and Vice President presided in turn during the meeting. In the absence of the Secretary, L. C. McKinstry was requested to act in that capacity. Among the items of business attended to was that of a Conference Campmeeting for the Province of Quebec, which it was decided should be held the last of June, and to be permanent and continue while time lasts. This was a timely arrangement, as there have been but few campmeetings in the Province, and those in the early days of the Advent movement. There has never been one held statedly and permanently. We doubt not that the one decided upon will promote the interests of the cause, and aid much in the promulgation of the truths due the present times. The precise locality of the meeting has not yet been decided upon, but it may be located at Magog, the village at the outlet of Memphremagog Lake. The following committee was appointed to locate the meeting and attend to it the first year,—C. P. Dow, Loren Marsh, Carmi Jewell, George Mitson, John Elliott, John Carbee, and John Saunders.

Reports were made by the Presidents of the Districts of the State, of the cause in the different districts, and by other preachers present of their labors, which were listened to with deep interest. This brought before the people the different places where the servants of Christ had labored, and made them better acquainted with the state of the cause than they otherwise would be. The christian character and standing of all the preachers connected with the conference was examined, and the character of all passed, and a vote of full sympathy and co-operation with each one was taken and passed unanimously.

The remaining business of the conference assumed the form of resolutions, which were discussed and adopted. They relate to ministerial qualification and conduct, ministerial support, organization of churches, the observance of the Sabbath, our literature, temperance, "evil workers," the second advent of Christ, etc., which are as follows:—

On Ministerial Qualification.

Resolved, That this conference agrees, and hereby advises, that all our ministers be men of earnest, believing prayer; of patient, persevering study; of becoming gravity; and that they devote themselves to "the ministry of the word," visiting, and other ministerial duties, as far as possible, as their specific work.

On Ministerial Support.

Resolved, That, as a conference, we fully believe that it is the duty of the churches to minister in temporal things to those who "preach the gospel, since God has ordained that those who preach the gospel should live of the gospel"; believing that withholding needed support discourages and disables the minister, and is highly detrimental to the cause of experimental religion among us, and injurious to those who withhold what is needed; and we hereby pledge ourselves to do our whole duty to bring about a change in this respect, for the greater success of the cause of truth and the glory of God.

On Church Order.

Whereas, There has been among us a state of anarchy and confusion, growing out of a want of proper gospel order, therefore,

Resolved, That it is expedient that the brethren in the different localities organize themselves into a church capacity, in a scriptural manner, so that they shall be in a condition of recognized and recognizing fellowship for each other, and have those church officers and institutions which are required by the New Testament, that "everything be done decently and in order," so that there shall "be no schism in the body," but harmony and co-operation among the brethren, each one having his and her place in the house of God, and "knowing how to behave" there, and so doing those duties, general and particular, which devolve upon each and all, so promoting fellowship in the church, and among the churches. And further,

Resolved, That these separate organizations should be so arranged and constituted as to be in harmony with each other and co-operate together.

On the Observance of the Sabbath.

Whereas, There is an honest difference of opinion in religious communities as to the observance of a weekly Sabbath, or rest day, leading to the observance of different days as holy days, or the regarding of "every day alike," resulting in confusion and a manifest injury to the cause of truth and righteousness, therefore,

Resolved, That, as a conference, we regard the first day of the week as the proper day of observance, because commemorative of the resurrection of Christ; and we deem it our duty to devote it to devotional and religious purposes; refraining, as far as possible, from all kinds of worldly labor, thereby observing it after the example of the early church; thus inculcating, by example as well as precept, the sentiment of its proper observance, and recognizing our obligation to that observance, thus being in harmony with the New Testament, the early church, and a large majority of christians at the present time, and the wholesome provisions of civil law.

On our Literature.

Whereas, Christian literature is a useful auxiliary to the healthy and prosperous growth of a religious body; and, whereas, we need such literature; and, whereas, our views of Bible truth have become in some important respects changed, so that the current, self-styled "orthodox" literature of the day is hardly "orthodox" in our opinion, at least in every instance; and, whereas, we are thankful to recognize the providence of God in raising up and establishing the "Advent Christian Publication Society," organized in Boston in A. D. 1860; and, whereas, its publications are generally acceptable to us; therefore,

Resolved, That we approve of the general management of that Society, and have condence in its officers, and we will aid, by our influence and means, to promote its interests and spread its issues; those issues being a weekly paper, "The World's Crisis," and a semi-monthly, "The Young Pilgrim," and a list of books and tracts, and the hymn and tune book, "The Jubilee Harp." And we recommend the people to subscribe for the papers, secure as far as possible the books, and circulate the tracts; and we further recommend the use of, and pledge ourselves to use, "The Jubilee Harp" in all public services, as preferable on some accounts to any and all others yet published.

Resolved, further, that we approve of and recommend the monthly, "The Bible Banner," edited and published by Bro. A. A. Phelps, M. A., and also "The Christian," edited and published by H. L. Hastings,—both ably edited and useful to the cause of Christ.

Of Temperance.

Resolved, That, as a ministerial and lay conference, claiming to be Bible christians, we are fully and painfully aware of the untold evils and miseries caused by the sale and use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and esteeming the world-wide indulgence in them to be a terrible scourge and curse, we are resolved that we will, by all scriptural means, sympathize with and aid all scriptural and judicious efforts which have in view the glorious object of opposing the trade and traffic in, and use of, ardent spirits; and we hereby declare ourselves to be, in theory and practice, in favor of "total abstinence from all that can intoxicate," and that we are opposed to the use of fermented wine for sacramental purposes. And we, hereby, pledge our entire christian influence, in harmony with this our unanimous resolution.

Of Evil Workers.

Whereas, there are "evil workers" among us, and going out from us, who do not work in harmony with us, and who take the advantage of the circulation of the Crisis to publish their appointments, and then use those appointments to prejudice the people against us by misrepresentations and unchristian reflections; and, whereas, such a course is disastrous to the cause of christian unity, and is especially unscriptural and hurtful; therefore,

Resolved, That such of those "evil workers" as are known, or may become known, to the officers of this conference, be by them represented by name to the "Publishing Committee" of the Crisis, with the request that their appointments be withheld from the Crisis.

Of Fanaticism.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this conference that certain phases of fanaticism, that have of late been brought in among us, to the disgrace and great injury of the cause of truth, in the form of unwholesome doctrines and unseemly practices, ought to be kindly and scripturally opposed, and those teachers, as well, who promote the work; and we will kindly and faithfully oppose every such hurtful influence and practice in the fear of God.

Of J. N. Wingate.

Whereas, one J. N. Wingate—who has been in the Province of Quebec, traveling and professing to be an Advent preacher, but whose course has been, in our judgment, hurtful to the cause of Christ and morality, tending, as it seems to us, to division and distraction, and to lead astray unwary, honest souls—has left the Provinces for parts unknown to us, some saying to go to Florida for his health, and others (all equally professing to be his friends), only to Boston; and, whereas, he will doubtless represent himself as an Advent preacher; therefore,

Resolved, That, wherever he is, this conference has no confidence in him, nor sympathy with the course he pursues, and would scripturally, and in the fear of God, recommend the brethren to notice the fact that we have no fellowship for him, and do not consider him worthy of the confidence of the church of Christ.

On the Appointment of a Conference Missionary.

Resolved, That the President of this conference be, and hereby is, authorized and appointed a special Conference Missionary and Evangelist, for the promotion of the interest of the cause of Christ which it represents, devoting his time, so far as he may be able, to this work; and it is further

Resolved, That this conference be responsible for his necessary support, and that all collections or funds raised for his support, in places where he may labor, be devoted, so far as they are sufficient, for this purpose, and that the deficiency,—if there be any, of such necessary support as he may require, as occurs from lack of funds, of the means raised in places where he may labor,—be met from the treasury of the conference.

Of the Second Advent of Christ.

Resolved, That, as a conference, we are more than ever impressed by the solemn fact that the glorious Second Advent of Jesus to our planet is near at hand, and that time, hoary and wrinkled with age, has come at last to the agonies of its dying hour; so that even now we seem to hear the death rattle, and its last heaving breath; and the tolling knell, and all the solemnities of its funeral occasion, seem to be upon us. We are, therefore, deeply affected by the sense of the importance of our position and work, as those to whom is committed the proclamation of the flying angel's message, that "the hour of his judgment is come," and we feel the solemn importance of the work, and that we will devote ourselves more fully than ever to God and his cause, and to that special proclamation which has made us a people, feeling deeply our dependence upon God, and the necessity of a harmony of our life and conversation with the great truths which we proclaim; and, realizing that there are still multitudes of perishing sinners around us who are in imminent danger of being lost; we will seek, by all laudable gospel means possible to us, to save them from the "second death," so helping others to be ready, and being ourselves prepared to welcome our Immanuel when he comes to reign on the earth, that we may be saved with all the redeemed hosts of God's elect ones in his kingdom.

Resolution of Thanks.

Resolved, That the thanks of this conference are extended to the friends in this vicinity for their kind entertainment, and we pray that they may be abundantly enriched in all spiritual things. Adjourned sine die.

CONSECRATION.

L. A. Dewy.

I've consecrated all to Jesus,
All upon the altar lain,
Every dearest earthly treasure,—
Take them, Lord, with my good name.

Now by faith I'll claim the promise
I have read in the blest word,—
Jesus saves me if I trust him,
Will cleanse me with his precious blood.

Though thick clouds around may gather,
And the way I cannot see,
Thou wilt guide me, blessed Leader,
If I only cling to thee.

If aught should tempt my soul to turn
From the heavenly, narrow way,
He who felt temptation's power
Will shield me if I watch and pray.

CONF. AT MELVIN VILLAGE, N. H.

This meeting commenced, as appointed, Thursday evening, Oct. 22nd, and held over the Sabbath. The weather was delightful, and more like summer than a great deal we have had for the past season.

Bro. J. Parsons arrived Thursday, and gave us a blessed good discourse in the evening, and also another Friday afternoon. Bro. Stockman came Friday P. M., and in the evening gave us one of his good discourses. Saturday we had a conference meeting in the forenoon, in the afternoon preaching by Bro. Parsons, and in the evening by Bro. Stockman. This was a blessed day to the people of God, who were gathered from several towns.

Sabbath A. M. we had a blessed good love feast, after which was observed the ordinance of the Lord's Supper. Preaching in the afternoon by Bro. Stockman, and in the evening by Bro. Parsons. The object of this meeting was for the upbuilding of the cause of Christ. We think we can safely say that the church has reaped rich blessings through these meetings, for which we thank God.

Although we did not see that interest awakened among sinners that we longed for, yet we think the good seed has been sown, and trust some will spring up unto everlasting life. The servants of God and the church did their duty faithfully, and their skirts will be clear (we believe) in the day of God.

The meetings have been blessed throughout. The divine Spirit of the Master was with his children, to own and bless; and the brethren and sisters felt that it was good to be there: so much so, that they were loth to part. The brethren and sisters from other places took right hold and labored for God, and the result was, his blessing was showered upon us. Blessed be his holy name. If it is so blessed to meet a few of the dear children here for a little while (and then to part), what will it be to meet all the dear family on the immortal shore, and part no more forever.

This has been one of the best conferences (if not the best) ever held in Melvin Village. Since this meeting has closed, our meetings have been interesting, and the Spirit of the Most High has been in our midst. Some have returned to Father's house, and others we are hoping will come and be saved.

MAN AN INDIVIDUAL.

Irresistible, undeniable facts demonstrate that man is not a den wherein two enemies are chained together, but an individual being; or, in other words, an individual. We had better face this great fact. It is of no use to blink at it. Our knowledge of physiology has come to a point where the old idea of man's constitution must be thrown aside. To struggle against the overwhelming force of science under the notion of shielding religion is mere folly.—Notes on Thought.

Cheerfulness.—There is not a greater every day virtue than cheerfulness. This quality of man among men is like sunshine to-day, or gentle, renewing moisture on parched herbs. The light of a cheerful face diffuses itself, and communicates the happy spirit that inspires it. Be cheerful always.

HOME AND HEALTH.

THE BRAIN THE ORGAN OF MIND.

A Living Automaton.—The Paris correspondent of the Baltimore Gazette writes: "A curious phenomenon can be witnessed in the Saint Antoine Hospital. A young man, a singer in a cafe concert, was wounded during the war in the head by a ball which struck his skull obliquely over the left ear, carrying away six inches of bone and exposing the brain. He was relieved, but at the cost of a paralysis of the right side; this was cured in time, and he was enabled to resume his usual mode of life. Some weeks ago his nervous system became so deranged that he was admitted into the hospital. His attack of the nerves lasts about thirty hours, during which time he is but a living automatom; he is unconscious of surrounding circumstances, and insensible to all pain. Place him on his feet, he walks; seat him in a chair, put a pen between his fingers, he displays the want to write, and seeks for ink and paper; supply him with a cigarette paper he will search for tobacco, and will make the most perfect cigarette paper he will search for tobacco, and will make the most perfect cigagettes. He executes these movements without any signs of consciousness or impatience; remove the article twenty times from him, he displays no anger, but quietly recommences his work. He can be made to sing some of his songs when he is supplied with a pair of white gloves and a newspaper for a sheet of music. He has a monomania for theft, for he pockets everything he can lay hold of, but shows no signs of being discontented when the articles are taken from him."

Brain and thought are so intimately and inseparably connected that it is impossible to disturb the one without molesting the other. That brain generates thought it seems to me any thinking man who takes cognizance of cause and effect must admit.

But we are told by those that ought to know better that thought and reason are not at all dependent upon matter, that the mind is freer, and has more capacities independent of matter, that matter cannot think. I ask, why does this man at times cease to think and act rationally? For the simple reason that his brain at times does not perform its office work.

But, says one, your hand cannot think. No, neither can it see. My eye can see, but cannot hear. My eye can see, and my ear can hear, but neither one of the two can think. My brain can think, but cannot hear or see. If my brains were unmoved, and it were possible for me to live, move, and act, and I still continued to think and reason as before, I would then be inclined to the belief that thought was not dependent upon matter.

We find the brain subject to many diseases which are sure to affect the mind, such as softening, etc.; when in many cases the mind becomes wholly demented, or insane, all owing to the derangement of the brain.

Notice the imbecility of the young babe, one of the most unthinking creatures of its age. But watch the growth of its body, and see how its little mind keeps pace, step by step, until it arrives at the meridian of life, when it has mastered all the languages, arts and sciences; and here he stands as the bright and morning star in all its effulgence in the literary world, the pride of his country. Touch his brain, he becomes a raving maniac or a babbling idiot, or as nature takes its course gradually down the hill of life, flicker, flicker, little by little, until he becomes a feeble old man, with staff in hand, leaning over the grave, debilitated in body and mind, once a man and twice a child. And do you tell me that mind does not depend upon matter? Yes, indeed, man must depend upon matter for thought, until his "breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish." Ps. 146: 4.

EVILS OF TOBACCO USING.

Tobacco-using is a filthy habit.

Yes, it is notoriously filthy and disgusting to every one except the individual who indulges it. We need not describe the reeking filth of a tavern bar-room, or a smoking car, for there is no person with the slightest love for neatness and cleanliness who has not a hundred times been offended by forced contact with the results of tobacco-using in some of the many detestable ways in which they occur. A tobacco-user not only presents a most revolting spectacle of defilement in himself, but he renders foul and offensive everything that comes in contact with him. He always leaves a dirty mark behind him—shall we say as a fitting memento of his character? Perhaps that would be a little too hard; but may it not be that constant association with filth will make some disagreeable modifications in a man's character?

A man who will be a slave to tobacco, not only ruins himself—his health, his mind, but he inflicts a most intolerable nuisance upon society.

Tobacco taints the breath.

It may be suggested that this objection does not amount to much, in these days when almost every person's breath is redolent with something—emanations from decaying teeth, foul odors from a sour stomach, putrid smells from an ulcerated nasal cavity, or something equally offensive. But we protest that these are bad enough alone; and when they are reinforced and augmented by the pungent, fetid odor of tobacco, a climax of foulness is reached which is wholly beyond description, and needs only to be once experienced to be fully appreciated. Times without number, almost, have we been forced to turn away with sickening disgust when conversing with a person whose breath fell upon us freighted with its vapory poison. In more than one instance has the dying invalid turned more ghastly pale as he waved from his presence the minister who came to offer words of consolation, but brought with him the nauseating effluvia of of tobacco.

Tobacco defiles the air.

Even the very atmosphere surrounding a tobacco-user is laden with a characteristic fetor. Every pore of his skin is sending out a stream of the poison, while each expiration of air from his lungs pollutes his immediate neighborhood with its innate nastiness. And if the person is a smoker, the evil is increased tenfold; for it seems to be the special avocation of the smoker to contaminate as much as possible of the pure air of heaven with his vile drug, thus forcing it upon the most repugnant, for we must breathe or die.

What right has any person to thus poison the "breath of life?" How long would a man be permitted to scatter broadcast the poisonous germs which communicate small pox or scarlet fever? Yet tobacco kills more persons every year than both these maladies combined. What a blessing to humanity would be the revival of the old puritanic law which would not allow a man to smoke within ten miles of any house, and then not in the presence of a stranger. A slight vestige of that law still exists in the city ordinance of Boston, which interdicts all smoking upon the streets.

Tobacco-using enervates offspring, and so threatens the race with extinction.

If tobacco-using should increase during the next two hundred years as rapidly as it has done in the last period of that length, it would become a universal vice. Then would vanish the last hope for the race; ultimate extinction would be inevitable.

It often occurs, and, indeed is as true as a rule, that the worst effects of the use of tobacco are not seen in the man who indulges the habit, but appear in his children. Whence came such a vast army of nervous, sickly, yellow-faced young ladies? Inquire, and learn that their fathers were tobacco-users, and you have the secret. Improper diet, fashionable dress, lack of exercise, and other hygienic influences may receive their due share of condemnation for producing such poor specimens of humanity as are these useless, "vapory," hysterical creatures; but when we find that their troubles began with the very first day of their existence, that they were as hysterical in their cradles as ever afterward, we must look for some hereditary cause; and we find it in the fathers who poured out their children's vitality in reeking streams of tobabco juice, and puffed it away in clouds of odorous smoke.

A terrible inheritance of constitutional weakness, nervous debility, and general incapacity for enjoyment, does the tobacco-using father entail upon his children. Most strikingly applicable are the words of Ezekiel, "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge."

With reference to the same subject, the renowned Sir Benjamin C. Brodie said, "No evil is so manifestly visited upon the third and fourth generations, as the evils which spring from the use of tobacco."—Health Reformer. (To be continued.)

ADVICE TO A MOTHER.

The first book read and the last laid aside by every child is the conduct of his mother. Consider then these suggestions. 1. First give yourself, and then your child to God. It is but giving him his own Not to do it is robbing God. 2. Always prefer virtue to wealth—the honor that comes from God to the honor that comes from men. Do this for yourself; do it for your child. 3. Let your whole course be to raise your child to a high standard. Do not sink into childishness yourself. 4. Give not heedless commands, but when you command require prompt obedience. 5. Never permit cruelty even to an insect. 6. Cultivate sympathy with your child in all lawful joys and sorrows. 7. Be sure that you never correct a child until you know that it deserves correction. Hear its story first and fully. 8. Never allow your child to whine, or fret, or bear grudges. 9. Early inculcate frankness, candor, generosity, magnanimity, patriotism and self-denial. 10. Remember that the knowledge and the fear of the Lord are the beginning of wisdom. 11. Never mortify the feelings of your child by upbraiding it with dullness; but do not inspire it with self-conceit. 12. Pray with and for your child, often and heartily. 13. Encourage all attempts at self-improvement. 14. Reprove not a child severely in the presence of strangers. 16. Remember that life is a vapor, and that you and your child may be called out of life and probation any day.—Selected.

SYSTEMATIC HABITS.

Systematic habits will add infinitely more to your comfort and prosperity in life than perhaps any other trait of character. Be systematic in everything, for it saves time and annoyance, besides gaining for you a fame and fortune. Systematic men, who promptly comply with their engagements, are the only reliable men. Undoubtedly systematic habits have done more for young men, when starting in life, than anything else. We remember a few years ago, a shrewd, reflecting, observing young man, who left his home in one of the towns on the Hudson, in New York State, to battle, alone and unassisted, with the world. He was cool and deliberate, but what he did was done with quickness and precision. He was one of those young men who were not addicted to evil habits that frequently beset our youth—not even using tobacco. By his systematic habits, polite and pleasing ways, he won for himself many influential friends, and in a short time his position was all that could be desired.

A man that is not systematic in his habits is a mere cipher in society, without weight of character, and utterly destitute of influence. The man that is systematic in his habits, is admired, respected, and feared.

Redeeming the Time.—By devoting one hour every morning before breakfast, how great a quantity of matter may be read over in the course of a few years. By adopting this practice I have been enabled to peruse, in the course of four years, the whole of Scott's quarto Bible (three thick volumes), including all the notes and practical observations, reading the whole of the Testament twice, returning to the Old Testament as far as the 30th chapter of Exodus; and blessed be God, his word has been delicious to my taste, and fnll of comfort to my soul.—J. V. Hall.

There are soft spots in the hearts of the most abandoned of men and women. The ugliest worms are but undeveloped butterflies, which, after a time, if placed under proper influences, will escape from their withered cases, and mount aloft on wings of gold and silver. And these poor repulsive looking and unpromising outcasts, under the transforming power of christian love, may become saints, apostles, and martyrs.

There is no path but will be easier traveled, no load but will be lighter, no shadow on heart or brain but will lift in presence of a determined cheerfulness.

THE CHRISTIAN'S REST.

WM. D. TUCKER.

"There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God."—HEB. 4: 9.

Onward o'er life's rugged pathway,
Travel we a pilgrim band,
Guided by our gentle Savior
To a fair celestial land;
To a land of peace and safety,
Where no sorrow e'er shall come,
Where in all the bright forever
It shall be a happy home.

There we'll meet our dearest loved ones,
Never more to part again;
There we'll join in songs of triumph,
When our Savior comes to reign;
There we'll rest from care and labor,
When our journeyings are o'er;
And rejoice in life eternal,
On that never-ending shore.

And within the pearly portals
Of the heav'nly city bright,
We shall walk in peace and safety,
Where there are no shades of night.
There, beside the flowing river,
We will join the angel throng;
There to sing through countless ages
The glad alleluia song.

We shall rest, yes, rest forever.
O how sweet the thought to me!
We shall rest with our dear Savior
In that land of purity;
And my prayer to him is daily,
Come, Lord Jesus, quickly come;
Come with rest for thy dear people;
Come and take thy children home.

THE RESURRECTION BODY.

H. BRITTAIN.

III.—ITS POWERS.

"The branch of our subject which now lies before us is one of great interest, but, alas! it is one on which we have little direct or decisive scriptural evidence to guide us. But here, as is usually the case, imagination has been active, where authority has been wanting. The most pleasing anticipations have been entertained as to what we shall be able to do and see hereafter, and the most delightful reveries have been indulged in on the same subject. The reins have been thrown on the neck of fancy, which has not failed to take a course that has been about as daring and unadvised as that of the youthful charioteer whose temerity and unhappy end have alike combined to make his name proverbial for these things.

"One error leads to another; and there can be no doubt but that to the erroneous and visionary notions which have so generally prevailed respecting the nature of the future body, is in a great measure to be attributed much of what has been put forth respecting its powers. Its materiality and true physical character have been well-nigh lost sight of, and we can scarcely wonder, therefore, at what it has been supposed it will be capable of doing. Not even Ariel passed with greater facility from tree to flower, or roved at will through airy regions with speedier flight, than the glorified saint has been supposed to do from orb to orb, and from sphere to sphere, in visit to other and distant worlds. Possibly something of this kind may really be done hereafter, but as yet no sufficient proof has been produced that such will be the case. Yet without proof, it is folly to proceed; and if we venture into such an unknown region without a guide, we cannot do otherwise than expect to wander from the right path. With such a danger before us, the most pleasing anticipations, when not well supported, should afford us but little pleasure, and however delightful it may be to speculate on the future prospect, the inclination to do so should be restrained within at least very sober bounds.

"Some of the speculations, however, which have been indulged in have not been altogether without foundation, though sufficient care has not been taken to distinguish between what has really been of this character and what has not, nor to keep strictly within the bounds marked out by that evidence on which alone we can rely; and hence even that which is true has been thrown into uncertainty through being associated with much that is in all probability erroneous. What we have to do is, to proceed with the greatest caution, and in our discussion of the subject to be careful to weigh well the real and exact import of the various passages of Scripture which can be brought to bear upon it. It will be my endeavor to show where, as it seems to me, its boundaries lie at present.

"The statement made by St. Paul in 1 Cor. 15, respecting the future body, must be again referred to. They have already done much for us, and they must do yet more. In reference, then, to the change that will be wrought in the condition of the body we find him saying: 'It is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption; it is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in POWER.' Vers. 42, 43. Not by power, but in power; that is, in a state in which it will be endowed with great power or capabilities. Of what kind they will be we are not told, nor is there anything here from which we can infer their nature. But that they will be great is readily seen from the connection of this part of the subject with that which goes immediately before. The changes previously announced, viz., from 'corruption' to 'incorruption,' and from 'dishonor' to 'glory,' are great and essential; and to be in proportion with them, this must be the same. Thus far, therefore, we have as yet no particulars, and it is when we come to these that our difficulties begin. Yet we are not without some very important revelations on the subject, though they are but comparatively few in number, and they do not enable us to go into details upon it. Our knowledge still remains general and comparative only, not special.

"Though it is most difficult to define its boundaries, the bearing of the following words, spoken by our Lord, cannot but be felt to be very great and very important:—'And Jesus answering said unto them, The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage; but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage; neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection.' Luke 20: 34–36. That we have equality with the angels announced here is certain, but to what extent remains a question. In another and kindred passage we have simply likeness of condition—'Jesus answered and said unto them, Ye do err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the power of God; for in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven.' Matt. 22: 29, 30. The great question to be considered in reference to the expression 'equal to the angels,' is, whether it is to be confined to the particular case in reference to which it is used, namely, freedom from death; or, whether it is to be understood as announcing equality in all other respects. There are some who hold the latter opinion; I confess I cannot do so; for it seems to me to assume far more than the case will actually warrant. We should not think of arguing from the latter passage (Matt. 22: 30), that the likeness there spoken of extends beyond the particular mentioned, and we should be careful, therefore, how we make the equality in the other do so; for the two subjects are evidently connected, and the two passages most probably form parts of one and the same corolloration. Campbell renders the term isangelos, 'angel-like.' According to Bloomfield, 'the commentators are agreed that since isangelos is formed after the model of isotheos, it should be rendered, not equal to the angels, but like unto the angels (viz., in respect of immortality and the nature of their bodies), as in Matt. 22: 30. Some of our theologians, however, hold, as we shall presently see, that the term should be understood to mean equality generally, or equality in all respects. Suppose this to be the case, let us see what follows.

"1. 'The angels,' we are told, 'excel in strength' (Ps. 103: 20), and some of the cases in which their strength, or power, was exerted, show how marvelously great it is; e. g., the angel who passed over Egypt slew, in one night, all the first born in the world, so that 'there was not a house in which there were not some dead. 'The angel of the Lord went out and smote in the camp of the Assyrians an hundred fourscore and five thousand.' 2 Kings 19: 36. Another angel, sent to execute the divine wrath against the Israelites when David numbered the people, destroyed, by means of 'pestilence,' seventy thousand of the people. Other instances show how marvelous are their capabilities, so to speak; e. g., the angel that appeared to Manoah and his wife 'did wondrously; for it came to pass, when the flame went up toward heaven from off the altar, that the angel of the Lord ascended in the flame of the altar.' Judges 13: 19, 20. The angel who delivered Peter out of prison appeared at his side, though the prison doors were all closed, and the keepers before the door kept the prison. He smote Peter on the side, and his 'chains fell off from his hands.' They went out together, and 'the iron gate that led into the city opened to them of its own accord.' Acts 12: 7–10.

"Now, will glorified saints be clothed with such powers as these and other instances imply? In the absence of direct proof upon the subject, we may remark, that it seems scarcely probable that they will, and for this reason: such things seem utterly inconsistent with the nature and condition of man, as a being having a material structure, subject to physical laws, and every way fitted for inhabiting a world like this, however advanced and exalted may be his and its condition. The mere probability of the case, however, must not be regarded as conclusive proof upon the subject, if indeed it be admitted as any proof at all; for, as we had again and again to remark, we can never depend on any reasoning of the kind, nor are we ever in a condition to determine with certainty what it is, or what is not probable or likely to occur; and when, therefore, we have not direct authority to guide us, we must be content to remain in doubt; though at such times we can scarcely do otherwise than be influenced in some measure by the conditions of the question, and by the inferences that are fairly deducible from them.

"2. Again,—the angels can pass from heaven to earth, and that, too, with incredible speed. Will glorified saints be able to do so? Daniel was engaged in prayer in behalf of himself and people, and the angel Gabriel was sent to communicate to him the divine will. But the record of the event seems to imply that he must have left heaven after the prayer of the prophet had commenced, and yet reached him before it was terminated; and if this was the case, with what inconceivable swiftness must he have flown on his errand! Dan. 9: 20, 21. But that the angelic host have the power to pass from heaven to earth, and therefore from sphere to sphere, is certain, and is of course proved by every instance in which any one of them has visited this earth.

"Seeing, then, that we are expressly told that the glorified saints, 'those who shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead,' shall be 'equal unto the angels,' it certainly becomes a most interesting subject of inquiry, whether they will possess this power, and so be able to leave this world and to visit at will the other orbs of heaven. Many have been the speculations that have been made upon it, and that, too, not by divines only, but by philosophers also, some of whom, both philosophers and divines, have taken the affirmative side of the question, and have speculated accordingly. In very many cases, however, it will be found that this has been done without sufficient data on which to proceed, and not unfrequently with an entire forgetfulness of what will be the nature and properties of the resurrection body. The question, however, must be decided solely by the evidence of Scripture, and our views of it must be regulated by the measure of that evidence which can be brought to bear upon it. But this, as before observed, is but small.

"The passage in which it is affirmed that the saints will be 'equal unto the angels' is by far the most important we have, and the bearing of even this upon the question is far from certain. Some of our most valued writers are of opinion that we may clearly infer from it that such a power as that we are considering—the ability to pass, namely, from orb to orb, will certainly be possessed hereafter. The author of that very valuable little work, The Lunar World (by the Rev. Josiah Crampton, A. M., Dublin—George Herbert), has expressed himself to this effect, and has quoted another able writer who takes the same view of the subject. He remarks, in an appendix (H):—

"'That the word isangelos, used in the latter passage (Luke 20: 36), should not be confined to the particular case referred to, is, I think, evident from the very nature of the expression. If man is to be 'equal to the angels,' we must suppose an equality, not in one, but in all particulars. This resemblance opens (without entering minutely into matters with which we are not acquainted) a glorious and happy prospect for man. Selecting only one of those powers which angels, we know, possess—that of rapid and boundless motion—what a deeply interesting thought is suggested!'

"'In Luke 20: 36, our Savior declares that the righteous will, in the anastasis or future state of existence, be isangelos; literally, 'equal to the angels,' but perhaps intended here to denote 'like the angels'; that is, possessing in a near and kindred degree the attributes which they possess. Accordingly, in the fourth chapter of the Apocalypse, we are taught that the four-and twenty elders, the representatives of the ancient and the modern churches, are placed round about the throne, together with the four living ones, the representatives of the angelic host. The resemblance here exhibited is such as strongly to exemplify the declaration of Christ. Their station is substantially the same; their employments are the same.

"'The activity of angels is disclosed to us by the Scriptures in many passages, and in language of the greatest force. The ninth chapter of Daniel particularly contains, as I observed in the first discourse concerning these glorious intelligences, a remarkable illustration of this subject. Here we are told that Gabriel received a command in heaven, while Daniel was employed in prayer, to interpret his vision; and that 'being caused to fly swiftly, he touched Daniel about the time of the evening oblation.' The activity here declared is plainly superior both to conception and calculation, and exceeds that of the sunbeams beyond any proportion perceptible by our minds. Similar to this representation will be the activity of the righteous in the future world.

"'To recur to the illustration adopted in the former part of this discourse. We are now, as we are styled in the Scriptures, worms of the dust, slowly and humbly creeping upon the earth appointed for our habitation. With these reptiles we die, and are lost in the tomb. Like them also we shall revive to a new and nobler existence, and wander freely at our pleasure through regions shut to us hitherto by an immovable law of our nature, and to our apprehension existing only in argument or fancy!

"'To act is the end of all rational existence, and to act at pleasure the necessary concomitant of happy existence. Like Moses and Elias, if we obtain a part in the first resurrection, we may hereafter visit distant worlds with incomparably more ease than we can now pass from one continent to another, and find the oceans of space by which they are separated merely means of illustrating our activity, and furnishing delightful opportunities of expatiating at our pleasure.'—Dwight's Theology, Ser. clxx, p. 813.

"I have before observed that I am unable to take this view of the subject, and cannot but feel that more is inferred from the passage in question than is really warranted. But we may compare it with another which has a direct bearing upon the subject, and it will, I think, be seen that this second passage at least limits, if it does not determine, the meaning of the first. In St. Paul's description of the second advent, given in 1 Thess. 4, we find him saying (ver. 17)—'Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air.' From this we learn that the saints will, for once at least, really leave the earth, but we learn also that on this occasion, whatever they may do or others, they will not leave it by a power of their own, but by the power of others. They will be caught up (harpanesometha),* which implies they will not ascend of themselves, and this is rendered still more certain by the fact that we are taught elsewhere how, or by whose power, it is they will ascend. We are expressly told that the angels will be employed by their Lord to raise or bear them up. 'And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet; and they shall gather together his elect from one end of heaven to the other.' Matt. 24: 31. Here, I repeat, we find the risen saints leaving the earth, but it is not by a power of their own; and we cannot but infer from this that they will not have the power, or it would be exerted by them on this occasion. And if they have it not at this time, which will be subsequent to the resurrection, it must be assumed that they will not have it at any other, or rather will not have it at all. This passage, therefore, I conceive, determines the bearing of the other (Luke 20: 36) upon the subject, and well-nigh proves, if it does not quite do so, that the equality with the angels there foretold will not be general or universal.†

* "The word harpazo, is the one used in Acts 8: 39; 2 Cor. 12: 2, 4; Rev. 12: 5.

"HEAR YE HIM."

S. S. BREWER.

Far back in dim, distant ages, God predicted by Moses the first advent of our Redeemer. In the fullness of time he was manifested, and, as it is written, he was recognized by his disciples. "This is that Moses, which said unto the children of Israel, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear." Acts 7: 37. "For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you; and it shall come to pass, that every soul which will not hear that prophet shall be destroyed from among the people. Yea, and all the prophets, from Samuel and those that follow after, as many as have spoken, have likewise foretold of these days." Acts 3: 22. Hence Paul, an Hebrew of the Hebrews, in his epistle to his Israelitish brethren declares that "God who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in times past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son." And then declares that "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard."

It is perfectly safe to hear and obey the Son of God and his apostles. Let us now proceed to hear his testimony that he hath sealed with his own precious blood.

"As, therefore, the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world." "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net, that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind. Which, when it was full, they drew to shore, and sat down, and gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away. So shall it be at the end of the world; the angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just, and cast them into the furnace of fire." "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory, and before him shall be gathered all nations, and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats."

That separation is final, and the destiny of the two classes eternal, the result of the parables of the tares and the wheat, and the net also is precisely the same; only two classes, no third party. "Hear ye him." Mark the words of that prophet—"And these shall go away into everlasting punishment; but the righteous into life eternal." Matt. 25: 34. "Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear." Matt. 13: 43.

The saying of Jesus in Matt. 5: 17—"Think not that I am come to destroy the law, nor the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill," is urged sometimes as an argument to ignore the positive teachings of Jesus. To this mode of interpreting prophecy I would state that there is no clearer prediction uttered than that recorded in Deut. 18: 15, 18, 19, and recognized in its fulfillment in Acts 7: 37, 3: 23–25. "Hear ye him."

Is it not conclusive that we are under the necessity of accepting the teachings of the Son of God regarding the closing up of this dispensation, and that which is inevitably to succeed it, in preference to all others? Hath not God thus decreed and revealed it? Hear the words of the Father on the Mount of Transfiguration—"This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased: hear ye him." Matt. 17: 5. Wherever there is doubt or uncertainty concerning the Old Testament, it is the will of the Father that we should hear his Son—"In all things whatsoever he shall say unto you." "Hear ye him."

With the present dispensation closes forever the period of human probation.

The present was termed by the apostle a dispensation of "ages," and when writing to the church at Ephesus, to a people that had been converted in the very citadel of idolatry, beside the temple of the great goddess Diana, whom Asia and the world worshiped (see Acts 19: 24–37), reminds them of their exaltation from idol worship to that of the only living and true God, by saying, "And hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. That in the ages to come he might show the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Jesus Christ."

The ages then to come embraced a long drawn out period of over eighteen hundred years, and now very near its close; as the evidences of this fact most clearly certify, as given in various ways by the prophet whom God raised up, and commanded us to "hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you." Now mark carefully the malediction uttered against all that will not hear the Son of God.

"And it shall come to pass, that every soul which will not hear that prophet shall be destroyed from among the people." The mission of the Messiah by angelic announcement was—"Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people." Yea, and all the prophets from Samuel and those that follow after; as many as have spoken have likewise foretold of these days, yea, ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying unto Abraham, And in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed." "Unto you first God, having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to bless you, in turning away every one of you from his iniquities." Acts 3: 24–26. The mission of Christ was the last to that people, as he plainly testified in these words—"But last of all he sent unto them his Son, saying, They will reverence my Son."

As the blessings that God embodied in the promise made unto Abraham were conditional, what can be plainer and more conclusive than this declaration—"Unto you first God having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to bless you in turning away every one of you from his iniquities." "But when the husbandman saw the Son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance. And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him." That was God's last effort to save them as a people; for their willful rejection of his Son he fulfilled the judgment as it is written—"Even so will I break this people and this city, as one breaketh a potter's vessel, that cannot be made whole again." Jer. 19: 11.

THE APOSTLE PAUL'S TESTIMONY.

"Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken to you: but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, lo we turn to the Gentiles." Acts 13: 46. Turn and read verses 44 and 45.

Concerning Paul, the Lord declared—"He is a chosen vessel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles and kings, and the children of Israel." Acts 9: 15. "That I should be the minister of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, ministering the gospel of God." The gospel that Paul preached was promised in the holy Scriptures. "Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, separated unto the gospel of God which he had promised afore by his prophets in the holy Scriptures." Rom. 1: 1, 2.

Paul's testimony concerning the gospel of God embraced the offer of salvation to every soul of man. See Heb. 2: 9. He preached final salvation conditionally. See Rom. 2: 6–12. Read it.

The gospel of God that Paul preached declares "the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels in flaming fire; taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and the glory of his power [when?], when he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe (because our testimony among you was believed) in that day." 2 Thess. 1: 7–9. Alas! there are those now that pervert the gospel as in the apostles' day, and disbelieves his testimony.

The Lord Jesus declares that "this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; then shall the end come." And in order to set the manner in the most convincing light refers us to inspired testimony, as recorded in Genesis 19, and then testifieth himself. "But the same day that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all, even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed." Luke 17: 29, 30. And thus it will be in the end of this world, The tares will be burned in the fire. when the Lord Jesus is "revealed from heaven in flaming fire." "Hear ye him."

The apostle Paul preached in the most clear and conclusive manner, a "day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God." Please read Romans 2: 4–12. That great day of God's wrath is now even at the door. But there are those now that teach contrary to the apostle's doctrine, and say we are on the eve of a dispensation of great prosperity, and the diffusion of religious principles and peace. "Go not after them." The admonition of the apostle to the church at Galatia is very timely, when men are departing from the faith and teaching fables. "But there are some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ; but though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you, let him be accursed. As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed." Gal. 1: 6–10.

The heavens and the earth which are now, are kept in store, and reserved unto "fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." Not a day of probation and salvation to ungodly men, but perdition, wrath, destruction, fire, which shall devour the adversaries. All the "tares," "bad," "goats," "unrighteous," all "that know not God," "and obey not the gospel," are to be "punished with everlasting destruction."

Now "hear ye him." "For ye yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night. For when they shall say peace and safety, then [then, yes, then] sudden destruction cometh upon them." "As, therefore, the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world."

MATTER AND MIND.

A. F. DUGGER.

It is sometimes said that the body being wholly composed of matter is not susceptible of thought; and our opponents, with an air of triumph, propound questions like the following: Can matter think? If so, why is it that the trees and stumps do not think? Why does not man think with his heel as well as with his head? Their conclusion is that matter cannot think, therefore they infer that man must have a soul or spirit composed of some other substance. How do they know that matter cannot think? or do they know it? I perceive the great difficulty is that they cannot conceive how matter can think. Does it therefore follow that God cannot superadd to matter a thinking faculty. Dare we limit the power of God by saying he cannot? Thought is not the only mystery connected with matter? Those who propound such questions and urge such objections, can no more conceive how matter can attract matter than they can conceive how matter can think. Yet matter does attract matter; this they cannot deny.

In taking any substance to pieces we discover that its particles are not held together by nails or tacks, or by any mechanical power whatever, but by a power which we call attraction, not obvious to our senses. This power our opponents can neither comprehend nor explain; yet it is matter, and God gave it to matter, and it is by this power that the heavenly bodies are kept in their proper orbits, Some being unable to conceive how matter can think, have inferred that matter cannot think; but they are equally unable to conceive how matter can attract matter. Will they therefore infer that matter has no such power? Cannot God give to some portions of matter different qualities? If not, how is it that a peach tree never bears acorns, nor an oak tree peaches? All intelligent persons know that God has given to matter different qualities, and that these different qualities do not destroy the essential properties of matter. For instance, in the peach and apple tree, and various other fruit trees, we see something above the essence of matter. Yet matter in these things is but matter. There is a wide and marked difference between the horse and tiger; both possess different properties, yet both are matter; and those qualities found in the fox and elephant, which are above the essence of matter, do not destroy the essential properties of matter.

Now these things show that God has given to matter different qualities. Could he not then superadd to matter a thinking faculty? O, but cries our opponents, matter cannot think, therefore man must have an immortal soul, or a little immaterial immortal spirit to do his thinking, to tell him when he is doing right or wrong. In Isa. 1: 3, we read that "the ox knoweth his owner." Has the ox an immortal soul to tell him who his owner is? But in the same verse we also read that "the ass knoweth his master's crib." Has the ass a little immaterial immortal spirit too, so that he can tell his master's crib when he sees it? Yes, if the argument is true that matter cannot think, for that which cannot think does not possess knowledge. So then if it is the immortal soul that thinks, it is that which possesses knowledge. Thus you perceive, according to this argument, of all the animals created, God has made none of them void of immortality, for mind is developed in all on a small scale. They all have a talent in common with their race.

It is quite evident that thought and intelligence have their origin in the brain, which is the seat of consciousness, and to injure the brain is to affect the mind. This is a fact, and one, too, which gives a death blow to the theory which claims that mind has no connection with matter. If thought has no connection with matter, how is it that a blow on the head will stop the thinking? Why is it that intoxicating drinks will cause derangement in the mind? If it is an immortal soul or spirit that thinks, why does it not think the same in an infant as in a middle-aged person? In infancy the mind is weak: as the child grows, the mind or thinking faculty gathers strength, and thus gradually matures with the person; and as the person declines the mind fails, thus proving to a demonstration that the mind belongs to, or is connected with, the material organization. Man can no more think without brains than he can live without air. The brain is the organ of thought, the same as the tongue is the organ of speech, or the stomach that of digestion. The brain is the seat of sensation, not only in man, but in all other animals.

The horse and the ox possess a sense of feeling the same as man. They experience pain, and suffer equally as great as do the human race; yet they are but matter. Can our opponents conceive how matter can feel, or experience pain? I apprehend they cannot, therefore they had better stop making light of the idea of God's giving to matter a thinking faculty, and also bear in mind that the question is not whether a tree or stump can think, but whether a living organized man can think by his brain. Facts, which are stubborn things, and will not bend, show that he can and does think, and also that mind is but the result of living organized matter.

In conclusion, I wish to subjoin the sensible remarks of the Rev. W. G. Moncrieff: "Often do we hear the words, matter cannot think, and the trumpet of orthodoxy summons us to attend. In our simplicity we have been led to reason thus: Matter cannot think—God made man out of the dust of the ground—then of course man cannot think. He may grow like a palm tree, but can reason no more than it. Now, this argumentation seems really valid; and yet every human being in his senses laughs it to scorn. I do think it is the protest of each child of humanity. Then, if you do, we respond in your case, matter must perform the function of reflection and kindred operations more than living organization. You are not, and if you declare living organized matter incapable of thought, we are bound to infer that you have no thought at all. Accepting your premises, we must hand you the conclusion. The logic is good, but we are generous enough to allow that we cannot subscribe to it. It has often occurred to us as a fair procedure, just for the sake of bringing orthodoxy to a stand, to assent that spirit cannot think. Of course we are only referring to created beings on this occasion. We have often tried to understand the popular idea of a spirit, and we must confess that it defies our comprehension. It is something, nothing, a substance, an essence, everything by times, and nothing long. To believe that such a production evolves thought, is an inordinate demand on human credulity. How the expedient was resorted to we cannot tell. Was it because thought is invisible that this invisible parent was sought for it? Then why not trace heat beyond the fire, perfume beyond the rose, attraction beyond the sun, and vitality beyond the branchy oak? Of all insane fancies this popular idea of the human spirit is the most complete. We have no wish to give offence, but the truth must be spoken." Here I might quote from many distinguished metaphysicians corroborative testimony, but enough has been said. "A word to the wise is sufficient." Sabbath Advocate.

INVISIBLE INTELLIGENCES.

L. A. WHEELER.

It is impossible to form a correct idea of what fallen human nature would be if every invisible intelligent influence should be withdrawn. The fact is clear that we all occupy the position of mediums more or less, yet many are ignorant, and perhaps more unconscious of it. Even the animal creation have been and for aught we know still are subject at times to the same invisible powers, as facts from the Book of books plainly show.

The serpent that came to Mother Eve, was only a medium through which an invisible power was at work. The proof of this read in Isa. 6: 5. There in the restituted state we find the serpent alive and doing well on the dust of the earth, while he that had the power of death, which is the devil, is destroyed, bruised under foot. Those swine that the devils went into did that which they would not have done if they had been let alone. Balaam's experience gives us another example. The beast on which he rode, speaking and pleading while being beaten, yet under a different influence than was the serpent or swine. Another lesson we may learn from his experience; that is, he was not conscious of his true condition until the Lord opened his eyes, then he saw the angel in the way. Another instance of this kind we have given in the experience of Elisha. The king of Syria wanted to get Elisha. In the morning, when Elisha arose, behold, the city that he was in was compassed by the king's host. Elisha's servant, a young man, seeing this was much afraid, and said, How shall we do? "Fear not," says the good man, "for they that be with us are more than they that be against us." "And Elisha prayed and said, Lord, I pray thee open his eyes that he may see. And the Lord opened the eyes of the young man and he saw, and behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha."

We can hardly think that this was only a vision presented to Elisha and the young man, but their eyes were opened so they saw their true condition; for we read that the angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them. Oh! could we realize our surroundings, and see things as they really are, or, as the apostle says, "see as we are seen," how cautious should we be in yielding, to be used by those angels that have left their own habitation, and have been cast down to the atmosphere of our earth, and that are doing such a great work at the present time. Their power is great, and their deception growing deeper every day; but we read "greater is He that is in you than he that is in the world." And how comforting it is to know that the holy angels are about, and do minister to every child of God, even if our eyes are holden so we cannot see them. We can believe what God has told us, and keep awake to the times we are in until faith and sight shall meet.

TRIP ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

We are this morning (Tuesday, Nov. 3d,) approaching Omaha, en route for California. The weather is very fine for the season, and we are riding pleasantly on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy R. R., our favorite route from Chicago to Omaha. We left Chicago at 10 A. M., yesterday. The meetings there last week were heavenly because of the presence of the Holy Spirit. We think we have never seen the church in a better spiritual condition.

As a whole, we think Chicago is growing wicked rapidly. Its prosperity is in every direction but in moral purity. Most act as though man's chief end was to become rich, be fashionable, live in splendid style, enjoy the pleasures of this world, and take no thought for the one to come. Another large class, who despair of attaining riches, seek their chief enjoyment in beer and whisky drinking, and the gratification of the baser human passions. But in the midst of all this worldliness and wickedness, the Lord has quite a number who will not bow to any of these things, who shine in the midst of darkness, and are an honor to the cause of Christ. In the different churches are found some earnest workers, whose religion is something more than a cloak to be worn to meeting on Sunday, and laid one side Monday, as is practiced by many professors. There are numbers in churches who have become tired of cold formalism, and are earnestly seeking something better. They have also come to the conclusion to go where they can find it, without asking permission of those who are at ease in Zion. Extremes meet in Chicago. Satan has his seat there in high places, but there are a few who will not bow to Beelzebub. Great indifference prevails in relation to vital godliness. The righteous there are situated much like Lot in Sodom. Vexatious things are all around, with no prospect of any improvement till Jesus comes. The passions of men and women seem to be more fully let loose every year. The restraints are less, and the most daring deeds of wickedness are as common as the milder form of robbery twenty-five years ago. Reports of robbery, fornication, arson, adultery, murder, and such like crimes, abound in almost every daily paper. These things are so frequent they excite but little surprise. To many the paper is dry that does not contain a list of startling crimes. These reports continue to increase the appetite for base things, in proportion as the mind dwells upon them with gratification. No doubt the vast amount of reading matter issued in the daily papers concerning crimes is one cause why so many are committed. These records serve to keep the mind on the subject, till abhorrence of crime is changed to fellowship and sympathy, while the base passions are kindled into criminal fever for indulgence. Like a deadly pestilence it is spreading in all directions, fitting thousands upon thousands for "the second death." It is a sad picture to behold, but the half has not been told. It is a shocking sight to look at many of the boys in these last days. They are the very personification of wickedness and corruption. They live and revel in iniquity. What must be the type of men arising from such boyhood, should time last to develope them? "Sodomites" would be their appropriate name, and the fires of Sodom would be again needed to put an end to such filthy creatures. It is a most perilous time to bring up children. We have come to the period named by the inspired apostle, who gave a prophetical description of the last days, saying the children would be "disobedient to parents, . . . without natural affection." We will not any longer dwell on the painful picture. These things only make the christian sigh the more for the coming of Jesus, who will reign in righteousness. The harvest seems about ripe for the reaping angels. When the time arrives to begin their work, they are taught to thrust in their sickles and reap, because the "wickedness is great." This is the reason why a change is needed.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, on the Missouri river. We have spent the day here, waiting for a train to Sioux City, Iowa, one hundred miles north of this place, where we purpose to begin meetings to morrow evening, to continue till the 15th of Nov. Tuesday, the 17th, we expect to leave Omaha at 11.30 A. M. direct for San Francisco, California, arriving Saturday evening, Nov. 21st. We are to leave here at 8.15 this evening, and ride all night. We very seldom take a sleeping car. As several have asked for information about the fare to California, we would say it is $141.80 from Boston by Boston, Albany, New York Central, Great Western and Michigan Central, and C. B. Q. R. R. It is $138 from Boston by Ogdensburg. It is $117.50 from Chicago, and $100 from Omaha. The second class is less than half this fare, with very poor accommodations, and a much longer time. A berth from Chicago on the sleeping cars is $17, being $3 from Chicago to Omaha, $8 from Omaha to Ogden, and $6 from Ogden to San Francisco.

TRACTS.

Dear brethren and sisters in Christ, we ought to do more to scatter tracts. They are a power for good that should be continually exercised. They are next to the preacher in efficiency. A single tract often accomplishes wonderful results. Thousands have been led to Christ through their agency. All churches know their value, and consequently spend thousands of dollars in their circulation; but we think there are none who should make so great sacrifices to send out these little workers as those who are looking for the coming of Jesus. They were never needed more than now. The call for them is earnest. Shall the destitute be supplied? We think it would be well for each one to lay by a definite sum each week for this object; and either send for the tracts to distribute themselves, or send their gifts to the general tract fund, that we may supply our missionaries, and others who need them.

Come, brethren and sisters, let us wake up more fully to this subject. Let no effort be spared that can be made available for good. Let us make a sacrifice for Christ. In the end it will be exceedingly profitable. Even the gift of a cup of cold water is not overlooked by Jesus. He that is faithful over a few things will be made ruler over many things. Small things produce great results when done for the Lord. Let there be a steady stream running into the tract fund, that there may be a continual outflow. Let us sow with a liberal hand. The promise is, "The liberal soul shall be made fat." Prov. 11: 25.

ILLINOIS AND IOWA.

We have had the privilege of traveling extensively in these great Western States, having traveled over eight hundred miles in Illinois, and between three and four hundred in Iowa. Our New England friends who have never been in these States can hardly realize their comparative size to the Eastern States, or the contrast between the general appearance of this country and the East. A large part of Illinois looks like a sea of land, dotted here and there with groves of timber, and trees planted around the farm-houses, while the vast prarie fields lie around you in silent grandeur, extending in every direction into the hazy distance as far as the eye can reach. No mountain ranges or intervening hills break the wonderful view. The valleys of the large rivers are more broken, and in many places are covered with timber. The lands are laid out into squares, sections and lots, the lines running directly North and South, East and West, so that the traveler can always tell the cardinal points. A great deficiency in the State is a lack of good water, which in many places is hard to obtain. The soil is very deep and rich, and produces great growth of vegetation when it is not allowed to bake in the hot sun. It is better adapted to corn than wheat, because the soil can be more frequently moved, which prevents it from becoming hard and unproductive. It is almost one unbroken field of arable land, capable of producing abundant harvests of grains, roots, grass, and a large variety of fruits. Wholesale farming is carried on here, which would astonish many of the small farmers in the Eastern States. There are some small farms here, it is true, but there are many large ones, the acres of which are counted by the thousands.

We were credibly informed that one farm owned by a Mr. Sullivan, in or near Livingston Co., contains sixty-four sections, or 40,960 acres in one body. It is all in a state of improvement, 30,000 acres being planted with corn in 1873. Mr. Sullivan carries on all kinds of mechanical business necessary for the repairs of his farming machinery. He employs carpenters by the year to build houses for his renters and to supply all necessary buildings for the great plantation. He has stores and mills, and nearly everything to make his great household an independent community. It is doing business on an extensive scale, something like that of Job, Abraham and Jacob.

The State is covered with an iron network of Rail Roads, doing an enormous freighting business, transporting the vast quantities of produce, raised on the fertile soil of the Mississippi valley, to the great central markets, much of it for reshipment to foreign lands. Chicago is its great mercantile city,—the Tyrus of the Northwest—one of the moral Babylons of the nation. It is as busy as a beehive, and as wicked as Sodom. But God has a few faithful servants and praying people there who are struggling hard to withstand the sweeping flood of iniquity which seems to be engulfing nearly all in the vortex of perdition. The Advent faith has been widely scattered over the State, and many meetings have been established, which are laboring hard to defend the faith once delivered to the saints, and maintain the purity of gospel worship. Many holding the faith are scattered, enjoying but few privileges of hearing preaching, or associating with those who are waiting for God's Son from heaven. May abundant grace be given to all these weary, waiting friends of Jesus to enable them to endure as seeing Him who is invisible, until the sweet note of deliverance shall sound upon their listening ears.

We enjoyed the privilege of attending the late Conference at Chicago, where we had the refreshing satisfaction of seeing many familiar faces which we had not seen for five weary years, and also of forming acquaintance with many dear ones in Christ, with whom we enjoyed happy hours of christian fellowship and devotion.

The meetings were characterized by a very sweet spirit, a deep searching of heart to learn its readiness to meet the coming Judge and our present location on the stream of time. A goodly number of our preachers were present, who seemed to be well grounded in the faith, and manifested a strong determination to sound the note of warning to the wicked, and lead the church of Christ to the appointed holy position where she shall be prepared for translation. We do most earnestly pray that God may give all his servants, West and East, the spirit of love and forbearance, that we may live in peace, enjoying the holy communion of the gospel, that the divine Spirit may abide with us until the power of evil and Satan shall be eternally destroyed.

The State of Iowa presents quite a different appearance to the eye from that of Illinois. The surface is much more uneven, rising in ridges, and sometimes hills which are very smooth, over nearly all of which the plow can run to good advantage. The soil is very deep and rich, especially on the ridges and hills. Vegetation will flourish here in a protracted drought much longer than in many parts of the country. The crops very seldom fail. The State is well supplied with water, bnt is quite deficient in wood and timber. It has a very clear and invigorating atmosphere, which makes it very healthful and desirable as a residence. The general appearance of the State, as far as nature has arranged it, gave us a very favorable impression. Our opportunities of learning the state of society were very limited; but we should judge that in the rural districts it is quite rude and uncultivated; the population being quite largely foreign. We had no opportunity to associate with brethren of our faith, seeing but two or three while there. We were very kindly invited by relatives to preach Sabbath Nov. 1st, at a school house in Marshall Co., which we gladly did to a good congregation who were very attentive, and we should judge, strongly impressed with truth quite new to them. It appeared evident that much good might be accomplished in this region of country by faithful, judicious, gospel preaching. In fact this Western country presents a very broad field and open door for the proclamation of the "gospel of the kingdom," where it seems that earnest, self-sacrificing labor would be crowned with glorious success here, and an eternal reward at the gathering day.

Brethren in Christ, let us, in view of the position we occupy, the perishing world around us, and the brief period remaining for us to work, renew our efforts and sacrifices to save a guilty, perishing race.

CHRISTIAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.

The Roman Catholic church has long boasted that it is the only true church, because it is a unit. It cannot make this claim any longer, for it is now divided into "three parts." The "Roman Catholic," the "Old Catholic," and the Christian Catholic." The Roman Catholic, called also, "The Ultramontane party," hold to the infallibility of the Pope. The "Old Catholics" reject the infallibility dogma, while the "Christian Catholics" are about the same as Protestants. The last named church was formed at Berne, Switzerland, last summer (1874), when about eighty delegates were assembled for that purpose. There were some strong objections to having a bishop, but it was finally decided to allow one with quite limited powers, being controlled by the lay members.

The Christian Catholics voted that the Roman Catholic church was "no church at all; but a corporation of heathenish idolaters." Protestants would not take any stronger position. There appears to be a true christian element in this Christian Catholic church. Confessions are not required from its members, and the priests are allowed to marry as well as the lay members. It is a very great departure from the Mother Roman Catholic church. The Swiss government supports the new church, and four of the Roman Catholic edifices have been given up to the Christian Catholics and the former occupants are obliged to hold their meetings in halls and barns.

The mene, mene, tekel is plainly written on the wall of this mystic Babylon. Her final struggle is evidently at hand. In connection with "the smoke of her burning" comes the "alleluia" shout of the resurrected martyrs who died by the power of her bloody hand. Their long sleep in death will soon end in a glorious awaking, when, like a mill-stone cast into the sea, their persecutors sink beneath the waves of oblivion. Grand events are about to be opened—some awful, some sublime. It is the time to end for ever the Roman harlot, and to begin the eternal life of the redeemed, who refused to bow to papal corruptions.

Already there are tokens showing that the threatened "plagues" are about to be poured upon that blood-drunken woman on "the seven hills." The groans of martyred saints in subterranean halls, when tortured by order of lascivious priests, though smothered in the damp, dark dungeon, were heard in heaven, and are not forgotten. The cup from which they drank must be doubly filled for the drunken "woman," who pressed its horrid torture to their innocent life, because they would not yield to her fiendish system.

As tokens that the woman's plagues are at hand, we call attention to the fact that since 1869, her temporal power has been all taken away, her costly merchandise has been confiscated by the million, her institutions closed up, churches turned to other purposes, taxes have been for the first time levied upon her property, and a society has been formed in Italy to burn the Roman Catholic churches, and especially the Vatican (Pope's palace.) They are waiting for the hour to arrive to do their work of destruction. The prophecy in Rev. 17th chapter, says: "God hath put in their hearts to fulfill his will," and that they "shall utterly burn her with fire." This is her closing plague.

All other signs of the times and last-day prophetic omens, indicate that we have arrived near the point where the closing scene must soon take place in the history of this anti-christian persecuting power. The long line of martyrs have the promise of being raised to "see the smoke of her burning." It is truly sublime to be living at this point of time, when we may reasonably expect all these "wonders" to transpire in our own day. In a little while, we may hope to see the King of kings coming in all his glory to receive his waiting Bride.

AG'T.

NEVADA, OHIO.

Nevada is a small city on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne, and Chicago R. R., two hundred and ten miles from Pittsburgh, and two hundred and fifty-nine from Chicago. We had received an earnest request to visit and preach to the church at this place on our return East, but our first arrangement did not permit us to do so; but providential circumstances changed our plan, and opened the way for us to visit them, and preach the good news of the speedy return of the "Nobleman." Bro. E. McCullock and wife received us to their pilgrim home with many expressions of welcome and christian greeting. The brethren unanimously requested us to preach on the prophecies, which we did with much freedom. The congregations were not large, but very attentive, and seemed deeply impressed with the great truth that the end of all things is at hand.

We are more and more convinced that this is a grand prophetic message, which is better calculated to stir the depths of the human heart and produce a healthful religious interest, impressing upon christians the necessity of a speedy and thorough preparation for the last judgment than any truth which can be preached. This conclusion is legitimate, if God has especially called us to proclaim the speedy coming of Christ, as we have professed to believe for about forty years. If we have been called to such a responsible work, we have not been discharged from it, nor can we be until the Judge shall appear. We do not believe that this subject should be preached to the exclusion of other important truths, but that it should continue to be the leading dispensational truth, which, if properly presented, will only show more clearly the importance of all other truths. We believe that our churches are suffering for the want of more faith in the speedy coming of Christ, and that the accumulating evidences of the approach of that event, and the rehearsal of those long ago published should be faithfully presented to the waiting flock of Christ, that it may be found with loins girded and lights burning, "like unto men waiting" "and looking" for the return of their master.

The church at Nevada is blessed with a very good chapel, centrally located, which is a very great advantage to the meeting. It has been favored for more than four years with the faithful and efficient pastoral labors of Eld. E. McCullock, which has doubtless been, in the hand of God, a great means of strength and spiritual prosperity. The church has lost within a few years a large number of its prominent members by removal to other places of residence. It is isolated from other churches of our faith, there being none located within forty miles of it, although there are believers in nearly all the towns in this section of the State. These scattered ones should be fed with the meat due at this season. Who will God put under obligation to feed these famishing, wandering sheep? We think God's servants should look over these broad unoccupied fields, where millions are untaught in present truth, and have not heard the note of warning now important to arouse men to the necessity of an immediate preparation to meet the coming judgment, with earnest prayer to ascertain God's will as to their duty in relation to the fields of gospel labor.

The church at N. has a very large Sabbath school, larger in proportion to its usual congregations than any one we ever saw. The adult members of the congregation are nearly all interested in and members of the school. This fact produces a deep interest in the children, which results in punctuality in attendance and studiousness in the investigation of God's holy Book. The school is under the management of an excellent superintendent, who has brought it up to a high state of discipline; and this effected in such a quiet and gentle manner that all feel controled by love, which always produces the most beneficial government, for it not only harmonizes action, but binds together hearts in sympathy and unity. Such a school is a powerful auxiliary to a meeting, operating upon the class and at the time of life where the greatest amount of good can be accomplished by gospel effort.

They who neglect the religious training of children, idle away the best hour of the day for profitable labor. We have been astonished to see christians who profess to believe that it is very important for all to receive divine truth as God has revealed it, passively consent to let their children pass the days, when they could receive the most instruction and have it more indelibly fixed in their minds than at any other period of life, without making any special effort to give them a christian education. Especially are we surprised to see them suffer their minor children to attend religious schools where they are taught the most erroneous and dangerous doctrines, and which it will be exceedingly difficult to eradicate from their minds. But we are met with the argument that the Lord is so soon to come that it is not important to have Sabbath schools to teach the little children; and yet such will send them to literary schools and Commercial Colleges, so that they may be prepared for a happy and useful life in this world; thns showing that they have more interest in preparing their children for happiness in this world than the one to come.

These schools should never be conducted for the purpose of giving the children sportive pleasure, but to give them sacred and holy lessons relating to God and eternal things. Train them to be interested in facts and not in fiction. Impress their tender minds with the great and glorious truths of Christ's death, resurrection, second coming, and glorious reign on the throne of earth. We believe that children are profitably impressed with sacred things earlier in life than many suppose. Brethren and sisters, be careful and do all your duty to your children and all others, to bring as many as possible to a saving knowledge of the truth, before the day of salvation shall end; for the night is fast approaching when no man can work.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

It is sometimes said that the Savior, in his inaugural address, or sermon on the mount, teaches the observance of the seventh-day Sabbath. We propose to look at the reasons given for such a conclusion. The evidence is supposed to be contained in Matt. 5: 17–19. Turning to this Scripture, we read as follows: "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets; I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill. For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled. Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven; but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven."

We can find no place in the Scriptures where "the law" means the ten commandments; much less the Sabbath of the fourth commandment. This point will be made fully apparent in another place.

What does the Savior mean when he says, "Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law till all be fulfilled"? Does he mean to say that every "jot" and "tittle" of "the law" shall be kept by christians till the heavens and earth cease to exist? If this is what he means, his word has proved untrue, and this scripture has failed; but he says, "The Scripture cannot be broken." John 10: 35. Then the word "fulfilled," in Matt. 5: 18, does not mean that the seventh-day Sabbath shall be kept through the Christian dispensation. In Luke 16: 16, the Savior says—"The law and the prophets were until John"; and then says, "It is easier for heaven and earth to pass, than one tittle of the law to fail." Luke 16: 17. What does the word "fail" imply in this statement? Does it mean that the fourth commandment shall not fail to be kept by all Jesus' true disciples throughout the Christian era? If that was what it meant, he was mistaken, and his prophecy has failed. But let him mean that the law which related to him in the types should not fail to be accomplished at his first advent, and all is plain and harmonious.

Still further, does he mean to say that since the time of John the Baptist, there has been no law nor prophets? This would not be true, for Jesus gave the prophecy in the Revelation to John the Evangelist, many years after the death of John the Baptist. But it is true that "the law and the prophets," that related to Christ, which were to be "fulfilled" in him and by him, at his first advent, did extend "until John." Of these he could say in truth, "I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill." Matt. 5: 17. The ten commandments have nothing in them that has the least reference to Christ; hence he did not appear to "fulfill" any part of the decalogue; but he did come to "fulfill" all the types in "the law, of which he was the antitype. John was his forerunner; hence it was proper to say, "the law [of types, relating to Christ] and the prophets [that referred to Christ's first advent] were until John." Paul says—"Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ, that ye should be married to another; even to him who is raised from the dead." Rom. 7: 4. There are some items in "the law" and "the prophets" that relate to the Savior's second advent, which cannot be fulfilled "till heaven and earth pass." We do not see the least reference in these scriptures to the keeping of the decalogue.

What is the meaning of the Savior, when he says in Matt. 5: 19—"Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven"? To what "commandments" does he refer? He says, "one of these least commandments." If Mrs. White's "vision" was a true one, when she saw "the fourth [the Sabbath] commandment shone above them all" (Experience, p. 16), then it is not among "one of these least." If the Savior had said—"Whosoever, therefore, shall break one of" the "least" of those ten "commandments" in the "old covenant," the point would be plain as to his meaning. But he says, "one of these least"; most clearly signifying that by "these least commandments" he meant such as he was then giving to his disciples, and not those given more than fifteen hundred years before he appeared on the earth. The word "these" refers to things near at hand. We find he had commenced giving commandments to his disciples in his inaugural address, in which are found between THIRTY and FORTY commandments. Near the close of his sermon, he says—"Whosoever heareth THESE sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock." Matt. 7: 24. In his whole inaugural address, he did not make the least reference to the fourth commandment. He did refer to the old law concerning murder, adultery, and swearing; but changed them very materially from what they are in the decalogue. He also referred to other commandments in the law, which are not in the decalogue; but these he also altered, making them all more strict in their application. If the fourth (the seventh-day Sabbath enjoined upon the Jews) is still binding upon christians, why did not Jesus, or the apostles, say so somewhere in the divine records? Echo answers, "Why not?"

Jesus is the lawgiver of the new covenant, which is the only one now binding upon his disciples. He said, "All power is given me in heaven and in earth." Matt. 28: 18. At the transfiguration, his Father spoke from "the cloud," and said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him." Matt. 17: 5.

Says Paul—"Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth." Rom. 10: 4. Every one of his disciples can appeal to him as their lawgiver, but he has not taught them to observe the memorial Sabbath day of the Jews. He says—"If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love." John 15: 10. In his last commission to his disciples, when he sent them forth to preach the gospel of the kingdom to all nations, he says, "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." Matt. 28: 20. In his last revelation to man, given to John upon the isle of Patmos, it is said—"Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life." Rev. 22: 14. But one may keep all of his commandments, without taking Saturday for his rest day; hence the keeping of that day is not one of his commandments, and therefore is not essential to salvation.

Jesus said: "I have not spoken of myself, but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak." John 12: 49. Again he says: "The word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me." John 14: 24. He says "I and my Father are one." John 10: 30. Hence it follows that the commandments in the New Testament, or covenant, are God's commandments, as truly as any that were ever given to Moses. When it is said in Rev. 14: 12, "Here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus," it simply refers to the commandments which God has given to the Christian church through his Son Jesus Christ.

We can see no evidence that this last text quoted has the least reference to what was in the old covenant. It might just as well be applied to any other of the commandments of God given to the children of Israel before Christ came, such as those relating to circumcision, the passover, the sacrifices, the tabernacle services, or their feast days with their holy convocations. All the instructions regulating these were just as much "the commandments of God," as any thing spoken on Mt. Sinai, and just as binding under the old covenant. But we are now under the new covenant, and we are required to hear Jesus "in all things whatsoever he shall say." Acts 3: 22. As he has nowhere intimated that he wishes us to keep the seventh day observed by the Jews, it is certainly not enjoined upon his disciples. Here we rest, trusting sweetly in him, who keeps us in perfect peace.

NOTES BY THE WAY IN ALABAMA, TENNESSEE, AND GEORGIA.

TO THE A. A. M. SOCIETY.

Dear Brethren:—The past month has been one of sore trials with me. The little I have done in the vineyard of the Master has been through much suffering with my lungs, besides leaving my dear wife on a sick bed. But I feel that in weakness and tribulation I have done all that I could. The first Sunday in October I visited a new place. Met a large congregation which seemed deeply impressed with the grand and glorious truths relating to eternal life only in Christ. Next day went to Ooltewah, E. Tennessee, where I met Bro. A. A. Phelps.

Tuesday morning with old Bro. Smith (familiarly known as as Uncle Silas), I rode on horseback into Catoosa Co., Ga., where the people had heard such terrible things about "the soul sleepers" that only four men and a dozen or so of women ventured out to hear the "strange doctrine." We tried to give them the Bible doctrine of holy living, with which they seemed well pleased. Then back to Bethel church,—heard Bro. Phelps for the first time. The next Monday went to Shilo church in De-Kalb Co., Ala., where we ought to have gone on Friday before, but my wife was so ill I feared to leave her. But the Lord sent Bro. J. J. Smith and D. B. Waldrop, who kept the meetings running. Tuesday Bro. Phelps came, gave us two able sermons in answering a question—"What is necessary in order to discipleship?" He formed it thus—"What must we do in order to get converted and keep converted?" His effort was deep and searching, and caused many of us to examine our own hearts more closely than ever before. Then he gave us such thunderbolts in tobacco, jewelry, and the fashions of the day, that many said he was a little too rough on them; but, notwithstanding, several pledged to "quit tobacco," and good was done.

The meetings closed Wednesday night; five were converted, the church encouraged, and many anxious ones left at the altar of prayer. The next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, while Bro. Phelps filled my appointment at Oak Grove church, I went to Sinking Cove, in Franklin Co., Tenn., where we met very large crowds. Some rode twenty miles to hear the man who (as had been reported) has gone wild on the study of the Bible. I tried to preach day and night, and it is said that such crowds were never known there before. The attention was all I could wish.

On Sunday three ministers were out to hear me on a funeral occasion. Monday, I returned so nearly exhausted, and found wife so ill, that I wrote Bro. J. J. Smith to go in my place with Bro. Phelps to Goose Pond, Ala., which he did. Here they met Bro. Stewart. Held meetings a few days, baptized eleven, and formed a church with thirteen members. On Wednesday I had considerable hemorrhage of the lungs, which made me feel that perhaps my arduous work for my precious Jesus would soon be finished; but I said, "Thy will be done."

The next Sunday in Peatown. Baptized one in Tenn. river, and with Brn. Phelps, Waldrop, and Stewart (Advent), and Brn. Hulsey and Edwards (Methodist), meetings continued till Wednesday. Last Saturday morning, at two o'clock and forty-five minutes, through a heavy frost and severe cold, I rode twenty miles, after parting with my wife in tears, for she was very sick. I kneeled and asked the Lord to make duty plain, and the answer was something like this—"You tell others to trust me; now leave Nancy in my care and go, for there is work for you on your way." So I took the heavy cross and started to Trenton, Ga.

On the way stopped at Shilo church, and baptized four. Then to Trenton with twenty of the brethren and sisters of Shilo church who went with me on foot a distance of six miles, partly over and down Sand Mountain. At night spoke to a few "in town." Sunday A. M., one mile from town at the old Baptist church, we spoke on a funeral occasion. Bro. John A. Clouse, of Shellmound, was with me. Sunday night back on the mountain to an appointment, where in spite of the cold the house of Bro. and Sr. Gass was jammed. I was soon worn out, Bro. Willie Moore (Meth.) spoke first, after which I called for anxious ones to come for prayers. Fifteen came, and we enjoyed a melting time. Then seven joined the church, and one came for baptism. Praise the Lord, the little church I formed under fire of the enemy, with eight trusting ones, little more than a year ago, now numbers over forty.

Yesterday I came home with such a cold that I suffered much last night. This evening at seven o'clock (D. V.) I take the cars for Memphis, Tenn., where I am to stop to-morrow, stay over one night and preach, then to Arkansas, where I expect to spend this month, telling the people of the coming kingdom. Glory to God!

My wife is much better than when I left her last Saturday morning, and I am encouraged to trust the Lord and leave her in his hands again, feeling that if I go in his cause he will raise her to health; bless his holy name! I have never been disappointed yet when I have gone with an eye single to his glory. Bro. I. C. Wellcome has kindly sent me two packages of tracts which, with a few of "Bible Theory of the Good Time Coming," is my supply. I mean to use them judiciously in the work.

O brethren, pray the Lord to go with me. My address during this month is De View, Woodruff Co., Ark., where I would be glad to get a cheering word from any of like precious faith. JOHN A. CARGILE.

BRODHEAD, WIS.

Editors of Crisis:—After an absence of about three months in the "regions beyond," I am again at home, in usual health, except feeling "a little worse for wear." During my absence I have been laboring mostly in Kansas, Nebraska, and Southern Missouri. These are new fields. With judicious management, and systematic labor, prosperity of a permanent character might be the result. Young teams must be learned to pull together, and then the load will move on. Kansas and Nebraska are almost in a famishing condition, owing to the drouth and grasshoper raid, and Southern Missouri is but little better off.

Although my trip was a financial detriment to my lean purse, I witnessed many things to cheer my heart. Two Baptist ministers in Southern Missouri were recently severed from their Association, and deprived of their credentials for accepting and advocating our faith. I had the privilege of seeing them unite with our people, and assisted in their ordination. One of them will be followed by the larger part of the Baptist church of which he was pastor. These brethren are active ministers, and their labors will be greatly blessed. Wish you could send them the Crisis free. I hope to visit their field again. Eld. Elliot is now laboring in that region with much earnestness, and with success. WM. SHELDON.

Brodhead, Wisconsin, Nov. 11th.

THE statement in the last Crisis that I am pastor of "the Chicago church," should be modified so as to state that I am pastor of the Green Street Tabernacle Church in Chicago. FRANK BURR.

Correspondence.

From Eld. A. Dugger.

ELD. GRANT:—Dear Bro.—I shall be remembered by many of the readers of your paper through a letter which appeared last April from Eld. S. C. B. Williams, of Denver, Mo., asking the brethren and sisters if they had any reading matter in the form of tracts or papers which they wished to circulate, where they would be likely to accomplish good in preparing and bringing out a people to see the light of the glorious truths of the Bible, as taught and held by us as a people. The result of which was, he received through the various mails east, west, north and south, thousands of pages of Advent literature, which he scattered broadcast all over the country. The amount of papers and tracts received is truly astonishing. It is estimated that not less than (if packed) a four mule team would be sufficient to haul them, and which have all been gratuitously distributed.

Notwithstanding all this, as many more could be as easily disposed of.

The first Sunday in August we held our first large meeting in Denver, commencing on Wednesday evening before. As Bro. Williams received his tracts and papers, he handed them out, always with lead-pencil-writing notice, on tract or paper, of our contemplated meeting, which had a tendency to bring out about eight thousand people to our meeting, to listen to the glad word of the kingdom.

Bro. Williams is a prominent citizen of Denver, and in his business transactions, daily walk, and godly conversation, is esteemed by all who know him as a christian gentleman. He has an excellent opportunity to scatter tracts and papers, being the proprietor of a large steam grist and saw mill, which people patronize for fifty miles around. He is also President of the Conference, and is alive in the work of our Master, ever ready and willing to do what he can for the spread of the truth; willing to sacrifice in order that the cause may prosper. Would to God that we had more such men. The cause of truth would not languish as it does, for want of means to carry it forward, but would be up and onward.

Brethren, we are certainly living in the last days; the times are evil; iniquity is abounding; the love of many is growing cold. Let us not divide our diligence, but give all diligence that we make our calling and election sure. Let us keep ourselves unspotted from the world, that we may be kept in the love of God. Omens in thunder tones bespeak the coming of the "Chief among ten thousand," the "One altogether lovely," whose right it is on David's throne to sit, in Mt. Zion at Jerusalem, to reign King of kings and Lord of lords. He shall have "dominion from sea to sea, and from the river even unto the ends of the earth." Then shall the language of David, the sweet singer of Israel, be verified—"O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth." The knowledge and glory of God shall then fill the earth as the waters fill the mighty deep.

Shall we share in the excellency of his glory? Then let us be faithful in that which is committed to our trust, that we may be glorified together, and may share in the unending glories of the heavenly kingdom which he hath promised to the good and faithful.

Grant City, Mo.

From Bro. and Sr. C. Curry.

DEAR BROTHER:—Here in Northern Pennsylvania we would indite words of cheer to our brethren, who of like faith are scattered over the land waiting patiently for the coming of the Master to gather them all together. What a blissful union that will be! No more weary waiting, while scoffers jeer as they pass, as they did to Noah of old, who worked and waited, and was a preacher of righteousness for one hundred and twenty years. We, too, are alone; no Advent sermon cheers us on; no friendly Advent hand clasps ours, as words of encouragement fall on our ears. Never do we feast with sweet communion with those whose cry is, "Tell us of the night." Sometimes while we yearn for these blessings we think they may be withheld for our good; alas! we are too apt to make ourselves gods of clay; and when we have no church privileges to lean on, we turn to the "Rock that is higher than I." Jesus is our co-laborer, our companion and "friend, that sticketh closer than a brother."

The Crisis is our dearest worldly comfort. We take much delight and real pleasure perusing its columns, richly laden with treasures from so many portions of this sin-stricken earth. O! take comfort, you who are in like circumstances with us, isolated from the brethren. God has chosen our places. Let us, too, be preachers of righteousness, and even if none seem to believe us, yet in that last great day they cannot reproach us. Let us pray for a burden for souls. We are not enough in earnest. Our neighbors expect it of us, and if we are not concerned for their salvation, they will not believe that we mean what we say when we tell them that the Bridegroom is even now at the door. Let us proclaim it in season and out of season, and work while the day lasts, for soon the night cometh. Work! watch! pray! you who are trimming and filling your lamps, for this is no time for sloth; the Master is nigh, your work time almost done, and too many are yet unconcerned. Our children are yet out of the ark; must they be lost? God forbid. Let us be up and doing, gird on our armor, and with renewed vigor press on.

"Soon shalt thou hear the Bridegroom's voice,
The midnight peal, Behold I come!"

Obituaries.

HUNTRESS. In Boston, Oct. 14th, 1874, of apoplexy, Charles W. Huntress, aged forty-four years, lacking four days.

Bro. Huntress was a living epistle, known and read of all men, a man of faith and fervor, who served his generation by the will of God. His house was a house of prayer, and there for years the children of the Lord assembled to worship their Master. He had long been in feeble health, and the day before his death he returned from a visit to his friends at Portsmouth, N. H., full of hope that he should improve in health, and be able to do more in the Master's cause. By over exertion he became much exhausted, but in the evening read and prayed, as was his custom, and retired to rest. Soon after he was attacked by the fatal disease, and shortly became unconscious, remaining so until his death at noon the next day. He left no parting words, no dying testimony; none were needed; his life was a sufficient testimony, and his earnest words for Jesus, so often spoken during the year past at Hampshire Hall, and elsewhere, are still fresh and fragrant in our minds. His wife, his friends, and the little church where he labored so faithfully, deeply feel his loss, but confidently hope to see his face again beyond the river when time's sorrows all are o'er.

Words of trust and comfort were spoken by the writer, and he was laid to rest in Forest Hills Cemetery, in sure and certain hope of a joyful resurrection to the life that never ends.

"He shall sleep, but not forever,
In the lone and silent grave.
Blessed be the Lord who taketh,
Blessed be the Lord that gave.
In the bright eternal city
Death can never, never come;
In his own good time he'll call us
From our rest to home, sweet home.
H. L. H.

HUFF. Departed this life June 1st, 1874, Sunie E., wife of James B. Huff, aged twenty-five years and eight months.

Sunie was for many years in feeble health, and though her last sickness was painful, she was never heard to murmur, but with that patience which only the pure in heart can manifest, bore it all, trusting in that God whose grace is always sufficient to help. She leaves behind a father and mother (Bro. and Sr. Perkins) a companion, and a large circle of friends to mourn, but not without hope. The funeral services were conducted by Eld. W. H. Mitchell. We hope to meet our loved one in the deathless land, where the "inhabitant shall not say, I am sick." J. B. HUFF.

DROWN. In Kennebunk, Oct. 27th, 1874, Susan, wife of Orlando Drown, aged thirty-two years.

Her sickness was long and painful, but through it all she maintained a spirit of patience. H. A. MITCHELL.

FOREIGN NEWS.

RUSSIA.

LONDON, Nov. 14. The Telegraph repeats the reports of a Socialistic conspiracy in Russia, and adds that one thousand persons, including many ladies, have been arrested. A commission has been appointed to investigate the conspiracy, the exact object of which is still unknown. Several persons of exalted rank are said to be implicated. A vast amount of money seems to have been at the disposal of the conspirators. The arrests since the discovery of the plot have been so numerous that a perfect reign of terror exists in St. Petersburg. It was proposed that the police should search every house in the city in a single night.

Rev. Messrs. Moody and Sankey, the American revivalists, have arrived in London after a tour through Ireland, where they met with great success in revivals. They will hold meetings in Agricultural Hall.

DEATH OF A LADY REVIVALIST.—Mrs. Phebe Palmer, wife of Dr. Walter C. Palmer of Boston, died about a fortnight ago at a somewhat advanced age. She was a devoted member of the Methodist church, and for many years had given herself entirely to the work of creating an intense religious interest in the minds of those with whom she came in contact. As a revivalist she was peculiarly successful and in missionary tours made through the various States, and the British Provinces some years ago, to which was added a sojourn of three years in Great Britain, she was the means of bringing great numbers into a permanent relation with the church. Her pen was industrious also in the cause which had grown into the very centre of her life, and there are several works of hers which in many households are held as precious for what they have done. For some few years past Mrs. Palmer had been in extreme ill health.

THE Western Indians now prophesy that there will be no more grasshoppers for six years.

St. Peter's, Rome, required for its erection and completion three hundred years. It cost £50,000,000 in gold, and an annual expenditure of £20,000 to keep it in repair. It covers eight acres.

TO VERMONTERS.—At our annual conference at Bethel, the State Committee were urged to carry the gospel of the kingdom into every new field which opened a door, and especially to offer a week of labor for any five dollars pledged by an isolated brother or sister living in a new field. This was to encourage individual effort and sacrifice on the part of the isolated. We want to hear immediately from those places where labors are desired, that we may make due arrangements to meet the demands. If you are too poor to raise five dollars, and yet the door is open for a meeting, write us just the same as though you raised the money. Write to me at Waterbury, Vt., or to A. A. Hoyt, Plainfield, Vt. Write full particulars of circumstances, people, time, and place. Write soon.
H. F. CARPENTER, President of Conference.

PAPAL ROME.

BY ELD. S. S. BREWER.

This work states the predictions concerning the Papacy in its glory, its gloom, and destruction, together with the most reliable points of history showing their fulfillment, with a graphic statement of her present dying state. The widowhood, the moaning over her fate, the dying struggles under her afflictions, losses, poverty, and burning, are brought out in present history. It is a work of value for its historical quotations, which will be wanted by all interested in this subject. Single copy 15 cts. by mail; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 for 100 by express. AG'T.

THE SEVEN CHURCHES.

"A pamphlet of 60 pages (by W. N. Pile), giving an exposition of Rev. 2: 3. The epistles to the 'seven churches of Asia' (the author thinks) are shown to have been prophetic of the seven periods of the gospel age, in addition to their local application. An epitome of church history, from the apostolic age to the present time, is given, leading to the conclusion that we are now in the closing part of the Laodicean period, near the end of the dispensation and the establishment of the kingdom of God upon the earth. Price, single copy, postpaid, 15 cts.; two copies, 25 cts."

An interesting Tract. We hope it may do much good. "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."

For sale at this Office. AG'T.

A NEW BOOK.
"THE BIBLE DOCTRINE OF THE SOUL."

An Answer to the Question: "Is the Popular Conception of the Soul that of Holy Scripture?"

BY CHAS. L. IVES, M. D.

Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Yale College.

This is a pamphlet of 119 pages, in which the Author discusses the above question in an interesting and able manner,—showing the material nature of, the mortality and destiny of the Soul,—A future immortality to be the special portion of the Righteous,—What the Bible teaches as to the future of the Wicked,—The intermediate state,—The Resurrection,—That of the Righteous and of the Wicked, etc.

The Author claims that the doctrine set forth,—"Honors God, exalts the Bible, insures preaching of future punishment, subverts Universalism and Infidelity, errors of Romanism, of Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, helps in work of Missions, rightly values the body, brings Christian unity, and promotes personal holiness."

We are much pleased with this work. It ought to have a wide circulation. We have a good supply, and hope the friends will order freely. We will sell at the following prices:—25 cts. per copy; $2.00 per dozen, sent by mail; $15.00 per hundred, by express. AG'T.

ARE YOU THE LORD'S?

Are you the Lord's?
Then never bow the knee to Baal,
Though Satan's hosts do you assail,
Jesus is nigh, you may prevail.
Only believe.

Are you the Lord's?
Then why this pride and love of dress,
Why not be clothed in righteousness,
The robe our Father loves the best.
Only believe.

Are you the Lord's?
When passions rise why do you wait,
And stay away from mercy's gate,
The promises are sure and great.
Only believe.

Are you the Lord's?
When duty calls in thunder tones,
Go work to-day, the sheaves bring home,
Remember you are not alone.
Only believe.

Are you the Lord's?
Then tear each idol from thy throne,
And consecrate to God alone
Thy life and powers, no more thine own.
Only believe.

Are you the Lord's?
Then heaven's gates will open wide;
You'll safely through its portals glide,
Ever with Jesus to abide.
Only believe.

COMMISSIONED BAPTISM.

L. C. MCKINSTRY.

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."—Jesus, MATT. 18: 19.

Difficulties in the way of any sort of success or enterprise are often but imaginary ones, or the mere creations of some person's fancy. Such, we think, is the character of those which have been supposed to stand in the way of the successful prosecution of a baptism of "three thousand" in "one day." There were, at least, the twelve apostles to administer the ordinance at that time, and we cannot say that there were not other ministers among the number who were divinely authorized to baptize. There were an hundred and twenty of all that were together, and to say that, of them all, the twelve were the only ministers (Matthias having been appointed in the place of Judas, making the twelve), is simply gratuitous. But if there were only that number, there was time enough for the work to be done.

Peter preached at nine o'clock in the morning—"the third hour of the day." If we only have a mere outline, or sketch, of his sermon, he could not have preached many hours. If he did preach long, the people were unlike some people in these days, or they would have become so tired, so very weary, of listening to him, and, in wishing "he would close," would have entirely unfitted themselves for conversion, and there would not have followed his sermon such a wonderful result as the conversion of "three thousand souls." But suppose his sermon had been three hours long, of which we may have reasonable doubt, then the baptism could commence at twelve o'clock. From that time until six o'clock, or a few minutes later, the twelve could easily, by baptizing about forty per hour (which was certainly possible), have baptized the whole three thousand.

But we are not so straitened as to time that we are obliged thus to limit the opportunity of those who administered the ordinance, as the work of baptizing could and, doubtless, did commence earlier in the day; for it was one great truth which led the people to cry out—"Men and brethren, what shall we do?" and gave Peter the opportunity of directing their baptism.

That day, be it remembered, was a day of great things; of talking in "tongues" in which the people were born, which they all could understand, although seventeen tongues and dialects were spoken; a miracle as great, no doubt, as that of the baptism of three thousand, all in "one day," by twelve persons. It was a day of sounds and sights and wondrous circumstances, full of the divine power; a day of preaching full of the Spirit's might, and fraught with the grandest results; and He who gave his servants their work at such a time would give them strength and power to accomplish it; and there is not the least reason for saying that baptism, because three thousand were baptized in one day, could not be baptism, but must be rantism, or some other "ism" but the proper one.

Preaching and confessing, baptizing and blessing, exhorting, tears and rejoicings, seem to have been mingling together, after that first great heart-pricking and outburst of sin-sorrow. Work for Jesus was that day abundant, and the disciples made a business of it, without stopping for the stiff formalities which are incident to these modern times. He, therefore, who resorts to the "special pleading," the mere quibble, that something beside immersion must have been practiced for baptism on that day, must be hard pressed for an argument, and evinces that he has a poor cause. This sort of pleading is the same of which we have frequent occasion to speak, and is not worthy of the sanction of candid people.

But we pass to notice the instances of baptism which are, in addition to this one, recorded in the New Testament, and generally by Luke, in the book of Acts, where we have every instance related but one. We have, therefore (1), that of the baptism of some Samaritans by Philip (Acts 8: 12, 13); then (2) of the eunuch of Ethiopia (Acts 8: 28), also by Philip; (3) Saul of Tarsus, by Ananias (Acts 9: 18); (4) Cornelius and others converted in Cæsarea, baptized by Peter or his order (Acts 10: 47, 48); (5) of Lydia of Thyatira, by Paul (Acts 16: 15); (6) of the jailor of Philippi, by Paul (Acts 16: 33); (7) of many Corinthians (Acts 18: 8); (8) of Crispus and Gaius and Stephanas' household, also by Paul. 1 Cor. 1: 14, 16. These instances are all related in such a manner as to impress us with the conviction that there was but one method of baptism practiced in all cases, and that method only immersion, or, simply, that, what may seem tautological, baptism was baptism itself, and not "rantism" or any other "ism," and always "baptism," and never interchanged with, or superceded by, anything else. If we could read in one instance of a "baptism," and, in another, of a "rantism," and, in another, of some other ism, or something else, then we should have known positively that "something else" was, at least, sometimes meant; and different things were done at different times; but now, as there is but one term used, it must always mean the same thing.

In some of these instances which we have cited, the case is so fully described that there can be no question reasonably raised of its form of administration, and none, ever, except by a quibble. The case of the eunuch, as given in Acts 8: 27-40, is recorded in a very beautiful and explicit manner. Philip was told by the angel of the Lord to "go toward the south" to the road leading from Jerusalem to Gaza, a desert place; "and he arose and went," without stopping to parley or excuse himself. While walking along the road, without knowing why he was going that way, or where his destination might be, he noticed a chariot approaching. It betokened its owner to be a personage of wealth, and as it approached he discovered that the principal occupant was a man of Ethiopia, who occupied a position of importance in Ethiopia, being nothing less than Queen Candace's secretary of the treasury. He had been down to Jerusalem to worship, and was returning home, and, as he was leisurely riding along, he was reading from the book of Isaiah's prophecy. He had read as far as the fifty-third chapter, that intensely interesting one, which speaks of the sufferings of Christ, and delineates them so feelingly and touchingly. As Philip saw him reading, the Spirit said to him, "Go near, and join thyself to this chariot." And Philip ran to obey the command, and asked an apparently impertinent question—"Understandest thou what thou readest?" It was perhaps a novel sight that a man in a state carriage should be reading God's word as he rode along; a rare sight in these days certainly, and it is no wonder that when Philip, a man who was so much of an evangelist that he was ready to go on foot on errands for the Spirit of the Lord, when he saw such a spectacle, and was bidden to go and associate with the man, was ready.

The man, looking up from his reading, saw one running to him in breathless haste, and heard him ask the abrupt question as he overtook the chariot—"Sir, understandest thou what thou readest?" To some the question would be so impertinent that their offended dignity could not bear the insult, and, in silent contempt to the questioner, they would bid the driver to hurry up the horses and get out of the way; but not so with this man of Ethiopia. God's Spirit was opportune, and it sent Philip to a man who just then required his services, and he said, in reply to the question—"How can I, except some man should guide me?" Please get up here, sir, and sit by my side, and explain what I am reading. And Philip responds to his invitation, and makes no complaint that he has been sent to that one man to give him an exegesis of that chapter and "preach to him Jesus," for his heart was full of the theme, and his head was clear in the understanding of the prophet's meaning, beside being aided much by the Spirit's power.

When seated by the man's side he read him two verses of the chapter (verses seven and eight), and asked simply, humbly, teachably, sincerely, as he read—"In his humiliation his judgment was taken away; and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth"—"I pray thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?" and Philip explained to him who was meant, and told him about Jesus, the subject of that masterly prophecy. And the honest heart of the inquiring man drank in the truth as the dry and thirsty land drinks in the water. Pleasantly and profitably the time passed until they came to a body of water, which espying, as though a sudden thought had all at once taken possession of him, he cried out, "See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?" Philip had doubtless told him of Jesus' commission to baptize, and had, at least, so far instructed him about the matter that he knew that the people were being baptized, and it may be he had witnessed something of the sort while at Jerusalem. And now he is eager to be a subject of the ordinance, and asks if there is any obstacle in the way of attending to the duty, then and there, at once.

The answer of Philip revealed the only test of qualification, faith in Jesus, and the chariot was bidden to stand still, and both Philip and the eunuch descended together into the water and he baptized him. There is everything to indicate the method by which it was done. The going "down both into the water," and the performance of the act there, show it. If there had been only a sprinkling, then Philip alone should have alighted and, taking the eunuch's golden goblet, have gone down and dipped up the water and, going back to the chariot, have sprinkled the water upon him; but this was not done. We have never seen an attempt to prove it was; only one feeble attempt has come under our observation to prove a case of sprinkling. It was in the form of a tract which gravely told us, when in our boyhood we sought to know the right way, that there was not water enough there for an immersion, and that all possibility of such an act was precluded, and, further, that the springs, where the sprinkling occurred, are called to this day "The Ethiopian Springs." We have never seen the statement anywhere else, and so give it no credit; even if we had seen it, we would not let that made-up story affect our conviction that the word must have its own legitimate meaning.

It is useless for one to try—with the odds so much against him, as having the original meaning of the word among the odds, and all the other evidences in the same class—to make it appear that supposed impossibilities change the nature of the words, and imagined circumstances make conclusive arguments.

PERFECTION.—This is relative. One may be perfect and imperfect at the same moment. A perfect bud is an imperfect flower; a perfect flower is not perfect fruit. A perfect primary pupil to-day must press on to the standard of juniors, and then to seniors, or meet censure. Thus it is in christian experience. The convert is perfect and imperfect, and as he grows in grace he can not be otherwise. The perfection of yesterday is imperfection to-day; the standard rises with our years, and if we fail to rise we sin. We may all be perfect, and yet press on to perfection and never reach it. The more perfect we are the more rapidly we grow. Perfect buds grow quickly to perfect flowers; perfect babes grow to perfect youth, and then to men; perfect christians grow like calves in the stall, like trees by living waters. This perfection becomes more perfect; from grade to grade we rise; more and more like Christ we become; richer and still richer our graces grow. . . . Through grace this may be the experience of all.—Baptist Union.

IMPERISHABLE TREASURES.

GEO. E. LEE.

How fleeting are the so-called treasures of this world! And what an amount of sacrifice is made to obtain them,—treasures that when obtained do not give the satisfaction anticipated before their possession. Not so with the treasures in store for the faithful. These are "laid up" where fires can never burn, nor thieves break through and steal. Neither moth nor rust doth corrupt them, for they are to abide forever.

The advice of many is, to "lay up" something as treasure for a "rainy day," apparently forgetting that the Savior's command was directly the opposite. Hence it is not surprising that those who "boast themselves in the multitude of their riches, and trust in their wealth" (Ps. 49: 6) are many times suddenly deprived of their vast possessions by fire, storm, tempest or some destructive agency, in order that they may feel the utter insecurity of earthly treasures.

The "rainy days" of which we hear so much said, are seldom reached. The acquisitiveness of our natures is such that more requires more, and the end for which we aim is always in the future. Although we are taught to seek treasures in heaven, and to "set our affections on things above, and not on things on the earth," yet this does not conflict with our holding property in this world, but teaches that whatever we may acquire in this world is of a secondary character to the things of the world to come.

Our God demands that we serve him with our whole heart; and if our hearts are wholly set upon heaping to ourselves of the corruptible things of this world, it is natural to suppose that we should, in part, lose sight of the incorruptible treasures in heaven. If our treasures are here, our hearts will be here also; and naturally, we would spurn the idea of going where we had no treasure. Jesus says, "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." Matt. 6: 21. Now, is it any wonder that so few love to hear of the blessed things in store for God's children, and that his Son is about to come to earth and make the award?

Reader, where is your treasure? in heaven, or in the earth? Do you appreciate God's gifts? or esteem eternal life with all its enduring riches, of less value than this present mortal life with its fading riches? Are you "looking for, and hasting unto the coming of the day of God?" or do you long to have it tarry, and not come in "your day?" If so, your treasure must be one that will perish with you; for the Lord does not promise to bestow any part of his "gift" upon those who neither desire nor seek for it. But "to those who, by patient continuance in well-doing seek for glory, honor, and immortality," he will render "eternal life."

Are we "seeking for glory and immortality" while striving so diligently for the accumulation of earthly treasures that we can scarcely find time to attend to religious duties? Is it well-doing in the sight of our Master to act directly opposite his will? "No, it is not," you say; "but it is not his will that we should be idle and shiftless, and not provide anything for ourselves." But if we "Trust in the Lord, and do good," we certainly are not shiftless, for when we are doing good, we are doing something in accordance with his will and pleasing in his sight; and when we do thus, the promise is sure that we shall "dwell in the land, and verily we shall be fed."

Then why need we be anxious, and worry about to-morrow, or next week, while conscious that we are acting in harmony with his will? He has promised food and raiment, with all necessary things of this life. Those who will not trust God, believe his word, and live and act in accordance with it, must not or cannot expect to receive such blessings as those who do.

If we dwell in Christ, and his Spirit dwells in us, we may ask what we will, and it shall be done. The Lord has made no promise in vain. Then let us ever trust his word, be faithful unto the end, and thus inherit that incorruptible treasure which is to be given in the coming day of glory.

OUR JOURNEY HERE.

E. M. LUNT.

The journey of life is surrounded with trials and temptations, and there are but a few who escape the black fierce clouds which gather over life's rough sea, but few, if any, who do not feel many times the dark billows as they pass over the soul. To the young how beautiful this journey appears! But soon the clouds darken, and the untried realities, which have been out of sight make their appearance to assure them that life's way is not without its storms and angry waves.

The ocean over which our frail barks are gliding so swiftly is full of dangerous obstacles to impede our progress and blast our hopes. Hidden rocks, shoals, and quicksands are to be met with all along our journey, and it is very important that we should learn how to avoid them; for there are many ways to escape the difficulties if we learn when and how. To be sure trials with which the Lord visits us are sent for our good, to cause us to look up to Him from whom all blessings flow; but by deviating from the path of known duty, many dark clouds gather and break over our heads.

In the Bible, the great chart of the journey before us, we have a never-failing guide by which the many dangers to which all are exposed may be avoided, and if we study carefully this chart, we shall avoid blasted hopes, shipwreck and ruin.

To-day the way may be bright and joyous, and to-morrow the sky may be unruffled; yet if we attempt to sail over this untried sea without knowing where its whirlpools and hidden rocks are concealed, we shall encounter dangers and shipwreck, and the dark clouds of doubt and fear will crush every hope. But if we put our trust in God, he will be our sure guide in the great storms of life; and if we are discouraged and tried, he will be to us as the "shadow of a great rock" in a weary land, and when we reach the end of our journey, and behold the dark ocean over which we have passed, we shall have the sweet assurance that the great Pilot will not leave us to drift back and be bruised beneath its surging billows, but will anchor our frail bark in the haven of eternal rest and unfading glory. Truly God is on our side, and we should not murmur or complain, but sweetly rest in the blessed promises of God, and the bright rays of the Sun of righteousness will disperse every dark cloud.

There are many things that seem a mystery to us. Why do some of earth's children have wealth enough to satisfy every wish—cannot see a single aspiration of their yearning hearts ungratified? If the favored ones were the good alone, it would not be so unfathomable a mystery; it would be the reward of their nature; but ah! we know that the rich are no better generally than the poor. In many instances the affluent are the very antipodes of virtue and goodness, while many a poor creature who has not where to lay his head, is as near to perfection morally, as it is possible for human nature to come. This is but one of life's mysteries. Is it not sweet to believe that in the other better life which will follow this one of doubt and darkness, those now deep mysteries will be made clear to us?

Oftentimes I look backward from the time that God said, "Let there be light," until now, and I know it has been a long pathway of sorrow since the first grave darkened a ruined world, and we can continually read the epitaph that is written in burning capitals over the gateway of despair. "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die."

But amid the trials I feel that "I am sweetly resting in Jesus," and I know that morn is nigh. Pencils of light are gliding upward in the eastern horizon, and if we have to wait long hours yet in the slow coming twilight, we have no fear, for Jesus is mighty to save.

Soon our journey will be ended. Death, the result of sin, will be forever obliterated from this earth, and, in spite of infidels, it shall be filled with the glory of God as the waters cover the sea. My prayer is, Let me live with the good and faithful amid the unfading flowers and immortal glories of the paradise of God when my journey ends.

Biddeford, Me.

ALL WITH JESUS.

I left it all with Jesus
Long ago;
All my sin I brought him,
And my woe.
When by faith I saw him
On the tree,
Heard his small, still whisper,
"'Tis for thee;"
From my heart the burden
Rolled away;
Happy day!

I leave it all with Jesus,
For he knows
How to steal the bitter
From life's woes;
How to gild the tear-drop
With his smile,
Make the desert garden
Bloom awhile:
When my weakness leaneth
On his might,
All seems light.

I leave it all with Jesus
Day by day;
Faith can firmly trust him,
Come what may.
Hope has dropped her anchor,
Found her rest
In the calm, sure haven
Of his breast.
Love esteems it heaven
To abide
At his side.

Oh, leave it all with Jesus,
Drooping soul!
Tell not half thy story,
But the whole.
Worlds on worlds are hanging
On his hand,
Life and death are waiting
His command;
Yet, his tender bosom
Makes thee room;
Oh, come home!

SECRET SUCCESSFUL LABOR.

The disciples of the Lord Jesus should labor with all their might in the work of God, as if everything depended upon their own exertions; and yet, having done so, they should not in the least trust in their labors and efforts, and in the means which they use for the spread of the truth, but in God; and they should with all earnestness seek the blessing of God, in persevering, patient, and believing prayer.

Here, christian reader, is the great secret of success. Work with all your might; but trust not in the least in your work. Pray with all your might for the blessing of God; but work, at the same time, with all diligence—with all patience—with all perseverance. Pray, then, and work. Work and pray. And still again pray, and then work. And so on, all the days of your life. The result will surely be, abundant blessing. Whether you see much fruit or little fruit, such kind of service will be blessed.

We should labor, then, for instance, with all earnestness in seeking to circulate thousands of copies of the Holy Scriptures, and hundred of thousands of tracts, as if every thing depended upon the amount of copies of the Holy Scriptures and tracts which we circulate; and yet, in reality, we should not in the least degree put our dependence upon the number of copies of the Holy Scriptures, and upon the number of tracts, but entirely upon God for his blessing, without which all these efforts are altogether useless. This blessing, however, should be sought by us habitually and perseveringly in prayer. It should also be fully expected.—Selected.

CHARGE TO THE PASTOR.

Make up your mind you must work, but if you consider yourself a fellow-member with the rest, don't work alone.

Help your church, but don't carry it. If you find meddlesome busy-bodies, give them plenty to do. They hate real work as a mosquito does smoke. Be neither a baby nor a king. Your main business is to preach; but to do this you must know your people and ascertain their wants. Don't visit just to please, but to help on your work. Some families will need six visits to another's one; go where you can hurt the devil most.

Be governed by men's wants, not their complaints. Preach not as others do, but as you and God can best arrange it. Fill your hearer with sound reason, then cork him tight with a strong application, binding it with a "Thus saith the Lord."

Be sparing, if not a little stingy, in useing old sermons. Remember when the stream of study stops flowing, the pulpit pond lowers. Give no censures unless there is love enough to prevent them drowning in hatred. It requires much love to praise, more to reprove.

Attack measures, and "hit" people only when they stand between you and the evil one. You must begin on time, and not be long in uttering what you have to say; if you would preach your best sermons, practice them faithfully beforehand. Be bold, but remain a christian gentleman. When you hit the heart don't forget the head, and vice versa. Endeavor to be the greatest man in the parish, and that by being servant of all. Be childish enough to think you never can be left away from Christ. Run to show him all you have, and ask him for all you want. Work when you can, retire when you must, and you shall have favor with God when you will.—Congregationalist.

"THE doctrine of the speedy second advent of Christ is one that cannot be lightly regarded or disbelieved by any christian person without considerable injury and loss to their own soul. If we compare two christian men, one of whom is an ardent believer in the speedy personal coming of Christ, and the other indifferent or unbelieving in relation to that view, it must be admitted that the former is no loser and can be none the worse for his belief, even if Christ does not come so quickly as he expected; whereas the latter will find it to be a very serious matter if the Lord's coming takes him by surprise and finds him destitute of the spirit of the Bride, who should be longing and looking for the Bridegroom."—Ex.

ROME AND EUROPE.

All through Europe the battle goes against the church. The Pope having declared his supremacy over the States, the States are giving in their answers with an emphasis which cannot be misunderstood. In Berlin, Archbishop Ledochowski has been tried before the highest tribunal for ecclesiastical causes, and has been deprived of his see. Other bishops are in prison, and they also will in time be deprived and possibly banished. They have taken issue on the right of the State to legislate upon the affairs of the Church, have set the laws at defiance, and are paying the due penalty. Archbishop Ledochowski would not, of course, recognize the competency of a civil court to try a bishop; that question has been settled quite conclusively.

In Austria the Emperor has replied to the Pope's passionate denunciation of the new ecclesiastical bills. The first of these has already passed the Upper House of the Reichstrath, and only waits the imperial signature to become a law. The archbishops and the bishops upon its pages left the legislative chamber; that will not help them; they may have to leave the country before long. The claim of the church to be wholly independent of the State is monstrous. A sovereignty within the State, it has since 1870 become throughout Europe a conspiracy against the State.

The points at issue between the governments and the church are very simple. 1. The sufficiency of civil marriage. 2. The control of the State over education. 3. The control of the State over the education of priests so far as to require their attendance at the national universities prior to their special training. 4. The notification to the State of the nomination of priests for parishes. This claim is grounded on the fact of the State's contributions to the maintenance of public worship. 5. The control of the State over the property of ecclesiastical corporations. But for the exercise of this power the Church would acquire all the real estate of every kingdom in Europe. Long before the Reformation the statues of England were framed to check its rapacity. The modern State has again and again found it necessary for its own safety to confiscate the Church's possessions. This will be done as long as the Roman Catholic Church is a church. Able to acquire property from its subjects through the force of the terrors of the future world, it can measure its acquisitions only by its demands, and its demands are insatiable.

This, then, is the issue. Rome declares: "I shall do as I please, for by the appointment of God I am supreme over the world." The State replies: "You shall obey in all things necessary to the State's welfare. You are to be judged by the State, and not the State by you. While you have liberty within the State you shall not organize conspiracy against the State." In making this answer Bismarck and Andrassy, Switzerland and Italy, all concur. The attempt of an Italian priest, who has obtained a quasi-sovereignty, to carry the world back to the middle ages, is not going to succeed.—The Methodist.

HOME AND HEALTH.

RELATION OF CUISINE TO BRAIN WORK.

Turgot could not work well till after he had dined copiously, but many men cannot think after a substantial meal; and here, in spite of the example set by Scott and Goethe, let me observe that nothing interferes so much with brain-work as over eating. The intellectual workman requires nourishment of the best possible quality, but the quantity ought always to be well within the capacity of his digestive powers.

The truth appears to be, that, while the intellectual life makes very large demands upon nutrition,—for cerebral activity cannot go forward without constant supplies of force, which must come ultimately from what we have eaten,—this kind of life, being sedentary, is unfavorable to the work of digestion. Brain-workers cannot eat like sportsmen and farmers without losing many hours in torpor, and yet they need nutrition as much as if they led active lives.

The only way out of this difficuty is to take care that the food is good enough for a moderate quantity of it to maintain the physical and mental powers. The importance of scientific cookery can hardly be exaggerated. Intellectual labor is, in its origin, as dependent upon the art of cookery as the dissemination of its results is dependent upon paper-making and printing. This is one of those matters which people cannot be brought to consider seriously; but cookery in its perfection—the great science of preparing food in the best way suited to our use—is really the most important of all sciences, and the mother of the arts.

The wonderful theory that the most ignorant cookery is the most favorable to health is only fit for the dark ages. It is grossly and stupidly untrue. A scientific cook will keep you in regular health, when an ignorant one will offer you the daily alternative of starving or indigestion.—Hammerton.

When I read the above, you will pardon me when I say I had to repress a smile, that "nothing interferes so much with brain work as over-eating—"the intellectual workman requires nourishment of the best possible quality." When we take into consideration the commonly received notions of the existence of mind independent of the body, it does seem absurd that food prepared in any way, shape, or manner whatever, should have any effect or influence on the mind. If the intellectual worker, thinker, and reasoner must have the best possible quality of food while in the body, I inquire from what source will it derive that all indispensable nourishment out of the body, and disconnected from it? What difference to the immaterial man if the material man eat bread or stone, eat little or much, or whether he eat anything at all, whether he drink milk, or wine, chloroform, or water? Why need the inner man get dozy or crazy, seeing he can be so independent of the outer man? of if the outer man wish to take a little stimulus for his stomach's sake, what need of the shadowy man getting drunk and crazy, and abuse his neighbor, seeing the outer man is but a tool in the employ of the inner man? Why hold him responsible, and punish him for the crimes of another man, and let the really guilty one go free? Think of the scientific housewife sweating in a hot summer's day, over a heated stove preparing food for an invisible, immaterial essence, without interior or exterior surface, without shape or form, which cannot be seen, handled, or felt. Would there not be as much propriety from the generally conceived ideas of preparing a scientifically cooked meal for a hollow tree, which a swarm of bees have taken a temporary lodgment in, in order to nourish the bees?

But we often find men who commit themselves to truth and that unwittingly, and we most heartily endorse the above, and the relation that food and mind sustain to each other. An over-loaded stomach, doziness and stupor are sure to follow; clear stomach, clear ideas. Turn a sufficient quantity of liquor into the stomach, and you turn the mind out-doors. Give the outer man a narcotic, and the inner man becomes oblivious to the past, present and future, regardless of friend or foer Tell him he is in imminent peril, he heeds you not; or if you thump the material man on the cranium, why will the immaterial man shy away into the land of forgetfulness?

EVILS OF TOBACCO USING.

Tobacco-using fosters and engenders indolence.

The habitual user of tobacco can scarcely escape the almost irresistible tendency to indolence which his habit engenders. It first wastes his muscles and makes him less fitted for active, energetic labor; then it benumbs his senses so that he becomes averse to activity and delights to linger in the fascinating, dreamy condition of half-unconscious stupidity into which the somniferous drug introduces him. Tobacco-using is a most prolific parent of laziness. Banish cigars, and every other form of tobacco, and how soon would the loafers vanish from our street corners and alleys!

Tobacco is a useless expense.

Worse than useless are the millions of dollars annually expended for this poisonous weed. Only think for a moment that Christian England spent last year for a filthy, Indian weed, more than all her subjects did for bread; meanwhile, her great cities and poor-houses are filled with half-famished paupers! More than $40,000,000 every year are worse than wasted by both England and France to satisfy the demand for something with which to defile the body, ruin the intellect, and assist the soul to perdition.

America is no wiser. The amount annually expended by the world for tobacco is not less than $500,000,000. Bt this rate the whole value of the globe would be expended in a century. Nor in these estimates is any account taken of the immense profit which would accrue if the capital and labor expended in the cultivation and manutacture of tobacco were applied in some useful occupation.

Tobacco raising exhausts the soil.

No other plant makes such enormous drafts upon the soil as does tobacco. Gen. John A. Cooke, of Virginia, says, on this point, "Tobacco exhausts the land beyond all other crops. As proof of this, every homestead from the Atlantic border to the head of tide-water is a mournful monument. It has been the besom of destruction which has swept over the whole of this once fertile region."

The farmers of the Connecticut valley begin to see the same impending ruin staring them in the face, and are eagerly seeking for some fertilizer which will maintain the fruitfulness of their soil. They have recently found an excellent one in corn meal. So now we have a double waste. Ruinous economy!

Tobacco-using diminishes national vigor, and impedes civilization.

It is quite easy to see how the tobacco habit should diminish national vigor, from its influence upon posterity, as already noticed. The Turks, who smoke almost incessantly, are an excellent example of its national influence in this respect. Said the eminent Brodie, physician to the Queen of England and president of the Royal Society, "I cannot entertain a doubt that if we could obtain accurate statistics, we should find that the value of life in smokers is considerably below the average."

Being a scion transplanted from barbarism, it should be naturally expected that it would impede civilization by its growth. And does it not? How could it work all the mischief already proved upon it and do otherwise?

The culture and manufacture of tobacco undermines the most valuable resources of the nation.

Agriculture and manufacturing are the two chief sources of a nation's material prosperity. When these avenues of wealth are closed, bankruptcy and ruin are inevitable. When tobacco-raising usurps the place of the raising of wheat, corn, cotton, and other useful crops in our fertile valleys, does it not plant its cloven foot directly in the way of permanent prosperity? And when the capital which might be employed in the useful arts and trades is invested in the manufacture of tobacco, is it not really placed in a bank which promises nothing but ultimate bankruptcy? and are not the thousands employed in these manufactories unwisely withdrawn from useful and honorable avocations?—Health Reformer.

NOTHING LIKE THE BIBLE.

A gentleman related at a Bible meeting in Warrington, England, the following interesting little story, the circumstances of which occurred in that town.

It was introduced as follows: About three weeks ago, two little boys, decently clothed, the elder apparently about thirteen, and the younger eleven, called at the lodging. The keeper of the house very properly took them to the vagrant's office to be examined, and if proper subjects, to be relieved. The account they gave of themselves was extremely affecting, and no doubt was entertained of its truth. It was as follows:

A few weeks previous, their parents had both died at their residence in London, in one day, with the typhus fever, and they were left orphans in a wide world without home or friends.

Immediately after the last tribute had been paid to their parents' memory, having an uncle in Liverpool, poor and destitute as they were, they resolved to go and throw themselves upon his protection. Tired and faint, they arrived in this town on their way.

Two bundles contained their little all. In the youngest boy's was found neatly covered and carefully preserved, a Bible. The keeper of the lodging house, addressing the little boy, said:

"You have neither money nor meat; will you sell me this Bible? I will give you five shillings for it."

"No!" exclaimed he, the tears rolling down his youthful cheeks, "I'll starve first."

He then said, "There are plenty of books to be bought beside this, why do you love this Bible so much?"

He replied, "No book has stood my friend so much as my Bible."

"Why, what has your Bible done for you?" said the man.

He answered, "When I was a little boy, about seven years of age, I became a Sunday scholar in London. Through the kind attention of my master, I soon learned to read my Bible. This Bible, young as I was, showed me that I was a sinner, and a great one, too. It also pointed me to a Savior, and I thank God that I have found mercy at the hands of Christ, and I am not ashamed to confess him before the world."

To try him still farther, six shillings were then offered him for the Bible.

"No," said he, "for it has been my support all the way from London. Hungry and weary, often have I sat down by the wayside to read my Bible, and have found refreshment from it."

Thus did he experience the consolation of the Psalmist when he said, "Thy comforts have refreshed me." He was then asked, "What will you do when you go to Liverpool, should your uncle refuse to take you in?"

The reply may excite a blush in many christians.

"My Bible tells me," said he, "when thy father and mother forsake thee, then the Lord will take thee up."

At night these two orphans bending their knees by the side of their beds, committed themselves to the care of their heavenly Father, who has said, "Call upon me in the day of trouble; I will deliver thee and thou shalt glorify me."

The next morning, the little wanderers arose early, dressed themselves for their journey, and set out for the town of Liverpool; and may He who hears the ravens when they cry, hear and answer their petition, guide them through time, and bless them in eternity.

"THAT'S ENOUGH FOR ME."

"What do you do without a mother to tell all your troubles to?" asked a child, who had a mother, of one who had none.

"Mother told me to whom to go, before she died," answered the little orphan. "I go to the Lord Jesus; he was my mother's friend, and he is now."

"Christ Jesus is in the sky. He is away off, and he has a great many things to attend to in heaven. It's not likely he can stop to mind you."

"I don't know anything about that," replied the orphan. "All I know, he says he will, and that's enough for me."

What a beautiful answer that was! And what was enough for this child is enough for us all.

HE IS COMING.

Air.—"There is rest for the weary."

He is coming, weary pilgrims,
Scattered now from east to west;
He will call you to his presence,
And will give the promised rest.

Cho.—There is joy for the sighing,
There is joy for you;
When the "ransomed come to Zion"
With their loud songs of triumph,
In the happy land of Eden,
There'll be joy for you.

He is coming, Son of David,
Not the "man of sorrows" now,
But the "many crowns" will sparkle
On his royal, glorious brow.

He is coming, hear ye tyrants,
Haste, before him bend the knee,
He will "break the proud oppressor,"
And will set the captive free.

He is coming, wake, ye sleeping,
From your cold and dusty beds!
Prince of life! oh, death, he triumphs
O'er thy dread and silent shades.

He is coming, strong to conquer,
"Lord of lords and King of kings,"
Earth shall brighten with his glory
'Neath the healing of his wings."

He is coming! Let the tidings
In a shout of gladness rise
From each mountain top and valley,
Till it greets him in the skies.

EVERY MAN REWARDED AT THE COMING OF CHRIST.

S. S. BREWER.

"For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works."—Matt. 16: 27.

The above declaration doubtless means precisely what it says,—that the "Son of man" will reward "every man" at his coming. And as judgment must precede rewards, "every man" must be raised from their graves in order to be judged. The Lord therefore declares that "The hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." John 5: 28. The prophet Daniel doubtless refers to the same "hour" when he predicts that "at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book. And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt."

It is written that when the "seventh angel" sounded—"Thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldest destroy them which corrupt the earth." The destruction above predicted, and also in 2 Thess. 1: 7–11, is doubtless the same; therefore if to destroy—"punished with everlasting destruction"—means, as we contend, extinction, they most certainly will not "live again" at some future period.

Will there be a plurality of thrones and judges? We are perfectly satisfied to let the following inspired testimony decide this question: "We shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ." Rom. 14: 10. "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." 2 Cor. 5: 10. "Because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead." Acts 17: 31. "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory; and before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats." Matt. 25: 31, 32. From the above clear and positive testimony it is evident that there will be but one judge, one judgment seat, one throne, one judgment day of eternal decision. Please notice the destiny of the two classes as pronounced by Him who cannot err—"And these shall go away into everlasting punishment; but the righteous into life eternal."

When I now look at the above plain, and, to my mind, conclusive testimony pertaining to the judgment, and the certainty of all the posterity of Adam being rewarded and punished at the coming of Christ, I am most certainly astonished that I ever believed in a plurality of thrones and judges, as I once did when I permitted that highly figurative and symbolic chapter, the 20th of Rev., to unsettle all the above matter of fact statements of Christ and his apostles.

THE DAY OF JUDGMENT.

The period that God has decreed to judge the world is called "the day of judgment"—"a day." "He hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world" (Acts 17: 31); and also he will "reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished." 2 Pet. 2: 9. Again—"But the heavens and the earth which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men. The Scriptures evidently predict but ONE DAY of judgment, ONE DAY of burning, and that is most clearly set forth in the inspired declaration of the apostle—"The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance." The result is a punishment of "everlasting destruction." And here let me add, that if everlasting destruction means what destructionists declare it does, most certainly they will not have a resurrection from that executed penalty; if so, they must be wrong in the application of the term. It is called

THE DAY OF WRATH.

Sinners are represented as treasuring up wrath against the day of wrath. "But after thy hardness and impenitent heart, treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God; who will render to every man according to his deeds." Rom. 2: 5, 6.

From the frequent instances in which a day is understood to be a year, I think it probable that that day may be one year. See Num. 14: 34—"After the number of the days in which ye searched the land, even forty days, each day for a year." Again in Ezek. 4: 6—"I have appointed thee each day for a year." Again, Isa. 34: 8—"For it is the day of the Lord's vengeance, and the year of recompences for the controversy of Zion." Again, Isa. 63: 4—"For the day of vengeance is in mine heart, and the year of my redeemed is come." I, therefore, dear reader, conclude that the day of judgment is one year; and it is called in Rev. 6 "the great day of his wrath." I believe that the "two thousand three hundred days" of Dan. 8: 14 are so many years, and that the cleansing of the sanctuary means the total extinction of every unclean thing, and that it will be consummated at the time therein appointed, and never! no never again will Satan nor any of his unclean hosts set foot thereon to defile and corrupt it. Never! no, never! if cleansed means what it says.

We have seen in the above teaching that the reward of "every man" takes place at the appearing of our Lord; hence it is declared "the day that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble; and THE DAY that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch." It is impossible, it seems to me, for terms to express more definitely total extinction than the above. And as the great day of wrath is to succeed the present dispensation, then "all the proud," and "all that do wickedly," and all "the tares," and all "the bad," and all "the goats," and all "that know not God, and obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ," are to be punished with "everlasting destruction"; that "it shall leave them neither root nor branch." They most certainly can never have a resurrection after one thousand years, or I am, as many others are, altogether mistaken in the use of scriptural terms, which I do not at present feel disposed to admit.

The judgment scene presented by the Revelator in the 20th chapter must be designed to harmonize with all the plain teachings of Christ and the apostles. In the 13th verse it is declared that "the sea gave up THE DEAD which were in it, and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them; and they were JUDGED EVERY MAN according to their works." The 12th verse is also explicit—"And I saw the dead, small and great." The language is descriptive of the same event as that in the eleventh chapter, when it is announced at the sounding of the seventh angel, "Thy wrath is come, and THE TIME OF THE DEAD that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest GIVE REWARD unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldest destroy them that destroy the earth."

If the following plain declaration does not mean precisely what it saith, then we may despair of ever obtaining any knowledge of what is to be understood by it. "For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels; and then (yes, then!)* he shall reward EVERY MAN according to his works." But one day of rewards for "every man." "Behold I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." One day of judgment called "THE DAY of judgment." One hour, "IN THE WHICH" all that are in their graves shall hear his voice and come forth; one judgment seat; one "come ye blessed," and one "depart ye cursed"; one day of burning; one cleansing of the sanctuary; one moment when we which are alive shall be changed; one throne, viz., the throne of his glory (see Matt. 25: 31); one burning day,—"The heavens and the earth, which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against THE DAY of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." Then these fearful words will be realized—"And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire." That awful, yet to all the saints glorious day is now near, very near. Keep a constant preparation to meet your Judge in peace. Anticipate it, and "watch, lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping."

DOUBTING is the most wearying work in which the mind engages. It wears out mental powers to get into doubt. Reason, unfixed and restless, jogging along from one uncertain premise to another, leads into torment interminable. Let the mind once determine on the truth and rest upon a basis such as God has revealed, and thenceforward there is strength and growth in grace.

SAFETY.

He who holds in his mind certain theological theories, unless he keeps them secret, will be quite sure to find some one who is ready to oppose him. The world is so divided in theories, that it is scarcely possible to fail of meeting opposition on one hand or another, if the mouth is not kept closed on all theological questions.

But if a person says nothing, he is very safe from criticism or opposition. If no position is taken then no one can oppose or find anything to attack. And it is about the same if a person places himself among those who make no high profession of goodness or character. People will seldom attack one of their own class of views, or of their own position. If one has no possessions none will steal from him, nor will any foe seek to vanquish him for spoil. It is useless to sue a beggar for money, or to seek to rob a thief of his character. You cannot get something from nothing, and the devil knows it as well as men.

Let a man say, "I am a sinner," and never seek to be a saint, and Satan will not disturb him much, nor the world either, providing his sins do not militate against them. Let it be said by a man, "my heart is deceitful and desperately wicked," and let him give people to understand that he does not expect it to become pure in this life, and they will look upon him with compassion, and regard him as very meek and unassuming, and perhaps speak of him as a pattern of humility. He does not set himself up to be better than others. His position is so low and humble that no one can object to his claims. No one can rob him of all he possesses, for he possessess nothing. None will attack him in his position, for he claims no fortress; he submits without asking. He claims nothing—no goodness—no virtue—no perfection. He need not fortify himself, for no one will attack him. His position is like a barren desert or a cactus heath, where none ever expect to find anything refreshing or comforting, and where nothing grows but that which is troublesome. No matter how exemplary his outward life may be before men, let him claim no goodness, and none will dispute him.

But, on the contrary, let a man once claim for himself a purity of heart, a sinlessness of character, a righteousness of being that will stand the judgment of God, and he immediately becomes a target for all the world to shoot at, and, if possible, to bring down on a level with themselves. No matter how he obtains this goodness, this sinlessness, this purity, it is enough for the world and lukewarm church members to know that he claims to have the character, to start in them an animosity and hatred that will not be satisfied short of his ruin. No matter if he shall say that all his goodness, and purity, and christian perfection are but gifts bestowed upon him by the Lord Jesus Christ, the simple fact that he claims possession of them now is sufficient to stir Satan and all his hosts.

Jesus Christ was hated, opposed, and executed for this very thing. If he had but said to the world, "God is good, and he is the father of you all, while I am just like you, and no better than you," the rulers would hardly have confronted or opposed him. But he said, "ye are from beneath, I am from above; ye are of this world, I am not of this world." "Ye are of your father the devil," "I am the Son of God." To be sure he said, "I can do nothing of myself; the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works," but this made no difference so long as he claimed to have the virtue in himself. He warned the young man who called him "good Master" that the expression was an admission that God was in him, as "there is none good but God."

How is it with christians? "As he is so are ye in this world." Has not the child of God a right to say that he is the son of God, and a joint heir with Jesus Christ? Will not the blood of Christ cleanse from all sin? Yes, indeed, and he may rejoice because of it before God and among men. If Jesus dwells within, then there is goodness within. If a person is "filled with the Spirit," then that person is holy, and if he confesses the work Satan will be stirred up against him, and he will instantly become a religious target for any one to shoot at who may not feel the same work done for himself.

There is nothing that the devil hates so intensely as holiness. He does not particularly hate a theory of holiness, for he will often cause men to be filled with madness over the subject, and he would as soon men would be mad about holiness as about anything else, but holiness itself he hates. If any shall say, "I am made holy by the Spirit of God," then Satan has a terrible spite against him, and every opposing force will be brought to bear upon him to cause him to fall. Satan dwells in the hearts of the ungodly, and he hates God and holiness, Christ, and Christ's work, and the way to be safe from his attacks is to admit that he has a dwelling place within the heart. A person may thus be safe from Satan's opposition, but how about the judgment of God? Are both pleased with the same thing? Is friendship with the world also friendship with God? For our part we prefer holiness with all its opposition, and we rather enjoy the experience of trial it brings, because we prefer an acceptance with God, rather than ease in the world.

We close with a short extract from an exchange which seems to tell where the church in the main stand to-day, and how they feel about this unsafe safety.

"Some years ago, we were sitting at the hospitable table of a friend, in company with other ministers, some of them highly distinguished, when it was proposed to discuss the question of entire sanctification. "Oh! don't," said Dr. Hagany, who was one of the number, "if we do we shall all be sure to get mad." What is there in the question of christian perfection which makes it inevitably bring out into clear relief christian frailty? We approach it always with the dread of one who is coming near a powder-mill; we are almost certain of "a blowing up." It becomes daily safer for us to profess christian imperfection; for in that event, one may be tolerably certain to sustain his profession by his practice."—Adv. Chris. Times.

COMMISSIONED BAPTISM.

L. C. MCKINSTRY.

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."—Jesus, MATT. 18: 19.

Another argument which has been supposed to weigh heavily against the facts in the case is, that the preposition eis, used here to denote that they went "into" the water, does not always mean into, but sometimes means only "toward," or "to," and that, therefore, it may mean only "to" in this case, and in all others where it is used. We are ready to admit all that is true of this argument. Truth never needs the subterfuge of equivocation and dishonest dodging to support it, and we therefore admit that eis, rendered "into" here, sometimes only means to. We quote a text where it evidently only has that meaning. Acts 7: 26, last clause, reads—"Sirs, ye are brethren; why do ye wrong one to another?" "To" here being from the word eis, it is evident that it does not mean "into," for it would not be good sense to read, "Why do ye wrong one into another?" and yet there is a meaning as deep as this, for the wrong thus done penetrates below the surface of one's person, and there is an inward result of the wrong done. Again, in Matt. 5: 1, the record tells us that Jesus went up "into" the mountain, and the meaning cannot be that the mountain was penetrated, and that Jesus went beneath its surface. These facts are apparent, and yet there are some others just as apparent, which are that, in some instances, the meaning of the word must be, beyond an approach to, or a standing only upon the outside surface.

We quote a few proof texts. Turn again to Acts 7: 3, and read—"Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I will show thee." To say that "into" here only means to would be as absurd as it would to say, in the other instances, that "to" meant "into," or that into meant "inside of." To go into the land must mean into the country, or within its geographical boundary; but it does not mean inside the earth, or "into the ground." How can it be known, then, what is meant or when to understand the word as meaning only to, and when as meaning into, and whether into means within the boundary of a territory, or on the surface of or beneath it? This is an important question, but it is easily answered. It requires care to understand it, certainly, and yet not unreasonably. It may be understood, and there need not be so much discouragement and perplexity to understand or know what God means, so as to lead one to say, "There are so many opinions that I do not know what to believe, and it is useless to try to know."

Mr. Bullion tells us, with reference to this word eis, in his Greek grammar, page 170, paragraph 5, that the primary significance of the word is both to and into, with the idea of a motion from without to within. Now as the word has both meanings, that of to and into, there must be some simple rule for understanding and determining which is meant, or how far in any given case "the motion from without to within" goes, or how far within it can proceed and not have its progress challenged by good sense and right reason. It is a fact that no use of the term can force it beyond the point where it may be thus challenged. Our own word into, although never meaning simply to, has different uses and senses, and they are to be defined in the same manner, because all languages have a common ground of sense of interpretation. The rule for guiding one in this matter is, that the idea of motion from without to within must limit the meaning of the word to a meaning in harmony with practicability. Just as far as a thing can be penetrated, in the manner spoken of, just so far it is consistent to understand that it is done. One may dig into a mountain, but if he is said to go into it, unless some cavern or excavation is referred to, then into cannot mean quite as much as it otherwise would; but it must mean as much as possible. He cannot readily go into the trees of a forest, but he can go into the forest, among the trees; he can go into a house, or into a well, or into water, and the idea of motion from without to within must allow the act to be as complete as the nature of the element or thing to be penetrated will allow; although the distance or depth into it must be regulated by other terms of the language.

It would be absurd, therefore, to say that, while eis means always the nearest possible approach "into" a thing, it never means any more in one instance than it does in another, and that only "to." It is not unfair to say that all effort to say it only has that meaning, is wrong, and unallowable by all the rules of correct interpretation. This will perhaps be sufficient on this point, and leave us free to say that there is, therefore, the best conclusive evidence that Philip really baptized the eunuch, and that, to do so, "they went down both into the water" far enough for that purpose. The evidence of it appears on the honest, open face of the narrative, and proves all we have said about the matter.

The evidence which the other instances recorded afford us of the method and means of baptism, is more in the use of the terms than in descriptions of the events, and yet they are sufficiently full to be satisfactory.

We are told of the people converted in Samaria, that "they were baptized, both men and women" (Acts 8: 12); of "Simon Magus," that "he was baptized" (Acts 8: 13); of all these that "they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus" (Acts 8: 16). We are told of Saul of Tarsus, that "he arose and was baptized" (Acts 9: 18); of Cornelius and others in Cæsarea, that Peter "commanded them to be baptized" (Acts 10: 48); of Lydia, the "seller of purple," that "when she was baptized and her household, she besought" the apostles to make their home at her house while they remained in the place (Acts 16: 33); of Crispus and Gaius, and "the household of Stephanas," we have Paul's statement—"I baptized" them. 1 Cor. 1: 14, 16.

The greatest and most exhaustive effort that has ever been made has been to attempt to show that nothing is said about their going "into" the water, or even to it. The objectors to the genuine mode of baptism tell us that Peter asked the question—"Who can forbid water that these should be baptized?" and thereby implies that it was to be brought, as though he had said—Who can forbid water to be brought that these should be baptized? But the fallacy lies in this, that the word baptized shows that while water, according to the design of Christ and the usage of his church, was to be used, it was not to be brought in a bowl to the candidates, but that they were to be carried or go to it. We have therefore as good authority for saying that water to be used was the meaning of Peter, leaving the word baptized to determine how it should be used, as others have for saying that he meant water to be brought, leaving them then to say that it should be sprinkled on those who were to receive the ordinance.

The phrase—"to be used," is certainly in harmony with the proper meaning of baptism, and genuine to it, and does no violence to the text, for the question—"Who can forbid water that these should be baptized?" might be so transposed as to read—Who can forbid water that these should be baptized? and who can forbid the use of water for that purpose? For there are really two questions in one. Not only is the question of water involved, but of the baptism also.

The statement in the case of the eunuch is, that when Philip baptized him, "they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him." Acts 8: 38. The water is made a prominent thing in the relation of the incident, for it was to bear an important part in the transaction, as in the case just mentioned; and so when the chariot was approaching the place, the man of Ethiopia called out—"See, here is water," as plainly referring to the need of water and its use as Peter did; one asking, "Who can forbid water?" and the other saying, "Here is water," both referring to the same manner of its use; viz., in baptism; for baptism is spoken of in both instances, and so the same transaction is referred to and must be gone through; and if to do it in one instance the candidate and administrator must both go down into the water, they must in the other, and in all others, when the same thing is to be done.

If Peter had said, "Who can forbid water that these should be rantized?" then, as he evidently would have meant a different transaction, there might perhaps be a propriety in saying that the water was to be brought, but there is none now.

We notice now the cases of Lydia and the jailor, Crispus, Gaius, and the household of Stephanus. In these the same terms are employed and the same thing is referred to as in the others, and there is nothing advanced by the objectors of the use of exclusive immersion in water as baptism to this view, except that it is claimed that the jailor was in the prison, or near it, and must have been sprinkled, specially as it was midnight, and not convenient to immerse, and, therefore, baptism could not mean immersion. Lydia attended the meeting by the river side, and so the place might suggest immersion, as it was an excellent place for it, and it might have been the baptism with which she was baptized; but the case of the jailor was different, and difference of circumstances involves, say some, a difference of meaning of the word.

But let us see. It is all mere supposition that there were no conveniences about the prison for baptizing. It has been stated on good authority that there were, and it is not clear that if there were none there, that there were not some near, or somewhere where the ordinance might have been properly attended to. It would not take those long, who wished ardently to obey the Lord, to prepare a place there, and, at all events, there is no reason for saying that the jailor was not immersed, because there might have been no opportunity of doing an immersion, and, beside, it was midnight and inconvenient. Such a superficial reasoning falls to the ground, and can have no real influence with intelligent persons, who are independent enough to act without being influenced by others on a mere ipse dixit, which has no scriptural argument to back it up and sustain it.

The truth is, that in all these instances the persons were passed through the same process and received the same ordinance, as they must to have it the same, in the same manner; and they were all "baptized," and none were "rantized"; none received anything else. It is true the instances recorded of baptisms subsequent to Christ's commission are comparatively few, only ten of them being mentioned; yet, while we do not suppose that we have all which occurred, on the record, we have enough to convince us that "baptism" in the apostles' days was all one thing, and that nothing was ever substituted for it, and so the ordinance was kept pure, and employed always as it was designed it should be, both as to its manner of administration and design.

It is a sad thing that it has not always been so, and that such a sad perversion of what Jesus commanded to be done should have been allowed in his professed church by his professed friends, and that such weak excuses and apologies should be made for those "departures" which have been made more for convenience than because of a deep conviction, unbiassed by any circumstances, that the meaning of the terms employed reqhired such a course. O that there might even now be a return to the right way; then God would set his seal of approval upon his people as he does not now, and they would all be united on the true basis of union, truth, and right.

SELF-EXAMINATION.

GEO R. LEE.

The natural heart is so depraved that it becomes necessary to continually exhort those who have once put on the armor of righteousness, to take heed lest they gradually and unconsciously return to all their old deeds of unrighteousness. One of the greatest depravities of the human heart is the disposition to become self-righteous by attempting to depreciate others, and neglecting to reach the standard ourselves which we hold up.

We are apt to forget one very important clause in Christ's sermon on the mount, and in attempting to pull the mote from our brother's eye, we fail to observe the beam in our own eye; consequently, although we may seem to be religious, "and bridle not our tongues," we deceive our own hearts, making our religion vain.

The example which Christ set before his disciples, and which we who claim to be his disciples must follow, if we would "receive the crown of life," is not the example of the world. It is not "pure religion" to manifest the same character of the world, which is the disposition to "bite and devour one another," instead of building up one another in the unity of the gospel, and walking humbly and Christ-like. If we, like our Master, choose to suffer wrong rather than to do wrong, we shall take heed how we judge our brother, for we are told that "with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged."

The one great characteristic of "pure religion" is to "keep unspotted from the world." And when we are "unspotted," we shall not be hypocritical in the least, but the world, and those who are not of the world, will then know that truly we are of the "royal family" without any self-exaltation. The wisdom of the world results in "bitter envying and strife," "which descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish." And oh, how sad to behold the vast amount of envy and strife there is amongst professed followers of Christ, at the present day!

What a great lack there is of that wisdom which is from above! Why do we not all choose to obtain that which is "first pure, then peacable, gentle, easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and hypocrisy?" Such wisdom as this is free for all, and is much more to be desired than the boasted wisdom of those from whose mouths proceed blessing and cursing. A fountain cannot send forth at the same place, sweet water and bitter; neither can a heart which is filled with the love of God, send forth that which is unlike the spirit of Him who hath taught us to forgive those who trespass against us, as we are forgiven of him.

If we consider ourselves wise, and endued with knowledge from on high, having a hope that is sure and steadfast, let us examine well our own hearts, and conform to the exhortation of James, by showing "out of a good conversation our works with meekness and fear." Jas. 3: 13.

IS THE EXISTENCE OF MIND EVIDENCE OF A SOUL-ENTITY?

It is said by christians of the so-called orthodox school, that mind is not dependent upon the human organism for its existence, but that the existence of mind is conclusive evidence of a conscious, material entity; and as such entity is not a property of matter, therefore, it survives the dissolution of the human body. If "mind is not dependent upon the material organism for its existence," will our brethren of these immaterialistic views tell us how they harmonize the various changes which occur to the human mind, during this brief life, with the assumed independent existence of the mind?

1. If the mind is a soul or spirit-entity, as it is claimed, then it follows that wherever there is mind, there exists an immortal soul. Mind, in varying degrees, is developed in all grades of the animal kingdom. This is proven by the fact that they are capable of voluntary motion, and exhibit—in a limited degree, it is true—the phenomena of mind. Therefore, if the theory of the existence of an immaterialistic entity be true, animals, in their various grades, have immortal souls as well as the sons of Adam; and if the soul can survive death in one instance, may it not in the other? Query: Is heaven interspersed with the soul-entities of all sorts of animals?

2. We have instances recorded where an injury to the brain has rendered man unconscious for a considerable length of time. Will our orthodox brethren say that the soul was unconscious during the continuance of such injury? If the mind can exist independent of the body, how can a physical injury destroy the operation of the mind, and deprive it of consciousness? If a slight injury to the brain renders man unconscious, what shall we think of that theology which assumes that if the injury had only been severe enough to have destroyed the brain, the man would have known more than he ever did before?

3. The mind often becomes deranged; man becomes insane, and is a subject for the mad-house; and this not unfrequently results from disease. If the mind can exist independent of the human body, how could bodily disease derange the mind, transforming a rational human being into a mad man? Can an immortal soul become crazy? If so, may it not continue insane throughout eternity? But if at the death of a crazy man the soul becomes rational again, what a blessing death must be to a crazy man—a greater blessing, by far, than insane asylums!

4. In infants the mind is feeble and easily destroyed. How could this possibly be true if the mind is not dependent upon the human organism for its existence?

5. If the theory is correct that the mind is the soul, then it follows that some men have greater souls than others; and if we are to measure the soul by intelligence, we may often find some members of the brute creation who manifest more intelligence than some specimens of humanity.

We have always felt willing that the advocates of the immortal soul entity in man should appeal to the sciences in support of their theory; for we believe that science has fully demonstrated that all living creatures, in the grand and extensive realm of nature, are endowed with mind, and the degree of intelligence manifested depends upon the existence and development of the organs composing the brain; and hence, the greater intelligence or mind in some, results not from a superior soul, but from a superior organism. Dr. Combe has remarked: "We cannot conceive of the existence of an intelligent being who is not possessed of organs; and it has been found, by investigating the science of phrenology, that where insanity exists, it invariably results from a diseased brain, and that too in a certain location of the head. Some of these organs may be affected and not all of them, which results in partial derangements." . . . "It has also been found that idiocy is universally produced by a mere deficiency of the brain in the frontal region of the head."

What more need be said to convince any candid seeker after truth of the fallacy of the popular assumption that mind is a soul-entity which can exist independent of the human organism?

EVIL SPEAKING.

Evil speaking may not always be false testimony, but sometimes includes speaking the truth itself with an evil motive, or malicious design; and evil speaking of every species is discountenanced in the Bible. Not that the truth should never gain publicity where evil is persisted in, but everything that savors of slander should be restricted by gospel rule, till an incorrigible state is reached by the offender. The conciliatory policy should be fully tried before resorting to public exposures. If men can be saved from evil at all, it can be done more easily before crimes are made public, than afterwards. And evil speaking against a criminal will not help reclaim him. Church authority should not be resorted to as the first remedy. We are more liable to speak of the faults of others too soon, than too late, as well as with incorrect motives.

It is evident, then, that if there is a time to speak, there is also a time to be silent. It requires great care, thorough information of all the facts and circumstances and good judgment—and a good heart, too—to know when to speak and when to be silent; and it requires the closest self-scrutiny, whether we speak or are silent, to know that we are not acting from false principles and motives. For nothing is easier than to impose upon ourselves. Our indignation may arise as much from heat of passion, as love for truth and right. Our vehemence of language may be more against the man than his wrong-doing. Our silence may be that which fear or favor dictates, not humility and meekness. But what is this sin of blasphemy against man? Who is the slanderer, the evil-speaker? It concerns us to know, not only for the sake of others, but for our own sakes. A slander, says Blackstone, is a false tale or report, maliciously uttered, and tending to injure the reputation of another by lessening him in the esteem of his fellow-citizens, by exposing him to impeachment and punishment, or by impairing his living. But this is the legal idea, and does not touch the morality of the question. This only gives us the ground upon which an action at law may be based. Be the tale or report true or false, if it is maliciously uttered, it is a slander.

Three things are clear from the principles laid down in the Bible: First, never to speak in severe terms of another, without just cause, and the plainest warrant of facts. Second, never to exceed the measure of the wrong in your condemnation. Third, never suffer yourself to speak from false or wrong motives. These rules of conduct may seem to you very simple and easy, but trial will convince you that while they may be easy of comprehension, you would not find it so easy to put them in practice. You would find that their rigid enforcement upon yourself in all your observations upon men, would not only compel you to leave many things unsaid that are now said, but it would save you many a bitter regret in the future, and keep back many a sharp sting of pain from other hearts. Many a temporary or life-long alienation might have been prevented, many a humiliating confession rendered unnecessary, had you observed these plain rules of conduct in speaking of your fellow-men.—Ex.

ANCIENT BABYLON.

In the far-off ages of human history and association, when the first grandson of Noah led the victorious warriors of the eastern world to speedy and certain triumphs, there arose amid the verdant and beautiful plains, washed by the gliding waters of the great Euphrates, the renowned city of Babylon.

It was comparatively small and inferior at first, but at length its lords and kings became rich and powerful, and their ambition for safety, honor, and glory here, and deification hereafter, caused them to concentrate their resources in strengthening, enlarging, and beautifying the idol city of ancient times.

The historian has labored to present a distinctive idea of its greatness, the perfection of its architecture, the strength of its defences, its classic statuary, the grandeur of its river, and the bridge spanning it, which was the wonder of that age. He also presents the vast proportions and magnificence of the Temple of Belus, and the old palace. In the midst of these wonderful works of art, and the glitter of royalty, may be seen the warring myriads, who, in the excitement of deadly strife and anger of battle, regard neither human life nor the glory and riches of a gorgeously adorned city.

Babylon was the first manifestation of human ambition in the centralization of earthly wealth, power, and glory. Its first and most noted temple was built about one hunhundred and fifteen years after the flood; soon after which Nimrod founded the city of Babylon and the Assyrian empire. He was the first king deified after his death; taking the name Belus, or Baal, which signifies lord.

Semiramis, the wife of Ninus, son of Nimrod, is supposed to have done more towards enlarging, strengthening, and adorning the city, during her reign, than any other ruler. She employed about two millions of men upon the stupendous work.

Its engineering was perfect, presenting an exact square fifteen miles on either side, with fifty-four streets, each fifteen miles long, crossing each other at right angles. It was defended by a wall three hundred and fifty feet high, eighty-seven feet thick, built of brick ten feet square, and three feet thick, laid in bitumen, which became as hard as a stone. It had one hundred gates—twenty-five on each side. These were made of massive bars of solid brass, and were doubled, infolding, or "two-leaved gates."

The brick of which the walls, the temple of Belus, and the city, were made, were of clay taken out of a vast ditch, which extended around the city, and was filled with water, as a defense against a besieging army.

The river Euphrates ran through the city from north to south, and on either bank a wall as thick as the city walls, each having twenty-five brass gates.

Bridges were little known in the days of Babylon's glory, but Nebuchadnezzar ordered one built across the Euphrates, which was the wonder of the age. Its arches were built of large blocks of stone bound together by heavy iron chains, secured by molten lead. It was a most perfect piece of masonry, forty rods long and thirty feet wide.

To prevent the overflowing of the Euphrates by freshets, and also to draw the water out of the channel so that the arches of the bridge could be laid, and the river tunnelled, two canals were cut, carrying a portion of the water into the Tigris. But as the river could not be sufficiently drained in this way, a vast excavation was made into which the remainder of the water could be drawn, thus making an artificial lake forty miles square, "one hundred and sixty in compass," and thirty-five feet deep.

The city had two palaces, one at each end of the bridge, connected by the tunnel under the river. The palace east of the bridge was three miles and three-quarters in compass, the other was seven and a half miles. They were each surrounded by three massive walls, to make the residence of the royal family and court safe from the attacks of a foe. These walls were gorgeously decorated with a great variety of sculptures, representing kings and queens, and remarkable incidents in their history; also all kinds of animals, in a very life-like manner, which gave them a very magnificent and grand appearance.

Within the western palace were the celebrated Hanging Gardens. These occupied a space four hundred feet on each side, and were elevated three hundred and fifty feet above the foundations; resting upon immense arches, one tier built upon another. Upon the topmost arch were laid flat stones, sixteen feet long and four feet wide. On these, reeds mixed with bitumen were laid, covered with two tiers of brick laid in plaster, and covering these were thick sheets of lead, upon which the soil of the gardens rested. In the midst of the garden was the engine, or force pump, by which irrigating water was drawn from the river.

The great wonder of the golden city was its temple Belus. That temple stood near the western palace, and was noted principally for its central tower, which at the base measured half a mile in compass, rising six hundred and sixty feet from the foundations. It was built of brick and bitumen, and is supposed to be the Tower of Babel, at the building of which, the confusion of languages was experienced. The ascent to the top was by stairs outside, built upon a gradual slope in the wall, running up in a spiral line, turning eight times around the tower; thus giving it the appearance at a distance of a cone shaped mountain, terraced. This temple was used for the worship of idol gods; principally Belus, the supposed spirit of Nimrod, deified.

To accomodate the great multitude of worshipers and their idols, spacious chapels and halls were prepared with arched roofs, supported by large pillars. These places of worship were ornamented and supplied with a great number and variety of sacred vessels, all made of solid gold; the cost of which is computed to have been over one hundred million dollars. On the top of the tower was the celebrated astronomical observatory, where the Babylonians learned many things about the size and motion of the planets, unknown before.

During the days of its triumph and glory, Babylon was a grand exhibition of human skill, power, and folly. Her kings were the lords of the world. Her merchants were the bankers of all nations. The city appeared to be an impregnable fortress. Its armies were invincible and the dread of all warriors. Her artists left traces of the chisel and pencil, which have caused succeeding generations to wonder and admire. But her oppression caused Him who sitteth in the heavens to decree its overthrow and demolition.

Its prophetic story was written ere the morning breezes were perfumed with the spices of its hanging gardens, or the triple walls had secured the royal residence of the imperial family.

While the stones were being chained together for its bridge, and the chisel was representing the sportive chase of its kings; while the smith was burnishing the ornamental plates for the sanctum of its idols, and every ship floating on the waters of its river was pouring treasures into its coffers; and while its haughty captains were dragging behind their chariots haltered captives, who were the sport of their cruelty, and the clouds swept among its towers, and the rattling thunders were heard below the capstone of its temple, God taught his prophets to foretell the bounds of its prosperity, and the captain and armies which should triumphantly enter the proud metropolis, and wrest from the death-palsied hand of Nebuchadnezzar's "son's son" the golden sceptre. They also predicted its complete destruction, so that the only residents of its palaces and sacred halls should be hideous beasts and poisonous serpents. All these prophetic announcements have been perfectly accomplished. Every inspired sentence relating to it has been duplicated in the fall and destruction of Babylon. J. C.

SECOND HOUSE OF ISRAEL.

In the "Sabbath Herald and Review," we find the following statement: "The fourth commandment requires of the second house of Israel what is required of the first." We believe this is a correct statement. The writer ["U. S."] takes the position that the second house of Israel is the Gentile church in the Christian dispensation. We confess our surprise that any careful Bible student should call the Gentile church one of the houses of Israel. It is very certain that the term Israel is not applied once in the whole Bible to Gentiles, and much less, is it ever used to denote the second house of Israel.

After the death of Solomon, when the tribes met to choose their next king, unkind feelings arose between ten of the tribes and the other two, which resulted in a division. The ten tribes chose Jeroboam the son of Nebat, for their king, and the other two tribes elected Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, as their king. Previous to that time there was but one house of Israel; after that, there were two; and they have not been united to this day. From that time there were two distinct lines of kings over the two houses of Israel till the ten tribes were carried captive 721 B. C. by Shalmanezer, king of Assyria, in the reign of Hoshea, the last king of that house of Israel. Whenever the Bible speaks of the two houses, or both the houses of Israel, it always means these two divisions of the one house, which took place soon after the death of Solomon. They are often called Judah and Ephraim, because these were the two representative, or leading tribes in the two houses. M. G.

OUR DUTY.

"The excited, restless and feverish state of society, the lack of confidence in public men and institutions, the sluggish movements in business circles, are subjects of general complaint and comment. We look upon each other with feelings of mistrust, wondering who will be the next defaulter, or betray the trust placed in him. We are realizing the fulfilment of Christ's prophecy as found in Luke 21: 26, 'Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken.'"

According to the foregoing statement, we believe the Editor of the Wayside is looking at things in their true light. If we have come to the period when Luke 21: 26 is beginning to be fulfilled, then we are among the very last signs to be seen before the coming of Christ. This, we think, is our true position. The next verse reads: "And then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." How solemn the position we occupy at this time! But how few realize the magnitude of the events about to transpire.

The carelessness now manifested by the mass of the people must be quite like that among the antediluvians a few days before the flood. They had no faith in the preaching of Noah, and his corresponding works in building the ark. No doubt they pitied what they supposed to be his fanaticism, or superstition.

So it is now. Only a few look with favor on the overwhelming evidence that surrounds us on all sides, saying, Jesus will soon appear "in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." Blessed are they who are ready and love his appearing. M. G.

MASSENA, N. Y.

Massena is in St. Lawrence Co., on the St. Lawrence River and the line of Canada. This county is reckoned the second in the State for dairy products, and Massena is the best agricultural town in the county. It is noted in all the great markets as producing some of the best butter in the country.

The Advent church in this town is among the first of that faith established in this country. This was one of the first places at which Bro. Miller preached the speedy coming of Christ, and nearly the entire Baptist church embraced the faith, and have maintained it until the present time. After a time the Baptists established another church in the place, and so the Advent church was left independent as to denominational associations, and finally became associated with the Advent body. It is like an oasis in the desert,—the only green spot of our faith in all that region of country. This has been one of our strongest churches financially, intellectually, and spiritually, for many years. It is so situated that it has been quite difficult to get a supply of transient preaching, there being but very few preachers in that region. Brn. D. T. Taylor and M. Batchelor supplied them principally for many years, but as they went into other fields this church was left quite destitute of preaching, until some three years ago Bro. C. Pike made them a visit, and was invited to take the oversight of the flock, and labor permanently with them. Bro. P. concluded this proposition might be of God, and moved his family to the place, where he has labored since to good acceptance to nearly all, and to the upbuilding of the church, the disarming of prejudice, and the advancement of truth among the people.

They had worshiped in a Union chapel which they have occupied a part of the time, in connection with other denominations, until the present time. This house was not well located for the prosperity of the meetings, and was not comfortable in cold weather for the congregations, which served to retard the progress of the cause of truth in the place. Bro. Pike counselled the brethren to overcome this hindrance by building for themselves a chapel at the village, where larger congregations would be likely to attend, and worship could be conducted with more comfort and probably with better results. This proposition was received favorably by the brethren and many of the townsmen, and a subscription was immediately commenced to which all interested responded nobly. A building committee was at once appointed, and the foundations for a house of God laid. A thoroughly built, beautiful, plain house, 35×50 feet, commodiously arranged and neatly finished, was completed Friday, Nov. 13th, and the service of dedication held in it on Saturday, the 14th. The dedication was well attended by a very intelligent congregation of christian people.

The pastors of the Baptist and Methodist churches were present, and very willingly and courteously took part in the worship. A good representation from all the churches were in attendance, and manifested a deep interest in the service, and much christian fellowship for our people and their faith. We believe in extending the gospel olive branch to all, with every expression of kindness and true christian friendship, but not to compromise the truth or to lower the standard of christian perfection, but to gently draw them to a fullness of truth and salvation in Jesus.

Our meetings continued Saturday evening and over the Sabbath with increasing congregations and interest. We became very strongly attached to the brethren at Massena, the short time we were with them, for they commanded our respect every way in intelligence, social refinement, and especially spiritual devotion.

May God bless Bro. Pike in his responsible charge as their Pastor, that he may feed them with that meat which God has appointed to be given at the present time, and safely guide them to the mount of translation. Our earnest prayer is daily offered to God that he may bless all of these scattered churches and isolated friends of Jesus, that they may be sustained amid the awful confusion of theological jargon and rushing currents of maddened strife, until the great Deliverer shall come and gather all the homeless, wandering ones to his fold of eternal peace and rest. ☞ THE Alton Bay Campmeeting Committee are hereby notified to meet at the Crisis Office, Boston, Mass., WEDNESDAY, Dec. 9th, at 10 o'clock A. M. J. COUCH.

NOW READY,

The great Map of History, twenty-two feet long, and about thirty inches wide. This valuable work, of which mention has been made in the Crisis, we now have a supply of, and will send to those who may order at the reduced price of $15.00 per copy, by express. We have them on rollers, and in book form, and can supply either way. AG'T.

"HISTORY OF THE SECOND ADVENT MESSAGE, DOCTRINE, AND PEOPLE."

This work is the only production of the kind now published, designed to chronicle and compile in one volume the entire history of the great religious movement of the present generation upon the question of Christ's speedy second advent. It must have cost Bro. Wellcome a laborious and exhaustive effort to collect such an amount of fragmentary history of a scattered people, who had no design of giving the world their history, and therefore it was scattered like autumn leaves, and difficult to be collected.

Bro. W. has also taken upon himself a large debt in publishing this book, and would be relieved very much if all the brethren and friends who wish to purchase the work would do so as soon as convenient. The times are hard, which causes it to sell slow, and this leaves Bro. Wellcome with a heavy financial burden upon him. We have not had the opportunity to read the work, and cannot therefore judge of its historic merits. J. C.

WHAT THE POPE SAYS.

Pope Pius IX. gave an allocution Oct. 2nd, before the Roman Society of Catholic young men, in which he says, as reported in the "New York Catholic Review:"—

"Yes, the temporal power is indispensable to the sovereign pontiffs for the free exercise of their spiritual authority. The chief of the Church has need of a temporal authority in order to exercise that freedom of action which is necessary to him. Assuredly, if instead of the temporal power the successors of St. Peter had received that possessed by the Prince of Apostles, and of which we see so startling an illustration in the deaths of Ananias and Sapphira, he would possess so great an authority that he could easily dispense with any temporal power in order to govern freely the Church of God. But since God has disposed otherwise, and we have not this power which belonged to Peter, it is absolutely necessary that the sovereign pontiffs should, for the better directing of the Church of Christ, be subject to no human authority. It is essential, therefore, that they should have temporal power."

The question arises, How will the Pope obtain his "temporal power" again? Who will give it to him? The prospect is very small in favor of such a result. Every month the separation between ecclesiastical and political authority is growing wider, yet there seems to be a strong conviction in the Pope's mind, and that of his friends, that the Roman Pontiff will again stand at the head of the Church and State. As preparatory to this result, the following announcement appears:—

"The chief authorities of the Church have decided to hold a great International Catholic Congress in London, with the object of maintaining the doctrine of Papal infallibility, reasserting the Pope's right to temporal as well as spiritual power, and proclaiming the bounden duty of all Christians to return to their allegiance to Rome. It is stated that this determination is the result of direct instructions from the Vatican, and some of the highest dignitaries of the Church will attend the Congress. Archbishop Manning, in a speech at Westminster, admitted that the spiritual influence of the Pope had greatly increased since the loss of his temporalities. If arbitration was ever to supercede war, the Pope would be the only possible authorized arbitrator. The Catholic world, he added, was threatened with a controversy on all decrees of the Æcumenical Council. There was undoubtedly approaching one of the mightiest contests the religious world had ever seen, Therefore it was necessary to fearlessly assert, through the free press of England, the Pope's rights and his pretensions to worldwide allegiance."

This is quite significant of an earnest movement on the part of the Catholic power. It is quite evident that the Pope dare not run the risk of calling such a gathering at Rome, as there would be much danger that the Italians would interfere, and produce serious results.

The time appears to be at hand for new developments of a startling character. No effort, possible to be made, will be spared on the part of the Catholic church to obtain again the controlling power among the nations. Germany is her strongest political antagonist at present, and a more bitter conflict is evidently approaching, than has yet been witnessed between the two parties. We wait for the result with special interest. The closing scenes of earth's drama must be near at hand. Our King is coming soon. M. G.

PROPHETIC SERMONS.

We propose to preach a series of sermons on the prophecies at our Chapel, in Chelsea, for the next four or five Sundays, afternoons and evenings. J. C.

THE SANCTUARY.

It is claimed by the Seventh-day Adventists, that the sanctuary to be cleansed at the end of the 1300 days, mentioned in Dan. 8: 13, 14, is in heaven, and that the cleansing began in the autumn of A. D. 1844. If any one should ask why they thus believe, the answer would be, the information came through one of Mrs. E. G. White's visions.

The language of the prophet Daniel is as follows: "How long the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot?" It appears plain from this Scripture, that "the transgression of desolation" was the power that trod under foot "the sanctuary and the host." The term "host" is used to represent the church, or army of the Lord. The "sanctuary" very naturally would seem to mean the place that had been occupied by the church.

Has there been any "transgression of desolation" in heaven, treading under foot that holy place, where God resides, for eighteen hundred years or more, till the fall of 1844? The fact that any person had a vision teaching such absurdities, ought to satisfy every candid person, that the vision did not come from the Lord. Suppose it were true, as some teach, that when christians die, they go to heaven, did they go there "to be trodden under foot" till 1844? Observe, the treading down of the sanctuary and the host run parallel, and close at the same time. We press the question, who has been in heaven treading under foot God's "host," and holy place for the last eighteen hundred years? Can any one tell? How did "the transgression of desolation" enter heaven?

The first mention of the word sanctuary, in the Bible, occurs in Ex. 15: 17, and reads as follows: "Thou shalt bring them in, and plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance, in the place, O Lord, which thou hast made for thee to dwell in, in the sanctuary, O Lord, which thy hands have established." This is what Moses said to the Lord, when the children of Israel were being led through the wilderness to the promised land of Canaan. David says: "And he brought them to the border of his sanctuary, even to this mountain [Mt. Zion], which his right hand had purchased." Ps. 78: 54. This sanctuary is the one "to be trodden under foot" for the period named in Dan. 3: 14. Jerusalem was located in this sanctuary. Jesus said: "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Luke 21: 24. This treading down did not end in 1844, but still continues, and will till "the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." "The host," or church, is also still "trodden under foot" by a wicked world, and sneered at for her "blessed hope."

According to Mrs. White's visions, at the same time the 2300 days ended, in the autumn of 1844, the door of mercy was closed in heaven, and consequently there would be no more chance for sinners to obtain pardon. This position she and her supporters made very prominent. The vision about the "shut door" was just as true as the one about the sanctuary and host being in heaven that were "trodden under foot." It is as certain that such visions did not come from the Lord as that the Bible contains his revealed word. It is time for the disciples of Jesus to throw away such vagaries, and follow the plain teachings of the blessed Redeemer. M. G.

"THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES."

Under the above heading, the Central Baptist, published in St. Louis, Mo., gives the statement of facts connected with that denomination, which, no doubt, will be found equally true of all that are called evangelical. The statement is truly a gloomy one, and all may well inquire, "Whither are we tending?" M. G.

"Never before could we count up so many vacant pulpits. Why are they vacant? Some of these churches which seem to be content in their orphanage, are able to pay handsome salaries, and for every one a suitable minister could be found and supported. Is this a good sign?

We never before could name so many ministers without charges. Some of them cannot travel about on candidating tours. Their means are too small. Some of them are well educated, and have a spotless record. What must be the state of religion in the country, and what the appreciation of the ministerial office when men of worth are left without employment?

There are not a few ministers, some laboring for their flocks, some retired for a season, who are suffering intense anxiety, if not actually suffering, for the necessaries of life, because their salaries are not paid. What shall we think of a church which will daily accept the labor of a pastor without remuneration? What must we think of a church which will make it uncomfortable for a pastor to remain with his people, and then neglect to pay him his just dues?

Never within our recollection have the different institutions and enterprises founded under the sanction of our denomination, felt so severely the pinches of poverty. In every part of the missionary field the laborers are suffering. Students of the ministry are compelled to leave their studies and seek secular employment, and teachers eminently qualified to give instruction in Biblical science, are compelled against their tastes and wishes to seek other fields where education is considered of higher value.

This is a sad picture; but a sadder one might be drawn without doing violence to truth. Whither are we tending?"

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, a a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

A LETTER.

To the Crisis and Messenger:—"This is not the time for true christian soldiers to be contending for sectarian names, or party interests, men, or measures; but to be one in Christ, watching carefully and listening attentively to every word that comes from his lips, lest we fail of the gift of God—eternal life." These are true words, and worthy to be repeated and re-read. I found most of the above quotation in a late Crisis. You see I have changed a few words to suit my mind. I have read your "Address to Mission Society" with interest, I think with more interest than any thing else in the Crisis for some time. I think it has the right spirit toward all who are striving to follow Christ according to their best knowledge and belief; and I long to see you who are now kindling toward your brother sectarians, burning with love toward them, and desiring to meet them more than half way, if by any means you may stir them up to the truth of Christ's coming, for coming he is as surely as the days go by.

Can you not by some means stir up the pure minds of the ministers of all denominations, that they may teach their people the glad tidings, and set their faces toward the heavens? I know that it is a great work, and I know how dull are the ears of nearly all the people; but this is but a sign of the fulfillment of the times of the Gentiles.

I have an idea that perhaps one or two well chosen tracts, for instance, those bearing upon future punishment, and the "Bible Doctrine of the Soul," sent to each Protestant minister in the United States, would set them to thinking in the right direction, so that when you come to any city in your mission work, you may find some among the ministry who will gladly receive you, and hear and help you. I cannot think that if the truth is rightly presented, and time given for thought, that many will not embrace it.

It seems to me that your mission is to the preachers who preach the Word rather than to the hearers. "Strengthen the things which remain" with your new light; search out those who are leaders of the blind, lest they all "fall into the ditch." You know that about the first work Christ did was to "dispute" with the Doctors in the temple. Let your first work be to dispute with the Doctors in the temple also.

Judicious writings presenting the truth fairly and plainly will meet with readers among the ministers, and readers will make inquiries, and inquirers will always welcome you and hear you; and so the good seed will take root and grow, and many shall bless you for the light you have brought them through Jesus Christ.

Hopefully yours, C. SAWYER.
Elmira.

FROM BRO. P. A. SMITH.

BRO EDITORS:—I received a letter to-day from a brother in South Carolina that I have not seen in six or seven years; and for the benefit of those who give money to print tracts for free distribution, that they may not get weary in well doing, I send the letter for publication in the Crisis.

REV. P. A. SMITH:—Dear Sir,—You will no doubt be somewhat surprised by receiving a letter from one whom you have long ago forgotten; but when I relate a certain circumstance, you will certainly remember me. You remember the spring you first commenced preaching in Jacksonville. You were working in your little house (lathing it, I think), when two young men called on you to procure some tracts; and after getting them you told them to read them and loan them to their friends. When about to start you grasped their hands and said, "If we meet no more, I hope to meet you in the kingdom."

Now, my friend, I am one of those men; and those words have been ringing in my ears ever since. I have read those tracts, and am convinced, and have convinced many more, that they present the true platform of redemption. But I have been placed away from you by returning home, so that I cannot commune with you; but those tracts have been my comfort. I have read my Bible, and I am able to converse upon it, and the different churches wish me to become a member, but I cannot agree with their doctrine. I know that I could do a good work, but I cannot preach what they do, and there is no church of your faith near, that I know of, where I could become a member.

I write to get your advice on the subject. What shall I do? There are hundreds that are of the faith whom I have conversed with, even preachers; and they all say I have a work to do, but I do not know how to commence it, so please give me your advice, and send me one or two Advent papers, and oblige yours truly in the faith,

BE PROMPT.

C. MENDENHALL.

In regard to our eternal interests it is written—"Now is the accepted time; behold now is the day of salvation." This shows the necessity for immediate action in a matter of vast importance to mankind.

The lesson which is herein contained should, we think, instruct in every branch of life. If embracing the present moment is advantageous in a spiritual work, it is also true of temporal undertakings. The old saying that "procrastination is the thief of time" has lost none of its cogency, though it has become hackneyed. It is a common failing among men to think—"there is time enough," not only in regard to religious matters, but in every phase of active life we find those who are too late or were "just going to." Many a battle which has ended in an inglorious defeat, might have resulted in victory but for neglecting to perform some duty or make some provision of defense in time.

Many a good thought, or a kind deed, has been left from time to time, until the opportunity for timely action has gone by. Acts of duty in every form are postponed until the last moment; everything then becomes bustle, excitement, and we see things done indecently, and out of order, just in reverse to the plan of God. A good motto is—"Never put off until to-morrow what you can do to-day." If we would do this, many unpleasant things would be avoided. Let us then be prompt in every department of life, in small things, as well as in great. Like all other habits, this of "putting off" will grow, making us late to church, to dinner, to the cars, to an appointment, or too late to secure a preacher because we did not write soon enough, or too late to save a debtor because we did not pay up. Christianity should make us careful in small things; therefore, if christians, let us be diligent in business, and as prompt in all things as possible.

Are any who read this putting off from time to time, the great work of being saved; if so, turn to him whom to know is life eternal. Seek peace and pardon at once, for soon this dispensation will end, mercy will have ceased to offer an escape, and you who all your life have had "time enough to be saved" will be excluded. May we have Divine help to employ every moment of time, which will soon end, and may we not fall into a delusion that in this life causes disappointment and chagrin, and in regard to salvation, death and destruction. May the words of the apostle ever be in our minds, helping us to do what we do quickly, knowing that though we now have the Gospel and the glorious plan of salvation fully at work, it will not always be so, for some time in the history of the world the door will shut.

When Jesus comes to complete the redemption of the faithful ones, and to visit the incorrigible with everlasting destruction, probation will end. Fellow workers, in view of these things, we must redouble our efforts for the salvation of our fellow mortals. Let us be up and doing, for "Behold NOW is the accepted time, behold NOW is the day of salvation. 2 Cor. 6: 2.

"Soon will the awful trumpet sound,
And call you to his bar;
His mercy knows th' appointed bound,
And yields to justice there."—Doddridge.

Correspondence.

From Bro. D. C. Thomas.

DEAR BRN.:—God has been good to me in sparing my life till the present time. It makes my heart sad to think of the years I spent in the service of sin, but the Lord freely forgives me for Jesus' sake. By faith I look to Christ as my all-sufficient Savior. O, how sweetly he saves me just now, the condemnation all gone. I have peace in believing.

Poor wanderer, are you seeking rest for your sin-burdened heart? Hear the words of Jesus—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Careless sinner, we have nothing better to offer you. Your burdened heart and guilty conscience need this Jesus; no other name will suffice; your salvation cost blood, even the blood of Jesus. Do you realize it? Will you be fascinated with pleasure's cup? Will you rush madly on? Will you grieve the Holy Spirit? Will you spurn offered mercy? Pause, I entreat you. Ominous signs forewarn you that mercy lingers only till the heavens roll together as a scroll over your head. Nations overwhelmed in distress now startle the world sinking in perplexity. You step out of this into the pavilion of God, or perish while supplicating the rocks to fall on you. Repent and believe to-day. Come now, call on the name of the Lord, plant your feet on the Rock, seek and find, obey and live.

Kendall, N. Y.

From Bro. P. J. Smith.

Dear Brn. and Srs. in Christ:—We wish to say a word in behalf of the cause in Southbridge. A little company of believers assemble themselves together in the Town Hall (which we have free by warming and lighting it) three Sabbaths in a month, to hold up God's truth to the few who may come in to hear what this strange people have to say. Of late we have passed through some trials, for it looked doubtful about continuing our meetings, as we have been unable to secure preachers that were near by; and as we are so few, and are somewhat straitened for means, have felt careful about sending for preachers, as we might not do as well for them as they stand in need of. But we would say to dear brethren who preach the Word, when you are passing by or near this place, and have a word for us, we should be glad to see you here. There are good, self-denying brethren here, with whom you will find a pilgrim's home. We have had many precious seasons with brethren and sisters in our prayer meetings, and, were we ever called to leave the place could not forget them. Some of us have tarried here, feeling the Lord would have the people warned who otherwise would have gone elsewhere.

Now, dear brethren and sisters in the vicinity of Southbridge, come in and give us a lift. We need your help in singing, not having but two or three, and sometimes not one to sing. We need your prayers and your exhortations. We think we see of late more interest manifested to hear these truths than for some time. Shall they not have the privilege? Brethren, will you not put shoulder to the wheel and help push the car of salvation through here? Every influence that can be brought to bear against God's truth is thrown against us. It is not like places in the country where school-houses may be opened and the whole neighborhood turn out to hear; but in a place like this, where several of the leading denominations are represented, we have all these different sects to contend with. The doctrines we, as a people, advocate are unpopular, and always will be, judging from appearances.

Since the scales were removed from our eyes we have seen light in God's light, and have wanted others to see it. Brethren, shall our meetings stop? God forbid. Let us make them a subject of prayer, and God will bless us. We can afford to sacrifice everything for Christ; for if we have him, we have all. And you, dear brethren, who have the privilege of meeting every Sabbath with a good company of God's children in adjoining towns around us, will not some of you launch out and come over and help us? Shall there not be a few lamps burning here when Jesus comes? One brother came here from North Woodstock last Sabbath, and cheered us up wonderfully. Come again, brother. Pray for us, brethren, that some may be brought to Jesus here before it is too late. Your brother in the highways and hedges.

Southbridge, Mass., Nov. 18th.

From Sr. M. Pennington.

Dear Brn. and Srs. of like precious faith, as I have often been cheered by reading letters from some of Father's family, I would like to say to all afflicted ones, that I know what it is to pass through deep affliction; but, dear ones, let us lean on the strong arm of Jesus. I have ever found him a ready helper in time of trouble. I do not know as I ever realized his help as much before as I do at the present while passing through the deep waters. Two years ago I was called to mourn the loss of a dear mother, and while the wound her death had caused was yet fresh, news came to us that a dear and beloved brother was gone. He found a watery grave. God help the poor lonely wife, and little one that he has left behind. May she look to Jesus, and trust in Him who has said he would be a father to the fatherless, and the widow's God.

Dear brethren and sisters, hold on to Jesus; he is soon coming. I believe it with all my heart. Let us strive to be ready to meet him with joy when he shall come. It is now six years since I heard the blessed Word of God explained in its true sense, and as time passes, it looks plainer and plainer. Oh, I do bless God every day that he raised up noble and honest hearted men who are not ashamed of the truths of his blessed Word. To all such I would say, You will get your reward at the resurrection of the just. My husband and I are the only ones there are within thirteen miles of this place who are looking for the coming of Jesus. The people are mostly all opposed to our views, but bless God, I feel strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might, and know the truth will stand, while error will fall.

How I wish some good brother would come here, filled with the Spirit of God, and tell the people of their danger; for they seem to be asleep, and the judgment is at the door. God help them to see their danger before it is too late.

Dear brethren and sisters, do not forget to pray for the lonely one, and may God bless you all is the prayer of your sister in affliction.

Lower Brgyle, Nova Scotia.

I am trying to be in this way, for I see by the signs of the times that Jesus is soon coming to make up his jewels, and I want to be one of them, for I have loved him more than forty years. I expected to see him face to face more than thirty years ago, and although disappointed, still I am much delighted in his service. I hope the dear ones of like precious faith with me will take new courage, not in the least get weary in waiting, but cling to God and the blessed hope. Rejoice and be exceeding glad, for the great reward is awaiting you. O, let us mind the word of the Lord, children, more than the sayings of men of this world.

The Lord continue to bless and help you in the same, till He come whose right it is to reign, or you fall asleep in him. For the willing in his service eat the good of the land while here. Try it, ye unrenewed. Seek in Christ that peace with God which is like a river, and keep in love with him, and you will have cause to say the one half was never told you by the most eloquent tongue or described by the most able writer. O, make haste, and acquaint yourself with the great Father of all mercies and God of all comfort. No longer fight against your own best good. While time lingers improve it for your good, and the glory of God, and say to those affected by your influence, Follow me as I follow the requirements of God.

North Newburgh, Me.

From Sr. J. P. Hodgdon.

Dear waiting ones scattered over all lands: Some of you have been looking for the Master's return these many years; and to such I would say, Lift up your heads and rejoice, for your redemption draweth nigh. Our God will come and receive to himself his peculiar people, those that have washed their robes and made them white, and have not denied his name, and have ministered to his saints of such things as they had need; those Christ says shall walk with him in white, for they are worthy. Blessed promise!

Sinner, the door of mercy is still open, and the weary, sin-sick soul may come now and find pardon; but the time will surely come when the door of mercy will be forever closed, for our God hath spoken it. Just now whosoever will may come and have everlasting life. Is it not worth all else? Nothing is of any value compared to this great boon. Then come, sinner, and obtain it, and live forever.

Manchester, N. H.

THE WORD OF GOD.—The word of God is a sure support for men in trouble. Man's word may be reasonable, wise, consoling, but it never forms a solid foundation in tribulations, like that which comes from heaven. Whatever else one may doubt, he may not doubt the immutable word of God. Whatever else may fail, this word will abide. Heaven and earth may pass away, but this word remaineth. No man who puts his trust in that word, and who shapes his life in filial obedience to it, need fear the opening future, either of this life, or to come.

REPORT OF WESLEY CONFERENCE.

On Thursday evening met, according to appointment, with a good congregation of brethren, and sisters, and friends, from the neighboring towns. I spoke from the last verse of the sixth chapter of Revelation. It appeared to have a lasting impression on the minds of the people. Met Friday morning for prayer and conference meeting. There was a great degree of interest manifested. Met again at two o'clock in the afternoon, when Bro. M. Corliss gave an able and cheering discourse. We also had preaching in the evening. On Saturday morning at nine o'clock we had a full house from the adjoining towns. Much of the power of God was manifested. At times there were three on their feet trying to speak. Bro. Corliss and myself kept our seats to give place for others until so moved upon by the Spirit of the Lord that we could not sit any longer. Met again in the afternoon. Preaching in the evening. By request, Bro. Corliss preached on the Rich Man and Lazarus.

Sunday morning met for prayer at nine o'clock. Met with brethren who had arrived from Machiasport, and had a blessed meeting. Preaching in the afternoon, after which Bro. Corliss buried five happy souls in baptism. Met again Sabbath evening to enjoy the last social meeting. Met around the Lord's table to celebrate the Last Supper. Had a large number around the table.

Thus ended our gospel feast. I think through the whole session there was a deep-toned experience. All treated us very kindly. The Conference in Wesley will not soon be forgotten. I tarried with the brethren one week after the Conference. Some that had been in a backslidden state for years were reclaimed, and the work was still progressing when I left. There were brethren and sisters from Machiasport, Cooper, Milltown, and Princeton. Bro. Corliss is a dear good brother, and has done a good work through that region. Yours looking for the blessed hope,

ATWOOD. In St. Helena, Sept. 20th, 1874, of consumption of the bowels, Emily B. Atwood, aged forty years and ten months.

The daughter of Elijah and Alzina Spear, born and brought up in Canada, she was converted to God's truth in her youth, and baptized by Levi Dudley in the likeness of Christ's death, and has ever lived a life of usefulness in the church. A few years before her death she united with the Sabbath keepers, and truly believed they were sounding the third and last warning to a doomed world. She rejoiced in the present truth, believing it would be but a short time until Jesus would come to gather his saints, then she would meet all her loved friends to part no more. She leaves a kind husband, one child, and a lonely mother to weep; but, thank God, it is not without hope of meeting in the new earth. Brethren and sisters in the east, remember me in a foreign land.

He believed in Christ, in the resurrection of the dead, and the restoration of the earth as the abode of the saints. Words of comfort were spoken by Bro. D. E. Davis, from Job. 14: 14.

Weary, toil-worn pilgrim, sleep;
Thy work on earth is done;
Rest in the grave a little while,
Till Christ shall call you home.

We shall hear that song of triumph
He will sing upon that shore;
Saying, Jesus has redeemed me,
I shall suffer now no more.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

KENTUCKY.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 18. By an explosion at the gas works at Mt. Sterling, Ky., this morning, two white men and one negro were instantly killed. Two buildings connected with the works were destroyed. The loss is not stated.

A SERIOUS accident occured on the Eastern Railroad yesterday near Newburyport. A collision between two freight trains resulted in the destruction of several freight cars and a valuable locomotive. No lives were lost, but engineer Henry Hill was severely injured.

ITEMS.

— Bishop Bedell, at a recent visitation to the Episcopal church in Delaware, O., preached a sermon condemning in very strong language the sinful amusements of the times, such as the modern theatre, the opera, public balls, and lascivious dances, gaming and horse-racing. The practice of introducing the last named species of gambling into our agricultural fairs received a severe rebuke.

— The Congregational churches in the United States number 3,325; members, 323,688. In other portions of North America they number 106 churches, 89 ministers, and 6,451 members—making a grand total on the American continent of 3,431 churches, 3,327 ministers, and 330,130 members.

— All the christian sects together comprise a membership of 330,000,000, while heathen worshipers count over 1,000,000,000. The Roman Catholic church embraces 195,000,000 followers, and the Buddhists 340,000,000; while all the Protestant denominations combined number only 68,189,000.

— The annual cost of tobacco used in the United States is estimated at 100,000,000; that of supporting the gospel ministry 12,000,000. Thus the vile weed taxes the American people eight times as much as they pay to sustain the preaching of the precious gospel.

— The Lancet says that the purposeless manner in which several horrid murders have lately been committed in England almost justifies the belief that some secret society for the destruction of human life has been formed. In the case of a young Frenchman, who was stabbed while walking near the Victoria Docks, the attempt was made to preserve life by the transfusion of blood from the arm of one of the hospital dressers. Though success was not attained, the attempt deserves a repetition.

TO VERMONTERS.—At our annual conference at Bethel, the State Committee were urged to carry the gospel of the kingdom into every new field which opened a door, and especially to offer a week of labor for any five dollars pledged by an isolated brother or sister living in a new field. This was to encourage individual effort and sacrifice on the part of the isolated. We want to hear immediately from those places where labors are desired, that we may make due arrangements to meet the demands. If you are too poor to raise five dollars, and yet the door is open for a meeting, write us just the same as though you raised the money. Write to me at Waterbury, Vt., or to A. A. Hoyt, Plainfield, Vt. Write full particulars of circumstances, people, time, and place. Write soon.

H. F. CARPENTER, President of Conference.

PROTRACTED MEETING.—The Lord willing, there will be a protracted meeting held in Salisbury, N. H., at the Union meeting-house, commencing Friday, Nov. 27th, to continue over the following Sabbath, and longer if duty demands.

This work states the predictions concerning the Papacy in its glory, its gloom, and destruction, together with the most reliable points of history showing their fulfillment, with a graphic statement of her present dying state. The widowhood, the moaning over her fate, the dying struggles under her afflictions, losses, poverty, and burning, are brought out in present history. It is a work of value for its historical quotations, which will be wanted by all interested in this subject. Single copy 15 cts. by mail; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 for 100 by express. AG'T.

THE SEVEN CHURCHES.

"A pamphlet of 60 pages (by W. N. Pile), giving an exposition of Rev. 2: 3. The epistles to the 'seven churches of Asia' (the author thinks) are shown to have been prophetic of the seven periods of the gospel age, in addition to their local application. An epitome of church history, from the apostolic age to the present time, is given, leading to the conclusion that we are now in the closing part of the Laodicean period, near the end of the dispensation and the establishment of the kingdom of God upon the earth. Price, single copy, postpaid, 15 cts.; two copies, 25 cts."

An interesting Tract. We hope it may do much good. "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."

"THE BIBLE DOCTRINE OF THE SOUL."

An Answer to the Question: "Is the Popular Conception of the Soul that of Holy Scripture?"

BY CHAS. L. IVES, M. D.

Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Yale College.

This is a pamphlet of 119 pages, in which the Author discusses the above question in an interesting and able manner,—showing the material nature of, the mortality and destiny of the Soul.—A future immortality to be the special portion of the Righteous,—What the Bible teaches as to the future of the Wicked,—The intermediate state,—The Resurrection,—That of the Righteous and of the Wicked, etc.

The Author claims that the doctrine set forth,—"Honors God, exalts the Bible, insures preaching of future punishment, subverts Universalism and Infidelity, errors of Romanism, of Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, helps in work of Missions, rightly values the body, brings Christian unity, and promotes personal holiness."

We are much pleased with this work. It ought to have a wide circulation. We have a good supply, and hope the friends will order freely. We will sell at the following prices:—25 cts. per copy; $2.00 per dozen, sent by mail; $15.00 per hundred, by express. AG'T.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The provisions of the new postal law, requiring pre-payment of postage on all news papers, go into operation on the first of January next. After that date all postage (excepting on newspapers within the County in which they are published) will have to be paid at the Office from which the paper is mailed. This change relieves the subscribers from the care and trouble of postage payment, placing it upon the publishers, and making the expense, which is quite an item, to come directly upon the latter.

To meet this (in regard to the Crisis), the Adv. Chris. Pub. Society, at a late meeting, voted to add twenty-five cents to the price of our paper; so that from Jan. 1st, 1875, the World's Crisis will be $2.25 per year in advance. And hereafter, all monies received at this office for advance pay on the Crisis will be credited from Jan. forward at the rate of $2.25 per year. And if any, who have already paid for the paper in advance, are disposed to send us what they would have to pay at their Post Office, under the old law, we will thankfully receive the same; and so of those who receive the Crisis free.

ANCIENT BABYLON.

In the far-off ages of human history and association, when the first grandson of Noah led the victorious warriors of the eastern world to speedy and certain triumphs, there arose amid the verdant and beautiful plains, washed by the gliding waters of the great Euphrates, the renowned city of Babylon.

It was comparatively small and inferior at first, but at length its lords and kings became rich and powerful, and their ambition for safety, honor, and glory here, and deification hereafter, caused them to concentrate their resources in strengthening, enlarging, and beautifying the idol city of ancient times.

The historian has labored to present a distinctive idea of its greatness, the perfection of its architecture, the strength of its defences, its classic statuary, the grandeur of its river, and the bridge spanning it, which was the wonder of that age. He also presents the vast proportions and magnificence of the Temple of Belus, and the old palace. In the midst of these wonderful works of art, and the glitter of royalty, may be seen the warring myriads, who, in the excitement of deadly strife and anger of battle, regard neither human life nor the glory and riches of a gorgeously adorned city.

Babylon was the first manifestation of human ambition in the centralization of earthly wealth, power, and glory. Its first and most noted temple was built about one hun-hundred and fifteen years after the flood; soon after which Nimrod founded the city of Babylon and the Assyrian empire. He was the first king deified after his death; taking the name Belus, or Baal, which signifies lord.

Semiramis, the wife of Ninus, son of Nimrod, is supposed to have done more towards enlarging, strengthening, and adorning the city, during her reign, than any other ruler. She employed about two millions of men upon the stupendous work.

Its engineering was perfect, presenting an exact square fifteen miles on either side, with fifty-four streets, each fifteen miles long, crossing each other at right angles. It was defended by a wall three hundred and fifty feet high, eighty-seven feet thick, built of brick ten feet square, and three feet thick, laid in bitumen, which became as hard as a stone. It had one hundred gates—twenty-five on each side. These were made of massive bars of solid brass, and were doubled, infolding, or "two-leaved gates."

The brick of which the walls, the temple of Belus, and the city, were made, were of clay taken out of a vast ditch, which extended around the city, and was filled with water, as a defense against a besieging army.

The river Euphrates ran through the city from north to south, and on either bank a wall as thick as the city walls, each having twenty-five brass gates.

Bridges were little known in the days of Babylon's glory, but Nebuchadnezzar ordered one built across the Euphrates, which was the wonder of the age. Its arches were built of large blocks of stone bound together by heavy iron chains, secured by molten lead. It was a most perfect piece of masonry, forty rods long and thirty feet wide.

To prevent the overflowing of the Euphrates by freshets, and also to draw the water out of the channel so that the arches of the bridge could be laid, and the river tunnelled, two canals were cut, carrying a portion of the water into the Tigris. But as the river could not be sufficiently drained in this way, a vast excavation was made into which the remainder of the water could be drawn, thus making an artificial lake forty miles square, "one hundred and sixty in compass," and thirty-five feet deep.

The city had two palaces, one at each end of the bridge, connected by the tunnel under the river. The palace east of the bridge was three miles and three-quarters in compass, the other was seven and a half miles. They were each surrounded by three massive walls, to make the residence of the royal family and court safe from the attacks of a foe. These walls were gorgeously decorated with a great variety of sculptures, representing kings and queens, and remarkable incidents in their history; also all kinds of animals, in a very life-like manner, which gave them a very magnificent and grand appearance.

Within the western palace were the celebrated Hanging Gardens. These occupied a space four hundred feet on each side, and were elevated three hundred and fifty feet above the foundations; resting upon immense arches, one tier built upon another. Upon the topmost arch were laid flat stones, sixteen feet long and four feet wide. On these, reeds mixed with bitumen were laid, covered with two tiers of brick laid in plaster, and covering these were thick sheets of lead, upon which the soil of the gardens rested. In the midst of the garden was the engine, or force pump, by which irrigating water was drawn from the river.

The great wonder of the golden city was its temple Belus. That temple stood near the western palace, and was noted principally for its central tower, which at the base measured half a mile in compass, rising six hundred and sixty feet from the foundations. It was built of brick and bitumen, and is supposed to be the Tower of Babel, at the building of which, the confusion of languages was experienced. The ascent to the top was by stairs outside, built upon a gradual slope in the wall, running up in a spiral line, turning eight times around the tower; thus giving it the appearance at a distance of a cone shaped mountain, terraced. This temple was used for the worship of idol gods; principally Belus, the supposed spirit of Nimrod, deified.

To accomodate the great multitude of worshipers and their idols, spacious chapels and halls were prepared with arched roofs, supported by large pillars. These places of worship were ornamented and supplied with a great number and variety of sacred vessels, all made of solid gold; the cost of which is computed to have been over one hundred million dollars. On the top of the tower was the celebrated astronomical observatory, where the Babylonians learned many things about the size and motion of the planets, unknown before.

During the days of its triumph and glory, Babylon was a grand exhibition of human skill, power, and folly. Her kings were the lords of the world. Her merchants were the bankers of all nations. The city appeared to be an impregnable fortress. Its armies were invincible and the dread of all warriors. Her artists left traces of the chisel and pencil, which have caused succeeding generations to wonder and admire. But her oppression caused Him who sitteth in the heavens to decree its overthrow and demolition.

Its prophetic story was written ere the morning breezes were perfumed with the spices of its hanging gardens, or the triple walls had secured the royal residence of the imperial family.

While the stones were being chained together for its bridge, and the chisel was representing the sportive chase of its kings; while the smith was burnishing the ornamental plates for the sanctum of its idols, and every ship floating on the waters of its river was pouring treasures into its coffers; and while its haughty captains were dragging behind their chariots haltered captives, who were the sport of their cruelty, and the clouds swept among its towers, and the rattling thunders were heard below the capstone of its temple, God taught his prophets to foretell the bounds of its prosperity, and the captain and armies which should triumphantly enter the proud metropolis, and wrest from the death-palsied hand of Nebuchadnezzar's "son's son" the golden sceptre. They also predicted its complete destruction, so that the only residents of its palaces and sacred halls should be hideous beasts and poisonous serpents. All these prophetic announcements have been perfectly accomplished. Every inspired sentence relating to it has been duplicated in the fall and destruction of Babylon.

SECOND HOUSE OF ISRAEL.

In the "Sabbath Herald and Review," we find the following statement: "The fourth commandment requires of the second house of Israel what is required of the first." We believe this is a correct statement. The writer ["U. S."] takes the position that the second house of Israel is the Gentile church in the Christian dispensation. We confess our surprise that any careful Bible student should call the Gentile church one of the houses of Israel. It is very certain that the term Israel is not applied once in the whole Bible to Gentiles, and much less, is it ever used to denote the second house of Israel.

After the death of Solomon, when the tribes met to choose their next king, unkind feelings arose between ten of the tribes and the other two, which resulted in a division. The ten tribes chose Jeroboam the son of Nebat, for their king, and the other two tribes elected Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, as their king. Previous to that time there was but one house of Israel; after that, there were two; and they have not been united to this day. From that time there were two distinct lines of kings over the two houses of Israel till the ten tribes were carried captive 721 B. C. by Shalmanezer, king of Assyria, in the reign of Hoshea, the last king of that house of Israel. Whenever the Bible speaks of the two houses, or both the houses of Israel, it always means these two divisions of the one house, which took place soon after the death of Solomon. They are often called Judah and Ephraim, because these were the two representative, or leading tribes in the two houses.

OUR DUTY.

"The excited, restless and feverish state of society, the lack of confidence in public men and institutions, the sluggish movements in business circles, are subjects of general complaint and comment. We look upon each other with feelings of mistrust, wondering who will be the next defaulter, or betray the trust placed in him. We are realizing the fulfilment of Christ's prophecy as found in Luke 21: 26, 'Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken.'"

According to the foregoing statement, we believe the Editor of the Wayside is looking at things in their true light. If we have come to the period when Luke 21: 26 is beginning to be fulfilled, then we are among the very last signs to be seen before the coming of Christ. This, we think, is our true position. The next verse reads: "And then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." How solemn the position we occupy at this time! But how few realize the magnitude of the events about to transpire.

The carelessness now manifested by the mass of the people must be quite like that among the antediluvians a few days before the flood. They had no faith in the preaching of Noah, and his corresponding works in building the ark. No doubt they pitied what they supposed to be his fanaticism, or superstition.

So it is now. Only a few look with favor on the overwhelming evidence that surrounds us on all sides, saying, Jesus will soon appear "in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." Blessed are they who are ready and love his appearing.

MASSENA, N. Y.

Massena is in St. Lawrence Co., on the St. Lawrence River and the line of Canada. This county is reckoned the second in the State for dairy products, and Massena is the best agricultural town in the county. It is noted in all the great markets as producing some of the best butter in the country.

The Advent church in this town is among the first of that faith established in this country. This was one of the first places at which Bro. Miller preached the speedy coming of Christ, and nearly the entire Baptist church embraced the faith, and have maintained it until the present time. After a time the Baptists established another church in the place, and so the Advent church was left independent as to denominational associations, and finally became associated with the Advent body. It is like an oasis in the desert,—the only green spot of our faith in all that region of country. This has been one of our strongest churches financially, intellectually, and spiritually, for many years. It is so situated that it has been quite difficult to get a supply of transient preaching, there being but very few preachers in that region. Brn. D. T. Taylor and M. Batchelor supplied them principally for many years, but as they went into other fields this church was left quite destitute of preaching, until some three years ago Bro. C. Pike made them a visit, and was invited to take the oversight of the flock, and labor permanently with them. Bro. P. concluded this proposition might be of God, and moved his family to the place, where he has labored since to good acceptance to nearly all, and to the upbuilding of the church, the disarming of prejudice, and the advancement of truth among the people.

They had worshiped in a Union chapel which they have occupied a part of the time, in connection with other denominations, until the present time. This house was not well located for the prosperity of the meetings, and was not comfortable in cold weather for the congregations, which served to retard the progress of the cause of truth in the place. Bro. Pike counselled the brethren to overcome this hindrance by building for themselves a chapel at the village, where larger congregations would be likely to attend, and worship could be conducted with more comfort and probably with better results. This proposition was received favorably by the brethren and many of the townsmen, and a subscription was immediately commenced to which all interested responded nobly. A building committee was at once appointed, and the foundations for a house of God laid. A thoroughly built, beautiful, plain house, 35×50 feet, commodiously arranged and neatly finished, was completed Friday, Nov. 13th, and the service of dedication held in it on Saturday, the 14th. The dedication was well attended by a very intelligent congregation of christian people.

The pastors of the Baptist and Methodist churches were present, and very willingly and courteously took part in the worship. A good representation from all the churches were in attendance, and manifested a deep interest in the service, and much christian fellowship for our people and their faith. We believe in extending the gospel olive branch to all, with every expression of kindness and true christian friendship, but not to compromise the truth or to lower the standard of christian perfection, but to gently draw them to a fullness of truth and salvation in Jesus.

Our meetings continued Saturday evening and over the Sabbath with increasing congregations and interest. We became very strongly attached to the brethren at Massena, the short time we were with them, for they commanded our respect every way in intelligence, social refinement, and especially spiritual devotion.

May God bless Bro. Pike in his responsible charge as their Pastor, that he may feed them with that meat which God has appointed to be given at the present time, and safely guide them to the mount of translation. Our earnest prayer is daily offered to God that he may bless all of these scattered churches and isolated friends of Jesus, that they may be sustained amid the awful confusion of theological jargon and rushing currents of maddened strife, until the great Deliverer shall come and gather all the homeless, wandering ones to his fold of eternal peace and rest.

This valuable work, of which mention has been made in the Crisis, we now have a supply of, and will send to those who may order at the reduced price of $15.00 per copy, by express. We have them on rollers, and in book form, and can supply either way.

"HISTORY OF THE SECOND ADVENT MESSAGE, DOCTRINE, AND PEOPLE."

This work is the only production of the kind now published, designed to chronicle and compile in one volume the entire history of the great religious movement of the present generation upon the question of Christ's speedy second advent. It must have cost Bro. Wellcome a laborious and exhaustive effort to collect such an amount of fragmentary history of a scattered people, who had no design of giving the world their history, and therefore it was scattered like autumn leaves, and difficult to be collected.

Bro. W. has also taken upon himself a large debt in publishing this book, and would be relieved very much if all the brethren and friends who wish to purchase the work would do so as soon as convenient. The times are hard, which causes it to sell slow, and this leaves Bro. Wellcome with a heavy financial burden upon him. We have not had the opportunity to read the work, and cannot therefore judge of its historic merits.

WHAT THE POPE SAYS.

Pope Pius IX. gave an allocution Oct. 2nd, before the Roman Society of Catholic young men, in which he says, as reported in the "New York Catholic Review:"—

"Yes, the temporal power is indispensable to the sovereign pontiffs for the free exercise of their spiritual authority. The chief of the Church has need of a temporal authority in order to exercise that freedom of action which is necessary to him. Assuredly, if instead of the temporal power the successors of St. Peter had received that possessed by the Prince of Apostles, and of which we see so startling an illustration in the deaths of Ananias and Sapphira, he would possess so great an authority that he could easily dispense with any temporal power in order to govern freely the Church of God. But since God has disposed otherwise, and we have not this power which belonged to Peter, it is absolutely necessary that the sovereign pontiffs should, for the better directing of the Church of Christ, be subject to no human authority. It is essential, therefore, that they should have temporal power."

The question arises, How will the Pope obtain his "temporal power" again? Who will give it to him? The prospect is very small in favor of such a result. Every month the separation between ecclesiastical and political authority is growing wider, yet there seems to be a strong conviction in the Pope's mind, and that of his friends, that the Roman Pontiff will again stand at the head of the Church and State. As preparatory to this result, the following announcement appears:—

"The chief authorities of the Church have decided to hold a great International Catholic Congress in London, with the object of maintaining the doctrine of Papal infallibility, reasserting the Pope's right to temporal as well as spiritual power, and proclaiming the bounden duty of all Christians to return to their allegiance to Rome. It is stated that this determination is the result of direct instructions from the Vatican, and some of the highest dignitaries of the Church will attend the Congress. Archbishop Manning, in a speech at Westminster, admitted that the spiritual influence of the Pope had greatly increased since the loss of his temporalities. If arbitration was ever to supercede war, the Pope would be the only possible authorized arbitrator. The Catholic world, he added, was threatened with a controversy on all decrees of the Æcumenical Council. There was undoubtedly approaching one of the mightiest contests the religious world had ever seen, Therefore it was necessary to fearlessly assert, through the free press of England, the Pope's rights and his pretensions to world-wide allegiance."

This is quite significant of an earnest movement on the part of the Catholic power. It is quite evident that the Pope dare not run the risk of calling such a gathering at Rome, as there would be much danger that the Italians would interfere, and produce serious results.

The time appears to be at hand for new developments of a startling character. No effort, possible to be made, will be spared on the part of the Catholic church to obtain again the controlling power among the nations. Germany is her strongest political antagonist at present, and a more bitter conflict is evidently approaching, than has yet been witnessed between the two parties. We wait for the result with special interest. The closing scenes of earth's drama must be near at hand. Our King is coming soon.

We propose to preach a series of sermons on the prophecies at our Chapel, in Chelsea, for the next four or five Sundays, afternoons and evenings.

THE SANCTUARY.

It is claimed by the Seventh-day Adventists, that the sanctuary to be cleansed at the end of the 1300 days, mentioned in Dan. 8: 13, 14, is in heaven, and that the cleansing began in the autumn of A. D. 1844. If any one should ask why they thus believe, the answer would be, the information came through one of Mrs. E. G. White's visions.

The language of the prophet Daniel is as follows: "How long the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot?" It appears plain from this Scripture, that "the transgression of desolation" was the power that trod under foot "the sanctuary and the host." The term "host" is used to represent the church, or army of the Lord. The "sanctuary" very naturally would seem to mean the place that had been occupied by the church.

Has there been any "transgression of desolation" in heaven, treading under foot that holy place, where God resides, for eighteen hundred years or more, till the fall of 1844? The fact that any person had a vision teaching such absurdities, ought to satisfy every candid person, that the vision did not come from the Lord. Suppose it were true, as some teach, that when christians die, they go to heaven, did they go there "to be trodden under foot" till 1844? Observe, the treading down of the sanctuary and the host run parallel, and close at the same time. We press the question, who has been in heaven treading under foot God's "host," and holy place for the last eighteen hundred years? Can any one tell? How did "the transgression of desolation" enter heaven?

The first mention of the word sanctuary, in the Bible, occurs in Ex. 15: 17, and reads as follows: "Thou shalt bring them in, and plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance, in the place, O Lord, which thou hast made for thee to dwell in, in the sanctuary, O Lord, which thy hands have established." This is what Moses said to the Lord, when the children of Israel were being led through the wilderness to the promised land of Canaan. David says: "And he brought them to the border of his sanctuary, even to this mountain [Mt. Zion], which his right hand had purchased." Ps. 78: 54. This sanctuary is the one "to be trodden under foot" for the period named in Dan. 8: 14. Jerusalem was located in this sanctuary. Jesus said: "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Luke 21: 24. This treading down did not end in 1844, but still continues, and will till "the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." "The host," or church, is also still "trodden under foot" by a wicked world, and sneered at for her "blessed hope."

According to Mrs. White's visions, at the same time the 2300 days ended, in the autumn of 1844, the door of mercy was closed in heaven, and consequently there would be no more chance for sinners to obtain pardon. This position she and her supporters made very prominent. The vision about the "shut door" was just as true as the one about the sanctuary and host being in heaven that were "trodden under foot." It is as certain that such visions did not come from the Lord as that the Bible contains his revealed word. It is time for the disciples of Jesus to throw away such vagaries, and follow the plain teachings of the blessed Redeemer.

"THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES."

Under the above heading, the Central Baptist, published in St. Louis, Mo., gives the statement of facts connected with that denomination, which, no doubt, will be found equally true of all that are called evangelical. The statement is truly a gloomy one, and all may well inquire, "Whither are we tending?"

M. G.

"Never before could we count up so many vacant pulpits. Why are they vacant? Some of these churches which seem to be content in their orphanage, are able to pay handsome salaries, and for every one a suitable minister could be found and supported. Is this a good sign?

We never before could name so many ministers without charges. Some of them cannot travel about on candidating tours. Their means are too small. Some of them are well educated, and have a spotless record. What must be the state of religion in the country, and what the appreciation of the ministerial office when men of worth are left without employment?

There are not a few ministers, some laboring for their flocks, some retired for a season, who are suffering intense anxiety, if not actually suffering, for the necessaries of life, because their salaries are not paid. What shall we think of a church which will daily accept the labor of a pastor without remuneration? What must we think of a church which will make it uncomfortable for a pastor to remain with his people, and then neglect to pay him his just dues?

Never within our recollection have the different institutions and enterprises founded under the sanction of our denomination, felt so severely the pinches of poverty. In every part of the missionary field the laborers are suffering. Students of the ministry are compelled to leave their studies and seek secular employment, and teachers eminently qualified to give instruction in Biblical science, are compelled against their tastes and wishes to seek other fields where education is considered of higher value.

This is a sad picture; but a sadder one might be drawn without doing violence to truth. Whither are we tending?"

THE TRACT FUND.

The Advent Christian Publication Society, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

A LETTER.

To the Crisis and Messenger:—"This is not the time for true christian soldiers to be contending for sectarian names, or party interests, men, or measures; but to be one in Christ, watching carefully and listening attentively to every word that comes from his lips, lest we fail of the gift of God—eternal life." These are true words, and worthy to be repeated and re-read. I found most of the above quotation in a late Crisis. You see I have changed a few words to suit my mind. I have read your "Address to Mission Society" with interest, I think with more interest than any thing else in the Crisis for some time. I think it has the right spirit toward all who are striving to follow Christ according to their best knowledge and belief; and I long to see you who are now kindling toward your brother sectarians, burning with love toward them, and desiring to meet them more than half way, if by any means you may stir them up to the truth of Christ's coming, for coming he is as surely as the days go by.

Can you not by some means stir up the pure minds of the ministers of all denominations, that they may teach their people the glad tidings, and set their faces toward the heavens? I know that it is a great work, and I know how dull are the ears of nearly all the people; but this is but a sign of the fulfillment of the times of the Gentiles.

I have an idea that perhaps one or two well chosen tracts, for instance, those bearing upon future punishment, and the "Bible Doctrine of the Soul," sent to each Protestant minister in the United States, would set them to thinking in the right direction, so that when you come to any city in your mission work, you may find some among the ministry who will gladly receive you, and hear and help you. I cannot think that if the truth is rightly presented, and time given for thought, that many will not embrace it.

It seems to me that your mission is to the preachers who preach the Word rather than to the hearers. "Strengthen the things which remain" with your new light; search out those who are leaders of the blind, lest they all "fall into the ditch." You know that about the first work Christ did was to "dispute" with the Doctors in the temple. Let your first work be to dispute with the Doctors in the temple also.

Judicious writings presenting the truth fairly and plainly will meet with readers among the ministers, and readers will make inquiries, and inquirers will always welcome you and hear you; and so the good seed will take root and grow, and many shall bless you for the light you have brought them through Jesus Christ.

Hopefully yours, C. Sawyer.

FROM BRO. P. A. SMITH.

Bro Editors:—I received a letter to-day from a brother in South Carolina that I have not seen in six or seven years; and for the benefit of those who give money to print tracts for free distribution, that they may not get weary in well doing, I send the letter for publication in the Crisis.

Rev. P. A. Smith:—Dear Sir,—You will no doubt be somewhat surprised by receiving a letter from one whom you have long ago forgotten; but when I relate a certain circumstance, you will certainly remember me. You remember the spring you first commenced preaching in Jacksonville. You were working in your little house (lathing it, I think), when two young men called on you to procure some tracts; and after getting them you told them to read them and loan them to their friends. When about to start you grasped their hands and said, "If we meet no more, I hope to meet you in the kingdom."

Now, my friend, I am one of those men; and those words have been ringing in my ears ever since. I have read those tracts, and am convinced, and have convinced many more, that they present the true platform of redemption. But I have been placed away from you by returning home, so that I cannot commune with you; but those tracts have been my comfort. I have read my Bible, and I am able to converse upon it, and the different churches wish me to become a member, but I cannot agree with their doctrine. I know that I could do a good work, but I cannot preach what they do, and there is no church of your faith near, that I know of, where I could become a member.

I write to get your advice on the subject. What shall I do? There are hundreds that are of the faith whom I have conversed with, even preachers; and they all say I have a work to do, but I do not know how to commence it, so please give me your advice, and send me one or two Advent papers, and oblige yours truly in the faith,

BE PROMPT.

C. MENDENHALL.

In regard to our eternal interests it is written—"Now is the accepted time; behold now is the day of salvation." This shows the necessity for immediate action in a matter of vast importance to mankind.

The lesson which is herein contained should, we think, instruct in every branch of life. If embracing the present moment is advantageous in a spiritual work, it is also true of temporal undertakings. The old saying that "procrastination is the thief of time" has lost none of its cogency, though it has become hackneyed. It is a common failing among men to think—"there is time enough," not only in regard to religious matters, but in every phase of active life we find those who are too late or were "just going to." Many a battle which has ended in an inglorious defeat, might have resulted in victory but for neglecting to perform some duty or make some provision of defense in time.

Many a good thought, or a kind deed, has been left from time to time, until the opportunity for timely action has gone by. Acts of duty in every form are postponed until the last moment; everything then becomes bustle, excitement, and we see things done indecently, and out of order, just in reverse to the plan of God. A good motto is—"Never put off until to-morrow what you can do to-day." If we would do this, many unpleasant things would be avoided. Let us then be prompt in every department of life, in small things, as well as in great. Like all other habits, this of "putting off" will grow, making us late to church, to dinner, to the cars, to an appointment, or too late to secure a preacher because we did not write soon enough, or too late to save a debtor because we did not pay up. Christianity should make us careful in small things; therefore, if christians, let us be diligent in business, and as prompt in all things as possible.

Are any who read this putting off from time to time, the great work of being saved; if so, turn to him whom to know is life eternal. Seek peace and pardon at once, for soon this dispensation will end, mercy will have ceased to offer an escape, and you who all your life have had "time enough to be saved" will be excluded. May we have Divine help to employ every moment of time, which will soon end, and may we not fall into a delusion that in this life causes disappointment and chagrin, and in regard to salvation, death and destruction. May the words of the apostle ever be in our minds, helping us to do what we do quickly, knowing that though we now have the Gospel and the glorious plan of salvation fully at work, it will not always be so, for some time in the history of the world the door will shut.

When Jesus comes to complete the redemption of the faithful ones, and to visit the incorrigible with everlasting destruction, probation will end. Fellow workers, in view of these things, we must redouble our efforts for the salvation of our fellow mortals. Let us be up and doing, for "Behold NOW is the accepted time, behold NOW is the day of salvation. 2 Cor. 6: 2.

"Soon will the awful trumpet sound,
And call you to his bar;
His mercy knows th' appointed bound,
And yields to justice there."—Doddridge.

Correspondence.

From Bro. D. C. Thomas.

Dear Brn.:—God has been good to me in sparing my life till the present time. It makes my heart sad to think of the years I spent in the service of sin, but the Lord freely forgives me for Jesus' sake. By faith I look to Christ as my all-sufficient Savior. O, how sweetly he saves me just now, the condemnation all gone. I have peace in believing.

Poor wanderer, are you seeking rest for your sin-burdened heart? Hear the words of Jesus—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Careless sinner, we have nothing better to offer you. Your burdened heart and guilty conscience need this Jesus; no other name will suffice; your salvation cost blood, even the blood of Jesus. Do you realize it? Will you be fascinated with pleasure's cup? Will you rush madly on? Will you grieve the Holy Spirit? Will you spurn offered mercy? Pause, I entreat you. Ominous signs forewarn you that mercy lingers only till the heavens roll together as a scroll over your head. Nations overwhelmed in distress now startle the world sinking in perplexity. You step out of this into the pavilion of God, or perish while supplicating the rocks to fall on you. Repent and believe to-day. Come now, call on the name of the Lord, plant your feet on the Rock, seek and find, obey and live.

Kendall, N. Y.

From Bro. P. J. Smith.

Dear Brn. and Srs. in Christ:—We wish to say a word in behalf of the cause in Southbridge. A little company of believers assemble themselves together in the Town Hall (which we have free by warming and lighting it) three Sabbaths in a month, to hold up God's truth to the few who may come in to hear what this strange people have to say. Of late we have passed through some trials, for it looked doubtful about continuing our meetings, as we have been unable to secure preachers that were near by; and as we are so few, and are somewhat straitened for means, have felt careful about sending for preachers, as we might not do as well for them as they stand in need of. But we would say to dear brethren who preach the Word, when you are passing by or near this place, and have a word for us, we should be glad to see you here. There are good, self-denying brethren here, with whom you will find a pilgrim's home. We have had many precious seasons with brethren and sisters in our prayer meetings, and, were we ever called to leave the place could not forget them. Some of us have tarried here, feeling the Lord would have the people warned who otherwise would have gone elsewhere.

Now, dear brethren and sisters in the vicinity of Southbridge, come in and give us a lift. We need your help in singing, not having but two or three, and sometimes not one to sing. We need your prayers and your exhortations. We think we see of late more interest manifested to hear these truths than for some time. Shall they not have the privilege? Brethren, will you not put shoulder to the wheel and help push the car of salvation through here? Every influence that can be brought to bear against God's truth is thrown against us. It is not like places in the country where school-houses may be opened and the whole neighborhood turn out to hear; but in a place like this, where several of the leading denominations are represented, we have all these different sects to contend with. The doctrines we, as a people, advocate are unpopular, and always will be, judging from appearances.

Since the scales were removed from our eyes we have seen light in God's light, and have wanted others to see it. Brethren, shall our meetings stop? God forbid. Let us make them a subject of prayer, and God will bless us. We can afford to sacrifice everything for Christ; for if we have him, we have all. And you, dear brethren, who have the privilege of meeting every Sabbath with a good company of God's children in adjoining towns around us, will not some of you launch out and come over and help us? Shall there not be a few lamps burning here when Jesus comes? One brother came here from North Woodstock last Sabbath, and cheered us up wonderfully. Come again, brother. Pray for us, brethren, that some may be brought to Jesus here before it is too late. Your brother in the highways and hedges.

Southbridge, Mass., Nov. 18th.

From Sr. M. Pennington.

Dear Brn. and Srs. of like precious faith, as I have often been cheered by reading letters from some of Father's family, I would like to say to all afflicted ones, that I know what it is to pass through deep affliction; but, dear ones, let us lean on the strong arm of Jesus. I have ever found him a ready helper in time of trouble. I do not know as I ever realized his help as much before as I do at the present while passing through the deep waters. Two years ago I was called to mourn the loss of a dear mother, and while the wound her death had caused was yet fresh, news came to us that a dear and beloved brother was gone. He found a watery grave. God help the poor lonely wife, and little one that he has left behind. May she look to Jesus, and trust in Him who has said he would be a father to the fatherless, and the widow's God.

Dear brethren and sisters, hold on to Jesus; he is soon coming. I believe it with all my heart. Let us strive to be ready to meet him with joy when he shall come. It is now six years since I heard the blessed Word of God explained in its true sense, and as time passes, it looks plainer and plainer. Oh, I do bless God every day that he raised up noble and honest hearted men who are not ashamed of the truths of his blessed Word. To all such I would say, You will get your reward at the resurrection of the just. My husband and I are the only ones there are within thirteen miles of this place who are looking for the coming of Jesus. The people are mostly all opposed to our views, but bless God, I feel strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might, and know the truth will stand, while error will fall.

How I wish some good brother would come here, filled with the Spirit of God, and tell the people of their danger; for they seem to be asleep, and the judgment is at the door. God help them to see their danger before it is too late.

Dear brethren and sisters, do not forget to pray for the lonely one, and may God bless you all is the prayer of your sister in affliction.

Lower Brgyle, Nova Scotia.

I am trying to be in this way, for I see by the signs of the times that Jesus is soon coming to make up his jewels, and I want to be one of them, for I have loved him more than forty years. I expected to see him face to face more than thirty years ago, and although disappointed, still I am much delighted in his service. I hope the dear ones of like precious faith with me will take new courage, not in the least get weary in waiting, but cling to God and the blessed hope. Rejoice and be exceeding glad, for the great reward is awaiting you. O, let us mind the word of the Lord, children, more than the sayings of men of this world.

The Lord continue to bless and help you in the same, till He come whose right it is to reign, or you fall asleep in him. For the willing in his service eat the good of the land while here. Try it, ye unrenewed. Seek in Christ that peace with God which is like a river, and keep in love with him, and you will have cause to say the one half was never told you by the most eloquent tongue or described by the most able writer. O, make haste, and acquaint yourself with the great Father of all mercies and God of all comfort. No longer fight against your own best good. While time lingers improve it for your good, and the glory of God, and say to those affected by your influence, Follow me as I follow the requirements of God.

North Newburgh, Me.

From Sr. J. P. Hodgdon.

Dear waiting ones scattered over all lands: Some of you have been looking for the Master's return these many years; and to such I would say, Lift up your heads and rejoice, for your redemption draweth nigh. Our God will come and receive to himself his peculiar people, those that have washed their robes and made them white, and have not denied his name, and have ministered to his saints of such things as they had need; those Christ says shall walk with him in white, for they are worthy. Blessed promise!

Sinner, the door of mercy is still open, and the weary, sin-sick soul may come now and find pardon; but the time will surely come when the door of mercy will be forever closed, for our God hath spoken it. Just now whosoever will may come and have everlasting life. Is it not worth all else? Nothing is of any value compared to this great boon. Then come, sinner, and obtain it, and live forever.

Manchester, N. H.

The Word of God.—The word of God is a sure support for men in trouble. Man's word may be reasonable, wise, consoling, but it never forms a solid foundation in tribulations, like that which comes from heaven. Whatever else one may doubt, he may not doubt the immutable word of God. Whatever else may fail, this word will abide. Heaven and earth may pass away, but this word remaineth. No man who puts his trust in that word, and who shapes his life in filial obedience to it, need fear the opening future, either of this life, or to come.

REPORT OF WESLEY CONFERENCE.

On Thursday evening met, according to appointment, with a good congregation of brethren, and sisters, and friends, from the neighboring towns. I spoke from the last verse of the sixth chapter of Revelation. It appeared to have a lasting impression on the minds of the people. Met Friday morning for prayer and conference meeting. There was a great degree of interest manifested. Met again at two o'clock in the afternoon, when Bro. M. Corliss gave an able and cheering discourse. We also had preaching in the evening. On Saturday morning at nine o'clock we had a full house from the adjoining towns. Much of the power of God was manifested. At times there were three on their feet trying to speak. Bro. Corliss and myself kept our seats to give place for others until so moved upon by the Spirit of the Lord that we could not sit any longer. Met again in the afternoon. Preaching in the evening. By request, Bro. Corliss preached on the Rich Man and Lazarus.

Sunday morning met for prayer at nine o'clock. Met with brethren who had arrived from Machiasport, and had a blessed meeting. Preaching in the afternoon, after which Bro. Corliss buried five happy souls in baptism. Met again Sabbath evening to enjoy the last social meeting. Met around the Lord's table to celebrate the Last Supper. Had a large number around the table.

Thus ended our gospel feast. I think through the whole session there was a deep-toned experience. All treated us very kindly. The Conference in Wesley will not soon be forgotten. I tarried with the brethren one week after the Conference. Some that had been in a backslidden state for years were reclaimed, and the work was still progressing when I left. There were brethren and sisters from Machiasport, Cooper, Milltown, and Princeton. Bro. Corliss is a dear good brother, and has done a good work through that region. Yours looking for the blessed hope,

N. Smith.

Atwood. In St. Helena, Sept. 20th, 1874, of consumption of the bowels, Emily B. Atwood, aged forty years and ten months.

The daughter of Elijah and Alzina Spear, born and brought up in Canada, she was converted to God's truth in her youth, and baptized by Levi Dudley in the likeness of Christ's death, and has ever lived a life of usefulness in the church. A few years before her death she united with the Sabbath keepers, and truly believed they were sounding the third and last warning to a doomed world. She rejoiced in the present truth, believing it would be but a short time until Jesus would come to gather his saints, then she would meet all her loved friends to part no more. She leaves a kind husband, one child, and a lonely mother to weep; but, thank God, it is not without hope of meeting in the new earth. Brethren and sisters in the east, remember me in a foreign land.

Alzina Spear.

Trumbel. In Wilmot, N. H., Sept. 17th, 1874, my dear father, Andrew Trumbel, aged seventy-four years.

He believed in Christ, in the resurrection of the dead, and the restoration of the earth as the abode of the saints. Words of comfort were spoken by Bro. D E. Davis, from Job. 14: 14.

Weary, toil-worn pilgrim, sleep;
Thy work on earth is done;
Rest in the grave a little while,
Till Christ shall call you home.

We shall hear that song of triumph
He will sing upon that shore;
Saying, Jesus has redeemed me,
I shall suffer now no more.

Mrs. J. C. Bean.

Knapp. At North Stratford, N. H., Aug. 27th, Clarke Knapp, aged eighty-one years.

He had long been a believer in the soon coming of the Savior to give life and immortality to his faithful followers. He left an aged companion, who has been blind for many years, and three daughters, to mourn his loss. C. M.

Marshall. At North Stratford, N. H., Oct. 2d, Roberson S. Marshall, aged sixty-eight years.

For several years he had been a much interested reader of the Crisis, and believed the doctrines it advocates. He was respected by all who knew him, and beloved by many friends, whose hearts are filled with sorrow. C. M.

Funeral sermon by the writer, from 1 Thess. 4: 17,—"Wherefore comfort one another with these words." May God sanctify the deep affliction to the good of the parents, brothers and sisters.

F. A. Baker.

Ellis. In Hardwick, Oct. 25th, 1874, Arwin P., son of Abiathar P. and Mary P. Ellis, aged five months and ten days.

Our comfort is in Jesus. A. P. Ellis.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

KENTUCKY.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 18. By an explosion at the gas works at Mt. Sterling, Ky., this morning, two white men and one negro were instantly killed. Two buildings connected with the works were destroyed. The loss is not stated.

A serious accident occured on the Eastern Railroad yesterday near Newburyport. A collision between two freight trains resulted in the destruction of several freight cars and a valuable locomotive. No lives were lost, but engineer Henry Hill was severely injured.

ITEMS.

— Bishop Bedell, at a recent visitation to the Episcopal church in Delaware, O., preached a sermon condemning in very strong language the sinful amusements of the times, such as the modern theatre, the opera, public balls, and lascivious dances, gaming and horse-racing. The practice of introducing the last named species of gambling into our agricultural fairs received a severe rebuke.

— The Congregational churches in the United States number 3,325; members, 323,688. In other portions of North America they number 106 churches, 89 ministers, and 6,451 members—making a grand total on the American continent of 3,431 churches, 3,327 ministers, and 330,130 members.

— All the christian sects together comprise a membership of 330,000,000, while heathen worshipers count over 1,000,000,000. The Roman Catholic church embraces 195,000,000 followers, and the Buddhists 340,000,000; while all the Protestant denominations combined number only 68,139,000.

— The annual cost of tobacco used in the United States is estimated at 100,000,000; that of supporting the gospel ministry 12,000,000. Thus the vile weed taxes the American people eight times as much as they pay to sustain the preaching of the precious gospel.

— The Lancet says that the purposeless manner in which several horrid murders have lately been committed in England almost justifies the belief that some secret society for the destruction of human life has been formed. In the case of a young Frenchman, who was stabbed while walking near the Victoria Docks, the attempt was made to preserve life by the transfusion of blood from the arm of one of the hospital dressers. Though success was not attained, the attempt deserves a repetition.

Brethren from Concord and the upper part of the State coming to the meeting over the C. and M. R. R. will purchase tickets at the different stations at full fare, and receive at the Conference a free return pass. We shall make an effort to have fare reduced on the R. E. C. Cowles, President.
A. H. Briggs, Secretary.

To Vermonters.—At our annual conference at Bethel, the State Committee were urged to carry the gospel of the kingdom into every new field which opened a door, and especially to offer a week of labor for any five dollars pledged by an isolated brother or sister living in a new field. This was to encourage individual effort and sacrifice on the part of the isolated. We want to hear immediately from those places where labors are desired, that we may make due arrangements to meet the demands. If you are too poor to raise five dollars, and yet the door is open for a meeting, write us just the same as though you raised the money. Write to me at Waterbury, Vt., or to A. A. Hoyt, Plainfield, Vt. Write full particulars of circumstances, people, time, and place. Write soon.

H. F. Carpenter, President of Conference.

Protracted Meeting.—The Lord willing, there will be a protracted meeting held in Salisbury, N. H., at the Union meeting-house, commencing Friday, Nov. 27th, to continue over the following Sabbath, and longer if duty demands.

C. H. Fletcher.
D. F. Leavitt.

Having moved from Fonthill, Canada, Ont., to Utica, Mich., I would say to the brethren that I purpose, the coming winter (the Lord willing), to labor in the cause of my Master by holding forth the gospel of the coming kingdom, as the Lord may open the way. PAPAL ROME.

BY ELD. S. S. BREWER.

This work states the predictions concerning the Papacy in its glory, its gloom, and destruction, together with the most reliable points of history showing their fulfillment, with a graphic statement of her present dying state. The widowhood, the moaning over her fate, the dying struggles under her afflictions, losses, poverty, and burning, are brought out in present history. It is a work of value for its historical quotations, which will be wanted by all interested in this subject. Single copy 15 cts. by mail; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 for 100 by express. Ag't.

THE SEVEN CHURCHES.

"A pamphlet of 60 pages (by W. N. Pile), giving an exposition of Rev. 2: 3. The epistles to the 'seven churches of Asia' (the author thinks) are shown to have been prophetic of the seven periods of the gospel age, in addition to their local application. An epitome of church history, from the apostolic age to the present time, is given, leading to the conclusion that we are now in the closing part of the Laodicean period, near the end of the dispensation and the establishment of the kingdom of God upon the earth. Price, single copy, postpaid, 15 cts.; two copies, 25 cts."

An interesting Tract. We hope it may do much good. "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."

For sale at this Office. Ag't.

A NEW BOOK.

"THE BIBLE DOCTRINE OF THE SOUL."

An Answer to the Question: "Is the Popular Conception of the Soul that of Holy Scripture?"

BY CHAS. L. IVES, M. D.,

Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Yale College.

This is a pamphlet of 119 pages, in which the Author discusses the above question in an interesting and able manner,—showing the material nature of, the mortality and destiny of the Soul.—A future immortality to be the special portion of the Righteous,—What the Bible teaches as to the future of the Wicked,—The intermediate state,—The Resurrection,—That of the Righteous and of the Wicked, etc.

The Author claims that the doctrine set forth,—"Honors God, exalts the Bible, insures preaching of future punishment, subverts Universalism and Infidelity, errors of Romanism, of Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, helps in work of Missions, rightly values the body, brings Christian unity, and promotes personal holiness."

We are much pleased with this work. It ought to have a wide circulation. We have a good supply, and hope the friends will order freely. We will sell at the following prices:—25 cts. per copy; $2.00 per dozen, sent by mail; $15.00 per hundred, by express. Ag't.

IMPERFECT IN ORIGINAL

THE END IS NEAR.

Clouds of darkness gathering o'er us,
Awful tidings with them bear;
Scenes of misery spread before us—
Death, and pestilence, and war;
All, in one loud, piercing chorus,
Tell us that the end is near.
Hearts of men within them failing
For the coming woes they fear;
All their efforts unavailing—
No propitious signs appear;
Sin increasing, crime prevailing,
Tell us that the end is near.
Selfishness in all abounding;
Gold the idol everywhere,
Worshiped by a host, confounding
Gold for all that's good or fair;
Crowds the mammon-god surrounding,
Tell us that the end is near.
Formal godliness increasing,
Power denied, and forms held dear;
Christ and fashion coalescing,
Forming now the character;
Rites so popular and pleasing,
Tell us that the end is near.
Lawlessness so vastly spreading,
Void of reverence, awe, or fear;
Sacred things beneath it treading,
Stamped with God's own signature;
Never once his vengeance dreading,
Tell us that the end is near.
War, that heaviest curse of nations,
Running on its dread career;
While the mass its desolations
Listless or applauding hear;
War, with its abominations,
Tell us that the end is near.
Saints of God all evil hating,
Faithful to the name they bear,
For their coming Savior waiting,
To be caught up in the air;
Hence their rest and blessing dating,
Tell us that the end is near.
Sinner, wouldst thou in the glory
Of that "cloudless morning" share?
Wouldst thou have this hope before thee?
Wear the crown saints then will wear?
Oh! believe redemption's story;
Look to Christ! the end is near.

H. BRITTAIN.

III.—ITS POWERS.

"But there is another passage which, at first sight, seems to have a different bearing, and may be regarded as supporting the opposite view of the subject. It is the following:—'Why sayest thou, O Jacob, and speakest, O Israel, My way is hid from the Lord, and my judgment is passed over from my God? Hast thou not known, hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faint, and to them that have no might he increaseth strength. Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall; but they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint.' Isa. 40: 27–31. There are, perhaps, but few interpreters of Scripture who will take these words in any other than in a figurative or spiritual sense; and that they are designed to convey spiritual comfort and encouragement to those who may be 'weary and faint in their minds,' whenever and wherever they may be found, I have not a shadow of doubt; but I should fear to affirm positively that they end here, and that they have no future reference, and may not yet have a literal fulfillment. For if spiritual faintness and weariness be alone meant, why, it may be asked, are 'the youths' and 'young men' introduced? for they are as subject to weariness of this nature as are those more advanced in life. And yet, unless we are consistent and treat the whole passage in the same way, we shall find this confusion in its metaphors,—the bodily, or physical strength of even the young shall fail, but the spiritual strength of those who wait upon the Lord shall be renewed. But there can properly be neither comparison nor contrast between things that are of dissimilar natures.

"I confess, therefore, that, having regard to these reasons, I think there is room for doubt whether a spiritual sense is the only one which should be given to these words. It may, moreover, in the case be argued that they seem to promise more than is actually intended, or than will be done, and that they must therefore be taken with some reduction in the sense; but such, I believe, is never the case. God will exceed his promises, but never fall short of them. It must be admitted, however, that very much may be said on the other side, and many will doubtless argue that the passage is a purely figurative one, belonging to a large class in which we have very similar metaphors, and which must necessarily, or certainly, be interpreted figuratively and spiritually; e. g., 'He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust; his truth shall be thy shield and buckler.' Ps. 91: 40. 'For thus saith the Lord, Behold, he shall fly as an eagle, and shall spread his wings over Moab.' Jer. 48: 40. 'Their horses also are swifter than the leopards, and are more fierce than the evening wolves; and their horsemen shall spread themselves, and their horsemen shall come from far; they shall fly as the eagle that hasteth to eat.' Hab. 1: 8. 'Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bare you on eagles' wings and brought you unto myself.' Ex. 19: 4. 'Who satisfieth thy mouth with good things, so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's.' Ps. 103: 50.

"All these, and other similar passages, may, apparently, be fairly urged to show that the one in question is not designed to have any other than a spiritual sense, and that its expressions are figurative and poetical."

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.—The signs of the times are thrilling. Judgments, in the form of tremendous fires, floods, hurricanes, earthquakes, eruptions, famines, pestilences, disease, and plagues, are admonishing all to prepare for that day of which it is said, "It shall come as a destruction from the Almighty," that it is "great and very terrible," so great that "none is like it." Who will take warning and get ready? This is a question for each to answer for himself. A little time remains in which to work. Who will improve it? The trial of our faith is at hand; it is even here. Victories must be gained by us who have been dilatory that will cost a severe struggle. Shall we delay the entire consecration which we know we must make, if we ever see the inside of the city of God? God help us all to make it now.—Review and Herald.

—A proud heart and a lofty mountain are never fruitful.

RELIGION AND MONEY.

Though "the love of money is the root of all evil," the right use of it is a sign and a means of grace. So Jesus taught. "He that is faithful in the least," in money making and money spending, "is faithful also in much," i. e., in spiritual and eternal concerns. This is invariably true. The man who acts on christian principles in money matters will be true to God everywhere; and he who violates them in money making and money using, cannot be trusted anywhere. Praying, and singing, and public testimony are good evidences of piety, but making and using money for the glory of God is still better. Selfishness is dislodged from the heart with great difficulty, and clings to the citadel of greed, after every other section of the soul is surrendered. It is much easier to induce men to pray than to pay; to worship than to be honest; to sing psalms than to give alms; to draw nigh to God with their lips, than to consecrate to him their gold.

But where religion does sanctify a man's business, it becomes exceedingly precious. He makes money for Jesus, works, trades, invests, contrives, invents, toils as a christian duty, with christian motives. He no longer does up his religion in the church on Sunday, or in his closet, at the family altar, or in the prayer meeting, and then drops down to self-serving, mere drudgery for the flesh. All that he does is worship, and service to the Lord; he is God's steward, and cares for his farm, his shop, his merchandise, his person, his family, as a duty to his Lord. He has no exclusively secular work, never loses the inspiration of high, religious purposes, never leaves the presence of his God. This is a position of great strength and comfort, and the only true christian position. Not that he need think of God constantly, any more than he thinks of an earthly friend, or employer to whose interests he is devoted; but he has a controlling principle, a ruling motive, a general and well-settled purpose, which gives character to all subordinate purposes, and stimulates his faculties to fidelity in prosecuting them.

When a man does business under such an inspiration, he will be honest, because that will please God, and to cheat will offend him. Gain is a motive, but not his chief and controlling motive, and he will not sacrifice the latter for the former; no possible gain can compensate him for the loss of the divine favor, for the object for which he makes money is to please and honor God. The money is a means, and God wishes and works the end. Hence he is delivered from the temptation to wrong his neighbor, for in doing so he wrongs himself, and sins against his own cherished purposes still more.

There is a joy in business done in this spirit. Every hour of industry is worship. This high motive sweetens toil, lightens burdens, fills the soul with constant sunshine, and makes hardships, sufferings and disappointments a luxury. Sowing and reaping, building and trading, all the cares and trials of commerce, become means of grace, strengthening virtue, enlarging the heart, elevating the thoughts and feelings, and changing the whole man more and more into the image of the Lord. Intercourse even with vile men, conflict with deceivers and crafty tricksters, elevates, braces up, adds strength to moral convictions, and develops all christian graces. All things work together for good to men of such motives.

When men make money on christian principles, they will use it for good purposes. Temporal needs will not be neglected, but spiritual interests will be preferred, because God prefers them. . . . They will be eager to make money, that they may give largely to save sinners. They will be more enterprising, industrious and saving than other men, that they may have more to give to elevate the degraded and save the lost.

Such business men are always active and useful in the church. They keep the fires of devotion burning, are never cold, stupid and uninterested, never lukewarm or backslidden. They love the prayer meeting, and all who pray rejoice in their presence. Blessed is the man who makes and uses money rightly.—Baptist Union.

THE PERIL OF THE UNITED STATES.

Let us honestly admit the truth, and manfully apply the remedy. The peril in our American life is dishonesty. This produces the lack of confidence which is the root of panics. Slavery involved us in the flames of a civil war. Better it should have burned us to ashes than we should survive to perish hereafter in corruption. The urn is less offensive than the putrescence of the grave. Our very existence is at stake. American life presents an anomalous spectacle. We are socially pure and commercially depraved. Men, who are upright in their homes, will habitually, and knowingly, and systematically do wrong in their business. Nay, even churches, to draw crowds, rent pews and raise revenues, will resort not only to sensationalism in choir and pulpit, but make earth blush and heaven weep over tricks which are degrading, demoralizing, and insulting to all manliness and religion.

Nor is the malady confined only to men in distinguished position; it affects all classes of our republic, the tainted streams of the summit percolate the entire mountain. Of all the sins of humanity bribery is perhaps the meanest. Most other crimes are possible to a single transgressor. Here there must be two parties to the guilt, the man who gives and the man who takes. Both are debased. There may be daring in robbery, and courage in murder. The peculiarity of bribery is its own cowardice; it sneaks, it cringes, it hides, it winks, it twists, it wriggles, it skulks. It is not a lion roaring and rushing on its prey, but a serpent lurking in the grass to infuse its poison before crushing with its coils. A man who abuses his office, warps his judgments and twists his conscience for a bribe, sells his soul by his act, and ever after lives expecting a higher bidder for himself; and he is like nitroglycerine, dangerous to his purchasers.

Now, it is a painful and mortifying fact that nearly everything in our country, has, in some way, directly or indirectly, been controlled by bribes. Mechanics, overseers, builders, contractors, architects, have been bribed. Constables, policemen, collectors, inspectors, weighers, measurers, postmasters, have been bribed. Lawyers, doctors, chemists, surgeons, witnesses, have been bribed. Judges, jurors, legislators, governors have been bribed. We have sometimes feared that it would be difficult to place a stone, or a timber, or a lock, or a screw, or a nail, in your house, that has not somewhere in its passage felt the stain of a bribe. It is doubtful whether the food that supports our lives, or the coffins which will convey us to our grave, can wholly escape contamination. The consequence is disturbed faith in each other, and sometimes a distrust of our country and humanity, with a fear like a shadow that on all modern European and American societies is but the old doom of ancient Babylon and Rome.

Our faith alone saves us from despair. That is sufficient, but not here to be discussed. Certain it is that panics and other evils we have named are but eruptions of disease on the surface of the body politic. Our country from our civil war has been preparing for our recent commercial disaster. The timbers of the edifice of our public credit had been decaying long before the weakened structure was threatened with its crash. Many underlying sands must be washed away to make the mountain fall.—International Review.

TRUST.

I do not ask that God shall always make
My pathway light;
I only pray that he will hold my hand
Throughout the night.
I do not hope to have the thorns removed
That pierce my feet,
I only ask to find his blessed arms
My safe retreat.

GO IN FOR IT.

J. W. THOMAS.

"A more excellent way." 1 COR. 12: 31.

God is willing his children should have the best there is. We need not live on husks, when there is plenty of corn. We need not drink stagnant, filthy water, when there is a living spring. We need not wear rags, when there is a robe, clean and white. We need not go mourning all the day, when there is a new song we can sing. We need not walk in the shade, when there is an abundance of sunshine.

We need not reside in Grumbling Street, when there are plenty of empty tenements on Thanksgiving Street. All we have got to do is to move out. Get where the water runs, the corn grows, the sun shines, the air is sweet and heavenly, the garments, clean the music joyous, the surroundings cheerful. Put yourself where the light, joy, peace, and love of heaven will beam into your heart.

Why need you walk through the swamp, where the owls hoot, and the briers scratch you, when there is a "highway of holiness" where all is clear, the way straight, and the lark soaring heavenward fills the air with sweetest music? Why feed on the parched, burning hillside, when there are fertile meadows with fruits and flowers

"Down in that beautiful valley
Where grace crowns the meek and the lowly?"

Why fret, and grumble, and repine, and wish, and want, and groan, and pray and never have, when there is peace, and joy, and hope, and quiet, and rest, and salvation, full and free for all who will accept it? You have lived at a "poor dying rate" already too long; why not give all to Christ and live hereafter at a "living rate," and shout, and sing, and rejoice all the way to the kingdom of God, and let the world see that the religion of Jesus is the best thing there is under heaven?

There are a great many people trying to live religion when they have not got it. They know nothing about the light, and love, and power, and salvation of God. They are not rooted and grounded in the truth. They are not established in the faith. They are not led by the Spirit. They do not love plain, straight, old fashioned gospel preaching. They are mere hearers of the word, and not doers. They have got a religion of their own manufacture, and what they have got is more of a torment than a blessing. I know of some who would not go to church on the Sabbath if they should lose an earring.

It is no wonder that there are no more sinners converted. The gateway of Zion is blocked up with spiritual icebergs. It is hard work to pull sinners over dead professors.

Now there is a better way to live than this. It is God's way—a blessed, holy, happy, heavenly way—a way in which you may "rejoice with joy unspeakable, and full of glory." Many have found this better way. Doubts, and fears, and restlessness, have given way to calm trust, and sweet abiding peace in Jesus. They can recommend religion to others now, because they know its sweetness, its life, and power in their own salvation. There is no trouble about sinners being converted when the church is filled with the Holy Spirit.

Love is the melting, moving power. If we have nothing better than the world, then in vain do we invite others to come with us. It is useless to denounce the pleasures of sin, unless we can present something far superior. This we can do if Christ is in us the hope of glory. Jesus is what men need. Present him in all his attractive loveliness. Show what Jesus has done for you. Keep self out of sight, and Jesus always in view. He is the way,—the blessed, the excellent, the ever living way. Walk in him.

ALL SCRIPTURE DIVINELY INSPIRED.

T. FOOTE.

That all Scripture is given by Divine Inspiration, it seems to me ought to be steadfastly maintained. So far as this apostolic maxim is relinquished, we concede to infidels. Let it be acknowledged that any one passage is not given by Divine Inspiration, and we shall be required to concede that another is not, and then a third. Where shall we then stop, or how can we draw a line of distinction between what is given by Divine Inspiration, and what is not?

Many things recorded in the Scriptures were not, originally, spoken by Inspiration; for instance, what passed between the serpent and Eve, and Rebekah's proposal to Jacob to deceive his father and obtain the blessing. Many other instances might be mentioned.

But all these things were by Divine Inspiration written in the sacred Volume. Every one whom God employed in writing the Bible, or any part of it, was guided by the Holy Ghost what to say. So that not the speakers in every instance, but the writers, in all instances, and in all they wrote, were divinely inspired; and in this sense, "All Scripture is given by Inspiration of God."

POORLY ANCHORED.

Every evangelical denomination should look with alarm on any tendency to drift from its old anchorage. Popery is only the apostolic church drifted wholly away from the primitive faith,—drifted by a process so gradual that no one can tell when it ceases to be a church of Christ. The same is true of those oriental churches, including the Coptic and the Abysinian, which have long since hopelessly stranded, and have now only a name to live. It was by imperceptible drifting that the church of Luther has become so generally the main source of modern infidelity. It was by the same kind of drifting that the Congregationalism of our Puritan fathers came so near being lost in Unitarianism. In all drifting, the difference between points immediately successive is too slight to be noticed; and thus the drift may go on until one is startled at perceiving the distance between the present and the remoter past.

All evangelical denominations are spiritually one, whatever their diversity in polity, ordinance, or the minor articles of faith. They constitute the one holy, catholic, apostolic church. Their differences are far from being unimportant, but the fiercest sectarianism cannot so magnify them as to conceal, or greatly obscure, this grand, vital oneness in Christ. Hence, all are members of one body, and when one member suffers, all the members suffer with it. In other words, no denomination can drift away from Christ without, to a greater or less extent bearing the others along with it.

That there are signs of a general drift at the present day, can hardly be denied. There is a great deal of free religion in the church as well as outside of it. We have an orthodox liberalism, as well as a heterodox. Few, comparatively, of our modern church-members could intelligently answer the question, What are the doctrines of grace? Neither in the pulpit nor in christian experience do we know much about the terrors of the law. Our preaching is more sensational than the earlier; our piety more superficial; our motives and methods in christian activity more earthly; the distinction between the church and the world narrowed; and our concrete Christianity more of a respectable caste. Of course, we mean all this in a very general way; we could easily point out and expatiate on the very opposite of it all. Enough, however, is true of all denominations to indicate a common drift as painful as is patent.—Watchman and Reflector.

OBSOLETE CREEDS.

The Observer gently suggests that we have a "beam or a mote" in our eye, in regard to creeds. It hints that we are inconsistent in claiming large liberty in respect to them, and at the same time insist, as we do, upon strict adherence to the teachings of the Bible. We are not conscious of inconsistency, or error in the premises. Undoubtedly, as the Observer says, "It is demoralizing for preachers, who nominally assent to a creed, to treat any part of it as obsolete and of no effect," provided their assent is more than nominal. To accept a creed in detail, and then "treat any part of it as obsolete and of no effect," is using deceit which of course is demoralizing. But we did not suppose it was customary to impose, or accept creeds in that absolute manner. They are usually accepted as containing "for substance" the truth. Probably not one-fourth of the ministers or laymen of any evangelical denomination assent to every item in their respective creeds. Liberty of dissent is demanded and conceded, and ought to be. No creed is perfect, and to demand or render absolute assent to any one of them, is in itself "demoralizing." We cannot safely assume any of them to be free from error; with almost absolute certainty, we may assume that they all contain some error, some incorrect statement, some misconceptions. The Word of God only is perfect, man's interpretations and statements of its doctrines are not perfect.

Liberty of dissent is, and ought to be, allowed in every christian denomination. If every minister should leave the Presbyterian denomination who dissents from some one or more of the statements in its creed, "as obsolete and of no effect," very few would probably remain. The only question is as to the extent that dissent shall be allowed. We are in favor of large liberty in this respect, and of treating creeds as only very general statements of the doctrines to which the subscribers for substance adhere.

In the Baptist denomination there is general uniformity of doctrines, but no uniformity of creed. Every church adopts its own creed. Many churches have none at all, taking the Bible only as a sufficient guide. In a single association we may find a dozen different confessions of faith, agreeing in the great evangelical doctrines, but differing in detail. Does the history of the Baptist denomination indicate that this liberty is dangerous? Does this elasticity tend to perversion of truth, and lead to hurtful errors? Comparing Baptist history with that of other denominations, the testimony is favorable to liberty.

Our danger is not in "nominally" assenting to a creed and treating parts of it "as obsolete and of no effect," but rather in adhering to our creeds when they conflict with the Bible; in assuming that they are perfect and must be adhered to without variations; in exalting them to an equality with the Word of God, and often above it, in authority and binding force; in being restrained by them from correcting our errors and coming to an exact knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus; in making them our ultimate standard of faith, and assuming that any dissent from them is heresy; in preventing growth in grace and knowledge by denying the privilege of questioning the correctness of formal statements made by men two or three centuries ago; in excluding the light by forbidding free inquiry and diversity of opinions.

The Observer must have misunderstood us. Perhaps we were not clear in our statements. We see no inconsistency in allowing large liberty of opinion and diversity of belief, and insisting upon intense loyalty to the Scriptures. Perfect agreement in interpretation is not necessary to absolute union in making the Word of God our supreme and only rule of religious faith and practice. It is this loyalty to the Scriptures which needs cultivating and intensifying. It is lack of this which "demoralizes" ministers and churches, and not dissent from creeds. In the cultivation of this spirit, we pray that a holy rivalry may prevail among the sects. In humble concession that our creeds may be wrong, and strong faith that the Word of God is absolutely right, we should come to the feet of Jesus, as one family, fellowshipping all, and proscribing none who hunger for the truth. How can we come to unity in the faith in any other way? Our creeds are certainly not all perfect, it is much more likely that they are all faulty. We may safely wear them as loose garments, but should seek to be bound more and more closely by the Word of the Lord, and make that, and that only, our standard and guide.—Baptist Union.

SHOW ME THY WAY.—Exodus 33: 13.

O, show me now thy way!
My path is dark, I cannot see;
O, for a beam of light from thee!
Savior, dispense a cheering ray,
O, show me now thy way.

O, show me now thy way!
Dark clouds are rising, and I fear
As I behold them drawing near;
O Savior, drive these clouds away,
And show me now thy way!

O, show me now thy way!
Huge enemies beset me round,
I daily walk on hostile ground;
O, drive the monsters fierce away,
And show me now thy way!

O, show me now thy way!
My pathway steps are slow and weak,
Thy help, O Lord, I fain would seek:
Be thou my strong support and stay,
And show me now thy way.

O, show me now thy way!
Help me my duty to fulfill,
To know and do thy perfect will,
And grant that I may never stray,
Or wander from thy way.

THE ETERNAL ROCK.

What a commentary upon the word, "Whosoever falls on this stone shall be broken," is the whole history of the heresies of the church and the assaults of unbelief! Man after man, rich in gifts, endowed often with far larger and nobler faculties than the people who oppose him with indomitable perseverance, a martyr to his error, sets himself up against the truth that is sphered in Jesus Christ; and the great divine message simply goes on its way, and all the babblement and noise is like so many bats flying against a light, or the wild sea-birds that come sweeping up in the tempest and the night, against the hospitable Pharos that is upon the rock, and smite themselves dead against it. Sceptics well known in their generation, who made people's hearts tremble for the ark of God, what has become of them? Their books lie dusty and undisturbed on the top shelf of libraries; whilst there the Bible stands, with all the scribblings wiped off the page, as though they had never been! Opponents fire their small shot against the great Rock of Ages, and the little pellets fall flattened, and only scale off a bit of the moss that has gathered there!

My brother, let the history of the past, with other deeper thoughts, teach you and me a very calm and triumphant confidence about all that people say now-a-days; for all the modern opposition to the gospel will go as the past has done, and the newest systems which cut and carve at christianity, will go to the tomb where all the rest have gone, and dead old infidelities will rise up from their thrones, and say to the bran-new ones of this generation, when their day is worked out, "Ah, are ye also become like one of us?" "Whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken;" personally, he will be harmed; and his opinions, and his talk, and all his argumentation, will come to nothing, like the waves that break into impotent foam against the rocky cliffs.—Alex. McLaren.

LET GO AND TRUST.

It is an inspiring thought that we are addressing a multitude of readers who would know more of Christ. A languid desire is not sufficient. You must desire Jesus with an intensity which will make your soul a glowing furnace. You must reach the point where you will be willing to sell all, or hold all else cheap in comparison with the fulness of love to Christ. There are but two steps down into the pool, which makes whole—consecration and trust. Difficulties attend both steps. Some are in doubt whether they surrender all to the disposal of Christ. To such we say, consecrate all you know, and then all you do not know. This includes all your assetts. God asks no more than this. At this point many fail, through fear that they are to become paupers, when God means to endow them with untold wealth. What, let Christ become my Lord indeed! Is it safe to give him complete control over my heart, to be the sovereign of my will, the owner of all my property, while I sink down to a mere stewardship under him! Will he not take some cruel advantage of me? Will he not command me to hard service? Will not reproaches be heaped upon me, if I avow before man and angels that I am wholly Christ's? Very likely he will honor you by entrusting to you some difficult labor. If you go into partnership with him you must share all the reproach which comes upon the firm. You are advised beforehand that Jesus is an unpopular character in what is called the best society.

"If they have called the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more shall they call them of his household?" "The world will hate you, because he hateth me, but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." Hence there can be no perfect consecration without an accompanying perfect trust.

Some teach that consecration must be a perfect and distinct act, preceding faith as a distinct act. But we can never surrender to a person whom we do not trust. So that faith, simple faith, lies at the bottom of every step God-ward. We have recently seen a beautiful illustration of the need of trust, in order to complete consecration. A glass-worker makes a beautiful, yet exceedingly frail ornament, and brings it to his friend as a gift. He says, "This is yours; it is very delicate, and must be touched with the greatest care."

"But," says the friend, whose hand has been outstretched for several minutes, "why do you not let go your grasp and give it to me?"

'Oh, because I am afraid that you will take hold of it so strongly as to break it, and all my labor will be lost," replies the giver.

"But you say that it is mine; let it go, then, and if it is shattered in the transfer, the loss will be mine and not yours. If your gift of yourself to Christ, is in good faith, let yourself go; and if you break all to pieces, you have lost nothing; it is his loss. Perhaps he can make a better use of you, thus shattered, than he could with your wholeness. In his service a broken heart is a thousand times more efficient for good than a whole one.

"But," says one, "I cannot see God's hand; how then can I know that he accepts the offering of my heart?" You are not required to know, but to believe.

"But how can I believe, when I feel no change?" The ground of your faith must not be your feelings, but the Word of God. When you make a legal-tender of yourself to him, it is your duty to believe that he accepts you, according to his promise. This is simple faith. When it pleases God, he will give to your soul a joyful demonstration of your acceptance. This is knowledge. The divine order, both in nature and in grace, is faith, the stepping-stone to knowledge.

Prof. Morse believed it possible to communicate intelligence by electro magnetism, before he knew the fact. His faith led to his knowledge. You must believe Jesus Christ is able to save you unto the uttermost, before you can "know the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe." If you attempt to reverse the process, you will grope in Egyptian darkness evermore. If the blessing of conscious completeness in Christ, and the abiding comforter and sanctifier, is by faith only, why not now? To-day is the day of salvation. Full salvation surrounds you like a shoreless ocean. Appropriate to your utmost capacity to-day. You will gain nothing by waiting. There is no lack for God to supplement, and there is no particular in which you can improve yourself, and make yourself more acceptable to him.

Neither sanctification nor justification are by works. Works involve the element of time; but faith says, "Now, this instant, thou, O, God, dost receive my offering."

"But," says doubt, "suppose that I feel just the same after I thus believe, what then?"

Keep on believing the promise, and insisting that God is true. He may delay for days and weeks the declaration of your complete acceptance, in order to develop and test your faith. The longer the delay, if you trust unwaveringly, the more marvelous the manifestation of Christ to your soul, as your complete Savior, when the Comforter takes the things of Christ and shows them unto you. The Syrophenician woman lost nothing by pressing her suit against chilling discouragements. Faint not. Just here thousands have failed. They did not grasp the prize, because they did not persistently believe.

Others fail through a subtle legality. They trust in their consecration, and not in Jesus only. They take a commercial view of the matter, and present the offering of their hearts, as the meritorious ground of receiving the fulness of the Spirit. This is a piece of folly and presumption, which finds its parallel in the way-side beggar, who insists that the act of stretching out his upturned palm, earns the alms which the passer-by may give. After you have laid your gift upon the altar, look away, from the gift that is now God's, towards the skies, whence the fire shall come down to consume your sacrifice in token of its acceptance. Thus in all our approaches to God, there are three requisitions—faith, faith, faith. "For he that cometh to God, must believe that he is, and that he is the rewarder of them that diligently seek him."

Others fail because of their seeking the gift, and not the Giver. You must desire Jesus only. You must pray this prayer, "Lord Jesus, glorify thyself in me." When you are seeking for some delicious ecstasy, you are not seeking to glorify Christ to the utmost of your ability. There must be an absolute resignation of self and selfish desires, in order to be a perfect believer.—The Contributor.

EVERLASTING PUNISHMENT.

C. S. BRANCH.

"And these shall go away into everlasting punishment. but the righteous into life eternal."—MATT. 25: 42.

Everlasting and eternal are coequal. The life of the righteous and the punishment of the wicked will run parallel through the age of a never ending eternity. We have here set forth on one hand life for the righteous, and punishment on the other hand for the wicked; but not the nature of the punishment. Many suppose that punishment cannot exist without a conscious subject for it to act upon; but in matters of fact and law such is not the case with the law of the land or the law of God. This State (Conn) punished Wilson about three years ago for killing the Warden of Weathersfield prison. The sentence read that he should hang by the neck until he was dead, dead. That is the punishment in this state for murder. The following is an account of the punishment of death inflicted upon a poor woman in England for stealing seven or eight shillings worth of linen.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

About 1807 a poor woman with two children, one at the breast, stole from inside a shop door a piece of linen worth some seven or eight shillings. She, however, had not proceeded far when she repented of her crime, and was returning to the shop when she was arrested. She was tried at the Old Bailey, convicted, and condemned to death. The jury and the prosecutor unanimously recommended the woman to mercy, on account of her husband having been pressed as a sailor, her starving condition at the time, and her previous unblemished character. But all in vain. The Judge refused to indorse the application, and the woman was executed at Tyburn, the child being taken from her breast at the gallows. In the minds of a large majority of the public this execution created great indignation, and a bill was brought into Parliament to abolish the punishment of death for stealing in a shop to the value of five shillings. This bill was at first thrown out in the House of Peers, the Judges being against it. The bill subsequently passed into law. On the introduction into the House of Lords of a bill for the abolition of the punishment of death for stealing in a dwelling-house to the value of forty shillings, the majority of the Judges were against it. Lord Ellenborough was particularly energetic in his opposition, arguing, as the law stood, it worked well, and why then should it be altered. One of the Peers was so struck with the validity of the learned Lord's arguments that he said, "We shall not be able to place our heads with safety on our pillows if that bill passes into law!" In the 130 years from 1700 to 1829, for offenses against the Bank Act alone, 629 men were capitally convicted and 1,161 were transported; yet, till public opinion became too strong to be disregarded, the Judges offered little opposition to such atrocious cruelty.—The Saturday Journal.

But this is not everlasting punishment; for both Wilson and the woman had a promise of a resurrection to life. If the woman should be raised now, it would only be about sixty-eight years of punishment; but, after she shall have a resurrection to life, if it should be found that her sins are not repented of, she will have to go away into everlasting punishment, from which there will never be a resurrection; for the wages of sin is death, and eternal life is a gift, through Christ, to the righteous alone; and death (not sin) is the pay or wages for sin. HOME AND HEALTH.

EVILS OF TOBACCO USING.

In France, the tobacco trade is made a government monopoly; and as long ago as 1844 there were 10,000 officials employed in the management of it, or receiving pensions as retired officers. Holland has 1,000,000 sallow, sickly individuals engaged in the manufacture of tobacco; and the United States employs 40,000 persons in manufacturing the weed, which exhausted four hundred thousand acres of the richest land in its cultivation.

What eminent men think about tobacco.

In order to assure the reader that an abundance of the most reliable authority is not wanting to support the propositions advanced, the remainder of this article is devoted to quotations and citations of the opinions of eminent medical and other professional men.

Says Dr. Pratt, "Surely, If the dictates of reason were allowed to prevail, an article so injurious to the health, and so offensive in all its forms and modes of employment, would speedily be banished from common use."

Sir Benjamin C. Brodie, President of the Royal Society, says that one of the worst cases of neuralgia he ever saw was caused by tobacco-using, and ceased with the habit. The same author says that the habit produces amaurosis, and mentions cases in which the patient recovered upon discontinuing the use of tobacco.

Dr. Rush said, in reference to tobacco, "It produces dyspepsia." "It imparts to the complexion a disagreeable, dusky color." . . .

Professor Lizars, in an excellent work on tobacco, says that its constitutional effects are "numerous and varied, consisting of giddiness, sickness, vomiting, dyspepsia, vitiated taste of the mouth, loose bowels, diseased liver, congestion of the brain, apoplexy, palsy, mania, loss of memory, amaurosis, deafness, nervousness, emasculation, and cowardice."

Dr. Johnson adds the following as local diseases resulting from tobacco-using: "Ulceration of the lips (not unfrequently of a syphilitic character), ulceration of the gums, cheeks, mucous membrane of the mouth, throat, tonsils, etc." Dr. Johnson again says, "What is the testimony of facts? Why, for one inveterate smoker who will bear testimony favorable to the practice, ninety-nine such, of the candid of these, are found to declare their belief that this practice is injurious."

An able writer in the Quarterly Journal of Science says in reference to tobacco: "Tobacco belongs to the class of narcotic and exciting substances, and has no food value. Stimulation means abstracted, not added, force. It involves the narcotic paralysis of a portion of the functions, the activity of which is essential to healthy life."

Scores of other great names might be added to the eminent medical authorities already quoted; but our space will only allow the addition of the following facts with reference to how tobacco was regarded in its early history:

When first introduced into Russia, tobacco-using was punished by cutting off the nose.

In Turkey it was made a capital offence, as also in Persia. A Turk found smoking in Constantinople was led through the city with his nose transfixed by his pipe. Pope Urban fulminated a bull of excommunication against it. It was punished as an evil crime in Switzerland.

In 1616, King James of England published a "Counterblast to Tobacco," in which he says of the habit, "A custom loathsome to the eye, hateful to the nose, harmful to the brain, dangerous to the lungs, and in the black, stinking fume thereof, nearest resembling the horrible Stygian smoke of the pit that is bottomless.—Health Reformer.

IMPURITIES IN WELL WATER.—A case which has recently occurred at South Norwalk, Conn., where three persons in one family died in consequence of drinking water from a well tainted by drippings from a cesspool, ought to be a warning to all persons to beware of the typhoid poison sure to be found in wells near dwellings, if any of the house drainage can percolate to them. The gelatinous matter often found upon the stones of a well is poison to the human system. Wholesome water is always odorless and colorless. To test its purity thoroughly place in it a few grains of lump sugar and expose it stopped to sunlight in a window. Should the water become turbid soon after an exposure of eight or ten days, it is a proof that it has been contaminated by some kind of sewerage. If it remains perfectly clear, it is pure and safe. Such an experiment as this costs nothing to make, and it would be well if all families who have the faintest reason to suspect that their drinking water is impure would take this way to ascertain the truth of the matter, in order that they may provide in time against the insidious and deadly poison contained in all water contaminated with sewerage.

LORD, I COME!

Dearest Lord, I come, now trembling,
Quivering in my anguish keen;
Balm of Gilead! Great Physician!
Wilt thou kindly intervene?

Lord, I come to thee for healing,
Let the fiery furnace glow;
Take away my sins, and wash me
In thy cleansing fountain's flow.

Now to thee I come, receiving
All the riches of thy grace;
Here's my heart, I come believing
Thou wilt show a smiling face.

Yes, I come, I come, rejoicing,
I have sought the better part;
Hear my prayer, oh, blessed Savior,
Dwell thou ever in my heart.

Blessed Savior, I come, praying
Earth's dark night may soon be o'er;
Then in that eternal morrow,
Let me walk the golden shore.

I now come, most humbly trusting,
None can take me from thy hand;
Rock of Ages! Sure Foundation!
On thee let me ever stand.

WHEN WAS THE DESOLATING ABOMINATION OF DAN. 12 SET UP?

S. K. BALDWIN.

"And from the time that the daily shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days. Blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days."

The angel had already predicted (chap. 11: 31) that by force of arms the daily should be taken away, and the desolating abomination placed; and he here declares that the period or periods which he gives, should begin with that event. This desolating power, which, when placed or set up, would become so formidable as to "wear out the saints of the most High," is well understood to represent that of a powerful, though corrupt church (the Papal), in union with a strong government, in order to carry out its purposes; for it is spoken of as a horn, or kingdom, in which were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth that spoke great things and blasphemies.

Concerning the rise and progress of this little horn power, the prophet saw that "before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up by the roots." So then, if we can find in authentic history the particular time when the three horns were plucked up by the roots, or subdued, we may understand that that was the time when the abomination that maketh desolate was set up, and consequently when the 1335 days (years) began, and when they will end; for the power that was to receive "his seat and great authority" (Rev. 13: 2), or be "set up," was when the three horns should be plucked up by the roots, and not until then, as far as we can learn from the Word of the Lord.

The next thing to inquire for is what kingdoms are represented by the three horns which were to be plucked up or taken away, for the placing of this power in his predicted seat? We presume that it is generally and correctly understood that they were the three of the ten barbarian kingdoms which longest resisted the Roman and the Catholic power; and that the last one of the three was the Ostrogothic kingdom in Italy.

We would next inquire what power the angel seemed to designate as the one which should pluck up the Gothic kingdom, as standing in the way of its aiding and defending the Papal church, and for the purpose of fully relieving the pope and bishops from all allegiance to the so-called barbarians. When the angel said (Dan. 11: 31)—"And arms shall stand on his part, and they shall take away the daily . . . and shall place the abomination that maketh desolate," etc., he must have included the idea that the same arms that were to take away the daily, would also place the desolator in his seat. And did not Justinian, the emperor of Eastern Rome, send his armies and uproot the Gothic kingdom, and thereby leave the Roman ecclesiastical hierarchy without a rival power in Rome or Italy? And was not the prophecy thus clearly fulfilled? For the work of subjugation was begun and carried on confessedly in the interest and for the benefit of the church, and so sacred was the work regarded that Justinian, the history says, would allow no one to enter the army who was not a Catholic. How can we consistently wish for a more positive fulfillment?

Paul also says (2 Thess. 2: 9, 7)—"And now ye know what withholdeth that he might be revealed in his time. For the mystery of iniquity doth already work, only he who now letteth [or hindereth] will let until he be taken out of the way. And then shall that wicked be revealed," etc. It has long been the belief, indeed it was the belief of the early fathers that the power that would hold in check or hinder the usurpation and tyranny that would arise in the church as the result of the apostasy, was the Roman empire. It is now evident that this was the fact. After the empire fell, Italy was ruled for a while by the Heruli, then for more than forty years by the Gothic kings, who pursued the same policy towards the church that the empire had. But as the church had now greatly increased in numbers, and had become so corrupt as to desire an alliance with the kings of the earth to protect her and subdue her opposers—the pope having already sought the aid of the Eastern emperor to this end, and the Catholic emperor had avowed his purpose to deliver and defend the church; what could possibly stand in the way, or hinder the consummation, but the Gothic power that still held Italy, and consequently Rome? Its overthrow, therefore was determined on.

Then we conclude that it was the Greek nation, or Eastern Rome, with Justinian at its head, that the Holy Spirit did designate as the identical power that should do this work and fulfill these predictions; for in the history of those times, as given by Gibbon and others, we find that Justinian began the conquest of Italy in A. D. 535, by Belisarius, and that after a warfare of several years, with various success, it was finally completed in 540.

If an event given in prophecy from which a period is made to begin, must fully transpire, or be completed before the period can commence, and if in the year 540 the plucking up of the Gothic kingdom was completed, then the 1335 years must have commenced in that year, and consequently we can see where they will end.

That this was the end of the Gothic kingdom we have good reason to believe. They had lost their capitol with its spoils and trophies, of which Gibbon says—"Justinian deposited in the Byzantine palace the treasures of the Gothic monarchy." They had also lost their king, and the "flower of the Gothic youth was selected for the service of the emperor," and they, with Vitiges the king, were carried captive by Belisarius to Constantinople, in the year 540. This without doubt was the end of the Gothic kingdom in Italy. And that which followed through Totila and Teias must have been in rebellion against Justinian, for he must have been at that time the lawful ruler of the kingdom of Italy; for he had plucked up the Gothic horn or kingdom, and had given Rome to the Pope for his seat according to the prediction.

Gibbon says—"Totila, the nephew of the late king . . . reviewed the national force of five thousand soldiers, and generously undertook the restoration of the kingdom of Italy." (Chap. 43). In these few words we have conclusive evidence that the Gothic kingdom had expired. For how could it be restored if it had not been overthrown? But as he did not succeed, it is evident that it never was restored; and though he, and afterward Teias, engaged in this work, and for several years resisted the authority of the emperor, yet they failed in their attempts, lost their labor, and were slain in battle. Thus the last of the three kingdoms that were to be plucked up, was so completely uprooted as to be without a capitol, or permanent fortress, or legal king of Gothic descent, or population to furnish supplies, or from which to raise recruits sufficient to establish themselves again in Italy.

After relating the disposal of the Gothic youth as before mentioned, Gibbon says (Chap. 41)—"The remainder of the people were dismissed to their peaceful habitations in the southern provinces, and a colony of Italians were invited to replenish the depopulated city. The submission of the capital was imitated in the towns and villages of Italy, which had not been subdued, or even visited, by the Romans; and the independent Goths, who remained in Pavia and Verona, were ambitious only to become the subjects of Belisarius." By this we see that Ravenna, the capital, and all Italy, was subject to Belisarius, and if he had been permitted to remain there, no opposition would have arisen against him to much extent. Of the king's surrender Gibbon says—"The emperor received, with honorable courtesy, both Vitiges and his more noble consort; and as the king of the Goths conformed to the Athanasian faith, he obtained, with a rich inheritance of lands in Asia, the rank of senator and patrician." If conquest on one part, and full submission on the other, gives right and title to a kingdom, then surely the Gothic kingdom of Italy had fairly passed into the hands of the emperor of Eastern Rome.

This work must have been accomplished in 540. Even though Ravenna was taken toward the close of 539, as Gibbon supposes from a circumstance given by one historian, though it does not prove it (Page and others say it was in 540), it is probable that the final settlement of the matter would not be made until Vitiges was delivered to Justinian in 540, when the negotiatians would be closed up, and all the documents signed, sealed, and delivered; by which transaction Vitiges gave up his kingdom into the hands of Justinian, who now became the sole ruler of Italy, there being no other lawful king over them. Putnam's dates, p. 67, says—"540, Vitiges at Ravenna . . . annexed to the Eastern empire." Gosselyn says (Eccl. His. 16th, Cent.), that in 540 Justinian issued his edict requiring all governors in the empire to declare under oath that they were in communion with the Catholic church, and that they would never do anything against her interests.

Justinian, having through the skill of Belisarius conquered and dispersed a "military force of two hundred thousand barbarians, magnificently equipped with horses and men," in order to preserve his authority, and maintain his Italian conquests (having recalled Belisarius to the East), placed eleven generals of equal rank in as many of the principal cities. This must have been an ample guard if they had been faithful to their trust; but through their negligence, Totilla and his followers were permitted to rise in rebellion against the emperor and the officers, indulging in luxury, and accusing each other of the blame and disgrace, made no efforts "to crush the feeble and disunited Goths till they were roused to action by the progress of Totilla and the reproaches of Justinan.

In their rebellious raids the Goths twice entered Rome, and occupied it about four years during the two terms. But there appears to have been no attack upon the church or its institutions; the Pope was at liberty to exercise his ecclesiastical authority, and that was not limited to Rome or to Italy. His power and authority to manage the Roman church extended over all parts of the empire, east, and west, and his bishops and clergy were prepared to perform his work at home and abroad; so that the rebellion could not have been any reason why the Pope had not already been placed in his predicted seat—though of course he was greatly annoyed by this state of things, and after enduring it for a considerable time, he made a journey to Constantinople to entreat the emperor to more energetic measures. In this mission he was successful, and the rebellion was soon after completely suppressed.

Thus the hindrance to the full union or marriage of an apostate church with the kings of the earth was removed; this union of the two constituting the beast like a leopard, etc., of Rev. 13, to whom it was given to make war with and overcome the saints, and thenceforth for ages this church was defended, and her doctrines enforced by the civil arm; and flame, sword, captivity and spoil, was the portion of the many millions of christians who refused her authority, or to accept her doctrines.

From the foregoing testimony, it is evident that the especial time at which the work of taking away or removing the continual, or last hindering power, and the setting up of the desolating power, was the subjugation of Italy by Justinian in 540. We think the wonderful numberer pointed to the time and event when he, under the most solemn and sacred oath, said—"From the time that the daily shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days,"—and then a time of waiting until coming "to the thousand three hundred five and thirty days."

THE BEREAN SPIRIT.

J. E. CLARK.

I would direct attention to a little good advice given by the apostle John, 4: 1, of his first epistle: "Believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God, because many false prophets are gone out into the world." How are we to try the spirits? Let Paul answer:—"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." This advice is also given by our Lord,—"Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me." When Paul visited Thessalonica he met a malicious set of his countrymen, who believed not the gospel, but rejected the teachings of God's servant, and succeeded in driving him out of their city; and he went to a neighboring town of Berea, to preach the gospel there. The people of Berea were more noble than those of Thessalonica. Why? Because they received the word with all readiness of mind, and, above all, searched the Scriptures daily, to see whether these things were so. They acted very wisely by endeavoring to prove all things, in order to be able to hold fast that which was good. This is indeed a noble spirit. And the result was, many of them believed, of honorable women, and of men not a few. Men and women cannot advance to the truth, nor in the truth, unless they have this mind of the noble Bereans.

There is a tendency in the human mind to reject anything that is new, pertaining to divine truth, and to rest satisfied with things as they are; to think we have arrived at a complete attainment of the truth in all its aspects, beyond which there is nothing but heresy. And we are apt to regard with distrust all those who present something different from what we have been taught; and especially those persons who like Paul turn the world upside down. The question no doubt arose in their minds—"What business has this fellow to subvert our existing institutions, and change the whole current of our religious life?" So it was in Paul's day, and so it has been ever since, from age to age.

God's great truth must be preached, and it will be preached, as adapted to each age of the world. This requires progress. The trouble is, ofttimes, men do not stop to compare the teachings or spirits that are out in the world with the Word of the Lord. The doctrine of the Advent is often rejected by men, without even searching the Scriptures to see if these things are so. Human nature is about the same to-day as it was back in Paul's time. The great masses are possessed of the narrow-minded spirit of the Thessalonica Jews, and very much in need of the Berean spirit. We are not to swallow everything that comes along, but, first, search the Scriptures to see if the new doctrine is to be found in the Word of God; if not, then we are justified in rejecting it as spurious. The spirit of Thessalonica seems to be almost universal. It is manifested in every sect. Let the truth of God in its purity be preached among them, and woe to him who dares to introduce it. "Have any of the rulers believed on him?" No! "Then we shall not." "Keep quiet." "Do not disturb our views and religion." "We do not wish to advance." "It is good enough as it is." "We have sat under these teachings for years, and we do not desire anything different." "No disturber of our peace can be allowed to come among us with his new and strange doctrines."

But the man whom God has sent forth to the world with his burning message of solemn truth, feels it his duty to present it to all classes of mankind. The church of God is to contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints. It is not, What does this or that man believe? but, What do the Scriptures teach? What does God say? Let us strive, by searching the Scriptures, to be scripturally and doctrinally perfect. Our duty is to sit at Jesus' feet, and learn of him, and thus know of the doctrine.

Let us all try the spirits by the infallible test, and follow the example of the noble Bereans, and search the Scriptures daily, because many false prophets (teachers) are gone out into the world.

THE TRUE WAY TO FORGIVE.

R. A. BOYNTON.

To forgive from the heart, freely and cheerfully, all who injure or offend us is a very difficult, and yet a very important christian duty; for the Lord Jesus says, "If ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your father forgive your trespasses." "If we neglect to perform this duty faithfully, it will prove a serious detriment to our growth in grace, and a great hindrance to our usefulness.

Three questions naturally arise in regard to the duty of forgiveness. When ought we to forgive; how ought we to forgive; and how can we forgive those who wrong us? In reply to the first question I should say, we ought to forgive them immediately, as soon as the wrong is done. But perhaps some will say we are not to forgive them until they repent and make confession; for Christ says, "If thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him; and if he repent, forgive him." I understand from this that we are not to offer forgiveness to them, until they ask for it; and surely they would not thank us to tell them we forgave them, before they were willing to acknowledge that they had done any wrong. Jesus tells us to love our enemies, bless them that curse us, do good to them that hate us, and pray for them which despitefully use us, and persecute us. I do not see how it is possible for us to love and bless them, do good to them, and pray for them, as long as we possess an unforgiving spirit towards them. Therefore I believe it is our duty to forgive in our hearts all who injure us, whether they repent or not. Jesus says, "And when ye stand praying, forgive, if ye have aught against any; that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses."

To the second question I would reply that we are to forgive them as we wish to be forgiven; for we are taught to pray to our heavenly Father to forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors." We should remember this if we feel like saying, "I'll forgive, but I'll never forget." That is not the way we wish to be forgiven. The same full, free, hearty forgiveness which we wish to receive from our heavenly Father, and from all to whom we give offense, we should cheerfully grant to all who wrong or grieve us.

In regard to the last question, how can we perform this difficult duty? we must earnestly pray God to help us. In the first place we must desire to do it, for it is one of God's requirements. And while we pray for this grace to be given us, let us be sure to treat those who have offended us just as though we had forgiven them and loved them; just as we really desire to forgive and love them. If we keep trying in this way, we shall soon find that we are making rapid progress. We should also remember the danger of those who willfully and persistently do wrong. David says his steps had well nigh slipped because of the prosperity of the wicked. But when he entered the sanctuary of God he understood their end, and saw that they were in slippery places. When a man sees his enemy in mortal danger, how quickly his hatred gives place to pity. And if those who offend us are christians, we should recollect that their sins grieve and trouble them more than they do us; and we ought to help them to overcome them. We should bear in mind also that we often need forgiveness of our best friends. When we learn to forgive others as we wish to be forgiven, we shall enjoy a sweet feeling of rest and peace which we could not otherwise attain to.

EARNESTNESS.

L. B. WEAVER.

As I look abroad over this earth, and see what a dreadful state it is now in, my heart sinks within me, and I am led to exclaim, as did our blessed Savior, "Nevertheless, when the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?" O, I am surprised to see so little engagedness in the things of God. We do not expect the world will be engaged in the things that pertain to godliness; but I do feel as if I could hardly keep still as I lie here in my bed, suffering all the time as I do, and know there is so little true heartedness in the work of God. O my God, do arouse thy professed church! Do awaken them to a sense of their condition ere the day of mercy is closed. No doubt these lukewarm professors think they are all ready to meet Jesus,—think they are safe within the fold. I weep to think of the different ways Satan has to try to allure the unguarded professor from the right track. How often he sends his agents along with some foolish trap to catch them. Sometimes it is in the way of something that is going to make other people better. If they will do so and so, their influence over others will be so much better; they can make better society; they can do more good; they ought not to be so singular; they ought to belong to some of their societies; it would be more for their good, and the good of others. And he often succeeds in drawing the people right into his meshes; and before they are aware of it they are farther away from God than they had any idea they could be.

I tell you, dear ones, we are in the very last days. Perils thicken around us, and everything that can be brought to try God's children will come. But let us cling close to Jesus,—get so near to him that nothing can draw us from his dear loving arms. Now is the time, if ever, to be earnest. O, my heart is in the work, and I can never be satisfied with half-hearted, cold religion. I mean to be wholly the Lord's. I have consecrated my whole being to his service, and I know he accepts me. If there is anything about me that is not all right, God knows to-day I want it made all right with Jesus. I do want the kingdom. Let the way for me to be brought through to the kingdom be ever so hard, any way, Lord, is the language of my heart. Jesus is coming, coming soon. Eternal life is soon to be gained or lost. Do get ready and keep ready. With tears I have written this, and may God bless it to both reader and writer is my earnest prayer.

North Dana, Mass.

HOLD UP THE STANDARD.

At the close of his comments on 1 Cor. 15, Dr. Adam Clarke remarks as follows:—"The reader is probably amazed at the paucity of large stars in the firmament of heaven! Will he permit me to carry his mind a little farther, and either stand astonished at, or deplore with me the fact, that out of the millions of christians in the vicinity and splendor of the eternal Sun of righteousness, how very few are found of the first order! How very few can stand examination by the test laid down in the thirteenth chapter of this epistle. How very few love God with all their heart, soul, mind and strength; and their neighbor as themselves! How few mature christians are found in the church! How few are, in all things, living for eternity! How little light, how little heat, and how little influence and activity are to be found among them that bear the name of Christ! How few stars of the first magnitude will the Son of God have to deck the crown of his glory!

Few are striving to excel in righteousness; and it seems to be a principal concern with many to find out how little grace they may have, and yet get to heaven. In the fear of God I register this testimony, that I have perceived it to be the labor of many to lower the standard of Christianity, and to soften down or explain away those promises of God that himself has linked with duties; and because they know that they cannot be saved by their good works, they are contented to have no good works at all; and thus the necessity of christian obedience and christian holiness, makes no prominent part of some modern creeds.

Let all those who retain the apostolic doctrine, that the blood of Christ cleanseth from all sin in this life, press every believer to go on to perfection, and expect to be saved while here below, into the fulless of the blessing of the gospel of Jesus. To all such my soul says, labor to show yourselves approved unto God; workmen that need not be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth; and may the pleasure of the Lord prosper in your hands! Amen."

APPROACHING REVIEW OF THE SOLDIERS OF THE CROSS.

I well remember the Queen's inspection of the Crimean army on its return from the war in 1856. The army was assembled at Aldershot. We paraded one morning in pouring rain, and it rained for three hours, until we were drenched to the skin. It was doubted whether the Queen would come out; but she would not disappoint her soldiers, so she came at the right time in a close carriage. (Some christians, alas! doubt whether our King will come soon, but he will not disappoint us. He says, "Surely I come quickly;" and we look forward through the driving rain of trial and temptation and say, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus.") She went down our lines, and then those officers who had been under fire, and chosen soldiers from among the non-commissioned officers and men, were marched up by regiments, and formed into three sides of a square round the Queen's carriage. The fourth side of the square was formed by the princes and nobility of England.

At first we could not see her, for the carriage was closed. But while we were forming up, the clouds burst above our heads, the blue sky and the sun appeared, the carriage was opened, and the Queen stood among us. She thanked us for our courage and endurance, and bade us welcome home. She thanked God for having preserved us and brought us back. The first words from her lips produced an effect on those who were gathered round her. They were all tried soldiers; every one of them had been in battle. Their dangers were now over, and they were safe at home. From their sovereign they received thanks and praise.

Believers in Christ our Lord, the day is soon coming when a similar review will be repeated on a grander scale in the glory of heaven. The King of kings will gather his warriors round him,—those who have fought and suffered for him during this probationary period of spiritual warfare. These will be placed nearest to him, who have been most faithful. None will be among the chosen but those who have been under fire. It is blessed to be saved; it will be far more glorious to have an abundant entrance granted you into the everlasting kingdom. Strive for this with fervent faith and prayer, if you are not now seeking it. "Giving all diligence, add to your faith courage; and to courage knowledge; and to knowledge temperance," of conduct and conversation; "and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness," imitating Christ; "and to godness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, love. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. If ye do these things, ye shall never stumble. 2 Pet. 1: 5–10. The first glimpse of his face, the first sound of his voice, and all our present trials will be for ever forgotten. Strive for the abundant entrance. The love of Christ and his glory your motives. His word your guide. His strength your stay. So you will by his grace obtain it. Oh, the glorious and eternal future! For ever with the Lord! How bright it shines! how near it seems! "I saw thrones, and they sat upon them."—Major Malan in Messiah's Herald.

THE PUSHING OF THE RAM, AND THE VISION OF THE 2300 DAYS.

CHARLES H. WYMAN.

In Dan. 8: 20 the angel explains this ram to be the kings of Media and Persia; and so we wish to notice what kings of Medo-Persia fulfilled this pushing according to the description in Dan. 8: 2–4, to see if we can find where the vision began. In the first place, this pushing of the ram cannot be fulfilled under Cyrus, for the following reasons. Daniel tells us in chap. 8, v. 2, that when he saw this vision he was at Shushan in the palace which is in the province of Elam, which is in Persia; and furthermore, that when he saw the vision he was by the river Ulai. The city of Shushan was situated on the river Ulai, and this explains how Daniel came to be by this river. Daniel says that in his vision he saw the ram standing before this river. So then, by Daniel's word, we have the palace in Shushan by the river Ulai, in Persia, for the stand-point of the pushing of this ram.

Again, we learn by verses 3 and 4 that this is the very place where the ram was pushing; for this reason, then, we say that the pushing of the ram cannot in any way apply to Cyrus, king of Persia, for the great conquest of all Asia and Syria and Egypt, under the Medes and Persians, did not begin nor originate in Persia, but in Media, under Cyaxares, the king of Media, who was the sole originator and dictator of the whole conquest, with the exception of Syria and Egypt. And more than this, Cyaxares the king of Media was the supporter of the whole army of both the Medes and Persians. See history of Xenophon, Book 3, p. 48–50. Moreover, when Cyrus conquered Syria and Egypt, he gathered his army, not at Persia, but at Babylon. Ibid, B. 8, p. 147. Again, the conquest of Syria and Egypt was made while Cyaxares was alive. Ibid, B. 8, pp. 144–5. So that, before Cyaxares died, the Medo-Persian empire extended east to the Red Sea, north to the Euxine Sea, west to Egypt, and south to Ethiopia. Ibid, p. 147.

Cyaxares king of Media is called in Daniel Darius, the Median. He reigned two years only, and then Cyrus took the kingdom. Up to his first year, we learn by the book of Ezra, Cyrus had subdued all the kingdoms of the earth, and no part of his conquests began at Persia, but all from Media and Babylon. So that it is impossible in any way to apply this pushing of the ram to Cyrus. Again, vers. 3, 4 say that when the ram was pushing westward, northward, and southward, from the river Ulai that is in Persia, the two horns were high; but when Cyaxares, the king of Media, called for Cyrus to come out of Persia, he came with thirty thousand men into Media, where the whole army was gathered, and from Media they began their march. See Xenophon, B. 1, p. 12, and B. 3, pp. 47–8. At this time Cyrus was not a king; he only served as general under Cyaxares, and Belshazzar was reigning over Babylon. How could it be said, then, that the two horns of Media and Persia were high? After the taking of Babylon Cyrus took up his residence there during the whole of his reign, excepting five months in a year; so that all his decrees went forth from Babylon, and not from Persia. See Xenophon, B. 7, p. 124, and B. 8, p. 147. It is utterly impossible to apply this pushing to any part of Cyrus' reign.

It says in v. 4, that the ram pushed southward so that no beast might stand before him. Cambyces, the son of Cyrus, succeeded Cyrus in the kingdom of Persia. He made an expedition into the south, but was shamefully defeated and forced to give up his expedition. See Herodotus Thalia, book 3, chap. 24. So the pushing of the ram cannot be Cambyces. Smerdis succeeded Cambyces, and reigned only seven months. Verse 4 says the ram pushed westward, so that no beasts might stand before him. Darius succeeded Smerdis, and made an expedition westward into Scythia, but was driven back into Asia. This pushing of the ram cannot, then, apply to Darius in any way. Xerxes succeeded Darius in the kingdom. Xerxes made an expedition westward into Greece with a mighty army, but was driven back into Asia. We see, then, how utterly impossible it is to apply the pushing of the ram to any of these kings.

The next king, Artaxerxes, succeeded to the throne. He was the king that did according to his will. Artaxerxes began his reign in the year 437 before Christ. The twelfth of Artaxerxes takes us down to 426 B. C., according to Neh. 5: 14, and 6: 15. The walls of Jerusalem were finished in the 32nd year of Artaxerxes the king. Daniel says that after 62 weeks, or 434 years, from the finishing of the wall, the Messiah should be cut off. Our Lord was crucified on the day of the preparation of the passover,—the first month in the year. Josephus says Jerusalem was destroyed forty years after our Lord was crucified. Jerusalem being destroyed in the year 70 A. D., 40 years from 70 gives us the first month of A. D. 30 for the cutting off of the Messiah and end of the 62 weeks. By running back 434 years from A. D. 29, it takes us to 406 B. C., which we prove thus: adding A. D. 29 to 406, and taking out one year for crossing the era, it gives us 434 years back to the completion of the walls in 406 B. C., in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes. 406 being his 32nd year, it gives us 426 for the 12th year of Artaxerxes. In Esther we find this king is called Ahasuerus, and Josephus explains him to be Artaxerxes. In Esther 3: 15, we find this king situated at Shushan the palace, the very place where Daniel saw the ram pushing; and from this palace—Shushan—Artaxerxes sent forth that bloody decree pushing westward, northward, and southward, to kill, and to cause to perish, all the Jews, so that none could deliver out of his hand.

Notwithstanding the law of the Medes and Persians was unalterable, yet he did according to his will, and saved all the Jews, and became great. This marks him indisputably to be the ram of Dan. 8: 3. We learn from Esther 3: 7, that this pushing took place in the 12th year of Ahasuerus, or Artaxerxes. So if we come down twelve years from 437, it gives us 426 B. C. for the 12th year of Artaxerxes, and for the beginning of this vision of 2300 years to the end.

The angel had told Daniel that the sanctuary and the host were to be trodden under foot for their transgression, and that they were to be thus destroyed when the transgressors were come to the full. In chapter 8, we learn that the angel gives Daniel an understanding of the vision that he saw at the beginning. Daniel is told that seventy weeks of the vision are determined upon his people, and the holy city, to finish the transgression. So then, this seventy weeks from the beginning of the vision gives us the exact chronology for the beginning of the destruction of the Jews. It is well known that Jerusalem was destroyed in the year 70 A. D. Josephus says that the war began in the 12th year of Nero, in the second month. Again he says, after Nero had reigned a little more than thirteen years he died. This gives us two years and a little over from the beginning of the war. After Nero died, he says Galba reigned seven months. This carried him to January of the third year. After Galba died, Otho reigned three months, and then began a civil war at Rome which finished out these four years. In the last end of this fourth year Vespasian sent Titus out of Egypt to destroy Jerusalem, and in the first month of the fifth year he pitched his camp at Jerusalem; and in the sixth month of that year Jerusalem was destroyed. Jerusalem being destroyed in 70 A. D., five years backward brings us to 65 A. D. for the beginning of the war on the Jews, also gives us 65 A. D. for the finishing of the transgression and end of the seventy weeks, or 490 years from the beginning of the vision.

65 A. D. is marked by those great signs recorded by Josephus. The whole year before 65 there was a comet, in the shape of a sword, that stood over the city; and in the first month of the year 65 there shone in the temple, round the altar, so great a light that it was as bright as day for a half hour; also the gate of the inner court of the temple of solid brass, which took twenty men to shut it, opened of its own accord, notwithstanding it was bolted into stone. He says that this sign the Jews publicly declared foreshadowed the desolation that was coming upon them. So, then, we have A. D. 65 for the finishing of the transgression of that people and city of Jerusalem, which transgression was to be finished at the end of the seventy weeks. If we run back from A. D. 65 the seventy weeks, or 490 years, it will take us to 426 B. C., the 12th year of Artaxerxes, where the beginning of the vision of the 2300 years began; which we prove by adding to the beginning of the vision, which is 426 B. C., the year of our Lord 65, and taking out one year for crossing the Christian era, it gives us 490 years from 426 B. C. to 65 A. D. Thus we prove that 426 B. C. is the beginning of the 2300 years. By adding to the beginning of the vision, which is 426 B. C., the next coming year—1875—and taking out one year for crossing the era, it gives us just 2300 years to the year 1875.

Whoever will consider that this vision of 2300 years began in the Medo-Persian empire, and that the Medo-Persian empire ended in 332 B. C., and that 332 B. C. and this year of our Lord—1874, added together make just 2205 years, after taking out one year for crossing the era, and that nothing short of 2205 years will take us back into the Medo-Persian empire, and that Artaxerxes was only the fifth king of that empire, and that it takes just 94 years more to reach from 332 B. C. to 426 B. C., to the year of Artaxerxes, so that 94 years again added to 2205, give us just 2299 years up to 1874, and 1875 makes just 2300 years.

O, how I praise our precious Lord for the key to this whole vision, which key is the seventy weeks. Whoever considers carefully these things will very soon become interested in the prophetic numbers of the book of Daniel. Dear reader, whoever you may be, I pray you consider carefully these things.

The provisions of the new postal law, requiring pre-payment of postage on all newspapers, go into operation on the first of January next. After that date all postage (excepting on newspapers within the County in which they are published) will have to be paid at the Office from which the paper is mailed. This change relieves the subscribers from the care and trouble of postage payment, placing it upon the publishers, and making the expense, which is quite an item, to come directly upon the latter.

To meet this (in regard to the Crisis), the Adv. Chris. Pub. Society, at a late meeting, voted to add twenty-five cents to the price of our paper; so that from Jan. 1st, 1875, the World's Crisis will be $2.25 per year in advance. And hereafter, all monies received at this office for advance pay on the Crisis will be credited from Jan. forward at the rate of $2.25 per year. WAR IN EUROPE.

Is it true, as many of the great men of the world tell us, that the tocsin of war is about to sound its fearful notes, calling to battle and death millions now in camp and field? Does Victoria's Prime Minister, Disraeli, comprehend the situation when he warns his government to immediately prepare for a "religious war," which he predicts will "convulse the globe?" Does the Pope, standing on the "seven hills," understand the currents and counter-currents of human society, and their antagonistic tendencies, when he speaks of an "impending struggle, as one between the armies of the Archangel Michael and the hosts of Satan." Why does Father Hyacinthe talk so assuredly that a "three-fold war" is about to be waged "between popular rights and the power of capital," in which the "combatants will tear each other to pieces?" Why does Victor Hugo, the great French statesman and orator, and many more of his own grade and position, express such heart emotions of fearful anticipations of approaching encounters "between two principles,—republic and empire?" Why does he say "we have before us—in Europe—a series of catastrophes which engender each other, and must be exhausted;" and that "we can get a glimpse of peace only across a shock of arms."

For the same reasons, doubtless, that Bishop Manning, at Westminster, Nov. 6th, speaking of the Catholic Academia, said—"In the present crisis, and looking to the coming great future struggle, they had a vast work before them. Looking at the hostility manifested on the Continent to the Sovereign Pontiff, he invited their special attention to the best means of asserting his infallibility, and his right to spiritual and temporal power." The reporter continued to give his prophetic utterance thus:—"Within the last twenty-four hours it had been intimated to him that the Catholic world was threatened with a controversy on the whole of the decrees of the Vatican Council. From this and other matters which had come to his knowledge, he could see that they were on the very eve of one of the mightiest controversies the religious world had ever seen. Certainly nothing like the controversy on which they were about to enter had occurred during the last three hundred years, and they must be prepared.

Why do all these men look for the same things and at the same time? Do they all occupy a stand-point where they get false visions of the future? Are they fanciful, visionary men, who are governed by the same halucinations, so as to make wild predictions of the immediate future? From what stand-point do they see the unfoldings of coming events? Do they occupy positions where they understand the secret councils of kings, premiers, and cardinals? Have they had opportunities to observe the ebb and flow of the mighty tide of human aspirations and pent-up revenge? No men on earth have had better advantages to observe the drift of human affairs, and the direction and strength of political currents than these men. They understand why the governments of Europe are making such unparalleled and exhaustive efforts to prepare for war. They themselves have assisted in making the programme which is now stirring the world to prepare for the "shock of arms," which that programme has fixed for the immediate future.

They all see that there are great and vexatious questions, relating to political and ecclesiastical associations, which has produced earnest and angry debate, and which has filled the legislative page with enactments and disannulments, and lead mighty armies to the fields of conflict, reddening earth's soil with human gore, exhausting government treasures, plunging the nations into insolvency, which have passed through all the changes apparently, that diplomacy and the love of peace can suggest for their settlement, until there is produced such a network of complicated differences of purpose for the future, and such hoarded up revenges for real or imaginary injuries for the past, that it has produced in all the interested classes a fixed and determined purpose to settle these qusstions by the arbitration of the sword.

The first question as to magnitude and age, is the question of the Pope's right to exercise temporal power over the political governments of the world. This has produced, doubtless, more unhappy strife and bloodshed than any controversy since Christ. It produced early in the christian dispensation powerful antagonism and terrible efforts of great armies to settle the exciting question. The tide of war finally set in favor of the Pope's claim, and he was invested with the coveted power, which he exercised through the dark and bloody ages, though it was frequently challenged by aspiring and insubordinate kings. But about the middle of the eighteenth century the wind changed, and dragged the anchor of the Catholic ship for a time, and finally parted her cable of temporal power in 1870, and she drifted out to sea, where she is plunging fearfully in a threatening gale. Every strand of her cable, which bound the kings and emperors of the christian world to hold her in the harbor of prosperity as the mistress of nations is broken. But she is rich and powerful in her religious influence, and in her political humiliation receives the sympathies of more than two hundred millions of people, scattered among all the nations. She understands well that the present drift of the world in education and experience in political liberty is fast breaking her hold on the nations, and that if she ever regains her lost political power she must do it immediately. She also understands that this must be done through a religious position, and not a political; for religious superstition is much stronger than any other, and this will cause the people to sacrifice much more for its triumph.

For this reason and cause, the Pope called the Ecumenical Council in 1869, to establish the dogma of infallibility; thus making him the divinely appointed arbiter of all questions concerning the government of Church and State.

The political rulers saw clearly the design of that movement, and entered their earnest protest before the measure was finally adopted. But the plan was considered the only one which could restore temporal power to the Pope, and that was the darling object of their ambition. At that point the great antagonistic parties were established. The papal party, and all others which feel a stronger opposition to the old monarchical Roman governments than they do to the Papacy, are earnestly solicited to join in a grand confederation to overthrow the great political alliance of the old monarchs who are enrolling and arming all their male population, and earnestly soliciting the cooperation of all the second class governments and classes who will stand against this monstrous papal usurpation.

This question of controversy is doubtless the most threatening to the peace of the world that now agitates the public mind. This question, involving these circumstances, is the principal reason why these representative men, occupying prominent positions in both parties, make such confident predictions of an immediate terrible war. They understand that the principles which have produced these circumstances have long been operating to mould and revolutionize society, and that they have now reached a crisis at which the status of European government must be changed. A large proportion of the people demand a change; and when this is the case, a change is inevitable. This fact is known by the leaders of all parties, which causes them to exert all their powers to enlist sympathy, and rally their forces to make a final and decisive effort for victory.

The Papal party is making a desperate struggle to obtain the control of one established government, so as to have one regular army which could be enlarged by volunteers from the Catholic party from all nations, and thus overthrow all the present governments; for they are opposed to the Pope's claim of infallibility and civil power. To accomplish this, they have brought all the power of priests and priestcraft to bear to establish such a government in France and Spain. But the anti-papal party has watched this movement with jealousy, and have interfered to prevent such a result. Bishop Manning is a prominent leader in the papal party, and Count Bismarck in the opposition. These circumstances are the principal ones involved in the great Western, or Italian Question, while those embraced in the Eastern Question are distinct, but yet interlaced in a way which would necessarily involve them, with all their vast interests, in any great Western movement.

These two questions, with all their parts and connections, are to-day producing a world-wide excitement. Every class in Christendom and civilization feels the mighty strain as they near the fatal hour to which they are looking with solemn fear.

Has God given the prophetic history of our world in all past ages, and neglected to present these unparalleled events of universal interest? Did he particularly describe the events indicating the downfall of Babylon, Persia, and Grecia? And has he not given those connected with the overthrow of the Roman governments? He has. They are put in the forefront of all prophetic history of human events.

We shall, if the Lord will, present in future articles some of our views of the prophetic history of the great disturbing causes which now threaten to plunge the nations into a terrible conflict.

The present is truly a period of wonderful manifestations. It is evidently a transition age; for the old is giving way to an uncertain new. The old thrones, dynasties, and long-established lines of aristocratic rulers, are fast sinking in the estimation and reverence of the masses, and it is evident that they must soon be displaced for something new. This appears so evident to all, that all classes are anticipating the new, but they differ widely as to what it shall be, and what class, or who shall hold the reins of earthly government. The world is thrown into a restless, dissatisfied condition. All are seeking a new position and demand a change. The inanimate earth and heavens have drifted into the same sea of restless convulsion and revolution. Everything earthly, animate or inanimate, seem to unite in demanding something for this world more satisfying and enduring. The heavens are convulsed, and clearly manifest signs of great disturbing causes, which evidently spring from fountains far beyond the reach of human vision. The earth is perturbed and feverish in all its parts. Its frame is fearfully shaken with powers hidden in its bowels, and inscrutable to us. "Fearful sights and great signs" are being witnessed by this generation, causing many hearts to fail for fear, and much speculation in relation to the nature, magnitude and results of events now rising into view.

"We are living, we are dwelling,
In a grand and awful time;
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime."

May God anoint our eyes that we may understand the divine purposes of the Ruler of this world, in bringing it to its present crisis, and the condition into which it is about to be thrown. May we comprehend the magnitude and importance of the great events of this age, and each know our post of duty, and stand as faithful sentinels for Christ until the end.

"THE SABBATH MADE FOR MAN."

Our seventh-day friends very often quote the saying of Christ: "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." Mark 2: 27. The Savior was led to make the foregoing statements, from the following circumstances: "He went through the corn-fields on the Sabbath day, and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck the ears of corn. And the Pharisees said unto him, Behold, why do they on the Sabbath day that which is not lawful? And he said unto them, . . . The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. Therefore the Son of man is Lord also of the Sabbath. Mark 2: 23–28.

Jesus and his disciples were doing that which was a violation of the Sabbath law, hence the inquiry, "Why do they on the Sabbath day that which is not lawful? The answer of Jesus showed that he wished them to understand that the day of rest was instituted to promote man's happiness and prosperity in this world. In an article before us, taken from the "Advent Review," we find the following: "If it was made for man, there would be no object in making it before there was a man, neither was it wisdom to make it until man needed it." This is sensible.

The word Sabbath means rest, and a Sabbath-day is a rest-day. One does not need rest till after a period of labor. The Lord worked six days during the creation week, and then rested the seventh day. This is the general law regulating man's rest day. After working six days, of twenty-four hours each, like his Creator, then he should rest the next twenty-four hours. As the writer in the Review says, it was not "wisdom to make a rest day until man needed it." According to the Creator's example, Adam did not need a rest day till after he had labored six days, consequently, according to the writer in the Review, Adam had nothing to do with the rest day of his Creator, who had nearly finished his six days work, before Adam had any existence. We find no evidence that Adam did any work on the sixth day, the one on which he was created. If he was required to observe the Sabbath law, and imitate his Creator, he must work six days before he would need a rest day. We find some of the seventh-day people claiming that Adam began to work the sixth day, the day he was created. In that case his first rest day would occur two days before the second rest day of his Creator, or on the twelfth day from the beginning of Creation. But we have no clear evidence that Adam did any thing on the day he was created. Beginning his first work day, on the first day, after his creation, his first rest day would be the thirteenth day from creation. In order to have his first rest day in harmony with the Sabbath law, and at the same time correspond with the second rest day of the Creator, Adam should have rested one day before he did any thing; but rest days before work are not in harmony with the Sabbath law. Hence it appears from an examination of the Bible account of Creation, that there is no evidence that Adam observed the same rest day kept by the Creator. In fact, he could not do it, without violating the established rest-day law, which requires six days labor to precede the day of rest.

When it is said "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath," the obvious meaning is that God did not make man to keep some particular day of rest, but that man, after laboring six days, would need a Sabbath day to advance his own welfare. Whoever works six days, beginning with either day of the week, and rests the seventh, commemorates the Creation week, and the following rest day. Whenever the Lord wishes to have some noted event commemorated, as in the case when he delivered his people out of Egyptian bondage, with a mighty hand, it is proper that their six days labor should commence and terminate so that the Sabbath, or rest-day, would correspond with the day on which the great event transpired. In keeping such a day, they may also at the same time commemorate Creation week, because they work six days and rest the seventh, as did their Creator.

We have no reason to believe that the six days of Creation were any less sacred than the seventh-day. The first six days were set apart for work, the seventh for rest. The twenty-four hours appropriated to the first rest were the same in kind as any of the hours employed in labor. The sacredness of any day, or period of time, consists in the manner of keeping it. We are acquainted with no one who keeps the Sabbath day in harmony with the regulations given by the Lord in the time of Moses. If that is the one to be kept now, it should be kept now as then. As none of the seventh-day people do thus keep it, it follows that they are all Sabbath breakers, if judged by their own principles.

Those who observe the Lord's day as the one for rest, commemorate Creation week just as truly as those who rest on the preceding day. But like the Jews, the Christian commemorates another great event,—the resurrection of Christ, and the beginning of the new creation unto eternal life. As the Jews do not accept Christ, they refuse to keep this day.

TRIP ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

We take up our pencil to say a few words to our friends who may be interested in our trip across the continent. We are now (Wednesday P. M., Nov. 18th) between Chyenne and Laramie, expecting to arrive at the latter place at 5.20. Thus far our journey has been very pleasant. We left Sioux City, Iowa, Monday evening, Nov. 16th, at ten o'clock. Before leaving, we gave a discourse on Spiritualism, showing the whole system is unchristian and devilish. It is the most terrible foe that ever waged war with Christianity, because it is the sum of all that is Satanic. The more it is examined, the worse it looks. Its inside is rotten with wicked infidelity. It is antichrist in all its features.

Tuesday morning, at 5.30, we arrived at Council Bluffs, and at daylight crossed the Missouri river on the fine iron bridge to Omaha. When the train came in from Chicago, about half-past ten A. M. Bro. W. Brown, from South Butler, N. Y., was on board, en route for California, hoping to recover his health. We are hoping he will be fully restored, and be able to preach the gospel of Christ effectually on the Pacific coast. We are not particularly acquainted with Bro. Brown, but so far as we know him, we believe him to be worthy of the confidence of all christian people. We trust he will not have cause to repent for going to California. He is enduring the journey better than he expected.

We have a company of very pleasant, intelligent passengers. Among these are Dr. G. C. Pearson, of San Francisco, and N. P. Lang, a Danish missionary, on his way from Chicago to Colorado. He is a real christian man. We had very pleasant conversation together. We also found Dr. Pearson to be a fine christian man, who had traveled extensively, and was able to give interesting facts connected with his travels. We enjoyed each other's society. Persons who make a trip across the continent together can hardly avoid becoming acquainted with each other. A sort of family relation springs up between them, and a mutual interest in each other's welfare, and often permanent friendships are formed.

The passengers are divided into three classes, those who ride in the Pullman Palace cars, the first-class passenger cars, and the second class. Besides there is the emigrant train, which runs by itself in connection with freight. Those who travel on that have a pretty hard time, and a very slow journey. They are treated quite like the animals on the cattle train, or like captives in time of war. There is evidently need of reform?

It often happens that the conduct of the passengers in the second-class cars is very offensive to neat and pure-minded persons, at other times one might ride there comfortably, especially if he is fond of tobacco smoke. The first-class cars are like the best ones run on the roads in New England. They have a large tank of water, connected with a wash basin, which is very convenient for the travelers. They have no looking-glasses, as in the New England cars. Each traveler should take a small glass, towel and soap. There is a stove at each end of the car, supplied with coal, taken from the mines on the road. It is soft coal. There is an abundance of it on the line of the road, which is a great benefit to the R. R. company.

Since Monday evening, Nov. 16th, it has been quite cold. There is about one inch of snow on the ground the most of the way thus far. Prairie wolves, and large herds of antelope are to be seen on the route. The buffalo have disappeared from the R. R. line on the Union Pacific. Prairie dogs are plenty, in some localities. They dig holes in the ground for their homes. They look some like a grey squirrel, and often dig up the ground badly.

Thursday, P. M., Nov. 19th. Our trip continues pleasant, and increasingly so. After riding a day or two, the journey becomes less and less tedious. One becomes so accustomed to car life, that he thinks no more about it than his daily business when at home. To enjoy a long trip, one should take no thought for the morrow; that is, he should not allow himself to think what a long distance is ahead, but keep himself occupied with the present moment, and avoid wishing himself at the end of the journey. Instead of that, let him wish to be just where he is, then his journey ceases to be burdensome, provided he feels he is in the path of duty.

We pass to-day through some very interesting scenery, but as we have frequently given brief descriptions of these things, we will not give any further account at present. We expect to arrive in Ogden at 6.15 this evening, and then change on to the Central Pacific. This is a very safe road. The track is kept in excellent order, is closely inspected and the trains are run with much care and regularity. We travel on no roads where we feel a greater degree of safety than from Omaha to San Francisco. The distance is 1914 miles, and it takes from 11.30 A. M. Tuesday, till 8 P. M. Saturday, to make the trip. The fare from Omaha is one hundred dollars, which is over five cents a mile.

SIOUX CITY.

We arrived in Sioux City, Iowa, Wednesday morning, Nov. 4th, at 4.50, and stopped at a public house till daylight. We then went to Capt. J. W. Young's, where we found a genuine pilgrim's home. Bro. Young invited us to this city. He is a prominent member of the Congregationalist church, and one of the trustees of the house. He is deeply interested in the truths we love so well, and has obtained the consent of his pastor and the other official members, to use the church for a series of meetings, during which the prophecies and signs of the times relating to the coming of Jesus are to be presented to the people.

Sioux City is situated on the Missouri river, one hundred miles north of Omaha, and about one hundred miles south of St. Paul. It contains about seven thousand inhabitants. The standard of religion is low. Formalism and pleasure-loving have taken strong hold of most professors. When we began, we did not find a church member who was living free from condemnation.

We have had pleasant interviews with the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist and Congregationalist preachers. The interest in the meetings increased steadily, and when we closed, Nov. 16th, the people were very anxious to hear more. Several requested prayers, and some were richly blest, having consecrated themselves fully to Christ.—Others are now hungering and thirsting after righteousness. The truth has taken strong hold of several hearts, who before the meetings felt but little interest in these things. We have reason to thank the Lord for directing our steps to Sioux City.

THAT BOOK.

THE HISTORY OF THE ADVENT MESSAGE.

I take pleasure in recommending this book to the Advent people. It contains a fund of interesting information that cannot be obtained elsewhere.

To me the eloquent defence of the late venerable President of Bethany College, Va.,—A. Campbell—on page 300, in behalf of the pioneers of the great Advent movement, is truly grand and sublime. He has twined a garland that is fragrant with the memory of the once loving and beloved, that now rest from their labors. Gratitude to the memory of the worthy President! I accept of that gem of language, and lay it upon the tablet of my poor heart, until I gather up my feet in death, or behold earth's latest sun set upon a creation that is groaning and travailing in pain.

As I read the names of the aged and the early dead—co-laborers—whose faces mantled with unearthly sweetness, and whose eyes sparkled with such delight in the early day of our trials and sacrifices, as they told of "the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow," my poor heart causes memory's tears to start, and its pulsations quicken and beat in heavenly unison with the seer of Patmos, when he testifies—"Surely I come quickly. Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus."

Every Advent family should have a copy; and could I aid those who are not able to purchase one, gladly would I assist them in the pleasure of reading it. Bro. Wellcome deserves the patronage of our people. He has labored and been at great expense in the production of this work. Aid him in bearing the heavy burden that is resting upon him. Friends, get the book, read, and lend it. It will doubtless do good in disseminating light upon the truths that have and do now distinguish us as a people.

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

HOOSICK, N. Y.

The recent annual session of the Hoosick Valley Conference was attended with a goodly number of preachers and delegates of churches, although not as many as we would have been glad to see at our yearly feast, yet there were enough to claim the promise of the great Head of the church; and the meeting was one of the best, all things considered, that has been held since its organization. There seemed to be a deep devotional feeling manifest in all our meetings. Several started to serve the Lord for the first time; and one on the last day of the feast followed the Lord in baptism.

In consequence of the interest being so great, and at the earnest solicitation of the church, we were persuaded that it was our duty to remain and continue the meetings during the week; we did so, and there were blessed results followed. On Sunday, Nov. 8th, we were permitted to bury ten happy persons in the liquid grave, and raise them therefrom to walk in newness of life, preparatory to the enjoyment of eternal life in the world to come. This occasion at the water side was attended with the divine power, and deep conviction seemed to rest on the large audience assembled to witness the administration of an ordinance instituted by Christ over eighteen hundred years ago.

The interest seemed unabated when we left, and we hope to hear that others have since enlisted under the blood-stained banner of Prince Immanuel, and are determined to follow the Lord in all his ordinances blameless, until he comes the second time without sin unto salvation.

Brethren, the grand consummation, when eternal life with all its attendant blessings, and the indescribable glories of paradise restored, and the song of the redeemed millions that will be wafted on the balmy breezes of that new world, is now nigh at hand. Let us heed the injunction of the Master—"Watch."

TENT MEETING AT FALL RIVER.

BRO. COUCH:—The result of the tent meetings and our efforts here are favorable, and it is expected that a permanent interest will be established in this city.

Four weeks ago I came here to re-pitch the tent which had been taken down a week previous, on account of the coldness of the weather. On my way, while on the cars, I lost a part of one of my fingers, and afterward had to have it amputated. The Lord helped me to bear all with a good degree of patience, and without much complaint. But why I have been permitted thus to be afflicted I do not yet know. I trust God will be glorified by it.

The tent was again pitched, and remained up two weeks, when it was finally taken down in the wind of Nov. 7th, to prevent it being torn in pieces. It was damaged to some extent. Preaching by Brn. Boutell, Higgins, R. D. Grant, and H. L. Hastings. Most of the time good congregations were present, and good attention was given to the word. There was, however, a demonstration made by Satan, but the Lord and the police prevented him from breaking up the meetings. There were no conversions, but much prejudice was removed, and an interest created in the minds of a number of thinking people.

After the removal of the tent, meetings were held two Sabbaths in a loft over a carriage house, connected with a stable. Here, as in primitive times, the word was spoken freely to all who came to hear. Many wanted the meetings continued here, but it was thought best to go into the centre of the city, and begin the work of gathering together the believers, scattered in the city and the region around.

In the providence of God a good hall has been secured, and last Sabbath a meeting was held therein, and a commencement made in publishing the evidences of the Lord's coming, together with man's nature and destiny. The morning social meeting was a season of refreshing to all present. The spirit of love and union prevailed, and all felt free to speak out their views and feelings. It was a meeting long desired by those present, in which there was liberty in Christ Jesus, and the privilege of speaking in regard to any part of his gospel. In the afternoon and evening the writer used his liberty in declaring the word of God, and trusts good was done.

I would say to all in Fall River and the region around, who hold the faith of Christ's soon coming, that there is now a place where they can go and hear the whole gospel of Christ, and be free themselves in the declaration of their faith. And it seems to me that this opportunity of entering the field of labor for the Master cannot be neglected without a loss of the favor of Christ, and becoming guilty of turning away from the truth. The Hall in which the Advent meetings are now held is on Market Square, in Pocasset Hall Building. It is thus in the heart of the city, and there is every facility for the friends of a soon coming Savior to meet together and build each other up in the faith of Jesus. It is hoped that all in Fall River who hold this gospel of the kingdom in their hearts will come here and labor for the enlightenment and salvation of the unenlightened and perishing; some of whom it is hoped will listen to this last message of Christ to them and be saved.

I pray the Lord will bless this effort in this new field, and perishing city.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

I learn that the postage on the free Crisis alone, amounts to nearly two hundred dollars a year, which must be paid by the Office before mailing. Those who know this fact will, we hope, send the little sum of 25 cts. to George T. Adams. It is only what you would have to pay to your postmaster. This fact is published in the Crisis every week, yet only $9.25, thus far, has been received; and 25 cts. of this was sent by a pauper in Stewartstown Poor House. Perhaps some can as well send fifty cents, or a dollar, and will, when they stop and think these are hard times and every little helps make up the deficiency of funds. I feel that this request is a reasonable one, which all that have the Crisis free will see.

EXPERIENCE.

My dear Brethren in Christ:—I feel just like telling you through our beloved Crisis how much good an article written by Bro. Geo. E. Lee has done me. You will recollect he wrote an article on "Consecration" about the last of Sept., 1872. I was then and had been for years a slave to tobacco. I was reading aloud to my wife, and at the same time "mumbling" with a "quid" in my mouth, which was saturated with the filthy "slop." I had never heard any one say a word against the use of the weed, and so I was innocently and thoughtlessly setting a bad example before the church for whom I was trying to preach. In that article he said "some ministers would stand and exhort their hearers to abstain from all manner of filthiness of the flesh, and to present their bodies a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to the Lord, as temples for the Holy Ghost, and at the same time roll the petted quid with their tongue, while the juice might be seen in the corners of their mouths. I paused, looked at my wife, and really felt ashamed of the idolized quid.

I was astonished to think I had never seen this evil before. I had tried to quit, but not from a sense of duty to God. I turned to my wife, and, with a determined resolution spoke to her as follows: "Nancy, by God's grace I have taken my last chew." And, praise the Lord, right there I gained a glorious victory. I have had no "hankering" for tobacco since.

Since then I have felt like a new man. My lungs were very weak, and I could hardly stand to speak thirty minutes; now, glory to God, I can talk four times as long, if need be, and not feel exhausted. I have induced many others to give up the evil habit, with like results; and I want Bro. L. to know that he was the instrument through whom the Lord showed me this evil and induced me to give it up.

On the third day of this month I left my dear family in Alabama, to preach the gospel of the kingdom in this western country. I met many warm-hearted friends about De View, in Woodruff Co., where I have been laboring, I trust with good results. I started for this place in company with Bro. Gifford, to take the cars for Fort Smith. Came to the place appointed for preaching on the way, last night. Found the church closed against us, but a few strange friends met us in an old waste house, where we tried to give them the first talk, on our views of the nearness of the Lord's coming, that they ever heard. To-day we reached this town, expecting to find an appointment out for us; but learned that none cared to have us speak, as it had been reported that we were preaching "dangerous heresy." No one said, "Come in and tarry with us," as Lydia did to Paul and Silas, so we went to the Tate House and put up for the night. The landlord soon told us he could not furnish us with a bed, so I went out and found lodging in a lunch house, and went back after Bro. Gifford. Now here we are, snugly "stored" for the night. The place is better than we deserve. After looking over the Crisis of Oct. 28th, 1874, and reading another article from the same pen, on the trials of Father's children, oh, what consolation it gives us. We take encouragement from it.

We learned to-night that the Railroad over which we must travel to-morrow is very dangerous; but the thought comes up, We are going in God's cause, and trials are necessary if we would wear the crown. So we determined to trust God and go on sowing the precious seed through "thick and thin," under lowering clouds as well as bright sunshine.

Brethren, pray for me in my work here, and also for my dear family at Stevenson, Ala.

LIFE IN THE HOLY LAND.

Extract from a letter received from the Rev. F. S. De Hass U. S. Consul to Jerusalem, by Francis P. Harper, N. Y.

We enjoy our new position and home very much. Nothing could be more charming than life in this sacred land. Near this all the great events in the history of our world transpired. Here all the patriarchs lived, died, and are buried; here our blessed Lord redeemed us from the curse of sin, and secured our glorious resurrection by his victory over death. The whole country seems to breathe an inspiration. You never tire visiting the holy places. We live on the very summit of Mount Zion, and scarcely a day passes without our seeing the place where Christ was crucified, and the garden of his agony, or mount of his ascension, and yet the desire to see and visit these places increases with every fresh sight and visit.

You can sit under one of the old olive trees in Gethsemane for hours without growing weary, and then will leave reluctantly. So when you stroll down the Kedron, or over Olivet to Bethany, the mind becomes so absorbed in contemplation, you forget everything present, and only live in the past. What glorious living! From boyhood I have been singing in my heart, "Could I but stand where Moses stood." Last week I visited that sacred spot, spent the Sabbath on the top of Pisgah, and preached on Nebo. To describe my feelings would be impossible. The dream of my life was realized. I was standing on the very rock where the Almighty and his servant Moses once stood. The grandeur of the scenery was appropriate, and I felt like exclaiming: "Now, Lord, lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, for I have seen thy salvation."

One night we camped at the ford of the Jabboth, where Jacob so gloriously prevailed with God, another at Zoar, to which Lot fled on the destruction of Sodom. We encircled entirely the Dead Sea; so, for a whole week, were 1320 feet below the level of the ocean, the lowest spot on the globe. The salt and sulphur formations here are wonderful—I can't describe them. Mrs. Lot is still standing a pillar of salt. The Arabs call her Ben Sheik's Lot. But I must close.—Messiah's Herald.

Obituaries.

On this beautiful November day I am assigned the painful duty of reporting the death of one whose life, as wife and mother, was as true and pure as it had been earnest and thoughtful.

MRS. NELSON TUTTLE died of consumption, at her residence in Cheshire, Nov. 8th, 1874, aged seventy-six years.

She was an affectionate wife and mother, and the influence of her kind and loving nature reached far beyond the unity of her own family. Of this I have ample evidence on looking on the tear-stained cheeks of the numerous friends who came to sympathize with the family in their great bereavement. The pure life and peaceful death of Hila Tuttle is another instance of the truth that a christian philosophy is well calculated to intensify all the nobler qualities of the mind. She was conscious till she died, and expressed full confidence in the hope that she should again meet her friends at the resurrection. She had faith to believe it would not be long before she would again be called to life by her Savior, and dwell with him forever.

Her obsequies took place at her house, the 10th inst., Eld. O. D. Woodruff of Southington, Ct., officiating. In his discourse from 2 Tim. 4: 6-8, he urged the necessity of believing in Jesus, so that when the enemy death is about to triumph over each one, they too can say with the departed sister, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." His remarks were intensely interesting, and assuaged the deep sorrow of the grief-stricken mourners. She was brought to Plantsville for burial, and many assembled at the grave to witness the mournful cortege. After some appropriate remarks by Eld. Woodruff, the cold earth dropped upon her coffin, and we passed mournfully on, leaving the plaintive winds to sing her dirge.

"'Tis sown in weakness, it is raised in power;
Heaven claims the seed, expands the beauteous flower:
Oh! blessed hope, that looks beyond the grave—
Oh! wondrous love, that thus from death can save."

J. W. BISHOP.

FOSTER. In Madison, Conn., Oct. 9th, 1874, Sr. Eliza A. Foster, aged sixty-three years.

Sr. Foster arose in the morning in usual health, as was supposed, and when about her domestic duties she was stricken down with an epileptic stroke, which rendered her insensible. She was a sister in Christ, beloved by all who knew her. Her faith was strong in the coming of the Lord, the resurrection of the dead, and immortality only through Christ at his coming. She leaves a kind husband, two sons, and a daughter, with several grand-children, to mourn the loss of one who has been true to them during her life here. May the God of all grace comfort the grief-stricken hearts of these mourning ones, and prepare them to meet in the kingdom, where death will never come, nor hearts be sad. Funeral sermon by the writer, assisted by Bro. Gallup, Congregational minister, Text, 1 Thess. 4: 18.

B. HITCHCOCK.

RIDLON. In Bonny Eagle, Me., Sept. 21st, 1874, Wm. H., youngest son of Sr. Susan S. Ridlon, aged twenty-two years.

Willie was kind, active, and buoyant, and seemed engrossed with friends, companions, and the world, till disease had fastened on him. Then he felt the need of One who could comfort amid the sorrows of this life. He sought and found the friendship of Christ, and his heart became burdened for his young friends, that they too, while in health, might seek him. When it became evident that he must die, he called them to his bedside, asking them to promise to meet him in the coming kingdom. May the Lord help them to redeem those promises, that when Jesus comes they may be among the blood-washed throng.

J. GAY.

Only a few short months have passed since they were united in marriage, with hopes of health and happiness as bright as any. But oh, how uncertain are all earthly things! After two weeks of severe sickness the enemy triumphed, and she closed her eyes in death. It was sad to part with one so lovely, but we sorrow not as those who have no hope. Sarah was a consistent christian, and her loss will be deeply felt by the church and community. The funeral services at the Congregational church, of which she was a member, were very impressive.

R. L. PARKER.

The subject of this notice was the last member of quite a large family. Sr. J. began to attend the Advent meeting at Putnam some more than two years ago, and as a result she became deeply interested in the truth of the Bible, and about a year since she gave herself to Christ in an everlasting covenant, and experienced his pardoning favor. She lived a consistent christian till death, and as a token of her regard for the truth, she bequeathed $100 to the Advent Church in Putnam, Ct. She now sleeps in Jesus. Her funeral was attended by the writer.

P. S. BULLER.

SULLIVAN. In Hopkinton, R. I., Oct. 26th, 1874, Bro. Gardner Sullivan, in the eighty-eighth year of his age.

Our father has gone; death has triumphed, but for a little season. Our father was converted some seventeen years since, and has lived a faithful christian ever since. Words of comfort were spoken by Eld. H. Clark, from Heb. 9: 27.

He sleeps, but not forever,
There comes a glorious dawn;
We shall meet to part oh, never,
On the resurrection morn.

C. E. SULLIVAN.

RUMERY. In Bonny Eagle, Me., Oct. 4th, 1874, Sister Nancy Rumery, aged seventy-three years.

Sr. Rumery sought the Lord when fifteen years of age, and for fifty-eight years showed by her daily walk that there was a reality in the religion she professed. In the declining moments of life the Christ she had loved and served in health stood by to comfort and sustain. May the Lord bless and comfort the sorrowing ones, and bring them to the meeting place of all the good.

J. GAY.

EMERY. In Kennebunk, Me., Oct. 19th, 1874, Charlie H., son of Thomas and Maria Emery, aged about eight years

Charlie was a bright, active little boy, and his loss is deeply felt by his parents, but they mourn not as those without hope. Words of comfort were administered by W. H. Mitchell.

A few more struggles here,
A few more partings o'er;
A few more toils, a few more tears,
And we shall weep no more.

H. A. MITCHELL.

MCRAE. In Kennebunk, Me., Nov. 14th, 1874, youngest child of James and Abbie McRae, aged about eight months.

Within a year the father has been brought to the knowledge of the truth, and given himself to the Savior; and though sorrowful on account of death, yet he is joyful in view of the resurrection. We hope the death of the tender offspring may be a means of bringing the dear mother to confess Christ, that both these parents may be ready for the coming of the Just One.

FOREIGN NEWS.

RUSSIA.

London, Nov. 23. Dispatches from St. Petersburg give accounts of a coflagration in Cronstadt, and report that letters were found threatening similar calamities in other cities. No clue to the incendiaries has been discovered. There was much apprehension in the capital.

New York, Nov. 23. The disastrous fire referred to in a cable dispatch this morning occurred prior to Nov. 5. Nine squares or blocks of houses, including the Gostinni Dwor or Bazaar, were completely destroyed. The mass of houses thus laid in ashes was inhabited by 15,000 people. The buildings consisted of 101 wooden and eighteen stone houses, one church, two chapels, fifty shops in the Gostinni Dwor and seventy-eight shops attached to the Marine barracks. The misery and destitution will be fearful, and committees are being formed in St. Petersburg to assist the sufferers. Cronstadt has no water works.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 23. A serious disturbance has been created in the Medical Academy of the University of St. Petersburg. One professor was compelled to resign. The police were called in and restored order.

Reports are received here from Russian advanced posts that the Turcomans recently attacked a town on the Caspian Sea, killed eighty men, and carried off 150 women and children into slavery. The Russian troops pursued the marauders, but without overtaking them.

The Russian Government declines to order the reoccupation of the Khiva, although Gen. Kauffman advises such a step.

FRANCE.

Paris, Nov. 23. The Moniteur says that Chambord is about to issue another manifesto, and has summoned Duke de Rochefoucauld, Bisaccia and M. M. Ernaud, Barrillier and Lucien Brun to Frohsdorff for consultation.

Paris, Nov. 23. The Republicans were generally successful yesterday in the municipal elections throughout the country. The Conservatives held aloof from the polls.

GERMANY.

London, Nov. 23. The editor of the Berlin Tagesblatt, who is also one of the proprietors, announces that a person intimately connected with Count Von Arnim offered him 35,000 pounds August 19th, for the privilege of influencing the editorials of that journal.

A special from Berlin to the Telegraph reports that press indictments growing out of the Arnim affair abound. The indictments have been laid against the Frankfort Gazette.

SHOCKING CRUELTY OF A MOTHER.—Mary Janisch, a dissolute woman, is in the Tombs for roasting her child to death yesterday. The neighbors heard the little girl crying, "Mamma, mamma, take me off the stove." The door was securely locked and barred. A fire escape which ran along the front of the building and just outside the rooms, which were in the second story, was ascended, a window being smashed by the crowd. The woman was reeling around the room in drunken frenzy, and the little girl was sitting on the stove, her limbs and hands burnt. Her flesh was hissing and shriveling on the stove, which she was vainly endeavoring to get off, but she had not the strength to do so, and her little voice was growing fainter and fainter. An onslaught was made on the heavy door with axes and clubs. The door was finally opened by the woman, though she had taken care to put the little girl to bed, and denied that she was in the rooms. Guided, however, by the sobbings of the little one, she was found in a bed in the next room, where the drunken but cunning mother had made a hurried effort to hide her. The child lingered in agony Saturday night.

TO VERMONTERS.—At our annual conference at Bethel, the State Committee were urged to carry the gospel of the kingdom into every new field which opened a door, and especially to offer a week of labor for any five dollars pledged by an isolated brother or sister living in a new field. This was to encourage individual effort and sacrifice on the part of the isolated. We want to hear immediately from those places where labors are desired, that we may make due arrangements to meet the demands. If you are too poor to raise five dollars, and yet the door is open for a meeting, write us just the same as though you raised the money. Write to me at Waterbury, Vt., or to A. A. Hoyt, Plainfield, Vt. Write full particulars of circumstances, people, time, and place. Write soon.

H. F. CARPENTER, President of Conference.

HAVING moved from Fonthill, Canada, Ont., to Utica, Mich., I would say to the brethren that I purpose, the coming winter (the Lord willing), to labor in the cause of my Master by holding forth the gospel of the coming kingdom, as the Lord may open the way. WE, the Board of Trustees of the Advent Christian Church of Westerly, R. I., have employed Eld. "A pamphlet of 60 pages (by W. N. Pile), giving an exposition of Rev. 2: 3. The epistles to the 'seven churches of Asia' (the author thinks) are shown to have been prophetic of the seven periods of the gospel age, in addition to their local application. An epitome of church history, from the apostolic age to the present time, is given, leading to the conclusion that we are now in the closing part of the Laodicean period, near the end of the dispensation and the establishment of the kingdom of God upon the earth. Price, single copy, postpaid, 15 cts.; two copies, 25 cts."

An interesting Tract. We hope it may do much good. "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."

"History of the Second Advent Message, Doctrine and People."

This work is now ready for all. It contains the history of the rise and progress of the proclamation of the Second Advent of Christ, near at hand, from A. D. 1820 to the present time, in America, Europe, Asia, and Africa; with sketches of the great reformations accompanying it; of many of the chief pioneers associated with it; the great opposers, and their futile efforts to defeat the work. Records of its rapid progress, and of many of the remarkable manifestations of God's guiding hand in the work. Discussions, lectures, sermons, dialogues, and chief points of doctrine advocated by the various classes of believers in the Lord's soon coming.

Records and tables of the prophetic times of Daniel and John, as advocated by the chief Protestant writers, all of whom terminate the periods between 1836 and 1880. A sketch of Luther and his times, compared with ours. His portrait, and portraits of twenty Second Advent pioneers, with discourses on Daniel 2nd, 7th and 8th chapters, illustrated with fine wood cuts, with much other valuable matter.

Our subscribers will be supplied at prices agreed on when orders with cash (and 20 cts. for postage) are received. All who wish to buy the work will be supplied, postpaid, at $3.50. As our object is not to make money, but to have this message and its history go as far and as cheap as possible, we put it as low as we can. We have endeavored to make it a book that all who are really associated in this great movement will buy, and that real inquirers will think best to buy. The book contains 711 octavo pages, neatly bound in cloth, gilt side.

"THE BIBLE DOCTRINE OF THE SOUL."

An Answer to the Question: "Is the Popular Conception of the Soul that of Holy Scripture?"

BY CHAS. L. IVES, M. D.

Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Yale College.

This is a pamphlet of 119 pages, in which the Author discusses the above question in an interesting and able manner,—showing the material nature of, the mortality and destiny of the Soul,—A future immortality to be the special portion of the Righteous,—What the Bible teaches as to the future of the Wicked,—The intermediate state,—The Resurrection,—That of the Righteous and of the Wicked, etc.

The Author claims that the doctrine set forth,—"Honors God, exalts the Bible, insures preaching of future punishment, subverts Universalism and Infidelity, errors of Romanism, of Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, helps in work of Missions, rightly values the body, brings Christian unity, and promotes personal holiness."

We are much pleased with this work. It ought to have a wide circulation. We have a good supply, and hope the friends will order freely. We will sell at the following prices:—25 cts. per copy; $2.00 per dozen, sent by mail; $15.00 per hundred, by express. AG'T.

"I SHALL BE SATISFIED."

MARY I. HERRON.

"I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness."—PSALM 17 : 15.

When I awake, in the morning,
Free from every taint of sin—
Arrayed in robes, pure, spotless, white—
Reflecting thy dear image bright,
"I shall be satisfied!"

When I awake, in the morning,
Gone will be my crushing pain!
Vanished all my tears and sighing
For the joys so quickly flying!
"I shall be satisfied!"

When I awake, in the morning,
O, what happy meetings then!
Long lost voices will greet my ear—
Missed and mourned for many a year—
"I shall be satisfied!"

When I awake, in the morning,
Life's path now blindly trod,
With footsteps often falt'ring, failing—
Illumed will be, God's plans revealing,
"I shall be satisfied!"

When I awake, in the morning,
Death's night forever past,
Christ will his promises fulfill;
Tired soul! in patience wait his will,
"And then be satisfied!"

THE FIERCE EUROPEAN STRUGGLE AT HAND.

The following passages in some of the speeches at the great meeting against Ultramontanism in Glasgow, show how observant thinkers foresee a great conflict to be impending:—

Colonel Macdonald, the chairman, said—We cannot forget that it was here we heard but a few months ago those remarkable utterances, which struck so sharply on the ear of Britain, from the present Premier. Speaking in this hall of what he called "the contest commencing in Europe between the spiritual and temporal powers" he said—"I think we ought to be prepared. The position of England is one which is indicated, if dangers arise, of holding no middle course upon these matters. It may be open to England again to take her stand for the Reformation which three hundred years ago was the source of her greatness and her glory; and it may be her proud destiny to guard civilization alike from the withering blast of atheism and the simoom of sacerdotal usurpation. If that struggle comes, we must look to Scotland to aid us. It was once, and I hope is still, a land of liberty, of patriotism, of religion." Another statesman of modern days, as eminent as the present Premier—I mean Lord Palmerston—said, not many years ago, that the day would come when we should again hear of religious wars in Europe. It seems as if they were not far distant. The forces are arrayed on each side, and no quarter will be given or taken. The banners display on our side the principles of order, of justice; on the other of darkness, of error, of anarchy.

Rev. Dr. Begg said—"Great statesmen have lately hinted at the probability of approaching convulsions of intense magnitude in Europe. This has no doubt a reference to the probable struggle for the restoration of the Pope to his temporal supremacy. There is every reason to believe that the late Franco-German war, following on the declaration of Papal infallibility, arose from a desire to crush Protestantism in its mightiest Continental stronghold. The result, however, was in the gracious providence of God the very reverse. France was conquered. Germany was triumphant, and the Pope was ousted from his temporal dominion. The object of the Vatican is now to reverse all this, and so soon as there is a monarchy in France, or perhaps also in Spain, the restoration of the Pope to his personal sovereignty will probably be attempted by force of arms. This will be resisted no doubt by Italy and Germany, and will probably thus end in a European war. The Romanists over Europe have made a league of St. Sebastian, ready to take part in the bloody fray.

Dr. Manning seems to glory and exult in the prospect of all this. He is reported to have said, at a meeting held in Willis' Rooms, London, on January 25th, 1874:—'The excited antagonism of the nations of Europe is founded on a fact' (the temporal power of the Pope) 'full of consolations.' 'Instead of being alarmed, or scared, or discouraged, by the great sharpening of animosity, and the great massing together of antagonists, I look upon it as the most beautiful sign.' 'Now, when nations have revolted, and when they have dethroned, as far as men can dethrone, the Vicar of Jesus Christ, and when they have made the usurpation of the Holy City a part of international law, when all this has been done, there is only one solution of the difficulty—a solution, I fear, impending, and that is, the terrible scourge of Continental war—a war which will exceed the horrors of any of the wars of the First Empire. I do not see how this can be averted."'

Rev. Dr. Wylie of Edinburgh said—I have long felt and often said that when there would come the day of the Church of Rome's extremity, would come the day of our peril. It was easy to enforce that, so long as she was permitted to retain her temporal sovereignty, and the Pope was able to rank himself among the other crowned heads, that she would study to keep on something like good terms with the nations; but that, should she be stript of all, and driven forth crownless and kingdomless, then woe to the nations: she would take a signal revenge. She may now be said to be stripped of all her temporal power, and brought down to what she was twelve hundred years ago, and now she plainly tells us the hour is come! For what? For wrapping her mantle gracefully around her and dying? No! She tells us that the hour is come for a stand-up fight, and that she will fight it out to the last. But you say that is madness. With what will she fight? she has neither army nor fleet. But the folly lies with those who believe in nothing that they do not see.

Despite all the reverses that have overtaken her, the Church of Rome is still, as regards the sinews of war—as regards material force, the strongest confederacy on the face of the earth. If she can manage to raise Don Carlos to the throne of Spain, and the Prince Imperial to the throne of France, she will have the fleets and armies of at least two kingdoms at her service. But even failing in this, has she not the vast majority of the populations of these two kingdoms at her back? Has she not the majority even in Italy? Has she not fourteen millions in Bavaria; five millions in Ireland; millions more in Canada and United States; millions more scattered up and down in Europe? Has she not, at a moderate calculation, some fifty millions which the doctrine of Papal Infallibility gives her the means of uniting into one phalanx, of setting in motion by a single hand, and of precipitating like an avalanche upon Christianity and liberty. Rome may well say to the Protestant, "Hast thou seen the treasures of the hail which I have reserved against the day of battle and of war?"

"We shall soon see," says the Voce della Verita, the organ of the Jesuits, "all Christendom divided into two camps, on the one side the champions of Christ and his church; on the other the servants of Belial. We shall pass, continues that paper, "through severe conflicts, but the history of eighteen centuries assure us of final victory." I tell you, you have to do with a power capable of forming the boldest scheme—a scheme equal to the crisis that has come upon her, and which has the courage to execute it. You have to do with a power which slowly ripens her plans, bides her time, and then suddenly leaps out of the darkness to wrap cities in civil war, and kingdoms in revolution. It is a sudden and nameless peril of that sort that overhangs at this hour all Christendom, and our own country among others. All is now in peril; and though the fight may be a hard one, we cannot decline it save at the cost of accepting something harder still—of accepting revolution and ruin.—Signs of our Times.

WHOLLY THE LORD'S.

C. DAGGETT.

Many say they have given themselves to the Lord—they are wholly his. That is a good deal to say. Many think they have, but when tested find they have not. They think they have all on the altar, and wonder like poor Cain why they are not blest as much as others. Those who are wholly the Lord's have peace like a river; they have what the world cannot give or take away,—solid comfort by night and day. They are the Lord's, to do his will. They love to do it. It is their meat. No matter what it is. If to give to the poor, they will do so cheerfully. They love to give a hundred dollars as well as a hundred cents, because the Lord says so. When it is hard to obey the Lord, we may know we are not wholly his. When we see our brother or sister in need, and are not willing to give them, we may know all is not on the altar; for the Bible says if we see them in need, and do not give them, the love of God is not in us.

Many try to make the brethren think they have given all, so as to be highly esteemed by them, like Ananias and Sapphira; but the Lord knows all about it, and will not be mocked. None but the pure in heart will stand before him in that great and terrible day which is right upon us. And only those that are wholly his, and can sing from the heart, "My all to Christ I've given," will be saved. The Lord is coming. He is at the door, just ready to take possession of this earth and reign under the whole heaven. But how few believe it, and are getting ready for it. Most all are putting it off, and will be taken unawares. It will come upon them like a thief.

O let us all see to it, and search our hearts, and know that we are truly the Lord's, and that all is on the altar. There is no time to be idle, or at ease. Time is so short, what is done must be done quickly. The harvest is great, and faithful laborers are few. There are some isolated ones, that have no preaching only what they have through the Crisis, and Bible, and books. How much good the brethren and sisters can do by writing, and showing the people where we are living—on the last inch of time. O Lord, help the watchmen and people to sound the warning and save poor perishing souls before it is too late.

EXPERIENCE.

J. W. THOMAS.

"We know that we have passed from death unto life."—1 JOHN 3 : 14.

Tell your experience. One fact which a person knows by experience, is worth more than a thousand arguments from mere book knowledge. Some professed christians have had no experience, consequently they cannot relate any.

I heard of a stranger who was traveling through the West at one time, and it happened on one occasion that he was entertained at the house of a farmer. In the course of the evening, their conversation turned to the subject of christian experience. The stranger expressed a wish to hear the experience of his host. "Wife," said the farmer, "go up stairs and get a paper, which you will find on one of the beams that run across the chamber." "My dear husband," said the wife, "the mice ate that paper a long time ago." "What?" said he, "that was my experience." I apprehend that the experiences of a great many are something like this man's;—when they look for it, it is not there; the mice, or something else has eaten it, or carried it away. Now I think that an experience in books, or papers, or an old musty manuscript, is not sufficient. I think there is something better than this for every true believer. I have heard individuals relate a long, dry account of when, and where, and by whom they were converted, and they seemed in some measure to trust in that old dead experience for salvation, not realizing that it was their privilege to have a richer, sweeter, clearer, and more heavenly experience every day. If I understand the christian life, there is no go back to it;—it is on, on, on, to complete and everlasting victory. It is to know more of God, of Christ, of the Holy Spirit, of heaven, of divine truth every day. Not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, but going on unto perfection.

When an individual knows for himself his own acceptance into the Divine favor,—when he knows that his Redeemer lives, and that he has passed from death unto life,—when he knows that the love of God has been shed abroad in his heart by the Holy Ghost, that he is in Christ, and Christ in him, that his prayers are heard and answered, in a word, when he knows that he is wholly the Lord's, then he can pour forth a testimony that will cut like a two edged sword; then he can tell an experience that will be worth hearing, and that will fall with convincing power on the ears of unbelievers.

O for living, flaming, burning, melting, searching, Holy Ghost testimonies! What the world needs, is a living church, baptized with holy fire from on high. Away with dead forms and lifeless ceremonies! Give us something that has salvation in it. Salvation is what we want—present salvation, living, sparkling, gushing, overflowing, ever-abiding. Away with dry sermons, long hymns, and dead prayers! Give us pith, point, pathos, enthusiasm, right down old-fashioned earnestness. Give us clear, explicit, thorough, unmistakable ever growing, never yielding christians. Give us something besides old mouldy, mice-eaten, white bread. The warm "manna" right from heaven is what we want. O for a baptism of power! O for a wave of salvation to sweep over the church and wash away everything that is unholy in Zion. O for a holy, honest ministry, and a holy, liberal laity. Covetousness is a great sin. May the eternal Spirit search the camp. Is it possible that men and women can sleep on the verge of a volcano? Up, up, my brother. Up, up, my sister. Where art thou? Are you all right? Others need salvation. Tell them what the Lord has done for you.

A SALT WATER CAMPMEETING.

H. MUNGER.

There has been much talk, for a few years, about having a campmeeting near the salt water for our back-country people to get a salt water breeze, with fishing and bathing privileges, without going to the expense of patronizing popular watering places. We have found a good location in Seabrook, N. H., six miles east from Newburyport, and eleven miles west of Portsmouth. The grove has about four acres, well watered; their being a good pure brook running through the ground. It is within fifty rods of the depot at Seabrook, on the Eastern R. R., with twelve passenger trains running daily, and within seventy-five rods and in plain sight of Old Ocean. It will be a good opportunity for many who want to get to the salt water. The fare will be reduced on the railroad. The Seabrook church, which is the largest of seven in town, with the inhabitants interested, met and chose a committee of seven, from five different towns, and they have taken leases of the land; and if the Lord will, or if he does not come before, there will be a campmeeting about the middle of August next, or between the Springfield and Alton Bay meetings.

The committee give this early notice that all may know there is a Salt-water Campmeeting appointed in Seabrook. The chapel is within thirty rods of the camp-ground, which will probably be the boarding-house for those who do not choose to board themselves; which they can do cheap, as most of the people are gardeners or fishermen, and sell cheap; or you can dig your own clams and catch your own fish. There is plenty of good, dry, level tent-ground, and board houses can be built cheap, as lumber is handy. Everything considered, this is the best location for such a meeting that I know of near the salt water and a depot. We think it will accommodate many, and do much good in that vicinity. The committee wish the co-operation of the preachers, for they expect a large number at the meeting, as it lies between the two cities, and there will be, we think, a good chance to scatter the truth on new ground. We must all work while the day of probation lasts. For the committee.

PERFECT IN LOVE.

Whedon, commenting on Matt. 5 : 48, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect," says: "Neither St. Paul nor St. James expected that the christians they addressed would be perfect like angels, or even ideally perfect men; not perfect performers of God's absolute law. But they did expect that the law of love might possess a perfect power in their hearts, and in that would consist the perfected character of their piety." And if the law of love—a law which lives and operates, and governs only in the light and under the sanction of the recognized presence of God—does possess a perfect power in our hearts, then our repentance will be deep and thorough, and our abhorrence of sin strong and constant; and then our consecration to Christ and his work will be complete and perpetual.

It is reported of Charles XII., of Sweden, that when he ascended the throne, he wrote on a map of Sweden: "God has given me this kingdom, and the devil shall not take it away from me." In like manner we shall be able, if the law of love rules in our hearts, to write on body, soul and possessions: "These are Christ's and neither self nor Satan shall pervert them to base and unholy uses." Then, too, faith will grasp all the promises of the inspired word, and rely with fullest confidence on the covenant love of God. Then the choice of God's way and work will be cheerful and absolute. Then all malice will be expelled from the heart, and gentleness, kindness, forbearance, patience, and resignation will dwell there like angels. Then service and sacrifice for Jesus and his cause will be rather sought than shunned. Then hope will be exultant, the victory over sin and Satan constant, and the confident assurance of a final triumph over death and hell an abiding and glorious experience.—A. C. George.

ALARMING MILITARY PREPARATIONS IN GERMANY.

A new law for organizing the Landsturm has just been prepared in Germany. In other words, the whole able-bodied population, from the youth of seventeen to the man of sixty, are now to be trained to military service. The Times says upon this—"When Napoleon III. rashly plunged France into war in 1870, he had an army of three hundred thousand men; but the German forces were three times as numerous. The result was that the French army was driven in and crushed. But the German statesmen perceive that this advantage will not be obtained so easily a second time. One thing is beyond a doubt. The new French army is immensely larger than the old one. In fact, if the plans of the French government be carried out, and the finances of the country will bear the strain, no long time will elapse before France will have a national force equal to that of Gemany in 1870. If Germany is to retain its present superiority, this new law may be a necessary measure, but it is an ominous sign that this is the first time in the present century that preparations have been made for organizing the Landsturm in time of peace." The Daily Telegraph also regards it as a portentous event.

The organizing of these vast military hosts is in exact accordance with the prediction in Revelation 16 : 12-16, that at the present time "evil spirits should gather the nations to the war of Armageddon." The result will soon be seen in the most tremendous battles, and "the time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time." Daniel 12 : 1.—Signs of Our Times.

THE 1260 DAYS.

J. R. CLARK.

The number of writers upon the 1260 days of Daniel is legion, and their failures as to finding a suitable epoch of commencing this period is legion also. What has been said upon this subject suggests to the mind the extreme danger and uncertainty of all dogmatical and positive interpretations. Every one thinks his views of the prophetic periods correct. This is natural.

In the years 1807 and 1808 there was a great deal of learned speculation and controversy in England, on the termination of the 1260 years. The most distinguished of those writers were Faber, Newton, Mede, and others. Some that took part in the debates were convinced that 1792 was the ending of the 1260 years. Others directed attention to 1843 as the true date. It is an easy matter for some expositors to compress the revolutions of ages within the narrow limits of a single lifetime. Mr. Faber was firm in his belief that the end of the 1260 years would arrive in 1866, and yet held to the view that seventy-five years more must elapse before the return of the Lord from heaven; 1866 being only the expiration of the "time, times, and a half." Other writers have fixed the close earlier than 1792, and Milner found it to be later than 1866.

There are many things to be taken into consideration in computing prophetic time, and there are features which are almost invariably overlooked. One grand difficulty, of course, in the calculation of a prophetic period is to fix accurately its commencement. As regards the 1260 days, or years, there does not at first sight appear to be any obstacle to fixing upon their true beginning. The period evidently concerns the papal power; and the history of that power is as complete, perhaps, as any history we possess. The work of Bower and Ranke lead us step by step to the first Pope, through the lines of the 259, down to the present claimant of infallibility. Still, with all these materials, opinions greatly differ as to the prophetic rise of the little horn, brought to view in Daniel 7. The date of Justinian's decrees have been selected by some as the time of their commencement, and 1792 to '98 to finish the prophecy relating to this period. Others begin them in 583, which run out in 1843. Others, again, have taken the flight of Mahomet in 606; the terminus being the same as that following from the decree of Phocas, or, as some say, two years later. And some writers give the secular ascendancy of the papacy in 758, as the proper starting point; from this the time would run out in the year 2018.

In studying this subject, there are two things in particular which engage our attention—the spiritual and the secular power of the little horn. Daniel and John speak of the secular strength of the horn. This authority was wielded to "wear out the saints." The political power of the papacy has recovered from several severe shocks; judging from these, it appears hasty to conclude that the last reverse of fortune is final; yet we hope it is. It is very evident that its power has been taken away to put to death those who may differ from them in faith, and they shall consume and destroy it unto the end. Who shall do this work? The powers of earth; and what the powers of earth leave left undone, will be finished when Christ appears. It is very evident from the reading of the prophecy, that the "little horn" will not have power to kill many years before the resurrection takes place.

Marvellous are the changes in this age of the world, and the church of God has every reason to believe she is nearing the resurrection of the dead; and the time is truly at hand when the kingdom will be given to the saints. Let us not run wild in our view, as to the present state of things, because the Lord does not come just at a time we may set for that coming, and say the door of mercy is closed. We ought rather to watch, and pray, and labor on, doing the will of God, for our Lord will soon come; and blessed is that servant whom his Lord, when he cometh, shall find giving meat in due season to the household of faith. We are not to sit down and fold our arms; we are to keep doing till the Master comes; then he will say "Well done." Neither are we justified in embracing any wild speculative views advanced. But let us enquire what the Scriptures teach? What does God say about this matter? Neither are we to give up this hope, but hold fast till he comes. The blessed hope of the soon coming of Jesus and of the kingdom of God is worth just as much now as ever it was. Therefore we are not to cast away our confidence, which has a great recompense of reward.

Gems.

— God by affliction separates the sin that he hates so deadly from the soul that he loves so dearly.

— If every man would reform himself, the world's reformation would be accomplished.

— Scripture knowledge is the candle without which faith cannot see to do its work.

— There is merit without elevation, but there is no elevation without some merit.

WORK, for the night is coming,
Improve each precious hour;
Pray, for the day is dawning,
Day of the Savior's power.
Rest when your labor's ended,
Soon shall the glad day come,
Day of the Savior's promise,
When he shall call us home.

— When God threatens, that's a time to repent; when he promises, that's a time to believe; when he commands, that's a time to obey.

— Every day have higher thoughts of God, lower thoughts of self, kinder thoughts of your brethren, and more hopeful thoughts of all around you.

— We need not be ashamed of that now which we are sure we will not repent of when we come to die.

— He that would be angry and sin not must not be angry with any thing but sin.

Happy were men, if they but understood
There is no safety but in doing good.

— A man may suffer without sinning, but he cannot sin without suffering.

— We reform others unconsciously when we walk uprightly.

— There is more evil in a drop of corruption than in a sea of affliction.

— If a righteous cause brings you into suffering, a righteous God will bring you out of suffering.

— Pennies go for bread and butter, and we live; fortunes go for glory, then we die.

—Christendom paid last year for the support of her war system, two thousand million of dollars. Christians—all who profess and call themselves by that name—paid for missions in the same time, five million of dollars.

SWEAR NOT AT ALL.

An oath is the wrath of a perturbed spirit. It is more. A man of high moral standing would rather treat an offense with contempt, than show his indignation by uttering an oath. It is vulgar. Altogether too low for a decent man. It is cowardly; implying a fear either of not being believed or obeyed. It is ungentlemanly. A gentleman, according to the dictionary, is a genteel man—well-bred and refined. It is indecent, offensive to delicacy, and extremely unfit for human ears. It is foolish. Want of decency is want of sense. It is abusive—to the mind which conceived the oath, to the tongue which uttered it, and to the person to whom it is aimed. It is contemptible; forfeiting the respect of the wise and good. It is wicked; violating the Divine law, and provoking the displeasure of him who will not hold him guiltless, who takes his name in vain.—Selected.

WHO IS MY NEIGHBOR?

Who is my neighbor? It is he whom thou
Hast power to aid and bless;
Whose aching heart or burning brow
Thy soothing hand may press.

Thy neighbor! 'Tis the fainting poor,
Whose eye with want is dim;
Whom hunger sends from door to door,
Go thou and succor him.

Thy neighbor! 'Tis that weary man
Whose years are at their brim;
Bent low with sickness, cares and pain,
Go thou and comfort him.

Thy neighbor! 'Tis the heart bereft
Of every earthly gem;
Widow and orphan, helpless left;
Go thou and shelter them.

HOME AND HEALTH.

EVILS OF TOBACCO USING.

(Concluded.)

HOW TO OVERCOME THE HABIT.

This is the great problem with those who have become convinced that duty to themselves, to their families, and to society, demands that they should abandon the habit which has become almost inseparably fastened upon them by long indulgence; and it is a very important one, for upon its solution depends the ultimate triumph and emancipation of the tobacco slave, or his more hopeless enslavement.

Quite a number of substitutes have been recommended as aids in combating the appetite for tobacco, chief among which is gentian; but they are all alike worthless. Nothing but a firm determination, an unyielding resolution, will avail. Anything which will operate as a substitute must produce somewhat similar effects to those occasioned by tobacco itself; and, consequently is objectionable on the same grounds.

Shall the change be made at once; or may the habit be abandoned by degrees? This question has occasioned much discussion, and opinion seems to be somewhat divided; but our best authorities say, "Abandon the foul thing at once and forever." Experience seems to support this position; for it has been found that a person who adopts the plan of gradual diminution really suffers more in the aggregate than the person who at once discards entirely the use of the weed, although the latter suffers more intensely for a brief period. This has also been found to be the case with liquor drinking.

Do not make the attempt as an experiment. Consider it carefully, candidly, reasonably. Calmly view the terrible consequences which persistence in the habit must bring, not only to yourself, but to your children. Weigh, carefully, all the arguments which have been advanced in the preceding pages, and such others as your own experience may supplement. Then enter upon the conflict with a deep sense of the solemn duty which you are under the deepest obligations to discharge. Never for once think of anything but victory. Remove temptation from yourself as far as possible. Are you a christian? Then do not fail to avail yourself of that never failing source of strength which none but the christian enjoys. By means of the encouragement and assistance which religion affords, many a poor victim of the tobacco habit has been reclaimed who had struggled in vain with his vice when only assisted by his own enervated will and palsied resolution.

Attention to the general habits is of the utmost importance as an element of success. The nervous system has been shattered by long abuse; and when the stimulating influence of tobacco is withdrawn, the unhappy individual soon finds what mischief has been wrought. He quickly ascertains his real status, the actual strength of his nervous organization. When he finds himself thus brought down to his true level, what should he do? Would it be wise for him to stimulate his flagging energies with strong tea or coffee, a little wine, or brandy? This would be only hiding the real condition without remedying it. Stimulation is just what has worked all this mischief; no. Avoid stimulation most carefully. Give the poor nervous sufferer rest—rest of both body and mind. A man who has been long accustomed to the use of tobacco should not attempt to pursue his customary avocations when leaving off his habit. He will be fretful, irritable, vacillating, "all out of sorts," perhaps a little "flighty," or even delirious. He must have such associations as will be calculated to counteract these conditions. Surround him with cheerful society and pleasant diversions, so that his mind may be drawn from himself and his morbid sensations, until nature has time to rearrange her disturbed functions and marshall her scattered forces.

The patient should eat rather sparingly, a light diet of pleasant and nutritious fruits and grains being preferable. A warm bath three or four times a week should be administered. When he feels more than usually restive, with headache and general discomfort, a warm foot-bath with the application of cloths wet in hot water to the head will be quite certain to give relief. A few days of patient perseverance in this course will result in complete emancipation of the most inveterate tobacco-user. More than one or two weeks are never required.

A change of air and scenery, recreation, and moderate exercise, are very useful auxiliaries in the effort to overcome the tobacco habit.—Health Reformer.

HOW TO LIVE CHEAPLY.

How to live cheaply is a question easy enough to answer, if one will be content with cheap living. Substitute comfort for show. Put convenience in the place of fashion. Study simplicity. Refuse to be beguiled into a style of living above what is required by your position in society, and is justified by your resources. Set a fashion of simplicity, neatness, prudence and inexpensiveness, which others will be glad to follow, and thank you for introducing. Teach yourself to be without a thousand and one pretty and showy things which wealthy people purchase, and pride yourself on being just as happy without them as your rich neighbors are with them. Put so much neatness, dignity, sincerity, kindness, virtue and love into your simple and inexpensive home that its members will never miss the costly fripperies and showy adornments of fashion, and be happier in the cozy and comfortable apartments than most of their wealthy neighbors are in their splendid establishments, and with their more expensive surroundings.

It does not follow that, in order to live cheaply one must live meanly. The great staples of life are not costly. Taste, refinement, good cheer, wit, and even elegance, are inexpensive. There is no trouble about young people marrying with no outfit but health and love, and an honest purpose, provided they will practice the thrift and prudence to which their grandparents owed all their success, and make their thought and love supply what they lack in the means of display. Those who begin life at the top of the ladder generally tumble off, while those who begin at the foot acquire steadiness, courage, and strength of arm and will as they rise.—Selected.

REGULARITY OF MEALS.

It has been demonstrated that, at certain intervals, when food is received into the stomach, gastric juice is secreted to digest it, and that no more gastric juice is secreted than is required for the digestion of the proper quantity of food.

If a person eat twice or thrice a day, at regular periods, the gastric juice is secreted by the stomach to digest the food it has received. If, while the food is being digested, more food is introdnced into the stomach, digestion, in relation to the food already in the stomach, is arrested. For instance: a person takes in the morning a piece of bread and several potatoes; now, it will take about three hours for the stomach to dispose of that food. Suppose the person, about an hour after eating this food, takes a piece of bread and an apple or two; what would happen? The digestion that was going on in the stomach would immediaiely stop, and not be resumed until the food that was received last was brought into the condition of the first. Suppose he took food every hour, what would be the consequence? The stomach would become prematurely worn out, and could do nothing perfectly—working all of the time without rest. But if the person possessed a good constitution and a large amount of vital power, he would not feel at first this drain upon his system, but sooner or later he would have to pay the penalty of outraged nature. For instance: a person may have a large capital in bank; he can live upon the interest very well, but he draws upon his capital. He does not feel this drain at first, because he has so large a bank account; but if he keeps on he will become sooner or later a bankrupt.

Some persons have an enormous amount of vitality—good constitutions. It is said of these persons nothing hurts them; they can eat and drink anything with impunity. This is a fatal mistake; see how many years of life they are cutting off by such foolishness. If such persons live to the age of seventy or eighty, they might have reached the age of one hundred or more years, by better dietetic habits.—D. D. Stewart, in Science of Health.

TEA AND COFFEE.—How injurious to the health of thousands is the use of strong tea and coffee. True, they are not poisonous, like tobacco and alcohol, but their effects are none the less observable. Coffee causes a great variety of symptoms. It causes a peculiar form of headache which commences in the morning. Both coffee and tea tend to palliate the symptoms they cause; hence the absurd idea that they cure the very disease that they produce. Coffee excites the bowels to unnatural activity, and consequently weakens the digestive organs; and it is, too, a fruitful cause of licentiousness, from its exciting properties. Tea causes headache, violent palpitation of the heart, and a peculiar gone feeling at the pit of the stomach. It is said that the tea-drinkers of China, who indulge freely, are thin and weak, and of a leaden complexion, with black teeth, and are very subject to diabetes. Coffee and tea excite the nervous system and brain, and hasten a premature development, and consequent premature decay of the body and mental faculties.

CONDIMENTS.—Condiments, spices, pickles, etc., tend only to inflame the mucous membrane of the stomach and produce irritation. Let mustard or pepper be placed as a poultice upon the back of the hand, and it will raise a blister. Is it, then, reasonable to put such articles into the stomach? The natural acuteness of the taste is destroyed by the use of condiments, and plain food becomes insipid. A horse or cow will not touch these things; and a child will not until he sees his parents do it, and then by imitation he acquires a habit which is rarely mastered, but constitutes a life-long enemy to health.

While we are speaking of food, we must say that Americans, as a rule, eat too fast. They do not give themselves time to perfectly masticate their food; they bolt it; they do not give the saliva a chance to mix with the food as it is swallowed, and thus the sensation of hunger may be appeased without obtaining from the food eaten a sufficient quantity of nourishment to support the body.

TOBACCO.—We do not propose to enter into any controversy with those who use tobacco, but we must, as public chroniclers, tell them of all the statistical facts that reach us, from time to time, upon this as upon other matters. It is clearly shown, on reliable authority, that in Germany, Holland, the United States and in England, tobacco costs more than bread! a fact which carries a powerful argument upon its face. A startling assertion it is that we pay more for a poison than for the staff of life. An able physician of this city lately declared that tobacco was often the secret cause of the growing affliction called paralysis, and many a person suffers therefrom because he has for years poisoned his nerves with the nicotine of tobacco.—Boston Globe.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 996. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1874. VOL. XL.—NO. 9.

The World's Crisis, AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER, Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, by the ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, At No. 160 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.

GEO. T. ADAMS, Treasurer and Business Agent.

JOHN COUCH, MILES GRANT, } Editors.

The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

SOON.

I know not if He come at eve,
Or night, or morn, or noon;
I know the breeze of twilight grey,
That fans the cheek of dying day,
Doth ever whisper—soon!

I know not why our souls should doubt
His promise to appear,
When every flower's opening eye
Looks up into the changing sky,
And seems to murmur—near!

I know not round his blessed feet
What peerless glories throng;
I only know from rending tomb
The good shall burst, in beauty's bloom;
And faith assures—not long!

I know not if his chariot wheels
Yet near or distant are;
I only know each thunder-roll
Doth wake an echo in my soul,
That saith—not very far!

I know not if we long must wait
The summer of his smile;
I only know that hope doth sweep
With thrilling touch my heart-strings deep,
And sings—a little while!

I know not on this glorious theme
Why lips so oft are dumb;
I only know the saddened earth
Will flush with beauty and with mirth
At sound of "Lo, I come!"

CHRISTIAN UNITY.

T. L. WAUGH.

"That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me."—John 17: 21

Among all true christians there is a oneness in Jesus which unites their hearts in love and fellowship, irrespective of denominational differences of opinion. When this divine principle thoroughly permeates the heart, it flows out in acts of love and in deeds of kindness, enabling its possessor to co-operate with all God's people in the holy work of soul-saving, and to labor for the entire sanctification of all believers. In this sense christians are one. In union there is strength, and vice versa. Were all who profess to be the followers of the Savior imbued with this spirit; were all who have taken the vows of God upon them, and who have made a good profession before many witnesses, filled with the spirit of their Master and animated by the love they profess to bear for him, the work of God would prosper where now it languishes into decline and deadness.

It was the love of Christ which constrained the apostles in their labors of love; it was this which enabled them to face the common foe, and to carry on successfully the work of the evangelization of mankind. Were all possessed of the same union of spirit and of effort in this age, the Redeemer's cause would be a universal triumph. There would be no lack of missionary labor, nor of funds to prosecute the work of missionary enterprise. Much has been accomplished in this direction, but more might have been had the church been a unit in this relation. It has been truly remarked that the church is the Christian world. "I am the vine, ye are the branches." As God and his Son are one, so are christians. There is a connecting link intertwining in one the great body of which Christ is the head. If one member suffers, the rest share in the affliction. They are one in spirit, one in love, one in union, under one Leader.

How shall we best proclaim to the world that Jesus came and offered up himself a sacrifice for fallen humanity, that he might have a seed to serve him? By harmony of action in his service. By demonstrating in our lives the holy gospel we profess. Not simply by precept, but by example. In this age of unbelief and skepticism, when many deny the divinity of the blessed Savior, it becomes those who are his followers to stand up in defense of the truth, and to show by their lives that there is a saving power in the gospel of Christ.

Nothing can withstand the power of holiness; and there is nothing that Satan hates so much. If we would see men brought to Christ, we must, universally, as christians, "come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty." We must come up to the standard of christian perfection, and whatsoever we do, do all to the glory of God. Nothing else will unite but perfect love. Hearts must be won, if they are led to the foot of the cross; if we would lead them to the "Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world," we must unite together in holy zeal for the accomplishment of the one great object for which he came into the world. He came not to condemn the world (for they were already condemned), but that the world through him might be saved. When we are fully in sympathy with him, we shall go on errands of mercy as he did; we shall seek the salvation of men because we feel interested in their welfare, and delight to imitate our Lord, who went about doing good; who was "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief"; who set us an example of suffering affliction and patience.

As his children let us seek that oneness and fulness which we need as a necessary qualification for usefulness in his service. Let us go forward, baptized into one spirit, prepared for every good work, presenting a bold front to the enemy, who cannot withstand a vigorous attack when directed by the Spirit of God. We must take a bold stand against sin, and instead of being conformed to the world, be transformed through the renewing of our minds. There is a marked difference between a christian and a worldling. The one is actuated by love to God, while the other is depraved in his nature, and loves the vanities of this life. We must condemn sin, whether in the professor or in the avowed sinner. There can necessarily be no union with those who merely rely on a profession, but who are destitute of the saving quality within. The command is to come out from the world and be separate. This we insist upon as followers of Him whom we serve.

Taking the Word of God as our only guide, we there learn that the only real union between christians is that which is founded on the principles of the gospel, and not on human creeds. The love of God revealed to the soul will diffuse in the outward life a sweetness and fragrance that nothing else can. We are one with Christ by this divine union, and one with all of our heavenly Father's family. Heaven will be the common home for the saints of every name or condition. Realizing this fact, we shall be impelled unitedly to engage with all our powers of mind and soul in the noble work to which we have been called, and to keep our eye fixed on the prize that is to be won when the toils of this mortal life are over, and we stand on the shores of eternal deliverance. May we all be there.

THE JUDGMENT.

C. MENDENHALL.

In this age we have many judgments, by various tribunals, as the judgments of the courts, of counsels, and of men. To distinguish one great and final trial, we speak of the last judgment, a time when the actions of mankind, irrespective of person or position, will receive an impartial criticism, and a just reward or punishment, according to the deserts of the case.

1. That there will be a general judgment is evident from the plain declarations of Scripture. 2. The justice of God requires it, as in this dispensation we find iniquity flourishing, and righteousness struggling for an existence.

In writing to the Thessalonians Paul says—"Seeing it is a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you. And to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." All the Scripture writers tell us of a great day of settlement; and from Enoch (the seventh from Adam) down to John the Revelator, we are impressed of the importance, the necesssity and certainty of a grand assize. "Because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained."

3. The accusing conscience of man at times proves the truth of a future reckoning. We see when one is visited by some dire calamity, or invidious disease, he awakens to a sense of duty and a dread of the future. The reasoning drawn from the infallible Word arouses men; as was the case when Paul spoke of righteousness and judgment to come, it is said, "Felix trembled." Again in Romans 2: 15 and 16 we read—"... Their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts the meanwhile accusing, or else excusing one another. In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ, according to my gospel."

Men are the rational creatures of God, placed on probation, and accountable to him for their thoughts and deeds. As dependents upon him, and his subjects, we become obnoxious to punishment by disobedience to the mandates of the Divine Lawgiver; which facts are in favor of a conclusion that there will be a day "To execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against him." A positive proof is given us in the resurrection of Jesus. He died, and yet eventually conquered death, and burst the bars of Hades, as an earnest of a future day of which God has "given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead." Acts 17: 31. In Romans 14: 9–10 we read—"For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living."

"But why dost thou judge thy brother? or why dost thou set at nought thy brother? for we shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ." A few quotations of Scripture prove the question beyond doubt or dispute. In 2 Cor. 5: 10 we read "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." Matthew 25th chapter gives a description of a time "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory. And before him shall be gathered all nations, and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats." Paul says—"So then, every one of us shall give account of himself to God." Rom. 14: 12.

From the texts we have quoted, it appears that Christ who so often and by so many important events has been in close relation to our world will be conspicuous in the closing scene as a judge. One who will mete out justice without improper motives, bribes or partiality. The same Jesus who came in humility, who served man by an ignominious death, will come so that every eye shall see him;—those who are his chosen, and those who are evil; they who pierced him, they who despise his laws, all shall see his majestic power and glory, for he shall be vested with full authority. John says—"Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him." He will uncover all hidden evil, hypocrisy will be exposed; "therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and will make manifest the counsels of the hearts." 1 Cor. 4: 5.

The holy angels will be with him, and all will acknowledge the justice and wisdom of Him with whom we have to do. All mankind shall be judged; none can escape the all-seeing eye of Him who searcheth the heart of man. Devils, evil spirits, which now are possessed with preterhuman powers, shall no longer deceive by their strong delusions, but shall justly be sentenced to that punishment which is reserved for the devil and all of his angels. "Seducing spirits" no longer shall make havoc of faith, for they shall be utterly destroyed from the presence of God and the glory of his power.

A pertinent question here naturally arises, When is this appointed day? We think we can truly say it is now even at the door. The earth with its burdensome load of sin and sinners groaneth and travaileth for deliverance. This deliverance is soon to come, as can be abundantly proved by prophecy, and is evident by the signs of this our day. A great era is fast advancing, a change is about to be produced, a mighty revolution which shall shake the universe, destroying the inventions of man, the frail monuments of his weakness, is about to dawn upon an astonished and affrighted world. Men may cry peace and safety, they may put off the day, but He will come and will not tarry.

Soon there will be a sudden stoppage in the whirl of society; the last bride will be given in marriage, the last house will be pulled down to build greater, the last grain of sand will fall from the hour-glass of time, the last repentent rebel saved, and will you be shut out? As in the days of Noah the floods came suddenly and surely, swallowing up the unrighteous scoffers, so now they who sneer at judgment will cry for rocks and hills to hide them from the wrath of him who is justly offended.

That there will be such a day none who base their faith upon the Scriptures can deny. Therefore, let us "watch and pray, for in an hour when ye think not the Son of man cometh." A merciful God has long withheld punishment, that the way of life might continue open; for God is love, "who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth." He bore long with the antediluvians, the Sodomites and others who had timely warnings, but the time of mercy expired, and the punishment was inflicted, which justice and mercy could no longer consistently withhold. The earth now reels with iniquity in every form, infidelity of every shade. The cup of God's wrath is almost full, and soon the door will be shut.

In view of this let us sound far and wide with distinctive earnestness, the cry "Behold he cometh."

Finally, reader, in the name of Him who died that you might live, by a compliance with certain conditions, we would say that even the judgment may be shorn of its terrors by faith in and obedience to Christ. He stands ready to save to the uttermost all who will believe and trust in him. Will you not haste then to the Rock of safety,—the sure Defense? Will you longer hesitate to form an alliance with one who is so mighty, merciful and good? The judgment is coming; are you ready to meet the Judge with confidence, knowing that there is no condemnation to them that are in Christ?

Fellow watchmen, let us trim our lamps, and be ready to enter in to the marriage supper of the Lamb. Then, in the midst of destructive power and executive judgment, we can safely trust in Jesus, saying with Peter while old things are rolled up as a scroll and melt like wax, "Nevertheless, we, according to his promise, look for a new heavens and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness." "Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent, that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot and blameless."

A SOLILOQUY?

B. A. BOYNTON.

Here am I, a little speck as it were, floating along upon the boundless sea of time. A little while ago and I was not; again a little while and I shall be gone. How came I here, and why? and where am I going to? In all the endless ages yet to come, what is there in store for me?

There is an old book, called the Bible, which claims to tell us all about these things. It says that far away in heaven, there dwells a mighty and everlasting God, who made us to live, and move, and have our being. That he loves us, and cares for us, and desires to make us eternally happy in his glorious kingdom. That if we follow the instructions of this book, we shall never lack any good thing. But some tell us that this book is not true; that it is full of absurdities and contradictions, and no dependence can be placed upon its statements. I wish I knew the truth in the matter. If there is anything I can do to secure a home of joy and peace, where I may live forever, after this little thread of life is spun out, I wish to do it. If I knew positively that the Bible was a fable, and that nothing I could do in this life would make any difference with my condition hereafter, then I would settle down quietly and bide my time. But I do not know; and if, in the end, the Bible should prove to be true, how I shall wish I had known it. If I knew that there was a God in heaven who looked down upon me kindly and lovingly, how gladly would I do whatever he bade me, so that he would be pleased to own and bless me here and hereafter.

If I were lost in a dense forest, and knew not that a human being was within a hundred miles of me, yet would I call at the top of my voice, for there might possibly be some one who would hear me, and show me the way to go. Why may I not call upon God in the same way? If he does not exist, it can do no harm; and if he really does exist, would he not hear my voice and make himself known unto me? Most assuredly he would; for the Bible says that "The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him; to all that call upon him in truth." Psalm 145: 18. Now I am resolved what to do. I will ask for myself, that I may know for a certainty whether or not there be a God in heaven who loves and cares for those who dwell on earth.

GROWTH.

"To increase in size by a natural and organic process—to increase in bulk by the gradual assimilation of new matter into the living organism," may, by a slight figure of speech, be true of the "carnal mind." It possesses inherent vitality, and may be capable of increase by development, may become larger and stronger by a natural process, like a plant or animal body. But certainly the same cannot be true of growth in grace, for grace is not inherent in man. In a state of nature there is no grace to grow or develop by natural process or in any other way. It is an exotic and not indigenous or natural to the soil of the human heart. The carnal in man, needs no cultivation. It grows not only without fostering care, but in spite of counteracting efforts. The efforts may check, but nothing short of regeneration will prevent its growth. Even after regeneration, the old remains naturally grow. They may be kept down by the aid of grace, but must be eradicated or growth is then law. Not so with grace in the heart. All experience testifies that there is no natural growth, no increase or enlargement by development, and that the tendency is to die, only as watered and fed from above. The life, fire, zeal, of the new convert don't live and grow, like the carnal nature, without fostering care, but only by the use of such means as secure new supplies from heaven, with ceaseless frequency.

And then, though saved by grace, it is through faith, and the faith that gains conquests, and secures additions to former attainments, as a distinct, instantaneous act of the soul, claiming in the name and through the merit of Christ, specifically the things obtained. Power to believe "with the heart unto righteousness" like power to act, is the gift of God, but its exercise is as really the act of the creature in the one case as the other. The faith of reliance or a uniform confidence or trust in the atonement, at most keeps the believer from backsliding or losing ground. Indeed, he who does not press forward, make new conquests and reach higher attainments, does lose ground. By common consent, there is no such thing as standing still. To make no progress is to slide back. And here is seen the radical difference between nature and grace, in applying the idea of growth. If no efforts, or only feeble efforts are made to prevent it, the carnal nature grows by a natural process. On the other hand, if no efforts, or only feeble efforts are made, by using the means of grace, to foster growth in religion, there is not only no increase but loss, while increase if secured, is not by an insensible development, as with the carnal mind, but by asking and receiving, and this as want is felt, prayer asks and faith claims the things asked for.

Let us illustrate. The sinner is awakened. At first the light may be dim and the sense of guilt, of pollution, or of the need of Christ, feeble. These may grow, i. e. the light become clearer and fuller, and conviction deeper and stronger. There may be much light and little feeling or vice versa. Sight and conviction may increase gradually or may break in like a flood. There is great variety of exercise, but in no case is it a development by natural process. And then if it were, no penitent, however exercised, grows into religion or comes into its possession by a process of insensible development. All come to one point, a deep sense of sin, a felt need of Christ, a full surrender, a distinct faith and an instantaneous conversion.

What occurs at the outset is an index of what follows. There is great variety of religious exercise, of views, conflicts, activities and experiences. But all who grow in grace come to one point, a deep sense of dependence, a felt need of Christ, a full surrender or consecration often repeated and included, more and more as more is seen to be included, and a distinct faith for such answers as are felt to be needed; not simply a relying faith that credits the truth and believes in a general sense, but distinct acts, that bring distinct blessings.

For example, jostling with the business and cares of life like physical toil, wears the strength away. As one goes to his meals in order to repair the physical waste, so he goes into the closet, to the class, or other means of grace, and thus waits on the Lord that his strength may be renewed. In this way he grows, not by insensible development, like the body of a child, but by distinct answers to prayer, and the conquests and enlargements thus gained are according to his faith.

One is hampered by a besetment or besetments. He resists, fights against, conquers for a time, or in part, is then overcome, then repents, and renews the struggle and thus maintains an unequal contest till utterly disheartened. He then feels there is no help but in God, and that there is help in him; asks, receives, is divinely delivered and empowered, and goes forth an emancipated free man in Christ.

In any case, when the light has so increased, and views of duty and privilege have become so clear and strong, i. e. when there has been such growth in grace by repeated baptisms of the Spirit, as to show the way and help to a full consecration and an all comprehending faith in Christ, then his blood cleanses from all sin, and the very God of peace sanctifies wholly. They who depend upon growth, in the sense of development, never become "pure in heart." But when the canker is taken out, then the chief impediment to a rapid growth is removed. There is growth, i. e. enlargement and increase of strength, before this full cleansing, but it is by conquests and additions received in answer to prayer. So growth subsequently, though more rapid, is in the same way. Never by an insensible development, but always by special baptisms. The opposite theory repudiates the cardinal doctrine of salvation by faith.

One has well said, "To believe that I cannot receive the blessing now, is to believe that I never can receive it, because the future is always beyond the grasp of faith." Let any thoughtful person attempt to reconcile christian experience with the idea of natural growth, and he will find a halting at every step. But when he thinks of growth in grace as an enlargement and an increase of light and strength, attained by faith, and hence according to faith, when it is exercised, then and only then are growth and the christian economy compatible with each other.—Christian Standard.

BENEFITS OF PROPHETIC STUDY.

As regards the benefits to be derived from the study of unfulfilled prophecy, I may notice that first, it leads the Church to take up her true position on the earth, as a heavenly people looking forward to the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. The apostle Paul in the third chapter to the Colossians, says, "When Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory. Mortify therefore your members which are upon the earth." Here is the great motive and power unto holiness; and it leads us to set out affections on things above. We are waiting for the manifestation of the Lord Jesus, and are to be manifested with him in his glory. The same thing is in the third chapter of the Philippians, where the apostle draws a line between those that are truly awaiting the coming of Christ and following his steps as Paul did, and those who mind earthly things, and whose end, therefore, is destruction. He says, "Our citizenship is in heaven, from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according unto the working whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself." That is the great motive,—"We know not what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be made like him, for we shall see him as he is." 1 John 3: 2.

Let unfulfilled prophecy become your prayerful study under the teaching of the Holy Ghost, and see if it will not lead you to live above the world, and to closer fellowship with the living, risen Christ.

Then the second benefit is this, that it will very much encourage us in all missionary work. If I thought, as many do, that the Lord Jesus is to come at the close instead of, as we believe, at the beginning of the Millennium—if I believed that the gospel is to cover the world with light, and make a glorious platform on which the feet of Jesus may rest, so that he will find all things in excellent order when he comes—how discouraging with such a belief would be the aspect of the mission field. How difficult it would be for me to feel that God was doing all he promised to do, seeing that the last eighteen hundred years have all passed away with only a little spot here and there where his truth is believed, and there is no appearance at the present rate of progress of the gospel converting the world, until many centuries have elapsed.

On the other hand, if the Lord is to come before the Millennium, as we maintain, then we know we may expect him even now, while the earth is in confusion, and evil is growing apace, and midnight gloom is deepening. And it is at "midnight" that the cry will come—"Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him." Thus I am encouraged, as the darkness prevails, to know that my Lord is near. The gathering clouds, the increasing apostacy, the infidelity, the Ritualism and Romanism, which are growing up, and which will culminate in the terrible apostasy and Antichrist of the last days—all this tells me that the day of the Lord draws nigh, and quickens me to labor more actively to help in gathering out that people whom the Lord will unite with those who have gone before, and form them into the complete body of the Bride, the Lamb's wife, at the day of his appearing and kingdom.

A third benefit of prophetic belief in Christ's speedy advent is that it stirs us up to witness for the Lord Jesus Christ. I believe no congregation will labor more zealously in the cause of Christ than that which is taught to be waiting for the coming of the Lord. Read the first chapter of 1st Thessalonians, and compare it with the 17th chapter of Acts. Paul had found the primitive early christians, even at that early date, with their hearts so full of the second coming that he had even to utter a warning on the subject, for they were entertaining ungrounded expectations in regard to the day of the Lord being imminent. But note the result. Read the first chapter of 1 Thessalonians, verses 5, 6, 7, 8; the gospel came unto them not in word only, but also in power and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance, so that they were examples to all that believed in Macedonia and Achaia; and from them sounded out the word of the Lord, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but also in every place their faith to God-ward was spread abroad. What caused this great result? It was that they were taught to wait for the coming of the Son of God from heaven. Thus their hearts being so full of the coming of Jesus, made them active as laborers in the spread of the gospel.—Rev. Clarmont Skrine, M. A.

THE BIBLE AND DRESS.

BY BISHOP YEAKEL.

Our disciple asks a question which is at the present time repeated by many sincere christians with evident concern:

Question. "Is there not now yet unnecessary gorgeousness of dress in vogue, which we unitedly must oppose?"

Answer. The disciple answers "yes," and scarcely any one can help saying yes.

But now listen, as soon as this subject is introduced: "Pshaw, he is an old fogy! He is fifty years behind the times! He is ungentlemanly enough to meddle with people's dress, after they have paid for it!" etc.

That is to say, the Holy Ghost is an "old fogy," who speaks out in such words against "braided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array," or the outward adorning of the body by "putting on of apparel" and against conformity to the world and "pride of life" in general, that some preachers are afraid to read such portions of Holy Writ from the pulpit, because they grate harshly upon the ears and hearts of some of their fashionable hearers!

"But," said one lately, "those commands about dress were given to the primitive christians, who, having just emerged from paganism, needed such instructions and a plainer dress, in order to distinguish them from the heathen; but in our christian land this is not necessary because the heathen are not here." Certainly this is an uncommon comment on these Scriptures. Where does the Bible say that these commandments were applicable only to the primitive christians? and that they were given for such a purpose only?

If such commandments as were given to distinguish the christian from the heathen, cease to be binding in christian lands, then what follows? Let us see. Paul says to the Thessalonians: "For this is the will of God, even your sanctification, that ye should abstain from fornication. . . . not in the lust of concupiscence, even as the Gentiles, who know not God." Hence, by parity of reason in a so-called christian land where there are no heathen, the command is not binding and christians may live "in the lust of concupiscence" and commit "fornication!" Again he says to the Ephesians: "This I say therefore and testify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk "in the vanity of their minds," etc. Hence where there are no Gentiles, christians may walk as Gentiles, in the vanity of their mind? What sensible, pure mind is not shocked by such sophistry!

"When the apostles wrote, it was the base and lewd women that wore these forbidden articles, but now they are worn by respectable persons, which makes quite a difference." It makes this difference, 'that respectable persons' have sunk so low that they have adopted the 'harlots' uniform. The supposition contained in the above, that "base and lewd women" do not dress in this fashion in our day, is false. They are to a great extent the leaders of fashion, and "respectable persons" follow them. Hence it is no wonder that adultery and kindred crimes have become fashionable in certain circles.

"But we live in an age of progress, and God has made man a progressive being. We cannot bind ourselves to antiquated notions; the times demand that christians accommodate themselves to new inventions and developments." And this is put forth to justify professors of christianity in conforming to the world and indulging the "pride of life." But if your "progress" gets ahead of the word of God, pampers to carnality, quenches the Holy Spirit in the heart, undermines health, squanders precious time and money that is needed for the necessaries of life and for the poor—is there not too much of this vaunted "progress?" Is it not a galloping downward the broad way into eternal perdition?

The truth is, there is no progress in the fashionable dress of the day. There is a fearful regress morally and physically. And as to the matter of fact there is a continual senseless whirling the giddy rounds of follies that have been tried before, after their votaries got tired of them.

"But," says another "these fashionable things are right. Has not God given wisdom and skill to man to make such things, and should we not employ the gifts of God? Has not God made the flowers of the field—why should not man make flowers too and wear them?" Surely here is something more than Solomon's wisdom! Because God has given beautiful flowers to the grass and not to man—thus showing clearly to what species of his creatures flowers belong—therefore man may make artificial flowers and wear them on his head. Is this not immense reasoning? And because God has given man wisdom and art to construct things that are truly beautiful and useful, he ought to apply this power to extravagance in dress even to such an extent that precious time, religion, conscience, purity and health are sacrificed to the idol of fashion. Surely, "The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain."

Again says one: "It was Paul, who was a bachelor, that wrote that women should not dress so much." But Paul was inspired by the Holy Spirit. Peter, however, was a married man; now hear what he has to say: "Likewise, ye wives, be in subjection to your husbands . . . whose adorning, let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing gold, or of putting on of apparel, but let it be the hidden man of the heart in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." Outward adorning always destroys the meekness and quietness of the spirit; that incorruptible ornament, which God values so highly, is bartered away for flounces and feathers! What must God think of such an one?

Says a pastor of an aristocratic church in a large city: "It is not the ministers' business to meddle with the peoples' dress, if they have paid for it." This of course was a sweet morsel to a wealthy fashionable congregation, who always paid for their dresses. Let us inspect their talk a little. A minister, then, has no business to meddle with the drunkard's poison, if he has paid for it. He must not say anything against dens of vice and gambling hells, provided they have been paid for by their owners. "But," say you, "to drink and make others drink is forbidden by the word of God and conflicts with common sense." Just so is fashionable dress forbidden by the Bible, and even execrated by common sense. Moreover, if God has made you his steward and entrusted to you a portion of his goods to be used for good purposes, where do you get the right to pay them out for things that are forbidden by the Master?

I have introduced the foregoing objections and briefly answered them, because they have been brought to my notice, as being more or less current among those who are forsaking Christ and his peculiar people, which is separate from the world, and indulge in the idolatry of fashion to the unspeakable detriment of their souls and the disfiguration of their bodies, which God designed to be the temples of the Holy Ghost. How utterly sophistical and foolish are all the excuses and attempted justification of the thing that Eternal Wisdom has forbidden.—Evangelical Messenger.

THE "NEW YORK HERALD" AMONG THE PROPHETS.

The "New York Herald" which sent Stanley to Africa to discover Dr. Livingstone, and which is the most famous of the American journals, looking at Europe simply from a political point of view, made the following notable remarks on Sept. 23, 1874.

"There is a constant rumbling on the continent of Europe, and even the wisest men cannot read the signs. Looking at the splendid monuments of civilization as we see them in Europe, we are nevertheless tempted to ask what security have we for their permanence and their strength, if the existing foretokens of disaster assume real form, and have their ultimate and terrible will.

"Peaceful as Europe seems, it is not a wholesome peace. We cannot accept the summer day as truly summer, when clouds, rent and torn with lightning, disturb the sky. We may have the harvest moon, or we may have the thunder storm when the sun goes down. 'Question' after 'question' comes tumbling one upon another, even as we read in the poet that 'from peak to peak, the rattling crags among, leaps the live thunder.' Never did old Europe seem in so pheunomenal a condition. England gathers her skirts about her, and, content with the guardianship of her embosoming seas, sulkily awaits the storm. France sharpens her sabre and pike, watching and praying for the tocsin to summon the combat for Alsace and Lorraine. Austria, bothered with her finance and her artillery, her history a series of monumental defects, prays that the shock may not fall until her currency is really money, and she has changed her cannon from bronze to steel.

"Russia, half civilized, half barbarian, looks with civilized earnestness upon the Slavic dominions bordering her kingdom, and with barbaric passion upon the ungarnered possessions of Asia. Spain is beaten from shore to shore, at the mercy of every tempest. The smaller nations, rejoicing in the weakness which has at last become strength, huddle into the corners away from the storm, only hoping for the safety that comes with forgetfulness. Turkey feels that her doom is a question of time and patiently awaits her execution. Germany pursues her destiny with eager resolution. Between Germany and France the issue lies. And a duel is impending between Republicanism and Imperialism. The solution will be the United States of Europe. In the end there will be the triumph of the people; and so we shall all become fellow-citizens of universal fatherland.

"There can be little doubt, we fear, that in Europe at this moment everything 'tips towards universal gloom.' Mr. Disraeli, whose rhetoric is of a different quality from that of M. Hugo, more sedate and practical, spoke recently of the 'great crisis' about to appear in the world's history, and he explained his course upon certain ecclesiastical questions by saying that when this crisis came, he wished to have the Church of England protected against the storm. The English Prime Minister referred to the struggle between Liberalism, as represented by Prince Bismarck, and the Ultramontanism of the Roman Church. The forces on either side are gigantic, and the contest must in time assume proportions that history does not parallel.

"It may be that we are coming to the time spoken of in the sacred writings, and impatiently expected by enthusiastic interpreters of Scripture, when the great battle of Armageddon will be fought, and we shall enter upon the millennial period. Many of these commentators tell us that this battle will be somehow connected with the Eastern Question, and the destiny of Turkey and the Holy Land.—Signs of Our Times.

THE LAST BATTLE.

Since the fall of man, this world has been the theatre of an unbroken series of battle scenes. Its elements, beasts and men, have fought a continuous and terrible battle. This is to end with one universal and desperate convulsion, in which all the elements and creatures of earth will be thrown into fearful antagonism, when Christ will triumph over Satan, truth over error, and the true church of God over all the hosts of the wicked one. This will constitute the last fearful shaking; and all things earthly will be revolutionized,—changed from their social and material relations sustained under the curse. The inanimate will be decomposed, and new compounds formed, so as to produce heavenly harmony and peace, a universal calm and eternal rest.

This mighty work of decomposition must be preceded by the progressive action of agencies which will, in the light of true science, manifest signs of approaching dissolution. The knowledge of this will cause the hearts of many to "fail them for fear," and to look "after those things" which are truly "coming on the earth."

In the social department there will be the same progressive development of agencies, which must threaten more and more to break up and destroy the peace and harmony of all associations,—political, ecclesiastical, and domestic. Family, church, and empire will be alike threatened with disintegration. The last battle will be the final, desperate struggle between the rising antagonisms, in a most sanguinary and decisive conflict. This war will commence between the nations, and end in a fearful contest between the contending factions of broken-up empires. "Every man's sword will be against his brother." God has given us a most perfect prophetic history of this last great contest. He stated it, and foreshadowed it by nearly all the prophets; while Jesus and the Revelator present the nations in their last movement as "perplexed" and "angry."

God presented the subject to Isaiah in all its parts thus:—"Come near, ye nations, to hear; and hearken, ye people: let the earth hear, and all that is therein; and all things that come forth of it. For the indignation of the Lord is upon all nations, and his fury upon all their armies, he hath utterly destroyed them, he hath delivered them to the slaughter. Their slain also shall be cast out, and their stink shall come up out of their carcasses, and the mountains shall be melted with their blood. And all the host of heaven shall be dissolved, and the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll; and all their host shall fall down, as the leaf falleth off from the vine, and as a falling fig from the fig tree." Chap. 34: 1-4.

This passage embraces all the nations of the earth, and the indignation of the Lord upon them which will "utterly destroy them." It connects these battle scenes with the rolling together of the heavens as a scroll; showing that the animate and inanimate world will be convulsed and changed at the same time.

Jeremiah describes the same universal strife and destruction in this language:—"A noise shall come even to the ends of the earth; for the Lord hath a controversy with the nations, he will plead with all flesh; he will give them that are wicked to the sword, saith the Lord. Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Behold, evil shall go forth from nation to nation, and a great whirlwind shall be raised up from the coasts of the earth. And the slain of the Lord shall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth; they shall not be lamented; neither gathered, nor buried; they shall be dung upon the ground." Chap. 25: 31-33.

This language cannot apply to any battle that has been fought in the past, in which the "slain" bodies of men lay scattered upon the ground unburied from one end of the earth to the other. It must be in the future, and the last in human strife.

Habakkuk adds his testimony to the same effect. "Before him went the pestilence, and burning coals at his feet. He stood, and measured the earth; he beheld, and drove asunder the nations; and the everlasting mountains were scattered, the perpetual hills did bow; his ways are everlasting." Chap. 3: 5. This passage gives the fact that "the nations" will be driven asunder," showing that they will at that time be confederated, that those alliances will be broken, and that this takes place when "the mountains saw Thee (the Lord) and trembled." This confederation is evidently the same as Daniel represents by the imperfect union of the iron and clay (chap. 2: 40), which will be separated, and the nations dashed in pieces, and the "wind" (war) of the last battle will carry them away, so that no place can be found for them; that is, utterly destroyed—exterminated.

Ezekiel presents the subject thus:—"And it shall come to pass at the same time when Gog shall come against the land of Israel saith the Lord God, that my fury shall come up in my face. For in my jealousy, and in the fire of my wrath have I spoken. Surely in that day there shall be a great shaking in the land of Israel; so that the fishes of the sea, and the fowls of the heaven, and the beasts of the field, and all creeping things that creep upon the earth, and all the men that are upon the face of the earth, shall shake at my presence, and the mountains shall be thrown down, and the steep places shall fall, and every wall shall fall to the ground. And I will call for a sword against him throughout all my mountains, saith the Lord God: every man's sword shall be against his brother. And I will plead against him with pestilence and with blood; and I will rain upon him, and upon his bands, and upon the many people that are with him, an overflowing rain, and great hailstones, fire, and brimstone." Chap. 38: 18-22.

He gives the connected circumstances—the war of nations—shaking of mountains, and presence of the Lord—as did the other prophets. We think he must refer to the same last battle. This corresponds exactly with the Revelator. He says—"And the seventh angel sounded; and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign forever and ever. And the four and twenty elders, which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God, saying, We give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty, which art, and wast, and art to come; because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and hast reigned. And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great; and shouldest destroy them which destroy the earth. And the temple of God was opened in heaven, and there was seen in his temple the ark of his testament: and there were lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and an earthquake, and great hail." Chap. 11: 15-19.

This passage gives us the chronology of this universal convulsion of the earth, heavens, and nations; locating it under the sounding of the seventh angel. It is the last of the three woes. It is when "the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of our Lord," and his eternal reign commences. The nations will be "angry," and God's "wrath" will "destroy them."

This war is definitely located in the serial prophecies of the nations. Daniel presents four great empires as the ruling governments of the earth, until the time when Christ shall take the nations, and destroy them, and shall henceforth rule the world as its eternal King. The prophet saw the four winds strive upon the great sea, which brought up four beasts. These winds, sea, and beasts are symbols, and explained in the Scriptures to represent, by winds, war; by sea, peoples, nations; by beasts, kingdoms. Four winds denote war upon the four quarters of the prophetic territory. These kingdoms are Babylon, Persia, Grecia and Rome. All the tribes and nations brought under the dominion of those four governments were subdued by the sword; therefore, war established their dominions in the four quarters of their territory; and this war is represented by four winds. These nations were released from the power of those kings by war, and held in subordination to the conqueror, or the next kingdom in power. Therefore it was war that elevated the four kingdoms, and war in the four quarters that subdued the first three, and it will be a general war that will subdue and destroy the fourth. Each succeeding kingdom made war upon and subdued its predecessor. Persia conquered Babylon, Grecia conquered Persia, and Rome conquered Grecia. As Christ's everlasting kingdom is to succeed the Roman, so Christ will make war on the Roman kingdoms, and utterly exterminate them, so that he can take the dominion or rulership of earth, under the whole heavens."

This war will bring the last battle. It is represented by nearly all the writers in the Old and New Testaments as a war waged by God upon the wicked Gentile nations. A war of extermination—of utter ruin. This war cannot be the one to destroy Babylon, Persia or Grecia; but Rome. It cannot be intelligently looked for, therefore, until the first three have spent their appointed period of earthly rulership, and the last hours of Roman supremacy are passing. This is the prophetic location for the last battle, or a general European war.

The most momentous questions connected with this great subject are, Have the last hours of Roman dominion come? Is the prophecy measuring the periods and foreshadowing the rise and fall, the noted changes and revolutions of these governments, nearly accomplished? These questions can be very easily and definitely determined by comparing the prophetic and profane history of the kingdoms, to see if they agree. If they do, that is proof of the truthfulness of the prophecy. Then follow the two lines until the profane history ends, and all of the prophetic, extending beyond that point is unfulfilled, and its accomplishment may be expected in the future. When we trace these two lines of history, we find them corresponding perfectly, in every predicted particular. Babylon, Persia and Grecia arose and fell exactly as foretold. Rome ascended the stage, perfectly in harmony with the Word of God. Its history has minutely duplicated the prophecy through all its great changes down to the development of the very circumstances producing the antagonisms which should cause the warring parties to arm for the last battle. No part of the prophecy gives such definite statements, and expresses such a variety of circumstances, and the moving causes which threaten a general war, so perfectly as those now being fulfilled, which foretell the preparations for the last battle in Roman history. We believe that the predictions fortelling the destruction of the cities of Babylon, Tyre, or Jerusalem, were no more perfectly fulfilled than are those relating to this war; and that the very circumstances which cause so many statesmen to now see a general war impending, do exactly fulfill the last predictions in Roman history.

If these things are so, then we have come to a grand epoch in human affairs,—a transition period in earthly scenes,—a glorious culmination in the redemptive scheme:—the ending of sin and the last wail of the curse. But the triumphs of faith must be preceded by a satanic carnival. The glorious light of an eternal day will be enjoyed after passing the darkness of a howling night. The blessedness of heavenly peace succeeds a bloody and desolating war. The fierce winds and surging waves bear the mariner to his quiet haven.

MERCY SEAT.

In "The Signs of the Times," published by the Seventh-Day people, we find an editorial article on "The Ark and the Mercy-Seat," in which it is said—"In the sanctuary of the first covenant, the ark and the mercy-seat were placed in the holiest of all." The writer then assumes that if there is a mercy-seat in heaven, there must also be there "the ark of the ten commandments," because they existed together in the old tabernacle.

Let us see what the Bible says about the mercy-seat in heaven. In Heb. 9: 5, Paul says—"And over it [the ark of the covenant] the cherubims of glory shadowing the mercy-seat, of which we cannot now speak particularly." The word here rendered mercy-seat is ilasteerion. In Rom. 3: 20-25, Paul says—"Therefore, by the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified in his sight; for by the law is the knowledge of sin. But now the righteousness of God without the law is manifested, being witnessed by the law and the prophets; even the righteousness which is by faith of Jesus Christ, unto all and upon all them that believe; for there is no difference; for all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God; being justified freely by his grace, through the redemption which is in Christ Jesus; whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation, through faith in his blood."

The word "propitiation" is from ilasteerion, the very word rendered mercy-seat. Christ is now our mercy-seat. As the mercy-seat in the earthly tabernacle was "in the holiest of all," as stated by the writer in the Signs, then it follows that Christ, the great antitype, has been "in the holiest of all" ever since he went to heaven to be our mercy-seat. As Paul says—"Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us." Heb. 9: 24. As Christ has been our ilasteerion—mercy-seat, for over eighteen hundred years, and as the place for the mercy-seat is only in the holy of holies, it follows that Mrs. White's visions, which declare he did not go into the holy of holies till A. D. 1844, are untrue.

STRIKES.

There is no doubt that strikes among the laboring classes result in evil to the strikers in almost every case. They are invariably worse off at the end of the strike than at the beginning, even though increased wages be secured. Strikes tend to anarchy, revolution and ruin. If the strike secures double wages, in a short time the laborer finds the cost of his living is also doubled, and he encounters the same difficulties to make the two ends meet that existed before the strike. There is a general law that governs these things: when the employer is compelled to pay higher wages to his workmen, he puts a higher price on his goods, so as to secure the same amount of profits as before. When the former makes his purchases of the manufacturer, and has to pay greatly advanced rates, he at once adds to the price of his produce, in order to secure his usual income. By this time the strikers are paying advanced prices for everything, as the result of their strike. Then another strike follows with similar results; and thus things grow "worse and worse."

In connection with this state of things, there is a vast amount of extravagant living, that is hastening this nation to certain destruction. No nation has ever stood long in its glory, after it arrived at a position now occupied by the American people. Corruption rules in high places; bribes fill the hands of those appointed to administer justice; and official wickedness occupies the honored seats of the nation. It is useless to look for a reform. Ruin must come next.

LIFE ON THE RAIL.

The traveler across the continent has a fine chance to study human nature, as he mingles with the great variety of men and women who are passing to and fro over the railroad thoroughfares, connecting the Allantic and Pacific. Their language, dress, manners, habits, dispositions and purposes, are so varied, and often antagonistic, that it would almost seem as though they should occupy separate apartments, in order to be comfortable. The one is a burden to the other, and they naturally form themselves into separate classes.

Counsel to the inexperienced, who contemplate a trip across the continent. Those who would study economy and health, will do well to take such food as they like in a large lunch basket, or valise. Articles of food can be warmed on the stove. Have a pint tin cup or pail for this purpose. Be cautious about forming hasty acquaintances with strangers. After arriving at Council Bluffs, be exceedingly watchful against confidence men all the rest of the way to California. If any have occasion to stop over night at Council Bluffs, be on a sharp lookout against the snares of wicked men. It is well to go to the R. R. agent for information. There are a number of men lying about Council Bluffs and Omaha, whose chief business is to rob unsuspecting travelers, by persuading them to go to certain public houses, where the landlord's, and the runners from the trains to those hotels are united in setting traps for robbery. If they can get one to drink their liquors, they are quite sure of success, for they are so poisoned with drugs, that their victim is soon insensibly drunk, when he is an easy prey in the hands of ths robber. With the temperance man, they lay plans to rob him when asleep in his room. Indeed, all possible means are employed to accomplish their fiendish objects.

As we go further west, almost every station abounds with men whose chief business is to rob the passing travelers. Sometimes one or two persons will go through the cars in haste, just as they are about to start from where they have been stopping to take food, and pick up an overcoat and put it on in a hurry, and catch up a valise, and rush out as though they had just learned that they had arrived at the station, where they were to stop. The owner of the coat and valise being out of the car at the time, taking his lunch. At other times they will thus go through, gather what they can, and stay on the train in other cars, till they arrive at the next depot; in the mean time pick up whatever they can secure by their sharp practice. Such persons went through our cars at Elko, Nevada, and stopped in the second-class cars to arrange matters. The conductor discovered them, stopped the train, and put them off. They are usually well-dressed, gentlemanly looking men, such as the careless would not suspect.

At the stations, if they find one interested in looking at the Indians with their painted faces and unique dress, the squaws and their pappooses, or other novelties, one of these confidence men will step up and inform you there is something still more interesting, a few steps from there, and he would be pleased to take you to see the interesting object. That curiosity is in some saloon, where he will endeavor to keep you till the train starts, by saying there is yet plenty of time, for he is going on the same train. Thus left, plans are then laid to rob you during the night. It would take a long time to go over all the varied plans employed by these men to rob and ruin passengers. Bro. Brown, who went on with us this last trip, was thus invited by a fine looking, well-dressed gentleman, to step and see a curiosity near by. Of course, Bro. B. refused. We learned afterwards that the one who invited him was one of the worst men on the route. Probably no worse class of men can be found in the world than those at the various stations on the Union and Central Pacific roads, between Cheyenne and the Summit, a distance of eleven hundred and fifty-five miles. At these stations is a concentration of desperadoes, who are graduates in the school of wickedness, and have set up business in these western wilds, where justice only enters to be murdered.

RAILROAD TICKETS.

It may be a benefit to some of our readers to know a few facts concerning railroad tickets. It has been decided by high judicial authority, that the holder of a ticket is not under obligation to exchange it for a conductor's check, till he has passed the last station on the route. If he gives it up, he does it at his own risk.

When persons buy through tickets to San Francisco, from Boston, New York, Chicago, or any other place east of Omaha, the holder of the ticket has a right to stop over at any station on the entire route, and go on when he pleases. But when the passenger arrives at Ogden, and changes for the Union Pacific to the Central Pacific road, the Conductor is required by the managers of the road to take up your ticket, giving a special check in its place. If the person is going directly through to San Francisco, of course it will make no difference, but if he wishes to step off at different places on the route, he will do well not to give up his ticket. Of course the conductor will take your ticket to punch it, and will offer you the substitute check, immediately after leaving Ogden, but it is the passenger's privilege to refuse to accept the check, and to ask for his ticket again, as his legal right. This arrangement on the Central Pacific road is an arbitrary one peculiarly itself, and can be accepted or not as the passenger may choose.

Those going to places west of Ogden will do well to take a little silver, as all bills must be paid in coin, or its equivalent, between Ogden and San Francisco. If you pay in currency, they will take out two or three times the standard discount for what you get at eating rooms, and for other things purchased on the route. When one arrives in California he should change his greenbacks for gold, and then exchange his gold for silver, instead of purchasing silver with his greenbacks. His greenbacks will accomplish most to use them as we have specified.

A NEW WORK

On the Sabbath of the Old Covenant, an investigation of Mrs. E. G. White's Visions, showing that they are not from God.

All who have accepted Mrs. White's visions as coming from heaven, or who have been led to rest on Saturday instead of the Lord's day, should read this work. Let those who live among our Seventh-day brethren send and get a number of the books to give away. If the reader has friends at a distance who have received Mrs. W.'s Visions as true, have a copy of this work sent to them.

It contains 106 pages, and we will send it at the following prices: Single copy, 20 cts.; per doz., $1.75 by mail; per hundred, $10.00 by express.

NOW READY,

The great Map of History, twenty-two feet long, and about thirty inches wide. This valuable work, of which mention has been made in the Crisis, we now have a supply of, and will send to those who may order at the reduced price of $15.00 per copy, by express. We have them on rollers, and in book form, and can supply either way.

The best method of using the chart or map of history is to hang the frame on the wall of the room (the map being in the frame, of course), by the two hooks in the upper bar of the frame, high enough to stand, or sit, in front of it, and there examine or study it.

Students and beginners in history should occasionally look over the map in its entire length—drawn out on the wall, or tables, or on the carpet—until they are well acquainted with the entire outlines, plan and compass of the map, which embraces all history.

ARRIVED IN CALIFORNIA.

Saturday evening, at eight o'clock, Nov. 21st, we arrived safely for the fifth time in the "Summer Land," feeling as fresh as when we started, and ready to go to work in the vineyard of the Lord. Friday and Saturday (20th and 21st) we passed through much sublime scenery, that will ever be interesting to the traveler. It would be a privilege to stop long and gaze on the wonderful works of nature, as they appear on the Sierra Navada mountains in California. At Truckee, it seemed like New England mid-winter. The train stopped there for breakfast. At nine A. M. we had passed all snow, and arrived where nature was assuming a spring-like appearance. Gardens were green with vegetables; fresh grass was starting up; the air was soft and mild, so we had the windows up in the cars, with no fires in the stoves, when only a few hours before we needed hot fires in both stoves to keep us warm. The change is very pleasing, and is well calculated to lead me to feel at home in California, especially in the winter. Each time we go, things look more and more inviting. We find most who go to the Pacific coast have the same feeling. After they have lived there awhile, they usually feel a desire to return East for a visit, but after a short stay, their desire to make California their permanent home is much increased. The Californians are very contented in their delightful country. The cry of hard times is not heard there as in the East. The State is rich in mining and agrigultural resources. Its financial prospects are very promising.

When we arrived at Sacramento, Saturday, we met Bro. and Sr. Ficks and Bro. Harrow, also Sr. Chase, who formerly lived in East Boston. Bro. Ficks has commenced preaching the gospel of the kingdom, also two Brn. Nichols, who formerly lived in Mass. The Lord is blessing their labors. They are in earnest. Regular meetings are held in Sacramento, in a hall which the Brn. have hired for the purpose. We intend to hold meetings there soon. Bro. Ficks and the Brn. Nichols are starting meetings in new places, with fair prospects of success. Their hearts are in the work. We expect to see others engaged in the same blessed work on the coast.

When we arrived within fourteen miles of San Francisco, we met some who had come that distance to greet us, and when we reached Oakland, five miles from San Francisco, we met several more who had come to give the hand of welcome. Our heart was much cheered to find so many had held fast in the Lord. We had precious meetings Sabbath day. It was said to be the best opening meeting we had ever enjoyed. The prospect was decidedly encouraging. Bro. R. W. Wilson was with us from Santa Clara, and Bro. S. E. Jones, from San Jose. We found them strong in faith, and ready to work in the vineyard of the Lord. We learned they were having excellent union meetings for holiness in Santa Clara. We found Bro. Howell, the pastor of the San Francisco church, resting fully in Jesus, and enjoying perfect peace and love. He is a true christian.

While writing this, we are on the steamboat from San Francisco to Vallejo, where we are to commence meetings this Monday evening, Nov. 23d, to continue a week or more. This has been an exceedingly rainy day. The rains have commenced very early this year. The grass is now as forward as it is in New England the last of April, or the forepart of May. It is two months in advance of what it was the first year we came to the Pacific coast. The farmers are ploughing, and preparing their land for wheat sowing, with promising prospect of large success. There is no cry of "hard times" in California. Business is said to be very lively, and the laboring classes find plenty of work. There is a large emigration flowing into California, which is continually ncreasing. California is a very rich State with immense means to support a dense population. It is emphatically the land of fruits and flowers, fine wheat and gold. It produces about everything valuable that is found in any part of the world. It is truly the land of plenty. As a result of this, the people are inclined to voluptuousness, turning away from sacred things, like the people of ancient Sodom But few have ears to hear the truth of revelation. It requires much earnest labor to accomplish small results, as it did in the days of Noah. It may be expected that the people will become more and more careless as we approach the end, till there will be no more who will submit to Christ.

VALLEJO.

We are now (Nov. 26th) in Vallejo, California. This is Thanksgiving day. The turkeys aud chickens are sacrificed here about as freely as in New England, and the tables are loaded with rich things to please the appetites of dear friends, who gather to enjoy the annual festival. The day is lovely. It is warm and sunny. No fire is needed for comfort. It seems like one of our most delightful spring days in the East. Door yards are adorned with a variety of beautiful flowers, surpassing what we ever saw on the Atlantic coast, at any season of the year. It is truly a charming country. Nature has been lavish here of its best things calculated to make man prosperous, contented and happy.

The church in Vallejo is strong in the Lord. It has passed through some severe conflicts with opposing forces, which have caused its members to lean more fully upon the arm of the Savior. In our first meeting we had very clear evidence, from their hearty songs, testimonies, and prayers, that they had been steadfastly abiding in Christ. We are expecting precious seasons with this people. Pray for us.

ENGLISH CHURCH IN ROME.

European journals inform us that on Oct. 25th, the first English church built within the walls of Rome was opened for public worship. It is located in the Plazza. About one hundred and eighty persons were present at the opening. It is most evident that the hand of the Lord is against the Roman power. He has begun the great work of winding up forever that gigantic monster that has for many centuries held its iron sway over the nations of the earth, and dictated what men should believe, cursing those who refused to submit to its unholy system. The steps of decay and decline are now most marked and rapid. No strengthening hand appears to uphold the dying harlot. She no longer fills her "golden cup" "with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus." Her triumph has been long, but she is struck with death, and her closing days are fast numbering.

The prince Archbishop of Breslau said, a short time since, that "the German ecclesiastical laws have been purposely framed to destroy the divine institution of the church, and to subject the priests to the arbitrary rule of non-Catholic government, in order that they might be driven from the country." Truly, "the cup which she hath filled" is now being filled to her in return. Her closing days will be filled with deep sorrow. She has shown no mercy to the saints, and must drink from her own cup the dregs that remain.

THE GRASSHOPPER RAID.

Kansas has suffered terribly by the grasshopper raid this year. One could hardly believe that these little animals could do what they have done. It is said that in seventeen counties, where 158,000 acres of corn have been planted, "not one bushel" has been produced, because of what was done by the grasshoppers. The inhabitants are said to be "hopelessly destitute, without food, clothing or fuel for the winter." The grasshoppers have swept away everything. Out of 24,000 people, it is thought that at least 15,000 will need assistance during the winter. Many of them have just settled in the West, using up all their means to put in their crops; and are now entirely helpless, with a cold winter approaching. Truly this is a world of sorrow.

Those who have the comforts of a pleasant home have great reason for deep gratitude to Him from whom cometh every good and perfect gift. Such should remember those in distress, and lend a helping hand. It will serve to make their comforts sweeter and more lasting. It seems too bad that such vast amounts should be squandered in extravagance, rich living, and other foolish things, that add to the happiness of none, but only serve to fill life's cup with remorse; while at the same time thousands upon thousands are shivering in rags at the door of starvation. Truly a great change is needed. Dear Lord, come and reign.

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, a a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

THE POOR.

"The poor ye have with you always, and when ye will, ye may do them good."

This is a hard and trying season for the poor in all parts of the country, and especially so with the frontier settlements, where the grasshoppers and drought have ruined their crops. Thousands will be exposed to perishing with cold and hunger this winter, unless they are immediately assisted. Many children and helpless women are shoeless, and thinly clad with ragged garments, who are piteously crying for help. Some of them are christians and will doubtless cry to God for help, and he will make it the duty of his people, who have two coats, to give one to those who have none. Such times and circumstances try the virtue of our religion. If it is genuine christianity, we shall "do unto others as we would have them do unto us." Many have clothes that they could spare which would be a great blessing to those sufferers.

Our Missionary Board has been applied to for assistance, which they would be glad to render, but our funds were not given for such a purpose; but it will forward any money, clothing, or any useful articles that may be sent for that purpose.

We are receiving letters from Kansas, North Carolina, and other places, asking for food and clothing. We will send any donations which may be sent to us, to those we consider responsible, to distribute to those really needy.

If friends in any place could fill a barrel with clothes, or any thing they please to give, and direct to George T. Adams, 167 Hanover St., Boston, Mass., we will forward it to the destitute.

This is a good opportunity to receive the blessing and favor of the Lord by giving to the poor.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Association, held on the camp-ground Aug. 12th, "On motion, a nominating committee of five were nominated from the floor to nominate a campmeeting committee of seven, to be elected at the stand. Brn. J. Couch, Cornelius Pike, M. R. Phetteplace, F. Burr, and Samuel E. Jones, were nominated, and by vote authorized to appoint such a time as they might deem proper to present their nominations at the stand."

In accordance with the above vote, said committee, through their Chairman, Bro. Couch, at a meeting held at the preacher's stand Aug. 13th, presented the following names as campmeeting committee for the ensuing year: S. G. Mathewson, Geo. T. Adams, H. Munger, J. Hemenway, M. Grant, I. B. Potter, and John B. White. And they were unanimously elected.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
Secretary and Treasurer.

DR. JOHN LELAND after spending a long and exemplary life in the service of the gospel, closed it with the following words:—"I give my dying testimony to the truth of Christianity. The promises of the gospel are my support and consolation. They alone yield me satisfaction in a dying hour. I am not afraid to die. The gospel of Christ has raised me above the fear of death; 'for I know that my Redeemer liveth.'"

Correspondence.

From Sr. Anna Garrison.

Dear Brn. and Srs., Greeting:—As you have requested short letters on experience, I have felt it my duty to tell a little of the Lord's dealing with me. I have no evil report to bring of my Master. He is good, and his mercy endureth forever. I feel like trusting through to the end. O how good the Lord is to us. He is all love. And when we see how sin is abounding, we can but say, Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly, and put an end to sin. How joyful it will be to meet our loved ones who have gone down to the grave. They will rise again, thank the Lord, and live where there is no death. It is comforting to read that death shall be destroyed. Some call it a friend, but I cannot see it so; and this blessed hope is like an anchor to our souls, sure and steadfast. If we go down to the grave before Jesus comes we shall rise again, so we can joyfully sing—

"We shall sleep, but not forever;
There will be a glorious dawn;
We shall meet to part, no, never,
On the resurrection morn."

I sometimes feel cast down and disheartened, but God, who knoweth all things, knows that I want to be good and inherit eternal life. It has not been much over a year since I made a full start to serve the Lord. I was willing to do anything the Lord had for me to do. I was baptized the 29th of June, 1873, by Bro. H. S. Mitchell. I have a great deal to thank the Lord for, and I pray for a realizing sense of his goodness. The Crisis comes to me, a welcome visitor. I prize it next to my Bible. I take the Christian too; that is a good paper.

The Westerly Quarterly Conference was held near where I live. I had the privilege of attending it. It was really good to be there. The Lord met with us, and owned and blessed. I know it is but little that I can do, but I want the Lord to lead and guide me by his hand. If there is any one that wants to be saved and inherit eternal life, it is myself. I do not care for being despised and scoffed at by the world, if I can reign with Jesus; and I know that if I serve him I shall.

Dear brethren and sisters, pray for me, that I may endure unto the end and be saved.

Brunswick, Me.

From F. M. Drake.

Dear Brethren:—I was for a time in sympathy with those who claimed they exercised the gifts, so much so that I might be classed with them; but I have watched the progress of it, and what it is leading into, in different places, and I feel it my duty to state that my sympathy is withdrawn from such proceedings as have been manifested in Caswell Borough, P. Q., and in other places where it has injured God's cause and caused divisions. The enemy is doing all he can to draw some of God's people into his fatal snare, and if he cannot accomplish it one way he will another, if he has to use Scripture to do so. Hoping this will be satisfactory to all those who are interested in my welfare, I remain your unworthy Bro. in Christ.

From C. A. Hosmer.

Dear Brn. and Srs.:—It has been a long time since you have heard from me through the columns of the Crisis. I am now quite ill—suffering from over exertion. Whom the Lord loveth he will chasten; so I am trying to look to Jesus, thinking that he will bring me safely through.

A month ago I strained myself while lifting at a bar under a large derrick erected for the purpose of driving spiles. The next day I lifted again, and a few days after took a severe cold. I am writing this in bed.

Dear brethren and sisters, I hope you will all remember me in your prayers, that I may soon recover, and be out again, if it is God's will.

SOCIALISM.

No one can forget that we live in remarkable times,—times of social development so ominous that we may be approaching a period of social revolution. The whole universe seems undergoing the volcanic influence of social theory. Everywhere there is breaking out some strange manifestation. The grotesque congregation of the Shakers, the agricultural socialism of Harris, the polygamous socialism of Mormon, the lewd quackery of Freelove, the mad, blank misery of Nihilism, the tragic frenzy of the Parisian Commune, are portents no observer can neglect. Some try to solve the problem of life by abolishing property, some by a new religion.

THE VAST WARLIKE PREPARATIONS.

Never was there on all sides so much of energy and skill given to preparation for those efforts by which civilization is retarded and mankind made miserable. The armies of the four great military powers when on a war footing engross three millions and a quarter of men in the very prime and flower of life. Three millions and a quarter of men in four countries, with their swords ready to the grindstone, form a portent silent fact which we cannot ignore in the halls where we discuss the efficacy of arbitration in settling disputes between nations. In Spain we see a war of dynasty, in America a conflict of color. The night is dark and troubled; we can but labor steadfastly, hoping for the dawn, united by the sympathy of the living and animated by the example of the dead.—Ex.

INCUMBRANCES.

How can a man run with a burthen on his shoulders, and fetters on his feet? The snail is very slow in his motion, who carries his house on his back.

Christian, get the bolts off thy hands, and fetters off thy feet. Cast out the lading, tighten the vessel of thy soul, and prevent thy shipwreck. The burthen of worldly cares, the lime-twigs to our wings and affections are the bane of many a soul. The glittering things of the world which sparkle in our eyes, and attract our hearts, are like rotten wood, or glow-worms which shine in the dark. "Set not thine heart upon the asses," said Samuel to Saul. "Regard not your stuff," said Joseph to his brethren.

Christians, you are going to Mount Zion, value not your movables. The world kept the young man out of heaven, who could, as he thought, easier keep the whole law than part with his riches. Love not the world. Adonijah must not sit on Solomon's throne. 'Tis not for lions to prey on mice, nor for eagles to catch at flies. The sons of princes must not live like mean persons.

Christian, heaven is thy home. The world is but thy inn. Though a man hath better diet, better attendants, better lodging in his inn than at home, yet he remembers 'tis but for a night, and he must be gone.

One of the ancients standing at Cæsar's tomb wept, and cried out, "Where is now the flourishing beauty of Cæsar; his armies, honors, triumphs, trophies? Are they all gone and departed?"

Christian, love that little which thou canst not love long. Riches reach not eternity. "I am going," said one, "where money is no current coin."—Christian Standard.

Obituaries.

WOODSIDE. In East Boston, Sept. 26th, 1874, of typhoid fever, Geo. W. Woodside, only child of Bro. David Woodside, aged eighteen years and eight months.

His early developments gave his parents and friends a bright hope that in ripened manhood he would walk upon a high plain of intelligence and usefulness. He graduated with literary distinction from the Chapman School in 1870, and was soon associated in the business of H. C. Brooks & Co., where he manifested much business skill and true integrity of character. He was subsequently employed in the First Ward National Bank, where he remained enjoying the confidence and particular favor of the officers, and all associated, until his last sickness wrested him from business and friends, and pillowed his head in a dreamless sleep. He will rest until the trump of morn shall arouse the slumbering dead.

He accepted the offer of salvation through Jesus about a year before his death, and united with the Baptist Church, where he was found at his post until death closed his eyes and vacated his seat. The mourning of his parents is deep and continuous, but not like that of those having no hope. They expect to see him soon at early dawn, where the dead shall relive at the glorious appearing of our Life-giver. J. COUCH.

MOSES. At Barkhamsted, Oct. 25th, 1874, Herbert Moses, son of Bro. Harry Moses, after a long sickness with consumption.

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, from Rev. 21: 4. I was assisted in the service by Eld. Seth Woodruff.

"He shall sleep, but not forever,
In the lone and silent grave;
Blessed be the Lord who taketh,
Blessed be the Lord who gave.
In the bright eternal city
Death can never, never come;
In his own good time he'll call us
From our rest to home, sweet home."

A. ELLIOTT.

FORD. At Warren Summit, N. H., Oct. 23d, 1874, Calie W. Ford, aged twenty-three years.

Sermon by Eld. Ira J. Tibbetts, from Job 14: 12. A widowed mother and three sisters are left to mourn his loss.

A few more struggles here,
A few more partings o'er,
A few more toils, a few more tears,
And we shall weep no more.

H. A. COOKSON.

GOODWIN. In Hallowell, Me., Nov. 21st, Sr. E. A., wife of Benjamin Goodwin, aged twenty-seven years.

They have laid her away in the earth, to await the coming of Christ to bring her to life and immortality. She leaves a kind husband, two little ones, mother and sisters, to mourn her loss, but not without hope of meeting where there will be no more death. Words of comfort by the writer. H. B. SEVEY.

BARTON. In Newport, N. H., Nov. 21st, 1874, Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Hosea B. and Frances Barton, aged eighteen years.

"Blessed are they that mourn; for they shall be comforted." F. S. RANSOM.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Rio Janeiro, Nov. 28. The religious excitement growing out of the conflict between the Catholic clergy and the civil authorities has culminated in serious disturbances in the provinces of Pernambuco and Parahiba. The sympathizers with the Bishops of Para and Pernambuco, who were recently sentenced for violation of the laws of the Empire, have made riotous demonstrations. Their cry is, "Down with the Masons!" and they have attacked several Masonic lodges, and bid defiance to the local authorities. Troops and ships have been dispatched to the disturbed districts from Pernambuco, Bahia, and this city.

Versailles, Dec. 1. The National Assembly today re-elected M. Buffett its President, by a vote of 348 to 3 scattering. The Left remained neutral and did not vote. MM. Martel, of the Left Centre, and Kerdrel and Benoist d'Azy, of the Right, were elected Vice Presidents.

PRESIDENT MACMAHON'S MESSAGE.

Paris, Dec. 2. A draft of the message to be submitted to the Assembly by President MacMahon was read in the Council of Ministers yesterday. A paragraph in the message in regard to raising the state of siege was energetically objected to by a majority of the members, who claimed that the maintenance of the state of siege was necessary, in consequence of the recent successes of the Radicals in the municipal elections at Paris and elsewhere in the country. Several members of the Cabinet also objected to the manner in which the constitutional laws were mentioned in the message. A fresh Council, to determine these questions, is to be held to-day.

Madrid, Nov. 29. President Serrano will leave for the North this week, when vigorous operations are anticipated. It is said that the army now numbers 200,000 men, fully armed, and there are 40,000 more who are waiting for arms which have been ordered from the United States.

London, Nov. 30. A circular letter from Archbishop Manning was read in all the Catholic churches of the Diocese yesterday, declaring that all persons who do not accept the dogma of Papal infallibility cease to be Catholics.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

Pittsburg, Penn., Nov. 29. A dispatch from Shaner,s Penn., gives the following particulars of a riot near that village to-day:

"This morning about twenty-five armed Italian miners crossed the river from Armstrong's, and, conducting themselves in a riotous manner, drove the women and children from their houses. They were promptly expelled by a force of citizens and driven across the river. Subsequently, about four o'clock, a body of some seventy-five men crossed the river from Buena Vista, formed in line above the coal works, where the Italians were quartered, and opened fire on them. After exchange of shots, lasting about three-quarters of an hour, the Italians displayed a white flag when firing ceased, and they promised to leave the place to-morrow. Four Italians are known to be killed and a number severely wounded, while the citizens escaped entirely unhurt. Large numbers of citizens are coming into the village offering aid to repel the attacks of the foreigners. The Sheriff of Westmoreland County, with a squad of police, is on hand, and will, it is believed, prevent further out breaks."

Baltimore, Nov. 30. As two passenger trains were crossing the small iron bridge spanning Lake Roland, on the Northern Central Railway, six miles from Baltimore, this afternoon, the bridge gave way under their weight, breaking at each end, and the whole structure falling into the water. The momentum of the locomotives carried them safely over, but the tenders, two baggage cars, and the passenger cars fell into the lake. The passenger cars were crowded with people, whose shrieks were heard at the station, several hundred yards distant. The scene was most remarkable. The baggage cars fell straight down upon their trucks, and the passenger cars stood upon one end, resting against the baggage cars and the abutments of the bridge. The passengers hurried out of the cars that had not reached the bridge, and commenced to rescue the unfortunates who were struggling to escape from the water that half filled the fallen cars. All were gotten out safe except Apton Young, who was in the baggage car, and was crushed to death by freight piling on him.

Scranton, Dec. 4. A man named Ludwig, his wife and infant child, were found in bed yesterday, the parents dying from poison. The wife died within an hour without returning to consciousness. The husband revived long enough to say he had been given something to drink, but refused or was unable to tell by whom. The child is still living, but suffering.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 22. Snow to the depth of nine inches fell here yesterday and last night.

TO VERMONTERS.—At our annual conference at Bethel, the State Committee were urged to carry the gospel of the kingdom into every new field which opened a door, and especially to offer a week of labor for any five dollars pledged by an isolated brother or sister living in a new field. We want to hear immediately from those places where labors are desired, that we may make due arrangements to meet the demands. If you are too poor to raise five dollars, and yet the door is open for a meeting, write us just the same as though you raised the money. Write to me at Waterbury, Vt., or to A. A. Hoyt, Plainfield, Vt. Write full particulars of circumstances, people, time, and place. Write soon.

PAPAL ROME.

BY ELD. S. S. BREWER.

This work states the predictions concerning the Papacy in its glory, its gloom, and destruction, together with the most reliable points of history showing their fulfillment, with a graphic statement of her present dying state. The widowhood, the moaning over her fate, the dying struggles under her afflictions, losses, poverty, and burning, are brought out in present history. It is a work of value for its historical quotations, which will be wanted by all interested in this subject. Single copy 15 cts. by mail; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 for 100 by express. AG'T.

THE SEVEN CHURCHES.

"A pamphlet of 60 pages (by W. N. Pile), giving an exposition of Rev. 2: 3. The epistles to the 'seven churches of Asia' (the author thinks) are shown to have been prophetic of the seven periods of the gospel age, in addition to their local application. An epitome of church history, from the apostolic age to the present time, is given, leading to the conclusion that we are now in the closing part of the Laodicean period, near the end of the dispensation and the establishment of the kingdom of God upon the earth. Price, single copy, postpaid, 15 cts.; two copies, 25 cts."

An interesting Tract. We hope it may do much good. "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."

For sale at this Office. AG'T.

A NEW BOOK.
"THE BIBLE DOCTRINE OF THE SOUL."

An Answer to the Question: "Is the Popular Conception of the Soul that of Holy Scripture?"

BY CHAS. L. IVES, M. D.

Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Yale College.

This is a pamphlet of 119 pages, in which the Author discusses the above question in an interesting and able manner,—showing the material nature of, the mortality and destiny of the Soul,—A future immortality to be the special portion of the Righteous,—What the Bible teaches as to the future of the Wicked,—The intermediate state,—The Resurrection,—That of the Righteous and of the Wicked, etc.

The Author claims that the doctrine set forth,—"Honors God, exalts the Bible, insures preaching of future punishment, subverts Universalism and Infidelity, errors of Romanism, of Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, helps in work of Missions, rightly values the body, brings Christian unity, and promotes personal holiness."

We are much pleased with this work. It ought to have a wide circulation. We have a good supply, and hope the friends will order freely. We will sell at the following prices:—25 cts. per copy; $2.00 per dozen, sent by mail; $15.00 per hundred, by express.

"UNTO YOU, THEREFORE, WHICH BELIEVE, HE IS PRECIOUS."

Precious Savior, draw me nearer,
Press me closer to thy breast;
Every day and hour thou'rt dearer;
In thy love alone I rest.

While I linger in the desert,
Keep, oh, keep me by thy side;
Let me find in thee a covert,
And defence when ills betide.

When with sorrows I am stricken,
To thy guardian arm I'll flee;
When affliction's clouds shall thicken,
Sunbeams will be shed by thee.

If my dearest friends are taken,
And disease my frame invade—
If by fortune I'm forsaken,
And the hopes of earth all fade;

Still, my courage shall not falter,
On thy arm I'll fondly lean;
Confident thou canst not alter,
Thou wilt cheer the darkest scene.

When the shades of death shall lower,
And the waves of Jordan roll,
Savior, whisper in that hour,
"I have saved thy precious soul."

In these arms thou'lt bear me over
That deep, dark, and swelling flood,
Washed and justified forever,
Evermore to dwell with God.

—Selected by I. A. G.

TO THE A. A. MISSION BOARD.

Dear Brethren:—My first letter has appeared in the Crisis, and this is my second letter to you.

Saturday, Oct. 24th, Bro. Bowman and myself began meetings at Cartersville, and held them till Sunday noon. Bro. Bowman had preached there once before. Cartersville is on the Wilmington and Columbia R. R., six miles beyond Timmonsville. The appointment had been given out four weeks before. The Baptist minister at Timmonsville heard of our appointment, and he appointed to preach there evenings, through the week, in the schoolhouse. There had scarcely ever been any preaching in the place, and there is no preacher living there. But he was fearful of his pet doctrines. Bro. Bowman called on him and asked him if he thought it was right to interfere with our meetings, as our appointment was given out first? and if he would not give way for me to preach Saturday evening? He said he would not, but told Bro. Bowman to repent of the false doctrines he was preaching, for he was brutalizing man. Bro. Bowman replied that he was not preaching false doctrines, neither was he brutalizing man; but he was magnifying the atonement of Christ.

Mr. Williams, a merchant in the place, and a man who does not profess religion, saw how we were treated, and he invited us to his house, and treated us like a christian. He had a building partly finished, which he fitted up with seats (it will hold twice as many as the school-house), and there we had a good congregation, good attention, and perfect freedom in showing them the difference between the truth of God and the traditions of men. We intend to go to Timmonsville, and we believe the earth will help the woman in giving us a place to speak.

Bro. Lawrence, at Cartersville, who has charge of the depot, has embraced our views of the entire mortality of man. He is a young man well educated, and stands up boldly for the truth. He had a talk with the above minister on the nature of man, and when he brought a "thus saith the Lord," it was convenient for him to make an excuse that he had other business to attend to. He did the same thing when Bro. Bowman had a conversation with him.

We preached at the first house built, seven miles from Cartersville, and four more started to serve the Lord, making fourteen in all at this house. I had forgotten to say in my first letter, that Sr. Bowman was one of the twenty-three baptized on the 18th. Saturday, Oct. 31st, we commenced meetings again at Andrews' Mills, the last house built. Sunday, Nov. 1st, Bro. Bowman baptized eight, making thirty-one in all. I preached all day to a full house, on the parable of the rich man and Lazarus, showing that the parable does not explain the Bible, but the Bible explains the parable. The righteous and the wicked are represented in the parable by two men. They represent two material classes that die, and are at the judgment seat after the resurrection. The beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom (or embrace).

We read that when the Son of man shall come in the clouds of heaven, he will send his angels to gather his elect from the four winds. That will be when God's dead men live again, at the resurrection of the just; for the righteous will rise first, and Lazarus represents this class of material beings. The rich man also died, and was buried; and in hades (the grave) he lifted up his eyes, being in torments; and seeth Abraham afar off. First he died; second he was buried; third he lifted up his eyes; fourth he was tormented. Dead men never open their eyes until they live again at the resurrection. The torments of the wicked will not come until after they come out of hades at the resurrection, and are cast bodily into gehenna fire, which will be the second death. Damnation does not come to the wicked till they have a resurrection from the grave.

Compare the parable of the wheat and tares, and it gives the chronology of the torments of the wicked precisely as this parable does. "The enemy that sowed them is the devil, the harvest is the end of the world, and the reapers are the angels. As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire, so shall it be in the end of this world. The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity. And shall cast them into a furnace of fire, there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth." The rich man cannot wail till he opens his eyes, and he cannot open his eyes till he lives again, and he cannot live again, till the resurrection. Immaterial shadows do not have eyes to weep nor teeth to gnash. But the wicked, represented by the rich man, in the parable, will have eyes and teeth when they are raised from the dead. The Lord calleth those things which be not as though they were. We must not confound the death and burial of the rich man with the lifting up of his eyes, and afterwards his torments in gehenna fire, any more than we should confound the two advents of Christ.

The Lord says in the parable that it was the rich man, and Lazarus, and Abraham. The popular theology says, Not so, Lord; it was their immortal souls; and thus contradict the Lord by their traditions. They say that God, heaven, and soul, are all immaterial. Immaterial has no substance. Can that which has no substance be seen? Immaterial souls must have good eyesight to see nothing. Then if they are right, of course hell and the impassable gulf are immaterial; and the parable ought to read, The immaterial rich man sees with immaterial eyes immaterial Lazarus in the immaterial bosom of immaterial Abraham. And the immaterial rich man desires that immaterial Lazarus should dip his immaterial finger in immaterial water and cool his immaterial tongue, for immaterial I am tormented with immaterial fire. And immaterial Abraham says to the immaterial rich man, between immaterial I, and immaterial you, there is an immaterial gulf.

By turning to Luke 13; 28, 29, we shall see that the people of God, at the coming of Christ, will be gathered into the Metropolis of the kingdom, where the wicked will see them; and in Rev. 22; 14, 15, we see the wicked on the outside, at the judgment seat. This shall be fulfilled when the Son of man shall sit upon the throne of his glory. By turning to Zech. 14, we shall see that the whole land of Canaan, promised to Abraham, will be lifted up and inhabited in her place. The land of Canaan, the sanctuary cleansed, at the end of twenty-three hundred years, where the New Jerusalem will come down, will be raised up higher than the territory outside. This will form a material gulf between the righteous and the wicked at the judgment seat of Christ. 2 Cor. 5: 10, Phil. 2: 10, 11.

Friday evening, Nov. 6th, I preached at Cartersville, in the school-house, from Matt. 16: 28, showing how the kingdom was seen in the type, and how it will be fulfilled in the antitype; proving from the Bible, that Jesus is the rightful heir to David's throne. At the close of the meeting two unbelievers confessed to one of our brethren that they were cured of unbelief in the Bible. A Baptist minister happened to be in the place, and he came in, and was asked at the close if there was anything he objected to. He said there was nothing, and thought we should not differ much anyway.

Sunday, Nov. 8th, Bro. Bowman preached at the second house, and myself at the first, twelve miles apart. A man and his wife (Methodist) wished to be admitted into the Advent church, and were received. A short time before, this man bought a Jubilee Harp of Bro. Bowman. His minister on this circuit was informed of it, and he wished him to throw it away. Instead of doing so, he and his wife took themselves away. A Baptist sister was also received. It stirs those who oppose us, and they think Bro. Bowman and myself are among those who turn the world upside down, and trouble Israel. Their craft is in danger. But none of these things move us, for we know what was said of our Master.

The colored people held their campmeeting last week. It was a mile distant from the first house built. Bro. Du Bose and myself attended two afternoons. They estimated that there were four thousand in attendance. Their preacher talked of going to the theological heaven at death. One old preacher repeated the words, "I will come again." I suppose he meant John 14: 3. He repeated the text several times. I thought, we shall get some Advent doctrine now, sure. He said "Jesus put Adam and Eve in de garden of Eden, and made a covenant with them, and went away; and they sinned, and in de cool of de morning he come again, and talked with them." So he made the two comings of Jesus, before he came at all. Some time before their meeting, as Bro. Bowman and myself were riding to our appointment, we met their colored minister, John Boston. Bro. Bowman asked him if he would like to have me preach to them at their campmeeting. But he did not consent. They have been advised not to come to hear us, nor let us preach for them. Their Presiding Elder is a white man from the North.

I have never met a kinder hearted people than our brethren are in this region of country. I have not heard them say one word against the people of the North, in consequence of the war. But they were as much opposed to secession as we ourselves. Not one of them wants the colored people back in slavery. The people were left very poor at the close of the war, and have had to work hard to support their families. I tell our brethren their only hope is the soon coming of the Savior.

We held meetings November 14th and 15th at the second house. They were very profitable meetings. Eight were received into the church, two of them formerly Methodists; six of them have recently started.

We make the Bible our only rule of faith and practice. The Bible is all the written creed we have. The preaching of Bro. Bowman and myself has stirred up a feeling among those that oppose the truth,—those who preach the traditions of men; but none of these things move us; we feel that we understand our work, and the Lord has chosen us to be soldiers, and soon the warfare will be over and we shall be relieved from duty. Thank the Lord. We preached at one of our meetings to a father, mother, and twelve children. They have one asleep in death, and a babe at home.

Bro. and Sr. Bowman do everything in their power to make us comfortable and happy. Nelly Grey, the mare given them by the Bro. in Mass. (God bless him), carries us in safety to the meetings, and they think very much of her. Willie, their youngest son, of twelve summers, takes charge of the premises in the absence of his father. He has the most care about him of any boy I ever saw. He milks the cow, builds the fires, and frequently carries his father and myself to meeting, and returns and brings his mother and my wife. So we get along in peace and harmony, trusting in the Lord. Willie is very thoughtful, and is seeking the Lord, and I hope will be baptized soon, for others are going forward before long.

Some have written from the State of Georgia for us to come there. We shall probably go some time in the winter; and if so, we shall stop at Columbia, the capital of S. C., and afterwards go to Charleston, if the Lord will. We will keep you informed as we progress in the good work.

A. Simpson.

P. S.—Bro. Bowman has just received a barrel of apples from the North, but no name with them. If others who have promised to send should do so, please send the name.

DOWN BRAKES.

J. W. THOMAS.

There is danger ahead. When I was a school-boy I remember reading a story about the burning of a railroad bridge, and how a train loaded with passengers was prevented from plunging into the awful chasm. A little boy, by the name of Eli, discovered that the bridge was burned, just as an express train was nearly due. He saw the danger, and knew that unless the train could be stopped there would be a fearful loss of life. Stepping on to the track he saw the train coming under full headway, and, with hat off and both hands uplifted, he ran toward it, right in the centre of the track, screaming at the top of his voice, "The bridge is burned! the bridge is burned!" The engineer saw him and blew the whistle for him to get out of the way, but at the risk of his own life he still ran toward the engine crying, "The bridge is burned! the bridge is burned!" The whistle blew again for "down brakes," and the train was stopped just in time; the passengers came out, and after viewing the danger, loaded the little boy with presents, and planted kisses upon his cheek. By his forethought and courage he had saved them from an awful death, and saved many homes from weeping and wailing.

Sinner, there is danger ahead. There is an awful chasm into which you will shortly be plunged unless you stop. You do not see it. With the thoughtless, pleasure seeking multitude, you are crowding the halls of mirth, swearing, smoking, drinking, dancing, carousing, and little dreaming of danger, while the train of Time is speeding you on with fearful velocity toward the awful precipice. I see your danger. With pen, and voice, and uplifted hands I would cry with all my might, Stop, stop; the bridge is burned, the bridge is burned. The road you are travelling is not safe. The train you are in will not take you into the Celestial Depot. You are on the direct road to perdition. Stop. Down brakes, down brakes. Abate your speed. Stop, stop.

Let me explain what I mean. There is an awful judgment day just before you. The Word of God declares it, and that can never fail. "Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes; but know thou, that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment." Eccl. 11: 9. Do you wonder that I ask you to stop? Listen again. "God now commandeth all men everywhere to repent. Because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead." Acts 27: 31. Do you wonder that I am in earnest when I ask you to repent? Are you not surprised that I am not more in earnest? God is not willing you should perish. He is long-suffering, not willing that any should perish, but rather all would come to repentance. But you must submit to his terms. He offers pardon and eternal salvation to all who will repent and believe the gospel. He has sent out his ministers to give the alarm,—to call upon men everywhere to repent; to warn the world of the judgment to come. They are watchmen on the walls of Zion, and are to give the signal when they see danger ahead. Woe to them if they are unfaithful. Woe to you, if they give the warning and you heed it not.

O sinner, stop, stop. Go no further in sin. I warn you this day in the name of my Master to stop. O, I beseech you to turn unto God this day. Repent of your sins. Cry to the Lord for pardon. Flee to Jesus whose blood can cleanse you from all unrighteousness. Pray as you never prayed before. Read the Bible. Ask for the Holy Spirit to illuminate your heart. God will save you. O think of the glories of heaven. There is a crown for you. Will you have it? There is a white robe, and a new song. Will you go? O delay not. Time is flying. The judgment is coming. We shall soon be there. Stop. Pray.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The annual meeting of the Hoosick Valley Conference was held with the A. C. Church in Hoosick, N. Y., commencing Oct. 21st, 1874.

The Credential Committee reported the following names as members of the Conference. Preachers—A. W. Sibley, Sandy Hill, N. Y.; H. K. Flagg, Rutland, Vt.; R. L. Harrison, Hoosick, N. Y.; Dennis Sears, Savoy, Mass.; C. W. Baker, Shushan, N. Y.; T. Mayhew and E. D. Kemp, Pownal Centre, Vt.; W. O. Higley, Bennington, Vt.; Sr. M. L. Tower, North Adams, Mass.; J. B. White, Treasurer, Hoosick Falls, N. Y.

Delegates—N. Robertson and L. Harrington, Hoosick, N. Y.; E. C. Cox, Hebron, N. Y.; S. D. Hutchins, Rutland, Vt.; G. Kilburn, North Adams, Mass.; E. W. Woodward, Shushan, N. Y.; G. F. Townsend, Woodford, Vt.; William White, White Creek, N. Y.

The following officers were appointed (the vote being unanimous) for the ensuing year. President, A. W. Sibley, Sandy Hill, N. Y. Vice President, H. K. Flagg, Rutland, Vt. Secretary, W. O. Higley, Bennington, Vt. Treasurer, J. B. White, Hoosick Falls, N. Y.

Ministerial Committee—H. K. Flagg, A. W. Sibley, R. L. Harrison.

Protracted Meeting Committee—A. W. Sibley, H. K. Flagg, C. Pike, R. Mosher, Dennis Sears, W. O. Higley.

Tent Committee—H. K. Flagg, A. W. Sibley.

Tract Committee—R. L. Harrison, Dennis Sears, G. F. Townsend.

Conference voted that an Evangelist be appointed to travel and preach throughout the bounds of the Conference; and Eld. A. W. Sibley was unanimously chosen by ballot (providing he could be secured) to act as such. And the Conference resolved itself into a committee to solicit contributions to aid in this work.

Reports from preachers, delegates, treasurer, and committees, were cheering. The church in Rutland had received twenty-five members since April. The church at Sandy Hill had received twenty-three members within the last twelve months. There has been a nice Chapel erected in Woodford, Vt. There have been two tent meetings during the past season,—one at West Hawley, Mass., and one at Granville, N. Y., both of which were fruitful of good. The meeting at West Hawley was under the supervision of Eld. H. K. Flagg, and the one at Granville under the supervision of Eld. A. W. Sibley.

The church at Hoosick has been reaping a rich harvest since the Conference, which we hope may not only continue but increase. We hope this Conference year will prove to be one in which labors shall be crowned with the blessing of the Most High; for, although we may do much, yet it will prove fruitless unless God shall give the increase.

Brethren and sisters, let us pray that our next quarterly meeting may be the best meeting we have ever enjoyed.

W. O. Higley, Secretary.

WE NEVER KNOW.

Every day we are dropping seeds
Along our life-way's hills and vales,
While summer rules the flowery meads,
Or the wind of winter wails;

For a germ is hidden in every deed,
And every word we say, I know,
And be it a flower or a thistle seed,
It shall, sometime and somewhere, surely grow.

And on and on in the world we go—
On and on, and we never know
The fruit that comes from the seed we sow!

AN APPEAL.

S. WOODRUFF.

Brn. and Srs. of Conn:—We, as officers of the Conference, feel deeply interested in the great work to which our divine Master called us, and desire to be directed by him. We therefore implore your earnest, fervent prayer to God for peace and holiness, and the advancement of true piety in all the line of our Conference, that more than ever it may be a power working mightily for the salvation of the lost and perishing, and at the same time bringing brethren and sisters to a closer walk with God. We pray the good Lord to help us go forth in his strength, and preach the Word in the demonstration of the Spirit and with power, that hard hearts may be broken and yield to Christ.

Dear brethren, time is short; the great Head of the church we shall soon see; therefore let us use the ability God has given us to open the eyes of the blind, and unstop the ears of the deaf. The gospel will effect this when accompanied with power, meekness, and humility. This is the season for labor, and we propose holding a series of meetings wherever the way may open where good may be done. Make it a subject of prayer, and see if the Lord does not want you to make an effort in your place to stop the wayward and persuade sinners to be reconciled to the government of God and be saved.

We think perhaps December would be more favorable than January for the next session of our Conference. There will be no business, and the time will be spent in praying, exhorting and preaching. The good Lord bless the meeting.

Brethren, do you desire the meeting at your place? Consider it candidly before God, then act accordingly.

Correspondence.

From Bro. Geo. Thomson.

Dear Editors:—I would say to the many dear friends who are so anxious to hear from me personally, that I would be glad to write to them if I was able to write myself; as I am not, I take this means of informing them how I am getting along. I am still about the same, sometimes worse and sometimes better. I am now trying a new remedy prepared by Bro. J. P. Hazard, of R. I., which I am encouraged to hope will benefit me, I hope the dear friends will join with me in praying that the Lord's blessing will attend it. The Lord still sustains me by his grace in all my sufferings, and I feel that my trust is in him.

Let me say to the isolated ones, hold on, and contend for the faith once delivered to the saints. I know it is hard to battle alone, but be courageous; the victory is sure when Jesus comes. I knew a dear Bro. who with his family dragged alone for twelve or thirteen years; but finally the Lord visited them with a revival, and raised up quite a large church, in the midst of which they are now—encouraged and rewarded.

How much we ought to pray for the blind watchmen on the walls of Zion, who are leading their followers astray. It is reported to me that one of our ministers in this place recently made the following remarks in one of his sermons: "Some people go so far as to describe what heaven is to be; but no where within the lids of the Bible is it described." To sustain his statement he quoted the often garbled passage—"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath entered into the heart of man, the things that God hath prepared for them that love him"; omitting the rest of the passage—"But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit which he hath given us." He further stated that John attempted to describe the future state, but it was only imagination on his part. Surely that dear Bro. never read the first chapter of Revelation. How glad we ought to be, dear friends, that we have a tangible hope.

I acknowledge with many thanks the following sums, and may God bless the generous donors: Bro. C. E. Barnes, $5. Bro. W. Robinson, $5. S. B. Norton, $1. Bro. and Sr. Pettis, Vallejo, Cal., $2. M. Pierando (by the hand of Bro. F. Burr), $1.50. M. E. Brown (by the same), $1. S. S. Babcock (by the same), $1. Mary F. Burbank, 50 cts. H. Everson, $1. L. H. Peck, $1. W. C. Peck, $1. L. A. Gilpins and daughter Maggie, $3. Mr. and Mrs. Dearborn, (by the hand of Calvin Stoddard), $4.40. Calvin Stoddard, $2.

Brn. and Srs. scattered abroad:—I feel like addressing a few words to you through the columns of the Crisis—our excellent paper. Praise the Lord for the Crisis. Every week its columns are freighted with truth that will condemn the world. May God bless with heavenly wisdom and more than mortal energy its editors and contributors. May the fire of God's love so burn on the altar of their hearts, that their words may be chosen words, burning words fitly spoken. We are living in the closing moments of time, and what we do must be done quickly.

Through the protecting care of my heavenly Father and an indwelling Savior, I had a safe and pleasant journey home. Found my family well, and very glad to welcome me back—I can hardly say to a home, for we have no certain dwelling place. We are pilgrims and strangers, seeking a better country. God has verified his promise to us,—Mark 10: 59, 30. We have always found homes, brethren, and sisters; and were the Master to inquire—"Lacked ye anything?" we could say, "Nothing, Lord." And we will give Him all the glory.

My visit East seems like some pleasant dream. It is a brighter spot in my pilgrimage. Like the bread and water provided for Elisha, I hope to go on the strength of it many days.

We found many letters from East, West, North and South; and, like the cry to Paul, the burden is, "Come over and help us." The fields are all white and ready for harvest. The harvest truly is great, and the laborers are few. We are almost constantly traveling, and preaching every evening and twice Sundays. I am privileged with telling "the old, old story, of Jesus and his love." Praise God for this privilege. I love to tell it. I love to magnify his name.

We are enjoying a precious season at Peach Creek. We commenced a meeting last Thursday, and the interest is good. People are attending night after night, who came a distance of eight miles. Sinners are coming to Christ. A Methodist minister of good report has confessed himself satisfied that we are preaching the truth. I am convinced he will preach not only the coming of our King at hand, and kindred truths, but "holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord."

Bro. Cutler, formerly of the Freewill Baptist persuasion, resides here. He embraced the truth last spring, during our meeting at this place. He identified himself at that time with us, and was chosen Pastor of the church. He is an interesting, able speaker. He has a family, and like most of the inhabitants is very poor. He has been doing all that he could.

There are many at this place who are waiting for God's Son from heaven. We expect to hold meetings all winter, and as much as possible we shall visit new places.

We earnestly request an interest in the prayers of the friends of Jesus, that we may be instrumental in leading many to the Lamb of God, who will be saved in the day of his coming.

Editors Crisis:—As a friend of the truth, permit me through the columns of your paper to drop a few random thoughts to the faithful in Jesus, that they may learn something about what has been done for the cause of truth in this out of the way part of the world.

Some eight or ten days ago, the Rev. J. A. Cargile, a Second Advent minister from Alabama, and a faithful and humble christian, came into our community. He came scattering religious tracts and preaching day and night to large and attentive audiences; and the solemn truths enunciated by him have sunk deep into many good and honest hearts; and in the morn of the resurrection we trust they will shine as stars in the kingdom of God. So intensely interested were the people in hearing the truth, that at times you might have heard a pin drop. Milton speaks of "darkness visible," to express intensest want of light; and we may with the same freedom of speech term that deadly stillness "silence audible."

Bro. C. came among us a stranger, heralded by no high-sounding titles, and with no recommendation save the love of God in his heart; and commenced preaching the beauty and simplicity of the Scriptures. The effect upon the minds of his hearers was electric. Men and women long established in the belief of cherished isms and creeds laid them aside without an effort, and have drawn nearer to the Bible and to God. Old theories and pet dogmas in theology that have been handed by parent to child, from generation to generation, until they had become as near and dear to us as the parent who taught them, were uprooted and torn from the mind as chaff is blown before the wind; and to-day our people are better christians and stronger believers in the Bible than they were before.

The Methodist officials closed the door of their house against him, but God did not forsake him. Friends sprang up, and private dwellings, school-houses, and Masonic halls flew open for his reception and use, and men and women, irrespective of creeds or denominations, flocked to hear.

Thus you see the power and effect the word has, trimmed of the shackles thrown around it by the opinions and traditions of men.

From Mrs. D. S. Roberts.

Editors of Crisis:—I spend a few moments this evening to let you know that I feel very much indebted to you for your kindness in sending me your paper. It seems as if I should not know how to do without it. That and the Bible are all the church I go to, for the churches are very popular here, and my small means will not admit of a suitable outfit. I have a little girl seven years old, and I send her to church and to Sunday school, and that is all I am able to do. Since my husband's death I have continued to work here in a factory. I was left with three small children, and nothing but my hands to help myself with. I tried to support them all by working in the mill; but finding I could not do it, I succeeded in finding places for the two eldest, and the youngest I keep with me.

My husband and myself were both young and just commencing in life when he went into the army. He was there about eight months, when, on picket guard one cold, stormy night, he took a sudden cold and had a lung fever. He came home, but never got so as to do any work. He continued to fail gradually until his death. I have never had much heart for anything since in this world, but my anxiety for my little ones has kept my courage up. I get along poorly some of the time, for wages are low, and help is plenty. I get but four dollars and a half a week, and that is more than some get. So you see my means are small in proportion to my wants. Some say they do not know how I get along, and board and clothe myself and child, and pay my rent, from four dollars and a half a week. Well, I have to do it. You may have thought strange that you did not hear from me, but I am not much of a hand to write, and my hands and heart are full.

Many thanks for that little book that was sent me from your Office this season. I do not think I could be contented a moment without your paper, yet I have not the means to pay for it. I have paid my past year's postage in full at the Office. I now will enclose you twenty-five cents as postage for the coming year; and that is all I can do. If you feel as though you could continue to send me the paper, I shall feel very thankful. I doubt if there is one among all your papers that has more readers than mine. There is not one in the mill but that reads it more or less. There is one old lady here that lately moved from the northern part of this State. She is eighty-two years old, and she never saw one of your papers until I gave her one of mine. She is not able to go to church, and is so anxious to see the paper every week that she cannot wait for me to get it, so she sends her son after it as soon as the mail comes in. It has opened a new life to her in her old age. So do not think the paper is not doing any one good but myself, for it has its many loving readers besides me. Sometimes it has to go through four or five hands before I can get it. I could tell you much more about its readers, but it is getting late, and I must close.

GIVE AND IT SHALL BE GIVEN.

"Cheerful giving," writes an aged minister, "is what enriches the giver and brings down a blessing from above. A poor clergyman attended one of Zion's festivals in a distant city. The railroad company supplied him with a return ticket, and though many of his brethren would secure treasures from the book-stores, but a solitary twenty-five cent scrip was in his possession, and he would need that to pay for refreshment on his way home. It was the last day of the feast. Mention, again and again, was made of the widow's mite, or poor men's gifts, and as the boxes were passed he felt sad that in his deep poverty he could not cast in a single penny. As the assembly was dismissed, it was announced that collectors would stand at the door to gather up the fragments which ought to be in the Lord's treasury. With slow steps this good man passed down and put that last money he possessed into the waiting box.

In a few moments a gentleman of the city invited him to his table to dine, with quite a number of the dignitaries of the church. During the repast the host was called from the table for a little time. At the conclusion of a pleasant entertainment the poor minister was taken one side, and an envelope put into his hands with this remark: 'I was called from the table by a man who has long owed me a small debt, which I thought was lost a long time since, and I cannot think what it was paid to-day for, except that I might give it to you.' The envelope contained twenty-five dollars. When the books are opened, that rich steward will see how his money was used, and thank God, who put it into his heart to dispose of it thus."—Advance.

A CARD.

G. W. STETSON.

As the Bible is the best of books, the safest guide for, and ablest instructor of man, "in all things pertaining to life and godliness," and should be kept free from interpolations and garbled quotations of suppositious truths, and as it is an admitted and accepted rule, that all Bible truth can be expressed, communicated, and taught in Bible language, and every doctrine that cannot be so expressed, is not a Bible doctrine, and as a pernicious and dangerous practice is indulged, of quoting "traditions of men" for Bible; therefore, to discountenance, and suppress said pernicious custom, and induce a more careful handling of the sacred writings, by pulpit, press, and people, the

is now offered by responsible parties to any one who will find either of the annexed phrases in the Bible, viz. "Immortal soul—undying soul—never dying soul—disembodied spirit—deathless spirit—immortal spirit—eternal torment—eternal suffering in conscious misery—eternal misery—unending misery—unending torment—everlasting woe—endless woe—death that never dies—life that never lives—damned spirits in hell cursing God—smoke of their torment ascending up forever and ever from that unquenchable lake of fire prepared for the devil and his angels where their worm dieth not, wailing in misery and despair, banished from the presence of God in everlasting punishment, gnashing their teeth in rage and hopeless agony."

To the foregoing the undersigned will add ($25.)

TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS REWARD,

for any and every text produced from the Bible (common English), in which God's covenant blessing of eternal life through Abraham's seed (Christ), is promised to man's soul, spirit, or body, separate, each from the others, in death, independent of a resurrection.

The like reward to any one who will produce a text from the Bible (excepting, in all cases, the mooted parable of Luke 16: 19–31), in which the word "hell," as derived and translated from the Hebrew word "sheol," or the Greek word "hades," is ever used to designate a place of everlasting punishment in conscious misery, or unending life in suffering.

The same to any one who will produce a Bible promise (the mooted one of Luke 23: 40–43, excepted) of recompense to the righteous or unrighteous at, or in death, independent of a resurrection.

Also the same, for a Bible text showing that a single dead saint is now alive and happy in heaven, independent of a resurrection, or that one dead sinner is now alive and miserable in hell (Gehenna). Korah and his band, with the Sodomites and people of Gomorrah not excepted; or one text that will prove that "the devil and his angels" have yet been consigned to "the lake of fire," that they or any one else (excepting Enoch, Elijah, and the "first fruits," and the "not excepted" parties above named, with possibly the antideluvians), have received their final award for good or evil, or that they will until "the judgment of the great day."

The same reward to any one producing Bible proof that the promised blessing to the righteous is not eternal life, and the punishment of the wicked "EVERLASTING DESTRUCTION, in a literal and absolute sense.

To obtain the rewards, name the book, chapter, and verse quoted, and send the same in writing, with your address to G. W. Stetson, Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa.

WHAT IS RESPECTABLE SOCIETY?

We heard a man, otherwise intelligent enough, lately sneer at another, "because," said he, "one never-meets him in respectable society." The speaker did not mean, however, that the person he affected to look down on was immoral, but merely that his circle of intimates was not composed of the fashionable or rich. This notion of what constitutes respectable society is quite a favorite one with that class of individuals whom Thackeray has so significantly called "snubs." Empty pretense is always making its own characteristics a standard by which it strives to measure the resspectability of persons at large. In a community of mere money-gettings, wealth is the test of respectability. Among the proud, narrow-minded, respectability depends on being descended from ancestors who have married their cousins for so many centuries that neither muscles nor brains are left any longer to degenerate descendants. Every conceited fool thinks himself, in like way, th only man really weighty, the only person who is really respectable. But true respectability depends on no such adventitious circumstances.

To be respectable is to be worthy of respect; and he most deserves respect who has the most virtue. The humblest man, who bravely does his duty, is more worthy of respect; is more truly respectable, than the covetous millionaire among his money-bags, or the arrogant monarch on his throne. The fine lady who backbites her neighbor is less worthy of respect than an honest washer woman. The profligate noble, though he may wear a dozen orders in his button-hole, is often not really as respectable as the shoe-black who cleans his boots. That which is called the world "exalts the one and despises the other;" but it does not make them respectable according to the real meaning of the word. Their respectability is but a shallow sham, as they themselves frequently feel; and those who worship them bow down to a fetich—a thing of feathers and tinsel. The selfish, idle drone who wastes his life in his own gratification, and dissipates the fortune of his progeny, is not and cannot be respectable; but the hard-working and self-denying father who wears out his life to bring up his children is, though he be a day-laborer, entitled to distinctive respect. Nothing can make Dives fit to lie on Abraham's bosom, while Lazarus is welcomed there, even with the sores the dogs have licked.—Health Reformer.

SEASONABLE FOOD.

The wholesomeness of food depends nearly as much on the time it is taken as on the quantity. We have grown so luxurious in our physical as well as mental tastes, that we are constantly tempted to eat things out of season. Yielding to the temptation, as we often do, we pay the penalty, soon or late, in temporary or chronic derangement of our health. The meat which is excellent in cold, may not be desirable in warm weather; fish is best during spring and early summer; vegetables and fruit are nutritious when they are fully ripened by sun and season, and not artificially stimulated. Nature knows what she is doing; she furnishes for every latitude the productions fittest for such latidude. We need variety, not so much at one time, as from time to time. The delacacies of the season will not hurt us; but the delacies out of season certainly will, if long continued. The appetite so jaded as to crave oysters in July, or strawberries in December, needs careful correction by the adoption of the simplest habits. The palate naturally relishes what nature has near at hand. As a rule, not only is the simplest food the best food, but the most seasonable, is in the long run, the most appetizing. There is no difficulty in determining what we should eat, since the products of our climate show us plainly month by month. Fish, flesh and fruit, by their plumpness, tenderness and ripeness, themselves denote when they are ready to be eaten. A sound stomach will profit by whatever an unspoiled palate enjoys.—Scribner's.

What ought to be done when a person has been bitten by a mad dog, or by any dog? First, be very sure that you do not waste valuable time running for a doctor, but go to work yourself, and as quickly as possible wash the wound with water and soap—warm water is preferable, if it can be got without waiting. It is well to add a little spirits ammonia, aqua ammonia (water of ammonia), to the water; but do not wait for it. What is to be done must be done with as little delay as possible. Next cauterize the wound with muriatic acid poured upon and into it; but for fear it may not penetrate to the bottom, the nitrate of silver in sticks (lunar caustic) is preferable. Sharpen the stick of nitrate of silver and push it down to the bottom of the wound, and into each incision, indentation or laceration, and hold it there until every part of the wound is most thoroughly cauterized. When the pain of the caustic ceases the poison will be destroyed. If the lunar caustic cannot be readily obtained, let a wire be used, heated to a white heat, which plunge to the bottom of each incision made by the dog's teeth. Do not hesitate or flinch—your life is in jeopardy. Afterwards the part may be cut out, if the surgeon thinks it advisable. Geo L. Beach, M. D.

Fretting.—With many, fretting is a habit almost constantly indulged in; and as it retards digestion, it must increase the irritation of the system and induce disease. Therefore it is impossible that a fretter should be healthy; and those who fret much will in time find much to fret about. Thus they become the authors of their own misery.

The CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

THE ASSEMBLY OF THE SAINTS.

We gather here, a loyal band,
To plight anew our heart and hand
To earth's soon coming King:
We stand and wait his regal day,
And as we watch for him, we pray,
And hopefully we sing.

O, some one day when thus we're met,
Or in our homes are quiet set,
Or as we toiling stand;
A vision will appear in heaven,
And then to us there shall be given
The grasp of Christ's right hand.

Or else like Enoch, walking on,
The world shall find that we are gone,
And search for us in vain.
And when our Lord, the crucified,
Shall come to earth, the glorified,
We shall be in his train.

Blest by the great Unseen and Good
Is this our holy brotherhood;
By Christ esteemed most dear:
Warmed by the Spirit, cheered by grace,
The kingdom is our portioned place,
When Jesus shall appear.

DO THE THREE PERIODS IN DANIEL 9: 24-27 HAVE ONE COMMENCEMENT?

L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

Before entering upon an examination of this subject negatively, we will state that our prepossessed opinions and prejudices were formerly fully committed to the affirmative; and it was a long time before my better judgment prevailed, so as to be willing to lay aside the error that had such strong hold upon me, and embrace and confess the truth. But it being the truth that I was searching for, when I became fully satisfied that my former views on these points were defective, I readily accepted that which I now regard as sound, and the true teachings of the Holy Scriptures on this subject.

The first period, in ver. 24, is that of the famous "seventy weeks," that some earnest expositors of prophecy have regarded as commencing in B. C. 457, and ending at the crucifixion of Christ, which they placed in A. D. 33. The second period is that of ver. 25, the "sixty-nine weeks," regarded also as beginning with the former, and ending at the baptism of Christ. The third, that of ver. 26, the "sixty-two weeks," commencing at the end of the "seven weeks" (supposed to be the first part of the 69 weeks), and ending at the crucifixion also, in conjunction with the 70 weeks. The fourth, the one week of ver. 27, supposed to commence with the ministry of Christ, and end either at his crucifixion or three and a half years subsequently. This view expositors have regarded as strongly fortified with sound argument and scriptural evidence; but we think otherwise, and regard their arguments as mere assumptions, wholly unsustained even upon their own premises. For, allowing that the 62 weeks commence where they say, i. e., 49 years subsequent to the 69 weeks, this application would make both periods end simultaneously, or at the baptism of Christ; whereas the prophecy requires the 62 weeks to reach to the crucifixion. Dr. Barnes saw this difficulty, and so interpreted the phrase—"after threescore and two weeks," giving it the latitude at least of three and a half years beyond the terminus of the 62 weeks. The phrase "after" cannot (in the connection under consideration) mean more than a part of a year; because Gabriel was giving definite measurements of time to certain specified events; and, therefore, if a year or more was to intervene than what he specified, this would destroy the definiteness of his statement, and leave us to conjecture what he meant.

Another fact that proves the popular application of these periods unfounded is this: If the 70 weeks and the 69 weeks begin B. C. 457, and the 62 weeks 49 years subsequently, and the 70 weeks end at the crucifixion of Christ in A. D. 33, and the 62 weeks end three and a half years after, this would prove that the 62 weeks could not commence till three and a half years after the date fixed in their application; consequently the 70 weeks could not end in A. D. 33, but three and a half years after this date; rendering such application entirely unreconcilable. If the "one week" is a part of the seventy, and Christ was crucified in the midst of this week, how could this one week end three years (more or less) after the 70, and still be a part of the seventy weeks? Thus we see that the absurdity of such an application is mathematically demonstrated, and does violence to the statements of the prophecy.

In order to understand the true import of these several periods, it will be important to give close attention to the language of the prophecy, and its relation to Daniel's prayer and the circumstances connected with it. This prayer has a close relation to the 70 years of desolation which God had declared by Jeremiah that he would visit upon Jerusalem. The king of Babylon had been slain, and Darius the Median had taken the kingdom, as foretold. Daniel supposed the time at hand for the captivity to be turned, and his people to go back to rebuild Jerusalem; and as he had been instructed by Gabriel that those kingdoms represented by beasts were to tread under foot the "sanctuary" 2300 days, he was anxious to understand about these periods. He supposed the seventy years' captivity and the 2300 days were somehow related to each other. This is apparent from what "the wonderful numberer" had declared; viz., that the sanctuary should be justified at the end of the 2300 days; and also from Daniel's prayer that the Lord's anger might be turned away from Jerusalem, "thy holy mountain," or sanctuary. As the seventy years' captivity were about expired, he expected his people should return to Jerusalem, and rebuild it, with the temple; and when this was accomplished, the 2300 days would end, and the "sanctuary" be justified. Whether Daniel understood it in this light, or not, it is evident that he was laboring under a misapprehension about the termination of the seventy years' captivity, if not also in relation to the 2300 year-day vision. This is seen by reason of the swift flight of Gabriel, and Daniel's confession that he "informed" him concerning those seventy years' captivity, and the unfinished explanation of the vision in the eighth chapter.

Says Dr. Gill: "He informed him by talking with him of the will of God to restore the captivity of his people, to rebuild Jerusalem and the temple, and of the coming of the Messiah; . . . and said, 'O Daniel, I am now come forth'—just now come from heaven, from the presence of God, and by his order—'to give thee skill and understanding,' or, 'to instruct thee' in 'understanding'; to teach thee the knowledge and give thee the understanding of secret things, which otherwise could not be known; such as particularly the time of the coming of Christ, which the angels themselves knew not till it was revealed; and being made acquainted with it, one of them is employed to make it known to Daniel, who is the only prophet that fixes the exact time of it, and was favored with this divine and heavenly skill of knowing it, and of being the publisher of it to others." As Daniel says that Gabriel informed him, and Gabriel himself says he came forth for the purpose of giving him skill and understanding, therefore Gabriel's communication to the prophet must relate to those points agitating his mind, that would relieve him of his difficulty. Thus he says, "Therefore understand the matter (about the seventy years' captivity), and consider the vision" (that of the 2300 prophetic days).

Daniel says that he had previously seen Gabriel "in the vision at the beginning." The beginning here referred to cannot mean that of the seventh chapter, because there it is called a dream and visions of his head; and also because we have no account of Gabriel in said chapter, or that he was there seen by the prophet. Neither can it refer to the beginning of his prayer in the ninth chapter, for there is no record of any vision seen in this chapter. Dr. Barnes says:—"There is no intimation that Gabriel had appeared to him at the beginning of the prayer; and it is declared that at the beginning of the prayer Gabriel, then evidently in heaven, had received commandment to go to Daniel, and to communicate the message to him. Ver. 23. The meaning undoubtedly is, that the personage who now appeared to him, he recognized in a former vision on the banks of the Ulai."

Thus we see that it was the vision recorded in the eighth chapter that Daniel referred to. As Gabriel did not at that time fully explain that vision, we find him again at the side of Daniel, to make him understand fully the whole matter. His last words were before entering upon the explanation—"consider the vision"; that is, consider its import, and my former communication to you, and how far I proceeded in its explanation, and the long period to be occupied by those antichristian powers in treading under foot the sanctuary and the host. Consider that seventy weeks are cut off "upon thy people, and upon thy holy city." So much time is allotted to the Jewish nation for their temporal welfare. Jerusalem is again to be rebuilt by the captive Jews who are to return from Babylon, and they and their city be continued this period of time, from a given epoch, at the expiration of which they would meet with utter ruin and destruction, both the Jews and their city. Dr. Gill gives in the main this sense to the passage under consideration.

As this period of 490 years was "cut off" from the 2300 days, and related especially to the Jews and their city—Jerusalem—through which time a certain transgression was to be restrained, i. e., those heathen, idolatrous powers, represented by the beasts, were to be held under restraint, from desolating the Jews. This period must also begin from a memorable event in the history of the Jewish nation, when their extermination was about to be executed, and the decree had gone forth from the king of Persia, who had been misled by Haman, an Amalekite, a bitter enemy of the Jews, and obtained from him the death warrant of the whole nation. This is the event that Gabriel evidently refers to as the beginning of the seventy weeks; for God did most signally at that time restrain the action of the king of Persia, and the Jews were preserved. From this epoch the nation continued for 490 years, till A. D. 65, when by another signal and miraculous event, God's protection over them and his restraint over their enemies was withdrawn, and the war by the Romans, that destroyed the Jewish nation, commenced.

OBEDIENCE THE TEST OF LOVE TO GOD.

T. L. WAUGH.

"He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him." JOHN 14: 21.

The sincerity of one's profession is tested by his obedience to the requirements of the gospel. There can be no true and genuine love for Jesus, unless we are led to follow out his teachings in all the walks of life;—unless this is uppermost in our thoughts and desires, and we endeavour to please him, because love incites us in all our acts and deeds. How delightful the way becomess when one feels that obedience is a pleasure, and not a task; that it is more than his meat and drink to do the will of God. Without this experience a profession is worthless. Without a thorough heart-work, one is soon weary of the way. But when we get a glimpse by faith of Jesus and his love, how it animates and quickens us into a new and spiritual life.

I feel that here is the great lack with many of us. We may try to work ourselves up to the letter of obedience, but except we are constrained by the love of Christ, we shall certainly come short. "Love is the fulfilling of the law." In what respect? Simply that when we love God, we keep his commandments. If a person flatters himself that he is a christian when he is disobeying the plain commands of Jesus, he is terribly deceived. If any feel not condemned when they are violatiug his requirements, then they are under the power of Satan, and are blinded by sin. It matters not what the sin is. If a sinful thought is harbored, this is a transgression.

Let us each examine ourselves by the Word of God, which is our infallible guide in whatever station or condition we may be placed.

When the heart is cleansed from the pollution of sin, it is pure, and becomes a fit temple for the Holy Spirit. How hateful everything unholy appears to one who is washed in the blood of Jesus. Such will obey God from choice. I know this from experience. Oh, the sweet rest in Jesus is worth more than all the world beside. But I do not rest satisfied. I am conscious of many short-comings, and sometimes the light seems to be almost obscured; but again it shines out clear and bright, and I feel the renewing Spirit within.

If there is anything that I desire, it is to do the whole work of God: and I have felt to pray that I might perfectly reflect the image of my Jesus; that I might obey him in all things. "He that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself, even as he (Christ) is pure." It is my chief ambition to live a life of perfect purity, to be "unspotted from the world." I know Jesus saves me and accepts me, for I feel that there is a wonderful oneness and sweetness with him. And we may every one of us have it, if we will just give up the world, and yield ourselves as servants of obedience unto righteousness.

If there ever was a time when we needed every grace and fruit of the Spirit, it is at the present moment. There is a solemn and momentous hour before us, when we shall need a good and well-grounded hope in Jesus. Have we got it, brethren and sisters? We ought to ask ourselves the question individually, Am I now saved from sin? If we cannot give a decided answer in the affirmative, we have cause for alarm. Are any of us who profess to believe that Jesus is coming speedily, deceived? If this is the case, let us not sleep until we obtain the clear witness of the Spirit. No one need be in doubt; for the way is made so plain that every one may know, yes, will know if they are really accepted in the Beloved. "By this we know that we are the children of God, when we love God and keep his commahdments." If we are doing this we may dismiss all our doubts.

For our encouragement it is also written, "He that believeth hath the witness in himself." The enemy of all souls will try to dishearten the children of God by appealing to their peculiar feelings and frames of mind. Give him no vantage ground here. He knows the weakest points in our natures, and he will assail us in that direction. But the christian armor will enable us to overcome every time if we go in the strength of the Lord. We must be sure that no part is lacking, as there will be a sad defeat. The Scriptures no where represent the christian as being in an idle, inactive state. It is a warfare. We must fight against three mighty foes;—"the world, the flesh, and the devil." God help us to be valiant in his service; ready to face the foe if needs be, in a hand-to-hand conflict. How much more ennobling is the thought of being victors in the strife, than of suffering a shameful defeat. Let us gird on anew the armor, and "press the battle to the gates." We ought to be in an aggressive condition instead of a defensive. Then we should attack the enemy with boldness.

Oh! that we might be as represented in the Scriptures—"Bright as the sun, fair as the moon, and terrible as an army with banners." A pure church is a powerful church. A baptized disciple of Jesus is invincible. There is a power attending him wherever he goes. But where a people are in a defensive condition, the enemy is continually getting the victory, and they have to struggle continually for life. What a sad spectacle! But such is the condition of many a church. Fashion and folly are ruining many. Worldly conformity and self-gratification is the order of the day. It cannot be denied that these abound among nominal christians universally. Lust of every conceivable description abounds in high places as well as in low. The most revolting crimes are perpetrated under the light of our boasted civilization and Christianity. Sodom and Gomorrah are unrivalled in this day and age. Every newspaper contains accounts of the most disgusting and devilish crimes that ever cursed this wicked earth. Well may we pray "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven."

Oh! come, thou dear Redeemer, and take thy people from a world of sin and suffering, of trial and temptation, and give them rest, sweet rest in heaven. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus," and come quickly. Amen.

"OUR DAYS UPON EARTH ARE A SHADOW."—Job 8: 9.

S. S. BREWER.

Tick, tick, goes the clock, as it unceasingly and faithfully announces the departure of each measured, flitting period of existence. Each one is a little of life; and their rapid succession bears us swiftly to the end of our allotted period of probation. O how solemn the fact that, never since it was announced—"The evening and the morning were the first day," has the clock of time ceased to tick away the days of Adam's doomed posterity. All the varied changes and transitions that have filled up the bygones of our checkered pilgrimage, and all that must succeed, will be composed of tick, tick, tick. Hence the Psalmist, when commenting upon the brevity of this mortal state, exclaims—"So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

Although threescore and ten seems to be the allotment, with the legacy of labor and sorrow, yet some, by reason of strength, attain to fourscore ere they gather up their feet in death; yet what countless millions never reach one score of years. And how many cease to live during the vibratory motion of the pendulum, or the tick, tick, of the clock.

Dear reader, number the precious moments, and apply the heart unto wisdom. Change and decay mark the track of time, not only in animated dust, but in every department of nature. The latter has its morn, noon, and evening. Spring we may term morn, midsummer noon, and autumn the evening of nature. What can appeal more eloquently to a thoughtful mind than the faded beauties of summer, as they are draped in the faded tints of autumn gloom? The sighing of the winds, plaintively moaning their dirge o'er the trembling and departing beauties of the past, is a fit emblem of fading, dying humanity. Youth may be termed our morn; the strength of manhood, noon; maturer years our autumn; when, if not before, we should number our days.

It is written—"And Isaac went out to meditate in the field at the eventide";—doubtless retrospective of the closing day, and the frailty of mortality's flitting shadows. Now, in the eventide of life, as fond and painful memories of the past are evoked, we trace in the footprints of time naught but the inevitable destiny of all created things. All, in the dominion of death, have been and are now without rank or distinction, fading sceptres. Crowns cannot impart health, nor ease the heart of care. Man is, figuratively speaking, a human kaleideoscope; ever amid the transitions of mortality reflecting the sombre and the hopeful, until death quenches life's emotion.

Past mementoes and present autumnal scenery remind me of the language of a certain poet:—

"Oh! visions of beauty, of starlight and shade,
With twilight ye come, and with twilight ye fade;
When the flowers are withering in autumn's chill breath,
Then comes o'er my spirit a vision of death;
Of azure eyes closed, and bright locks at rest,
And white fingers folded upon a hushed breast;
Of yellow leaves rustling a lonely grave o'er;
Of a voice that has been and to me is no more."

The ties of early years have long since been riven by the ruthless hand of death; and as I now at life's eventide survey the dreary waste of years,—

"I feel like one who treads alone some banquet hall deserted, Whose lights have fled, and garlands dead."
And now long shadows are around me cast;
My coming time has come at last.
The atmosphere is growing chill,
I love the peaceful and the still.
When weary nature feels depressed,
It loves retirement—seeks for rest
To retrospect the moments fled,
Ere I recline upon my bed.
Thus I, as eventide appears,
Oft sigh when eyes are dimmed with tears.
O praise the Lord, I near the shore
Where mortal conflicts all are o'er;
I haste and sigh to reach that home,
And ever pray—Lord Jesus, come!

The world has long since seen its morn and gloomy noon-day; and now, in the language of Hilkiah's son—"The shadows of the evening are stretched out." Never have the long drawn-out shadows o'er the face of nature presented stronger evidence of the close of day. The condition of all things in the moral, religious, natural and political world, viewed in the light of prophecy, shows that we are in close proximity with the "day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men." The fiat of Jehovah, according to the testimony of the apostle, is—"It is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment"; (not after death probation, as some are now endeavoring to teach).

Until the sounding of the seventh angel, the ravages of death will be indiscriminate. Then, yes, then, "great voices in heaven" will proclaim—"The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ; and he shall reign FOREVER AND EVER." Amen! Then, "the time of the dead" has come. Then "the hour" has come "in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth." "Then he shall reward every man according to his works."

"He which testifieth these things saith, Surely, I come quickly. Amen. Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

Rye Beach, N. H.

If we make the little events of life beautiful and good, then is the whole life full of beauty and goodness.

RE-UNION.

"We shall see their dark eyes beaming
On us, as in days of yore;
We shall feel their soft arms twining
Fondly round us, as before.

It is a sweet, blessed thought that we shall meet our loved ones again, beyond these earthly years, and pass a long eternity in their presence. Our human hearts would break if we did not have the assurance that we should see those dear ones again, who have walked by our side along our world's journey. A terrible anguish would crush our souls, did there come no soft whisper to our ears, telling us that somewhere in the future life we shall hear the voices that have thrilled our spirits with their music. We could never stand by the bedside of dying friends, or by open graves if we knew that never, never we should meet again. No, the burden would be greater than we could bear.

But our loving God has not shut away from our vision the holy light of a blessed immortality beyond the grave. We may not see it in all its brightness, but yet the transient gleams that flash out from the hills of light, fill our souls with glorious hopes of a sweet re-union in heaven. And with this assurance, we can smile by the cold white face that we have loved so well. The long years may go by, and the grass may grow for many a glorious summer over the moldering dust of the friend we have laid away, but the hope is just as bright and strong as when the sweet voice whispered, "You shall meet again." The cares of life, its heavy crosses—its crowns of sorrows have not the power to rob us of our sweet hope.

Glory to God for this holy love! We will praise him forever for his kindness to us poor children of a wintry land. How glad we are that the light breaks through the shadow of the valley, and that we catch now and then, visions of loved ones walking the streets of gold, with shining crowns and flashing cymbals! Courage, then, toiling christian, for the day will dawn ere long. . . .

And there will be no parting scenes in the life just ahead of you. Ages may come and go—one eternity follows another, but you shall stay in the presence of your dear ones still. Then look up, and trust the kind Father, for all will be well.—Christian Standard.

BEHOLD THE BRIDEGROOM COMETH.

A Pastoral Address, by Rev. E. H. Tuckett, Exeter, England.

It is with a sense of deep responsibility to the great Head of the Church that we again bring before you the subject of our Lord's second advent. Our desire is not only that you should be eminently holy, and therefore happy christians, but that you should be also in the position of the Thessalonian church, "waiting for the Lord from heaven." On a former occasion we suggested the possibility of our Lord's soon returning to gather "those who look for him" into the air; and then, after a little while, descending with them to this earth, to the destruction of the antichrist and his armies.

We find no reason for altering these views, but a growing conviction that such solemn yet glorious events will speedily occur; hence arises the earnest desire to remind christians of these expected events, to the end that they may be found watching and waiting for their Lord; to warn the thoughtless of the approaching days of the "great tribulation," and point them to that almighty Redeemer who can and will deliver all who, with simple trust, look to him for salvation.

The objection to such considerations has been made that they are of an unpractical nature. Unpractical! The very reverse is the fact; they are eminently practical. No doctrine of Scripture could possibly have a greater tendency to keep us fervent in spirit, whilst diligent in business, anticipating future rest whilst occupied in present labor, than this great truth grasped by the understanding, and loved by the heart, viz.—Before I finish the very work I have now in hand, my Lord may call me to meet him in the air. Oh, call not that divine doctrine unpractical which, when known and loved with the whole heart, does, under the divine guidance and sanctifying influence of the Holy Spirit, constrain us to "lay aside every weight, and the sin which may most easily beset us;" to "keep the word of his patience," and to be "like unto men who are waiting for their Lord." Luke 12: 35-40.

THE TREE OF PROPHETIC KNOWLEDGE NOT FORBIDDEN FRUIT.

We sometimes meet with christians who object to the study of prophecy; they seem to regard it as forbidden fruit, as a part of Scripture which we have no right to search, forgetting the fact recorded in Daniel 12: 9, 10, that the prophetic words were sealed and closed up until the time of the end, but that at that time the wise should understand—clearly implying that his prophecy would in the last days be studied and understood. We find our Lord and his apostles quoting the prophets in reference to the coming future. Why, then, are christians not to do so? And in reference to one, and the last, of the prophetic books, called "The revealing of Jesus Christ," which almost entirely refers to the future, there is pronounced a special commendation unto and upon all those who read, listen to, and keep the things which are written therein. Rev. 1: 3.

Rather than that you should be unprepared, we are willing to suffer reproach, and be mocked and derided for uttering admonitions. Even as we write we pray that you may search the Scriptures, note the signs of the times, and not be numbered among the careless ones unto whom our Lord will come as a thief cometh in the night, giving no warning. The language of our Lord (Matt. 24: 53), affirms that he has given his people warning; as also elsewhere it is written, "Lo, I have told you before;" and the apostle Paul likewise reminds the disciples at Thessalonica that they were not in darkness, that that day should overtake them as a thief.

Alas, how many professing godliness are in darkness as to this great truth, and prefer that darkness! They love their downy nests, their worldly possessions; the world is not yet embittered to them, and they seem to have no apprehension of the fact that the sudden transition from earth to glory will be the simple relinquishment of the shadow for the substance—an entrance upon a true rest, peace, and joy, and the taking possession of real and permanent riches, since every redeemed one is an "heir of God, and a joint-heir with Jesus Christ."

The coming of the Lord Jesus is presented as a motive to heavenly-mindedness; to christian consistency; to fidelity in the Lord's service; to perseverance; to patience; to holy conversation and godliness; to diligence and activity, and separation from all that is unholy; to abiding in Christ. And as to its general practical effect, the beloved disciple also says, "And every man that hath this hope in him purifyeth himself, even as he is pure."

Are we not told to watch for it, to be looking for it, to pray for it, to wait patiently for it, to most earnestly desire it, to be always ready for his coming?

But now the signs of the times, the commencement of the "perilous times" that "should come," warn us that the "crisis" to which the apostle alludes in Hebrews 9: 27, that terrible crisis, is at hand, and that the fearful woes announced to be poured forth on this sin-stricken world are on the point of being fulfilled. If the momentous events, the fearful calamities alluded to in the Revelation, are impending, ought we not as christians joyfully to lift up our heads, for our redemption draweth nigh? No waiting, watching, devoted disciple will the Lord permit to pass through that "tribulation the great." His especial promise is, "Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth." Rev. 3: 10,

We believe these last years are imminently pending. There is a growing impression that great changes are at hand; everyone feels that the times are critical; society everywhere is disturbed; symptoms of mysterious events meet us on every hand. The Jews are rapidly, yet quietly filling Jerusalem and its suburbs. The unclean spirits of spiritualism, infidelity, and Jesuitism are now actively leavening society at home and abroad. In the church of Christ worldliness abounds; there is much profession, but little spiritual life; few conversions. Read the lamentable complaint in a paper read before the Congregational Union: "Making haste to be rich in consequence of the idolatry of the social status is common; the great mass of our people are unwilling to give in proportion to their income; and last, and saddest fact of all, conversions are lamentably few."

THE PERILOUS TIMES OF THE LAST DAYS ALREADY COME.

Scepticism prevails; thoughts on our Lord's second coming are by many ignored; the glorious approaching reign of Jesus in person is, as a doctrine, met with a bitter feeling, most heart-saddening to contemplate. "Where is the promise of his coming?" is now heard on every hand. Yea, even by men professing godliness, that grand scriptural truth, which so gladdened the churches of Phillippi and Thessalonica, is attributed to emanate from Satan! Such are some of the scriptural signs of our having very nearly reached the utmost limit of "these last days" and "these last times," as the apostles Paul and Peter severally term them. How truly do the words of Paul characterize the growing wickedness of our times: "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, . . . lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." 2 Tim. 3: 1, 2, 4.

As the morning star is seen before the sunrise, so shall the Savior be revealed to those who are waiting and looking for him before he is revealed to the world, like the sun scattering with his beams the darkness of the midnight and the morning watches. But as the earth is yet in darkness when the morning star is first seen, so shall it be at that time with the subjects of the kingdom of heaven. The wise will be removed at the Savior's parousia, which is the first stage of the Savior's advent into the air; the unwise will be left to pass through the great tribulation and removed only just before the Savior's descent with all his saints. The removal of the wise who are looking for him, must take place some time—that is, any time—before the Antichrist is fully revealed, and before "the tribulation the great" comes on the world.

FAITHFUL TESTIMONY ENGENDERED BY SECOND ADVENT FAITH.

Then if, as we have suggested for your serious consideration, the signs of the approaching tribulation are beginning to develop themselves, how much greater the reason for us who are believers to be alive to the fact that our redemption is near. Solemn, yet blessed thought! Presumption some will charge us with, for looking unto these things. What! for taking heed unto prophecy, as we are commanded to do, and for doing which we are commended? 2 Peter 1: 10; Rev. 1: 3. Presumption for daring to gaze upon the Jewish fig tree, and seeing it beginning to bud, exclaiming "Lo, summer is nigh?" Matt. 24: 32. No, no; they are presumptuous who, with the Word of God in their hands, condemn what they cannot gainsay, and will not investigate nor understand.

Beloved in Christ Jesus, it is a glorious fact, "the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out" in your hearts "to meet him." Let us gladly anticipate the event; let us warn others of its near approach; willing rather to bear the taunts and scorns that may be heaped upon us for our steadfast expectation, than be accommodating ourselves to the propriety and decorum of the worldly wise—and then to be suddenly aroused from our lethargy by the shout, He is come!—and be found not watching, and suffer unspeakable loss. What will the world's gear and grandeur be to us then? or what the world's ridicule and contempt?

We would entreat the unconverted to consider these things ere it be too late. The promise yet holds good: "It shall come to pass that whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." Faith in a Savior's precious blood is demanded, and to salvation is essential. At once cast thy soul on Jesus; just as thou art, come to Jesus. Make no previous preparation; all such attempts are vain. Cast thyself with a broken, contrite heart at the feet of Jesus. Only believe in him; for "be it known unto you, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins: and by him all that believe are justified from all things." Acts 13: 38, 39—Signs of Our Times.

ONE.

J. W. THOMAS.

"That they all may be one." JOHN 17: 21.

Christians are one. Sectarians are many. It is a matter of rejoicing however, to every true disciple of Jesus, to know that sectarianism is giving way, that prejudice is becoming less, and that the members of the various evangelical denominations are getting nearer and nearer to each other. Those little differences in belief, which a few years ago separated many good christians, are now being considered of less consequence, and the great grand truth of "Holiness to the Lord" is becoming the rallying cry of Israel's scattered hosts. This is as it should be. God's soldiers all wear one uniform. They all have one captain. They are all waging war against one foe—sin. They are all aiming for one sublime object—the salvation of men. Why then should their efforts be paralyzed by strifes and contentions about names and parties?

What narrow and contracted ideas those individuals must have who think there are no christians except the "little few" who belong to "our party," or believe just as "we do." Away with such bigoted sectarianism! Give us "largeness of heart"—a broad, liberal, gospel faith—a faith that embraces all as the family of God who possess the spirit of Jesus. This is the test of discipleship. "Except ye have the spirit of Christ, ye are none of his." It matters not what your professions are, nor what church you belong to, nor how many creeds you subscribe to, nor how many covenants you have entered into, nor how long you pray, nor how loud you preach, nor how beautifully you sing. If the Holy Spirit is not in you, then you are not a christian. This is the grand, vital, all-important question. Have you the Spirit? There is one God, one Savior, one Spirit, one church, one faith, one baptism, one hope, one Bible. One eternal home in which the redeemed of all ages are to dwell.

Why then should not all christians be united while here? The one true church is made up of all true believers, and all true believers are led by the one true Spirit, and all who possess the one true Spirit "Have turned to God from dumb idols, to serve the living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven, even Jesus, whom he raised from the dead, which hath delivered us from the wrath to come." Christ is all and in all to every true christian. He can sing truly,

"My hope is built on nothing else,
Than Jesus' blood and righteousness;
I dare not trust the sweetest frame
But wholly lean on Jesus' name.
On Christ the solid rock I stand,
All other ground is sinking sand.'

Sure enough it is so. Whoever trusts in anything but Jesus, will find they have built on sinking sand. "Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." He is the Rock. On him all true christians are built. He is the Vine. Out of him all true branches must grow. He is the Shepherd. To his voice all the flock must give heed. He is the Refuge. Into him all saved sinners must flee. He is the Fountain. From him all must drink the water of life. He is the Bread. Of him all the family must partake. He is the Way. In him all the pilgrims must walk. He is the King. To him all his subjects must bow in loving obedience. In that bright future world there will be complete and eternal harmony. The "new song" will be sung by "every kindred, tongue, and nation," and there will be no jarring notes. There will be no disunion in heaven. Party names, and party spirits will be known no more. There all will be united in the bonds of eternal brotherhood. Would we be there? Then let us be one here. One in Christ. One in christian sympathy and brotherly love.

THE greatest man is he who chooses the right with invincible resolution; who resists the sorest temptation from within and without; who bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully; who is calmest in storms, and whose reliance on truth, on virtue, and on God is the most unfaltering.

THE LAST BATTLE.

We have learned from observation and examination that there is at present a very general expectation among that class of men instructed in the policy and intentions of the great ruling parties of the civilized world, that an uncommonly extensive and bloody war is at hand. It is expected that it will be a religious war; that is, that religious questions will enter largely into the controversies which will cause the war.

We have learned by consulting the inspired writers that they have explicitly predicted that the gospel age will end with a battle answering the description given by these uninspired writers of the one they are now anticipating. We also learn from the serial prophecies that the classified and foreshadowed events which were to precede this war and battle have taken place in their exact order. Babylon, Persia, and Grecia came in the order specified, and each filled its prophetic mould perfectly, and lost their dominion in turn just as foretold. Rome, the iron kingdom, and last of the Gentile governments, came upon the stage just as symbolized, and has already developed all of its prefigured history, down to the very last items before its final subjugation and extinction. The history of this iron kingdom was most perfectly divided and classified; each part particularly described so that its fulfillment may be easily identified. It had three divisions. First, a united or strong, central government; second, divided with a mixed persecuting power representing the kingdom; third, its representative governments waning—"partly strong," or united, and "partly broken," or divided; that is, professedly allied, but in purposes and national designs antagonistic.

The great Roman hierarchy was most perfectly symbolized and described by Daniel and the Revelator, and, according to the expositions and applications of those prophecies by a large and honored class of Protestant expositors, they are now fulfilled down to the very last items connected with the last battle. Upon this point of the present exhausted state of the prophecies, there is more unanimity of sentiment than upon almost any point of theology. All agree that the serial prophecies are almost entirely fulfilled, and therefore demand an immediate change in the status of human society. All Protestant expositors agree that the Papacy has spent its prophetic day, and that the darkness of its night of doom is now wrapping her in the gloom of midnight. The blood of saints dripped from her sword, until the prophetic clock struck the end of her limited triumphs over the friends of Jesus. Her last husband has left her, in the sorrows of widowhood, draped in sable weeds for the loss of all her royal children.

These are surely prophetic events lying on the borders of the last battle. Is it to be supposed that the Mistress of Nations will be manacled and executed without making a desperate effort to protract her life? Will she fold her arms, and quietly suffer the kings whom she has looked upon for ages as her servants, to put the halter around her neck to drag her down from the throne of earthly dominion, without uttering a word or raising a hand of defence? No; she will both speak and raise her hand, and that will be the signal for war, and cause the bugle to peal the note of battle. The prophecies show plainly that the dying struggles of the Lady of kingdoms in her palace on the "seven hills" will cause the armor-clad millions of Western Rome to hasten to the fields of the last terrible conflict.

We cannot intelligently look for the last battle to be fought immediately, unless the nations, churches, and all classes to be involved in it, are now in the condition and positions that they were to occupy as described by the prophets, just before that battle should commence. The classes presented upon the prophetic stage at that time are the Roman powers, consisting of the two great anti-christian powers of the empire located at the two capitals, Rome and Constantinople, and the political governments upon the territory. The two classes of false worshipers and the governments involved in strife with each, constitute two great antagonistic parties which produce two distinct, war-threatening questions. The one involving the Papal interests at Rome, is called the Italian question. The one involving the Turkish interests at Constantinople, is called the Eastern Question. The present progress made by the classes composing the two parties, as foretold by the prophets, must determine the nearness of the culminating scene. The two questions, embracing all connected with them, are producing nearly all the political agitation which is now raising the question of coming war. They occupy the same prominence in the prophecies relating to the very last days that they now do upon the political calendar.

The Italian question presents two propositions. First, that the Pope shall exercise civil power at Rome, and a political arbitration over all kings. Second, that Church and State shall be so disconnected that each shall be left independent to administer its own laws without dictation or interference from the other. These are exactly opposite, and are producing the great antagonism of Western Europe at the present hour. The Eastern question also presents two propositions. First, that Russia shall have the right to dispossess the Turks of Constantinople and all the old Greek empire. This is claimed as a divine right, because her dynasty legitimately inherits it; and a political right, because the vastness of her dominions and exportable products demand that she should have an unmolested passage to the Mediterranean and the high seas. Second, that the Sultan shall continue to hold the key of the Dardanelles, and not give Russia a free passage to the Mediterranean, and possession of the Greek dominions, lest the balance of European power pass into her hands, and thus cripple the Western nations. These are also opposites, and produce strife among the great Roman powers, and threaten a general war.

If it can be shown that the prophecies relating to the last battle present the warring parties, as they prepare for and come to that battle, in the same positions and contending about the same things as are presented by these two great questions of strife, then the proof is very conclusive that the present threatening circumstances will bring that battle.

We will notice, first, the Italian question. Does the Bible show that in the last days of the Roman Church there will be a serious conflict between it and the Roman kingdoms relating to the exercise of civil power by the church; and that this conflict will end in the destruction of the church, and also of the kingdoms; and that this will be the last battle, and the final destruction of Roman power? We believe it does, and will attempt to give a little of the proof.

This church is symbolized by a woman in Revelation, and is called Babylon. It is there represented as associated with a beast, and this beast is explained as representing kingdoms. She is also called that great city which "reigneth over the kings of the earth." Here the church is presented as exercising arbitrating power over the civil rulers; just what is involved in the Italian question. But this prophecy shows that the woman would be seated upon seven heads of the beast (which heads are explained to be kingdoms) as their dictator; but in her last days she would be differently located. She would not be supported by any head or government, but that she would be "seated upon many waters"; which are interpreted to be "peoples and multitudes"; that is, the governments as such would not defend the church in its polity, but multitudes of the people would do so. While in that condition the prophet, in speaking of the kings, says: "These shall hate the whore, and shall make her desolate, and shall eat her flesh, and shall burn her with fire." Why this hatred, or war spirit, between the parties? Evidently because the woman had lost her position on the beast as ruler, and was making an effort to regain her seat.

Isaiah expressed this idea very plainly while viewing the Apocalyptic Babylon through the typical Babylon, when he said—"Come down, and sit in the dust, O virgin daughter of Babylon; sit on the ground; there is no throne." Chap. 47: 1. "Sit thou silent, and get thee into darkness, O daughter of the Chaldeans; for thou shalt no more be called The lady of kingdoms." ver. 5. The point made in this passage is,—she had lost her throne, and ceased to be called the lady of kingdoms; that is, she could no longer control thrones; that is, exercise civil power, or dictate kingdoms, their laws or institutions. It is evident from the passage and its context that her last effort would be to regain her control of the kingdoms; for she said—"I shall be a lady forever"; so, says the Lord, "Thou didst not lay these things to thine heart." She did not lay it to heart when she lost her throne, because she thought she should "be a lady forever." The prophet also says—"Mischief shall fall upon thee; thou shalt not be able to put it off." She will make a mighty effort to regain her position on the throne, but will not succeed. Her husbands (kings) are all dead. She has no royal arm to hold her on the kingly seat. She is in widowhood, forlorn and desolate. Her children of state are gone. She is childless and helpless, for God has forsaken her, and is mingling a fatal cup for her lips.

Daniel gives us some very plain predictions of the last efforts and experiences of this Roman power just prior to its final overthrow. He presents these ill-fated classes through different imagery from that of the Revelator, giving by a horn with mouth and eyes, what John gave by a beast and a woman rider; that is, Rome political and ecclesiastical. In chap. 7: 11, he says—"I beheld then because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake; I beheld even till the beast was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning flame." In this passage he describes the overt act of the papal horn which resulted in the final and complete destruction of the beast, or Roman kingdom. The beast was slain—destroyed in battle. It must be the last battle, for the kingdom is not found after that time upon the field of prophecy. God's everlasting kingdom from that period occupies the territory "under the whole heavens."

But what was the act which became the cause of this conflict, resulting so fatally to the Roman governments? It was the "voice of the great words which the horn spake." This horn, as we have shown, represents Roman governments—political and ecclesiastical. The eyes and mouth represent the Church; therefore, when the mouth speaks, the Church gives utterance to some decrees or principles, and not the State.

As we have shown that, prior to the end, the woman, or Church, would be unseated from the beast,—that is, Church and State would be disconnected, so that the State would not consent to be longer dictated by the Church, and the Church would be seeking, in her widowhood, "to put it off"; that is, relieve herself of this throneless condition,—it is perfectly natural to suppose that under these circumstances she would speak vehemently, with a design to regain, if possible, her lost temporal power. It is also evident that, if the States have struggled long and hard to rid themselves of this ecclesiastical usurpation of power, and have relieved themselves of it, any great words spoken by that Church, threatening to grasp again that dictatorial power, would be rejected with indignation; thus exciting war and revenge between the parties. These, we say, are the ideas expressed in the prophecies relating to this subject.

Have events transpired so much in harmony with these divine suggestions as to justify us in the belief that the last battle will result from the present national difficulties which men say threaten a general war? We most sincerely believe they have, and that the peace of our world can only be seen "beyond a shock of arms," and that that peace will be eternal.

May the God of all grace thoroughly prepare us for a wonderful future now rising in grand and awful proportions before us.

[If the Lord will, we shall attempt to give what we consider a fulfillment of these divine forewarnings next week.]

THE PRESENT A PERIOD OF CRISIS.

To every thoughtful mind the passing time is of supreme interest. Human life seems stirred to its profoundest depths, and all things portend change. Forces are abroad everywhere, latent or cognizable, which have a potent bearing upon individual and social destinies. Beliefs, usages, laws, institutions—nay, even the character and organism of whole peoples, are undergoing transformation, thus preparing the way for a new order of affairs on earth. Believe as we may in the desirableness of all this, we shall probably have to accept the situation and make the most of it, for nothing seems more certain than that the forms of thought and life which have answered our purpose will not do for the coming man and woman. There is many a step to be taken in the ever advancing march of our race to higher conditions. Some of these might not be sanctioned by those who claim pre-eminence as safe thinkers. What if they are predestined nevertheless? We may do something to hinder, we can scarcely hope to avert them. The supreme good has not been attained in any form of social arrangements or institutions hitherto devised. More light is breaking and yet to break upon these subjects; and when it fully appears mankind will gladly reject much to which they now tenaciously cling. . . . "The history of the State," says Emerson, "sketches in coarse outlines the progress of thought, and follows at a distance the delicacy of culture and aspiration."

With all poets, seers, and sages, we believe in a millennial reign of peace and prosperity on earth. This faith is ingrained in the very structure of the human mind. Mankind in any age cannot comprehend themselves without perceiving that their wants are not fully met in any institutions of society then existing. The aspirations of the spirit for knowledge, purity, freedom, are a divine prophecy of better things to come.—Phrenological Journal.

It is wonderful how men of the world, looking at the currents of human developments as the above writer, should predict with so much confidence future changes in this world, and those changes so nearly in harmony with the word of God. They are not anticipated by this writer because God has foretold them, but because everything in this world, in its aspirations, changes and progressions, indicates such a change. It is on the principle that "great events cast their shadows before them." The storm is expected because of gathering clouds and howling winds. The battle is expected because the hostile armies are in motion, and the guns are being placed for action. So do thinking men see that humanity is "stirred to its profoundest depths" and everything "portends change." They know that the God who has given humanity its endowments has placed there a universal longing for a higher and better state, and that therefore it is attainable. But how ignorant many are of the way and means that God has provided by which such a state is to be obtained. They see that society is "undergoing transformation," but are ignorant of the agencies necessary for its regeneration.

It is true that poets and seers have believed in a glorious "millennial reign of peace," but how fruitless will be that hope unless the Prince of Peace comes to reign. A glorious era is dawning, but it must be by the advent of the Messiah, the ending of sin and the curse, the resurrection of the dead, and the introduction of a new creation. Then come, blessed Renovator and Restorer, and quench forever these burning aspirations for a more noble type of manhood, a more permanent and righteous government of earth.

MRS. ELLEN G. WHITE'S VISIONS.

BY MILES GRANT.

ISSUED

BY THE ADV. CHRIS. PUB. SOCIETY,

A NEW WORK

On the Sabbath of the Old Covenant. An investigation of Mrs. E. G. White's Visions, showing that they are not from God.

All who have accepted Mrs. White's visions as coming from heaven, or who have been led to rest on Saturday instead of the Lord's day, should read this work. Let those who live among our Seventh-day brethren send and get a number of the books to give away. If the reader has friends at a distance who have received Mrs. W.'s Visions as true, have a copy of this work sent to them.

It contains 106 pages, and we will send it at the following prices: Single copy, 20 cts.; per doz., $1.75 by mail; per hundred, $10.00 by express.

AGENT.

NOW READY,

The great Map of History, twenty-two feet long, and about thirty inches wide. This valuable work, of which mention has been made in the Crisis, we now have a supply of, and will send to those who may order at the reduced price of $15.00 per copy, by express. We have them on rollers, and in book form, and can supply either way.

The best method of using the chart or map of history is to hang the frame on the wall of the room (the map being in the frame, of course), by the two hooks in the upper bar of the frame, high enough to stand, or sit, in front of it, and there examine or study it.

Students and beginners in history should occasionally look over the map in its entire length—drawn out on the wall, or tables, or on the carpet—until they are well acquainted with the entire outlines, plan and compass of the map, which embraces all history.

VALLEJO.

The meetings in Vallejo (California) are steadily increasing in interest, even faster than we anticipated. Last evening (Nov. 27th), a large number of professors came forward to unite in prayer for a deeper work of grace in their hearts. Among others who came was a sea captain, who rose and said it was the first time he had been in a religious meeting for ten years. He said he was glad to be present, and made a special request for prayers. Several have already been quickened, and we expect to see a good work in the Lord. We have now held four meetings, and purpose to remain here through next week. The churches in San Francisco, Santa Clara, and Sacramento, are anxiously waiting to commence a series of meetings in those places. New places are opening. There is an abundance of work. It is an extensive missionary field, that is in great need of help. It is not an easy one to cultivate, because of the abounding wickedness, and bold infidelity. Spiritualism has a very strong hold in California, and in other parts of the Pacific coast. Satan has been very successful in his efforts here, and has a host of faithful followers, who boldly defend his cause, in all its departments. The christian here needs strong, unwavering faith in God, in order to meet the arch foe with success. Only those who consent to put on the "whole armor of God" are able to stand against his wiles, and escape his snares. The lukewarm are his easy prey. He has a host of them in his ranks, which are continually receiving large accessions. Thank the Lord, his days are nearly numbered.

Monday, Nov. 30th. Yesterday was a good day in the Vallejo church. The congregations were large and attentive. The interest is still advancing. Some have been sweetly blest. Four unconverted have been forward for prayers, and others are under conviction.

CORRECTION.—In an editorial, Nov. 18th, relating to a "trip across the continent," when speaking of the difference between the fare of the first and second class cars, it is said: "The second class is less than half the first class fare, with very poor accommodations, and much longer time." This remark applies more properly to the emigrant trains. The second class cars go through in the same time as the first.

A ROMAN FUNERAL.

In the early days of the Roman empire, the dead were burnt, instead of being buried, and the ashes were preserved in an urn. If the person was distinguished, he was dressed in a manner corresponding with his rank; flowers were strewn around the corpse, and other ornaments of a choice character, and then friends were allowed to visit him for some days, till the time appointed for burning, when an imposing procession was formed, trumpeters leading, followed by singing women, and the friends of the dead, who marched solemnly to the place prepared to burn the deceased. Huge logs of wood made up the most of the pile for the fire; various inflammable substances being intermingled so as to produce a rapid burning. When all things were ready, the bier was placed upon the great altar, on which was poured a large amount of very choice ointments and perfumes. Then the fire was applied, and in a short time the whole was in ashes. The embers were quenched with wine, and then the white calcined bones gathered, sprinkled with wine, then with milk, dried with a linen cloth and placed in an urn, which was deposited in its prepared nich in the tomb. The family then returned home. After nine days of mourning, a great funeral feast was given, and a sacrifice offered to the gods, and then the family returned to their ordinary vocations. The widow sometimes wore her mourning garb for a year.

Soon after the death of the person, a small piece of money was placed in his mouth, to pay for ferrying his soul over the dark river.

When christianity was established, the practice of burning the dead ceased. The christians taught that the very bodies committed to the earth would rise again from the dead, and put on immortality and incorruptibility, at the coming of Christ. In this way immortality was brought to light through the gospel. When people give up the resurrection of the dead, they may return to cremation.

The poor were often burnt in the night, and sometimes several on one common pyre. Many of the ceremonies were ommited in the burning of young people, and infants were not burnt, but buried. Christianity alone removes the darkness from the grave, and opens up the bright future in the kingdom of God.

SABBATH IN NEW EARTH.

It is said by those who advocate the keeping of the Sabbath of the old covenant, that Isa. 66: 22, 23, shows that the same Sabbath will be continued into the new earth, consequently, it is not right to keep any other day. The twenty-first to the twenty-fourth verses read as follows:

"And I will also take of them for priests and for Levites, saith the Lord. For as the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith the Lord, so shall your seed and your name remain. And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one Sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, saith the Lord. And they shall go forth, and look upon the carcasses of the men that have transgressed against me; for their worm shall not die, neither shall their fire be quenched; and they shall be an abhorring unto all flesh."

Will the Lord re-establish the Levitical priesthood in the new earth, and thus set aside our great High Priest? Certainly not. Christ has offered himself as the "one sacrifice for sins for ever." Heb. 10: 12. "There remaineth no more sacrifice for sins." Heb. 10: 26.

To remove all doubts concerning the continuance of the "seed" and "name" of Israel, the Lord says, they will as surely "remain," "as the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain." This 22nd verse is used to impress this fact, by way of illustration. He then goes on speaking in the next verse of the time when the Levitical priests would conduct the worship, as was done under the law. Is the 24th verse to be fulfilled in the new heavens and earth? Are "carcasses of . . . men" to lie about on the new earth to "be an abhorring unto all flesh?" We have not so learned the Scriptures.

CALIFORNIA NAVY YARD.

The United States have a navy yard at Vallejo, Cal. It is pleasantly situated on More island. It takes about five minutes to go across the bay from the city to the yard. On the island is a nice marine hospital, delightfully situated, having a fine prospect of the city and surrounding country. About nine hundred hands are usually employed on the yard. There are ten stationary engines, besides some that are movable. They have a derrick made to lift eighty tuns; a first-class floating dock; and are now building a large dry dock. We were interested in the working of an "endless saw." It is about one-half inch wide, and used like a belt, passing over wheels some three feet in diameter. It is wonderfully adapted to saw wood into all shapes. This navy yard is a great help to Vallejo, in providing work for mechanics.

To-day (Dec. 2nd) the King of the Hawaiian Islands visited the yard. His name Kalakaua [pronounced Kalla-kah-oo-a]. The United States officials, and other distinguished men, were present in their best attire to "honor the King," who is a fine looking man, of dark complexion. He has an intelligent expression, and appeared well among the noted men who greeted him at his landing. He intends to leave soon for Washington, and will probably visit New York and Boston. Both the Union and Central Pacific roads have offered him the use of their Directors' cars to take him and his suite from San Francisco to Omaha. The city of San Francisco is entertaining him as their guest at the Grand Hotel. It is said his object in visiting the United States is to make friendly arrangements, that may be mutually beneficial to the two governments. He will probably receive much honor from the American people, as it is their first opportunity to entertain a King since the time they declared their independence in 1776.

NEAR AT THE DOOR.

Devoted people are seeing and feeling more and more that we are near the coming of Christ. The evidence is now so bright, that any one, who looks carefully at the signs of the times, must be convinced that we are certainly living in "the last days." Dr. Coke, the Methodist commentator says:

"Near, even at the door, is the great day of judgment. The period of time which yet remains we know is short; how short, who can tell? We ought to be in constant and hourly expectation of it. At the coming of Christ to avenge and deliver his faithful people, the faith of his coming will in a great measure be lost. Chronological calculation, and the general appearance of the world, all conspire to tell us that the events of the latter days are even come upon us, and that the time of God's controversy with the earth is near at hand. It is already on the wing. If these things are insufficient to alarm the guilty, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead."

M. G.

FRANCE AND GERMANY.—The warlike aspect between France and Germany is quite threatening. They are making gigantic preparations for a bloody conflict. France is determined to avenge her defeat in 1870; and Germany is resolved to remain supreme in her position. As Germany stands up boldly against the Papal power, she may be expected to come off conqueror, so long as she holds that position. The Pope looks to France for help in his struggle against Germany; but will, doubtless, be disappointed. Some mighty upheavings and overturnings appear to be hastening rapidly to the front. The approaching storm gives signs of terrible proportions.

SPECIMENS OF SPIRITUALISM.

Advanced Spiritualists are letting their light shine out more and more clearly, so that their true sentiments may be understood. At first they were kept concealed, but they are now pretty well known to those who read their periodicals. The following specimen of their teaching is from Hull's Crucible, July 2nd, 1874. It is a part of the report of the doings of the "Western Reserve Woman's Emancipation Society," held at Ravenna, Ohio, June 6th, 1874.

"Whereas, The Western Reserve Woman's Emancipation Society was organized to aid in the overthrow of marriage; and

Whereas, We believe that nothing short of its abolition will satisfy the claims of justice, or insure peace, purity, and good order in society. . . .

Resolved, That the popular system of unlegalized prostitution, horrible as it is, is a lesser abomination than marriage, and would require less modification to make it a true life for woman; to talk of "true prostitution," would, therefore, be a lesser outrage upon propriety in the use of terms, than to talk of "true marriage."

Resolved, That marriage being worse than common prostitution, it is more disgraceful to enter the marriage relation, or to be willingly identified with the system, than to engage in common prostitution, or associate with common prostitutes.

Resolved, That while any man of principle or true refinement will recoil with horror from the possibility that his lover could engage in prostitution, he should still more recoil from regarding her or calling her a "wife."

Resolved, That those professed Free Lovers, who have not yet come to loath the terms that have universally and always been associated with the system of prostitution, rapacity, murder, and all evil and vileness, called marriage, have, as yet, come far short of realizing the enormity of this embodiment of all abominations.

Resolved, That people of intelligence and refinement, semi-Free Lovers, who profess and intend to treat woman as an equal, and entitled to freedom, and yet allow themselves to be regarded as married, calling themselves "husband and wife," are the St. Clairs of the marriage system, and instead of being true and consistent friends of freedom, are lending their influence to make respectable the vile system that would otherwise the sooner be disgraced and destroyed.

Such is the system that proposes to reform society, and establish the best possible social relations. Could any thing be more fully satanic and unchristian? Yet most of the leaders of Spiritualism were once members of churches. They have certainly fulfilled one prophecy, which reads as follows: "The Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils, speaking lies in hypocrisy, having their conscience seared with a hot iron, forbidding to marry." 1 Tim. 4: 1–3. Spiritualism is the most demoralizing, corrupting system now operating in the world; and yet it claims to be the only true reformatory power. Anything that tends to destroy confidence in God and the Bible, Christ and Christianity, and all other sacred things, is considered as real reform by advanced Spiritualists, like Moses Hull and Co.

ADVANCE OF CRIME.—The increase of crime is truly alarming. The most shocking deeds are multiplying in all directions. The daily records of black deeds are enough to make one shudder. The Chicago Tribune of Nov. 19th says: "The wires are loaded down, every night, with details of criminal deeds of the preceding twenty-four hours. We are apparently living amid a contagion of crime." The Tribune of the 18th of Nov. recorded on one page about twenty recent murders. Are we not amid the last-day perils?

THE more rusty the iron is, the oftener we put it into the fire to purify it; and the more crooked it is, the more blows, and the harder the blows, we give to straighten it. Therefore, christian, if thou hast long been gathering rust, thou hast no cause to complain if God deal thus with thee.

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, at a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August [illegible] 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the [illegible] and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good [illegible]. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. ENCOURAGING FROM ARKANSAS.

TO THE A. A. M. SOCIETY.

Dear Brethren:—I have been here [illegible] days, and held thirteen meetings. I [illegible] that the Lord has been with me in preaching his word. The church in this place [illegible] never been opened to us, and only one [min]ister of this town has favored us with [his] presence. Dr. Scarborough came out [and] heard us speak on the coming kingdom [and] very kindly closed the service.

Meetings began at Beard's church on [the] 8th, and since then we have held meetings in five different places; viz., Cypress church, Tollerson's school-room, the dwelling of Sr. Cox, the dwelling of a Sr. Hough[illegible] in a splendid hall built for the Masonic [fra]ternity, but owned and furnished us by [an] old sister, who is afflicted with rheuma[tism]. She came out in her buggy and took [an] interest in the meetings. This Sister [illegible]monds and the other two mentioned [are] widows. I pray that God's richest bles[sings] may rest upon them for opening their [doors] so kindly to one of the weakest of his serv[ants].

I have been kindly treated where[ver I] have been, and people take great interest [in] the truth. We visited a Dr. Fakes, [who] with his amiable christian wife have ass[ured] us that they love these glorious truths [and] have pledged to live closer to the Lord. We visited Dr. Welsh and wife, who [are] members of the Christian church, yet seem deeply impressed with the simplicity of [the] gospel as we preach it. I have met [many] noble-hearted friends, both saints and [sin]ners, who have very generously adminis[tered] to my necessity by dividing with me [their] means. May the Lord reward them. [illegible] Grigsby has just called to see me, who [with] his devoted wife treated us with great [kind]ness. A Dr. Goode and a Dr. James [have] also manifested great interest for the [present] truths.

When we began meetings here, we were told that the people of this country would come out to hear us, but that we would never get them to take up the cross in [our] meetings. We found the standard of [piety] very low. It seems that, as a general th[ing], the shepherds must be sure of getting [the] fleece, or they will not feed the flock. [But] we went to praying, and the last few meet[ings] we have had as many as nine rise a[nd] give testimony for Jesus; and twelve [rise] for prayer at a time. Praise the Lord. [We] find some here who are pleased to hear of [a] higher life in Christianity than the p[eople] of this country are used to. One good [sis]ter, who has plenty of this world's goo[ds], said yesterday that she had been follow[ing] the fashions of the day until we presented the teachings of Paul on the subject of dr[ess]. Now she says she feels that a calico [dress] will do her hereafter; and thereby she h[opes] to be able to help the poor. I am very [sure] that God's blessing will rest upon all [who] will adopt that plan and carry it out.

We believe that it will soon become nec[essary] to form a church here, for many [have] embraced our views who cannot feel at ho[me] to visit the churches where they belong, [and] hear these views assailed, as they surely [will] after we are gone.

The soil has been prepared by Bro. [and] Sr. Gifford, and Bro. and Sr. Smith, [who] came some time ago, and have very ear[nestly] advocated these views, and scattered these tracts, which has done great go[od]. This accounts for the success with which [we] have been blessed. These silent preachers can be scattered over the land, and open the way for truth, where a living minister would perhaps not reach for years. O, the[n], brethren and sisters, let us have a gene[ral] rally for doubling the Tract Fund. Here [is] a vast field in this western country where these glorious truths have never gone. Send them forth as bread upon the waters; sow the seed, and God will send somebody with the sickle.

I have just received a letter from my dear wife, whose health is very poor. Will [the] dear ones in Jesus pray for her. I s[tart] now in a few hours for Fort Smith. [I will] hold two meetings on the way. I have h[ad] but little rest since I came West, and there[fore] I am in no frame for writing; so I [will] close by asking the dear brethren and sis[ters] to pray for me.

THE BEST LEARNING.—Many there [are] that are accounted deep scholars, great [lin]guists, excellent mathematicians, sharp lo[gi]cians, knowing politicians, fine rhetorici[ans], sweet musicians, etc. These may be go[od] or bad, as the case may be, but he is cer[tainly] the best grammarian that has lea[rned] to speak the truth from his heart; the be[st] astronomer that hath his conversation [in] heaven; the best musician that hath lea[rned] to sing the praises of his God; the be[st] arithmetician, that so numbereth his days [as] to apply himself to wisdom; he is know[ing] in ethics, that traineth up his family in the fear of the Lord; he is the best economist who is wise to salvation, prudent in giv[ing] and taking good counsel; he is the best po[li]tician, and he is a good linguist that spe[aks] the language of Canaan.—Spencer.

CLOSELY BOUND

INFORMATION.

I consider it a favor to be permitted to comply with a request of several of my friends concerning the nature of the tumor on my bowels that has afflicted me for some months. On my arrival in Boston, Nov. 21st, I consulted some eminent physicians. They pronounced it a cancer. On Monday, the 23d, I called on Dr. R. Greene, No. 34 Temple Place. After consulting him, I concluded to place myself under his care, ever trusting in God for his blessing upon the effort. I am now taking his medicine. He calls it a Rose Cancer.

Dear friends, pray for me, that I may be delivered from what the late pre-eminent Dr. W. Beach, of New York, termed "one of the most dreadful diseases that the fallen posterity of Adam is liable to." One consolation to my poor heart is, I am now "sweetly resting in Jesus." O how precious his deep, unearthly love for a poor worm like me. Although the frosts of many winters have passed over my head, yet life is desirable. There is truth in the declaration of Satan in Job 2 : 4.

My post-office address will be care of Bro. Geo. T. Adams, 160 Hanover St. Your Bro. in affliction and glorious hope,

S. S. Brewer.

Bro. Brewer's Case.—I called this evening at Bro. R. Adams', where Bro. Brewer is now stopping, and where he has been undergoing an operation for the removal of a bad cancer. I had heard of his case, and of his intention to try the operation, and was extremely apprehensive of a severely prostrating, if not fatal result. But on entering his room I was most happily surprised to find his case in the most satisfactory condition; and could heartily join with him in thanksgiving to our Heavenly Father, who had so signally helped him through, what certainly appears to be, the worst of his case.

His many devoted friends will respond with grateful hearts on his account. Bro. B. has the best home for such a case that Boston could afford. Sister B. is with him, waiting and watching by day and night. She is somewhat wearied, but so grateful and hopeful that she feels comparatively at rest. Dr. Green, the operator, has done his difficult work to the fullest satisfaction, and everything now promises—if time lasts, that Bro. B. will in a few months resume his active life and usual labors in the great vineyard of our coming Lord. Pray for Bro. Brewer. His place is Boston, No. 1 Arnold St., corner of Washington St.

Labor vs. Capital.—Among the irrepressible conflicts of the day, that between labor and capital holds an important place. The numerous strikes, and the formation of combinations and secret organizations among the working people, show the progress of the agitation, and foretoken a conflict of no small magnitude in the future. A writer in the "Sabbath Recorder," of Dec. 4th, 1873, thus speaks of it:

"The non-producing class, or the 'drones' in the hive, are shielded by the arm of the law while appropriating the honey, and the workers are driven out to starve. God hasten the time when the hand-toilers and brain-toilers shall rise in their majesty, and purge out legislative halls, and set their feet on that kind of law making which 'makes the rich richer and the poor poorer.'"

More of a revolution may be involved in this change than the writer is aware. Nevertheless we look for it soon to come. The spirit of Communism is taking possession of large masses of the lower people, and the Internationals are growing arrogant in their demands and bold in their threats.—The Restitution.

Correspondence.

From Sr. E. A. Brundage.

To all who love the appearing of our Lord: Dear Brn. and Srs.:—Having ofttimes received encouragement and strength by reading in the Crisis the reports of laborers, and the many rich and edifying experiences of others of the Lord's dear children, I feel it duty in turn to pen a few lines, hoping thereby to add a mite to the mutual upbuilding and comfort of the saints. In this great and glorious work we are still engaged; and through the blessing of the Lord we trust some good has been accomplished. This is a vast field of labor. Many have never heard the glorious message of the second advent of our Savior near at hand. For many miles around we do not know of another white minister who proclaims this truth; and all that we can do is scarcely a drop in the bucket, compared to the great need; nevertheless, the Lord is doing a great work. The truth is taking deep root in many hearts. It would do you good could you see the earnest manner in which many of our colored brethren and sisters defend it.

Quite a stir has recently been made by a series of lectures given by my husband on the leading doctrines of the Scriptures, and a goodly number have embraced the truth. We find that not only among the colored, but also among the white people the truth is spreading. Prejudice on their part seems to be very nearly if not entirely gone. Doors of usefulness are opening on every side. I have a large daily school, and a very large and interesting Sunday school. Bro. Hastings kindly furnishes us with The Little Christian free, which adds greatly to the interest of our school. As it is given only to those who are industrious in committing to memory verses of Scripture, even the little First Reader scholars are learning one or more verses.

Yesterday we received two packages of tracts sent by Elder D. D. Reed, of Santa Clara, Cal.; also the same day a letter from a Methodist minister in Harmony, Halifax Co., in which he asks for information concerning the final destruction of the wicked. Speaking of the second advent of our Lord he says he is with us on that point; that he does not wish a spirit of sectarianism to be attached to his garments, and that he recognizes the Lord's people everywhere. We are able to furnish our Brother with some excellent tracts on the above-named subject, which may, we trust, be the means of doing great good. In Charlotte county too, where we lived and labored last year through many trials and discouragements, a church has been raised which is earnestly looking for the Lord, and trusting in Him alone as the great Lifegiver. A large number of white people there have become believers in the same precious truths. My husband still preaches there the first Sunday in every month, although he has the distance of twenty-two miles to walk nearly every time. In Campbell county there are a goodly number who are of the same precious faith. They need a house of worship, and are talking of building one. Many of them are very poor, but they show a willing spirit to do all they can.

You see, dear brethren and sisters, that "the harvest is great, but the laborers are few" in this State. O that there might be more faithful men of God sent here to help arouse men and women to the necessity of making a speedy preparation to meet the coming One. Dear ones, our arduous work will soon be accomplished. Let us, therefore, "renew our diligence," that with joy we may at last meet our dear Lord, and hear from his lips those precious words of approval—"Well done." May the grace of our Lord abide with you all. From your sister in the hope and labor of the gospel.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Paris, Dec. 5. The National Assembly have been engaged in an exciting debate for the past two days on a bill supported by the clerical Deputies for freeing the University from the control of the State. The principal speakers were Bishop Dupanloup, Legitimist, and M. Challemel Lacour, Radical Deputy. Dupanloup to-day passionately declared that danger to society was to be apprehended from the friends of those who favored the shooting of the Archbishop of Paris. This remark occasioned great tumult in the Chamber.

Upon the restoration of order M. Challemel Lacour retorted upon Dupanloup in a speech of great bitterness. He said that he left such personalities to the judgment of honest men and those who had some regard left for the dignity of the French episcopate. Upon the conclusion of the discussion the bill was passed to a second reading by a vote of 553 against 133.

Constantinople, Dec. 9. The Sultan has given $100,000 for the relief of the famine-stricken inhabitants of Angora. The prospects there, however, are improving; the prices of provisions have been reduced and agriculture is reviving.

Paris, Dec. 6. The second balloting for Municipal Councilors in those districts of Paris which failed of election last Sunday was held to-day, and resulted in the return of three Moderate Republicans and two Radicals.

A meeting of the members of the Left was held to-day, at which the expediency of immediately proposing the dissolution of the Assembly was discussed. The views of Jules Favre, however, were adopted as the sense of the meeting. They were to the effect that it would be best to permit a discussion of constitutional bills first, and await the result, which was sure to be their defeat. Then all the functions of the Left should unite in a vote in favor of dissolution.

London, Dec. 10. The Daily News special dispatch from Hendaye says that the object of Gen. Loma's attack on the Carlist lines was to force his way to Tolosa.

As the result of his first attempt he was driven from Urnietta to Ernani, after three hours' fighting, with his troops in a thoroughly disorganized state. He renewed the attack Tuesday, with the whole force of 800 men and four guns, the Carlist meanwhile being reinforced, and after an engagement lasting all day Loma was compelled to retreat. The Carlists admit the loss of 200. It is believed that the Republican loss is much greater.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

Cincinnati, Dec. 9. The Times' Vicksburg dispatches say the fight was renewed at Snyder's Bluff, ten miles from the city, last evening, between several hundred negroes and forty whites.

A courier was sent to Vicksburg for reinforcements, which were sent out without delay, and after a short skirmish, in which four negroes were killed and three wounded, the negroes retreated.

Last night the negroes drove in the white pickets from Fort Hill, and are said to have entrenched themselves there, they receiving large reinforcements from other counties. At last accounts they were marching on the city up the Issaquena road, driving the whites before them. They fired into a funeral procession yesterday, wounding one white man. The fire was returned and three negroes were killed.

Gov. Ames issued a proclamation commanding riotous and disorderly persons to disperse, and invoking the aid of all good citizens to uphold the laws and preserve the peace.

Crosby, the negro Sheriff, is out in an inflammatory card calling upon all Republicans, black and white, to join him in battle against what he terms political banditti and barbarians.

The excitement throughout Mississippi is at fever heat, and it is now asserted that the interference of the United States Government will be necessary before the bloodshed is stopped.

A Jackson, Miss., dispatch says the tax payers of Warren county have issued a protest denying the assertion in the Governor's proclamation and claiming that everything has been done by them in a quiet and peaceable manner.

A FINE CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

As it is an almost universal custom, and a good one, to make "Christmas and New Year's presents" to kindred and friends, I will suggest to our brethren and sisters that it may be that they cannot serve the cause of Christ better at such a time than to present the to such of the ministers of the various denominations as they know to be candid inquirers, or such of the lay members, or your parents, children, brothers, sisters, husbands, wives, or other relatives or friends who you wish to become thoroughly acquainted with and interested in this God-given, dispensational message throughout the world, apart from the excesses and side issues which have been sometimes associated with it. We would venture to give ten thousand copies to the ministry had we the means to do so. We subjoin a few testimonials.

From Eld. E. A. Stockman.

"I am just now reading carefully your 'History of the Advent Message.' Its merits are many and marked. Its spirit is excellent. It ought to be better noticed."

From Eld. L. F. Cole, of Minn.

"I have just finished reading Bro. Wellcome's 'History of the Advent Message.' Occupying a field all its own, it is certainly very interesting, and on the whole I do not think I have ever seen a work I could place in the hands of a stranger and inquirer with so much confidence that good would result, as this History."—A. C. Times.

We want agents, active, trusty men or women, whose hearts are in the message, and who work for the good of their race as well as for their bread, to canvass and sell this History to ministers, deacons, class-leaders, doctors, lawyers, teachers, students, Bible scholars, and thinkers of every class, everywhere. For terms, address I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me.

The place of this meeting is about three and a half miles from the Sweetsburgh depot, on the S. E. Railway. If our Montreal brethren will write to Elder L. Marsh that they will come to the meeting, teams will meet them at the depot as they request.

Following the District Meeting proper, I shall remain as Conference Evangelist, and labor for a time as Bro. Marsh, the Chairman of the District, shall appoint. Chas. P. Dow.

A. H. Briggs, Secretary.

Notice.—I have removed from my former place of residence (Rochester) to this place,—Ontario, Wayne Co., N. Y.,—where brethren and friends can address me until further notice. I expect my labors for the present to be confined to this circuit,—Ontario, Furnaceville, and Ontario Centre, and very soon at Williamson. Three places every Sabbath. The Lord is with us to bless.

Jas. E. Wells.

Notice.—As my time is not all filled up, and having a desire to do what I can till the Master comes, I would say that I will go and preach the gospel of the kingdom as the Lord may open the way. Any wishing to correspond with me, will please address E. H. Eggleston, Keeneyville, Tioga Co., Penn.

To Vermonters.—At our annual conference at Bethel, the State Committee were urged to carry the gospel of the kingdom into every new field which opened a door, and especially to offer a week of labor for any five dollars pledged by an isolated brother or sister living in a new field. This was to encourage individual effort and sacrifice on the part of the isolated. We want to hear immediately from those places where labors are desired, that we may make due arrangements to meet the demands. If you are too poor to raise five dollars, and yet the door is open for a meeting, write us just the same as though you raised the money. Write to me at Waterbury, Vt., or to A. A. Hoyt, Plainfield, Vt. Write full particulars of circumstances, people, time, and place. Write soon.

H. F. Carpenter, President of Conference.

That New Book.

About two-thirds of this work—"Let us make Man," etc.,—is now in type; but owing to illness at the office, and want of help, the work must be delayed a short time. When ready, due notice will be given, and all orders promptly filled. I find it necessary to enlarge the size of the work beyond the first design, and consequently the price of the book must be correspondingly increased. Retail price, 20 cts.

T. M. Preble, Hyde Park, Mass.

Removal.—"The Biblical Messenger" office is now removed from Plainfield to Waterbury, Vt., where our paper will be published hereafter. All communications for this office should be addressed to The Biblical Messenger, Waterbury, Vt.

A. A. Hoyt.

P. S.—When you send private letters, direct to A. A. Hoyt, and write private on the corner of the envelope. A. A. H.

Having moved from Fonthill, Canada, Ont., to Utica, Mich., I would say to the brethren that I purpose, the coming winter (the Lord willing), to labor in the cause of my Master by holding forth the gospel of the coming kingdom, as the Lord may open the way. J. G. Smith and J. W. White will preach in Farmington, N. H., two Sundays in each month, as long as it seems duty. J. G. Smith the first, and J. W. White the third.

Those wishing to correspond with me, are hereby informed that my address hereafter will be at Fitchburg, Mass. H. F. Carpenter.

A NEW BOOK.
"THE BIBLE DOCTRINE OF THE SOUL."

An Answer to the Question: "Is the Popular Conception of the Soul that of Holy Scripture?"

BY CHAS. L. IVES, M. D.

Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Yale College.

This is a pamphlet of 119 pages, in which the Author discusses the above question in an interesting and able manner,—showing the material nature of, the mortality and destiny of the Soul,—A future immortality to be the special portion of the Righteous,—What the Bible teaches as to the future of the Wicked,—The intermediate state,—The Resurrection,—That of the Righteous and of the Wicked, etc.

The Author claims that the doctrine set forth,—"Honors God, exalts the Bible, insures preaching of future punishment, subverts Universalism and Infidelity, errors of Romanism, of Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, helps in work of Missions, rightly values the body, brings Christian unity, and promotes personal holiness."

We are much pleased with this work. It ought to have a wide circulation. We have a good supply, and hope the friends will order freely. We will sell at the following prices:—25 cts. per copy; $2.00 per dozen, sent by mail; $15.00 per hundred, by express.

THE SEVEN CHURCHES.

"A pamphlet of 60 pages (by W. N. Pile), giving an exposition of Rev. 2: 3. The epistles to the 'seven churches of Asia' (the author thinks) are shown to have been prophetic of the seven periods of the gospel age, in addition to their local application. An epitome of church history, from the apostolic age to the present time, is given, leading to the conclusion that we are now in the closing part of the Laodicean period, near the end of the dispensation and the establishment of the kingdom of God upon the earth. Price, single copy, postpaid, 15 cts.; two copies, 25 cts."

An interesting Tract. We hope it may do much good. "He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."

"WHO SHALL ROLL AWAY THE STONE?"

What poor weeping ones were saying
Eighteen hundred years ago,
We, the same weak faith betraying,
Say in our sad hearts of woe!
Looking at some trouble lying
In the dark and dread unknown,
We too often ask with sighing,
"Who shall roll away the stone?"

Thus with care our spirits crushing,
When they might from care be free;
And, in joyous song outgushing,
Rise in rapture, Lord, to thee.
For before the way was ended,
Oft we had with joy to own,
Angels have from heaven descended,
And have rolled away the stone.

Many a storm-cloud sweeping o'er us
Never pours on us its rain;
Many a grief we see before us
Never comes to give us pain.
Oftimes in the feared to-morrow
Sunshine comes, the cloud has flown;
Ask not then in foolish sorrow,
"Who shall roll away the stone?"

Burden not thy soul with sadness,
Make the wiser, better choice;
Tread the path of life with gladness,
God doth bid thee, man, rejoice;
In to-day's bright sunshine basking,
Leave to morrow's cares alone;
Spoil not present joys by asking,
"Who shall roll away the stone?"

MISSION WORK.

Dear Editor's and Friends in Christ:—Since our last report to the Crisis, we have visited a number of fields of labor, and have endeavored to set before the people the near approach of the Son of man, and the necessity of a preparation to meet him in peace.

We were with the church at Melvern a week, speaking every night. One put on Christ by baptism. Others were made to rejoice in the light, and notwithstanding all the darkness that surrounds them, they are willing to let their light shine. A Bro. Brian has been raised up in this vicinity to help publish the glad news of Christ's coming kingdom.

From this point we went to Ottumwa, Coffey Co., where the Lord has graciously blest since our first visit last winter, and where over twenty have united on the platform of Christ and the apostles. Every week they have prayer meetings from house to house. The Lord also has raised up another brother here to defend the truth. He has formerly been a school teacher, but is now one of the merchants of the place, and is giving a reason of his hope to all who ask as they come to trade. O that we had more such men, who would talk it and live it every where, that the churches of Christ scattered might grow thereby. We do thank the Lord for what he has done for Ottumwa. We had a blessed season while there. One night, after speaking on the subject of the "kingdom," a Baptist preacher arose and said he would take up the subject on the opposite side the following Sunday night, and show that the kingdom was already established. So the night came, and all came to hear. He admitted he was in a hard place. Said we had brought in "side issues," and warned the people to beware of such doctrines. He endeavored to prove that Christ was now reigning on David's throne in heaven, and that was his kingdom. Then he stated that Christ set up his kingdom on the mount of Transfiguration. Afterward he said it was set up in the disciple's hearts, when Christ said "the kingdom of God is within you," little realizing that he was talking to the Pharisees, and that the marginal reading is "among you." Then he claimed it was set up again over sixty years after Christ ascended and gave his revelation to John, on the isle of Patmos, at the opening of the seven seals, when the white horse was seen with its rider. These are some of the evidences he produced.

At the close of his meeting I told his congregation that I would review his subject the next evening, as he had taken the liberty to review mine. The next evening the house was filled, and the Lord gave perfect liberty in presenting his Word. We showed that David was anointed as king fifteen years before he reigned; and that he then reigned over all Israel; and that David's throne was never in heaven, so that it was impossible for Christ now to be reigning on it. We showed that the "wicked prince of Israel," Zedekiah, was dethroned, and from that time the kingdom was to be overturned and overturned, until the promised Heir should take it, and rule the nations with a rod of iron, and dash them in pieces as a potter's vessel. Then the heathen will be given for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession. We showed that the stone, of Dan. 2 : 34–45, would smite the image upon the feet, and then all earthly kingdoms would be broken to pieces, and pass into oblivion. And on the ruins of all these, "God's kingdom" would be established, and stand forever and ever. Christ will be the king, the saints be the subjects, the earth be the territory, and the New Jerusalem will be the capital. With these component parts, we have a real, tangible, literal, eternal glorious kingdom.

Now the parts of this kingdom are all separated. Jesus, the prophesied king, is in heaven on his Father's throne; the subjects, some of them, are in the earth, awaiting the voice of the last trump to call them forth; the New Jerusalem is above, a house not made with hands; it is to "come down;" and the earth is under the curse. But, thank the Lord, these elements will soon be brought together, never to be parted. O what a happy, glorious, eternal day it will be for those that wait for the promise "by faith."

Next, we returned home, then to Melvern another Lord's day, then home again. Bro. Hunt came, and we went to Key West, had a number of meetings, then to Ottumwa. From there we returned home, to prepare for a journey to Franklin Co. Bro. Hunt accompanied us. We rode through the snow, across the prairie, twelve miles to Lindern, and scattered tracts. Then twenty miles now over the rough, frozen earth to Bro. Snyder's, of F. Co., where we had meetings last winter. Arrived very late and found the folks had gone to meeting. We hastily put our ponies into the stables, and saddled one of Bro. Snyder's, and went to the house of worship. Found a number out, and spoke to them from Titus 1 : 2.

At this place labor has not been in vain in the Lord. A united band of believers in the near coming of Christ have been raised up, and they are contending earnestly for the faith, and living for Jesus. During our meetings, one infidel arose and confessed his skepticism, stating that he had never heard the like, and that he should investigate to see about it.

Now we are at Ottawa. Bro. Roller sent for us. He thought he could get the Presbyterian church, but did not succeed. The Christians opened their house, on condition that they might ask questions, or get some one to answer us. They sent for William Gans, of Olathee. He has come. Our first meeting was last Saturday night. We have spoken four times on the subject of Christ's coming and the kingdom. This man has followed. A great interest is stirred up already. Bro. Hunt spoke last night with power. The battle wages hot. Pray for us.

TENT MEETING IN JEFFERSON.

H. B. SEVEY.

We concluded when we left Bath, not to pitch Tent again, as the weather was cold, and we were very much worn down with constant labor; but by earnest entreaty, we concluded to let Brn. F. E. Blaisdel and others go with the Tent, and on the first of October we joined them in labor in this place. The Baptists had been established for about one hundred years, and we found much prejudice against us; but as a tent meeting was a new thing, they came to hear what we had to preach, different from what they had heard. As our meetings continued, they were more interested to learn what the Bible taught about the nature of man and his destiny. After speaking on the subject of Spiritualism, light was brought out by questions being asked, which were answered to their satisfaction, and we hope it may save them from this delusion.

Many were interested in our Bible faith, and some came out by making a public confession. Several arose for prayers, and we learned since that one has taken a decided stand for the truth, that never made a profession of religion. We were with them three weeks. Brn. Weeks and Warren concluded to continue the meetings longer in the school-house. At the close of our meeting in the tent, we asked those to rise who believed that we had preached the truth. Many immediately were on their feet, thus expressing their sympathy for the truth we cherish so dearly. May it be sanctified to their good is my prayer.

Looking over the past, we can truly say the Lord has been our helper. It seems to me that many tents ought to be in the field, as they are the means of reaching many that cannot be reached by other means. With a good working company, meetings can be made very interesting. Brn. F. E. Blaisdel, Asa Blaisdel, Oliver and Asa Gordon, my daughter Ellen, and Sr. Carrie Brown, have been with us, and others have come to our aid, and given timely help, for which the Lord will reward them when he comes.

A feeling of sadness, mingled with joy, steals over my heart as I reflect upon the past meetings; sadness when I think of the many that have turned away from the truth after being almost persuaded to become the Lord's, and will be found without a good hope at last; but will have it said "Depart, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels;" and joy as I think of some that have been plucked as brands from the burning, that are now rejoicing in the truth, and have made a covenant by sacrifice, and have yielded themselves servants of the Lord. To such it will be said,—"Come, ye blessed of my Father," inherit the kingdom. Then the dear ones will meet to part no more. I have the consciousness that I have done what I could to spread the knowledge of his coming, although in weakness and imperfection. I have not been trammelled by party or sect, nor kept back anything that I understood was profitable. I have joy as I anticipate the glory that is soon to be given to all his children, and joy to think of the home where there will be no more death, no more sorrow or sadness.

May we be there, dear brethren and sisters, is my prayer. Poor sorrowing ones, cheer up; redemption is near; it will not always be said it is near, but it will be here. Poor sinner, make haste, get ready, or you will be lost.

EXPERIENCE.

F. W. HOUGH.

Yesterday, in reading our excellent paper, the Crisis, I saw a letter from Bro. Bowman which greatly interested me, and gave a fresh impulse to my sympathetic nature for his success in his struggles against the use of tobacco. It reminded me of my own struggles and my repeated failures, and also of my successful triumph. I could not restrain the tears of joy that my heavenly Father had given me power to overcome, and prompted me to give a brief history of my experience, hoping it may help Bro. B., and all others under like trial, to try by the help of the grace of God to be overcomers.

I was instructed by a doctor to smoke for involuntary loss of food. I did so. My difficulty ceased, but I had not used the weed five years before I hated the filthy, and, as I thought, unchristian practice,* and consequently laid my plans for reformation. To determine when that work should begin was difficult. Sometimes, because of a rush of business, it was deferred. I at last appointed a time, some time in the future. Meantime, to fortify myself for the shock, I would think of its filthy character, and how the user was lowering himself below the brute; for I never saw a man with a pipe or a quid in his mouth without feeling how degrading it was. And then my accountability for using God's money for it;—with that money I might furnish my family of children with good sound reading matter. All these thoughts made me loathe the practice. I therefore rather desired the appointed time to come. But when it came and I had laid by the pipe for one day, it seemed almost impossible to restrain my longing for it. And this appetite would more or less increase. At times I would seem to get the victory over it; then again it would return with redoubled force, and seemingly compel me (against my will) to take the pipe, with the sentence of condemnation upon me. Five times did I attempt to abandon it, but was foiled. At one time I held out six months, but was a conquered man at last.

I then began to philosophize, and try to reach the cause why such a raging thirst should continue so long. I at last reached the conclusion: The use of tobacco changed the whole system. Its nicotine poison permeated every part; consequently, nature (which is always true) employs every available means to eject it from the system. When long used the breath will smell of it, the skin and every tissue of our whole being becomes loaded with the poison. After I left it off I had a longing for the pipe, and when that was denied it gave more force to appetite for food. I would eat too much, and this would create an inward fever which would call louder for the pipe. Hence I fell. Five times was I conquered by my appetite; and I am persuaded that thousands long to be free, but are prevented, from former failures, to undertake. But I hope you will be encouraged to try again when I tell how I was delivered.

First, I ate not more than two-thirds, sometimes not more than half as much as formerly; I took frequent hot baths, cooling off with a sponge dipped in cold water; rubbed off well, and exercised in the open air; hoisted the window of my sleeping room in the day-time, and some in the night. By this method I soon had the victory I had so much sought.

About two months after I had quit the use of tobacco I was rolling logs to burn to prepare a place for potatoes. This work sharpened my appetite, and I indulged it; but about an hour after, I lost my breakfast, and at the same time bled at the lungs. A man in my employ took out his pipe, filled and lighted it, handing it to me, saying, "You should never quit it." My wife, who was near by, urged me to use it. I took it, thanked him, and threw it as far as I could, and thanked God that I was a free man. About six months after I had left it off, and had no hankering for it, a man smoking came and sat near me. I inhaled some smoke, and it seemed to arouse much of my former appetite. I moved out of the way, and conquered.

Some will say any one can leave it off if they will. Very true; but it is much easier for some than others. A man with large social qualities and sanguine temperament will have a greater struggle than others who have less of these qualities; for it is an admitted fact that the greater our social qualities, the more we are liable to use tobacco or liquor.

If what I have written leads one from the use of the weed, I shall rejoice; for I think it is one of the crying sins of the age. Few escape it. I thank God I ever overcame it, and live to-day a free man. The whole world could not induce me to be a slave.

*I do not wish to unchristianize others who use it.

I FEEL SAD.

L. B. WEAVER.

Yes, my heart is sad to-day. My lot seems hard. Yet I will not complain. I am in the hands of the Lord. Let him do as it seemeth him good. He will not suffer one trial too much to come, to fit us for our eternal rest. Yet I feel sad, for trials press upon me sore. O for home; for the pure, free air of home, beyond this stormy voyage. The Lord knows just how to discipline us, and if "heaviness, through manifold temptations," is needful for us for a season, we will bear it all patiently, saying, Father, not our wills, but thine be done. I feel sad, but if it is Father's will for me to be sad for a season, then it is best.

From my heart I can say, if trials are needful, let them come; if sadness is for the best, amen. With our beloved Bro. Paul, I mean to be where I can with him take pleasure in reproaches, in afflictions, in necessities, etc. Only give me grace to bear it, and I will say, amen; only let me feel thy presence; only let me feel my hand in thine, leading me on to the coming kingdom, and I will gladly say, Let it come. I will bear the cross and the rod, meekly, submissively, not feeling rebellious at the dealings of a kind, loving, precious Savior, for we are nearing home, sweet home. Bless the Lord. There, none of these things will come; no sad hearts, no days of weeping and mourning for those we love. Now we feel weary, sad and desolate, till the heart is faint, and we come to One who has endured trial and suffering too, and cry unto him for strength to bear it all, and he gives it. Then we will not murmur nor complain, for it is among the "all things" that work for our good, and we feel sure that our loving Father suffers nothing to come upon any of his dear ones but what is the very best thing that can be done.

O, how glad I am that "weeping endureth but for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." That blessed morning will drive all our sadness away, and bring in eternal sunshine. Joy and gladness shall be obtained, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away. O, how my heart leaps at the thought of one day being made free from all that can sadden our hearts. Not a wave of trouble nor a cloud of darkness. O bless the name of Jesus! I will wipe away my tears, and drive away my sadness by singing—

"Come and reign, come and reign,
Jesus, on thy throne;
And oh, it fills my heart with joy
To know we're almost home."

I long to be there. Cheer up, sad one; day is breaking. Hasten thy coming, dear Savior.

North Dana, Mass.

THE RELIGION NEEDED.

We want a religion that bears heavily on the "exceeding sinfulness of sin," and on the exceeding rascality of lying and stealing—that banishes small measures from the counter, small baskets from stalls, pebbles from the cotton bags, clay from the paper, sand from sugar, chicory from coffee, alum from bread, and water from the milk cans.

The religion to save the world will not put all the big strawberries at the top and the little ones at the bottom, nor make one-half a pair of shoes of good leather and the other half of poor leather; it will not put Jouvin's stamp on Jenkins' kid gloves, nor make Paris bonnets in the back room of a Boston millener's shop; nor let a piece of velvet professing to measure twelve yards come to an untimely end in the tenth, nor a spool of silk at twenty yards be nipped in the bud at fourteen and a half; nor all wool delaines and all-linen handkerchiefs be amalgamated with clandestine cotton; nor coats made of rags pressed together be sold for legal broadcloth.

It does not put bricks at five dollars into chimneys it contracts to build of seven dollar material; nor smuggle white pine into floors that have paid for hard pine; nor leave yawning cracks in closets where boards ought to join; nor daub the ceilings that ought to be smoothly plastered; nor make window blinds of slats that cannot stand the wind, and paint that cannot stand the sun, and fastenings that may be looked at, but are no account to be touched. The religion that is going to sanctify the world pays its debts. It does not consider that forty cents returned for one hundred cents given is not according to the gospel, though it may be according to law. It looks on a man who has failed in trade and who continues to live in luxury, as a thief.—Ex.

KNOCKING.

My foot is on the threshold,
My hand is on the latch,
My heart is rent with sorrow,
O do not turn me back!
I've come a weary distance,
Long miles of grief and sin;
Come sorely pressed and laden;
Oh! wilt thou let me in?

My hands hang limp and nerveless
My burden to remove;
My feeble knees are shaking;
Open, and show thy love.
My eyes are dim with watching
To catch a glimpse within;
My heavy ear is aching
To hear thee say, "Come in."

O haste! unlatch, I pray thee;
I trust thy gracious word,
"To him that knocks I'll open!"
Thou true and faithful Lord.
The latch turns on the promise,
The door on hinge of gold;
O wondrous grace and glory!
"The half had not been told.'

THE MIND.

W. F. FAHNESTOCK.

In reading in the Crisis of Nov. 25th,—"Is the existence of mind evidence of soul-entity?" you say—"2. We have instances recorded where an injury to the brain has rendered man unconscious for a considerable length of time." My own case is one in point, but reaches a little beyond the above, by the way of being unconscious for twenty-one days, and yet conscious to a considerable degree. I will here relate.

In 1852 I was engaged in a wholesale and retail business in the city of Pittsburgh. On returning from East Liberty the horse attached to the buggy in which I was riding took fright at the lighting of a gas light about two miles from my residence. I was thrown out, the back and left side of my head striking on a paving stone. I was taken up for dead, and carried to my home on a settee. I have no knowledge—except hear say—of anything after that flare of gas-light, which is said to have frightened the horse, until twenty-one days after it occurred, which was about the 26th of January, 5 o'clock, P. M.; and on the 16th of February, about 4 o'clock, P. M., the first knowledge of the fact occurred in this way:—I found myself lying on my bed on my right side, my eyes looking toward the fire in the grate. Saw a strange gentleman with finger raised pointing toward me. He said, "You may take a little walk to Alleghany City daily; but don't go to your store for at least two weeks. Good afternoon;"—and he walked out. I asked my wife, "Who is that gentleman? What has he to do with my going to the store? She replied, "That is the doctor. There has been two coming here every day for three weeks." "Doctor! doctor! why, who is sick? what do you want with a doctor?" She said that I had been thrown from a buggy, and they had no hope of my recovery until ten days after the accident; but the doctors said they thought I would now get well. I told her I had no personal knowledge of any of it; did not know I was hurt; did not suffer one moment's pain; although they say the doctors probed the back part of my head for three inches around the wound, yet I was quiet as if dead, and knew nothing of it for twenty-one days; and then know only by hearsay, which lawyers say is inadmissible testimony. So much for the unconscious part. The next day I went to the store in violation of the doctor's command.

Now as to the conscious part. I had a brother associated with me in business who took no interest in the financial part, as that was my part of the business. I asked him how he managed the financial matters. He said one of the brokers with whom I kept account called and told him to check for ten thousand dollars if he needed it, until I recovered. But he did not check for one dollar; as he did just as I had instructed him (whilst on my bed and unconscious). He called every day and would say, "Well brother, to-morrow there is a bill payable of five hundred" or a "thousand dollars" as the case might be. I would tell him to draw on F. D. and C., Cinn. Draw on H. S. R., Indianapolis, on St. Louis, Evansville, Nashville, giving him the names of each party, the exact amount due, the day when due, to draw at sight or ten days, or thirty days, as the bill book called for. Yet he knew nothing about the bills receivable, and no book of any kind was brought or shown to me. He got his information of payments by bank notices; yet, without book or anything before me, I, in my unconscious condition, transacted that business twenty-one days, and not an error of one cent. How can this be? It is more than my mind can account for. I am rather under the impression that there was some material matter to sustain some part of the mind, whilst other portions were inactive.

By the accident I lost my sense of taste and smell, also my power to join in songs of praise to the Giver of every good and perfect gift. The latter (loss of song) caused many bitter tears to burn my eyelids. I however recovered inside of a year my power to sing and my sense of taste; but the sense of smell is dead, and has been for twenty-two years. But I rejoice even in tribulation, in trials, knowing that e'er long this mortal shall put on immortality, and we shall no more say "I am sick."

Harrisburg, Penn., Nov. 28th, 1874.

Scandal.—The story is told of a woman who freely used her tongue to the scandal of others, and made a confession to the priest of what she had done. He gave her a ripe thistle top, and told her to go out in various directions and scatter the seeds one by one. Wondering at the penance, she obeyed, and then returned and told her confessor. To her amazement, he bade her to go back and gather the scattered seeds; and when she objected, that it would be impossible, he replied that it would be still more difficult to gather up and destroy all the evil reports which she had circulated about others. Any thoughtless, careless child can scatter a handful of thistle seed before the wind in a moment, but the strongest and wisest man cannot gather them again.

To the heart that is full of kindness, every other heart beats in kindness.

PARDON.

Many fail to understand clearly the nature of pardon as it is set forth in the gospel. Some, having a deep sense of their own sinfulness cannot take hold, by faith, of the great fact that Christ has died for them; that pardon is purchased, revealed, and offered by him.

To such it cannot be made too plain that pardon is secured for them whether they believe it or not. Christ died for all and in the "all' they are included. Christ offers pardon to all and so to them.

But are we to infer from this that all persons actually enjoy pardon, whatever they are, wherever they are, whatever they believe, or whatever they do? No. Pardon is secured for all, is offered to all, but this does not make it true that all receive it. President Lincoln offered amnesty to the people of the Southern States. This amnesty was universal—it was to all the people. It was a pardon secured for all and offered to all by the United States government. It was offered to all, and yet only those who, in fact, repented of rebellion, could receive it. The amnesty was for all, if all would repent. So we understand the gospel. God stands ready to forgive all men. Christ stands offering pardon, freely, to all men,—none are shut out from the offer, yet only those who repent can receive it. "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

On the one side it cannot be made too plain that our pardon is provided for us, as a fact, whether we know it or believe it or not; on the other side it should be made plain that only those who, seeing the love of God in Christ, are led by it to repentance, do really enter into the pardoned state. To a sinner we can say, "God has a pardon prepared for you—God offers this pardon to you." But we dare not say to him, while he continues in his sin, "You are now pardoned." The pardon is offered him, but it is not his till he receives it.

There is a work of faith for man to do; a work in "change of mind" (repentance) and life.

It is right for me always to be ready to forgive an offender as soon as he shall give up his offense. It is not right for me to actually forgive him while he continues to offend. I must stand ready to forgive him always; the spirit of forgiveness in my heart, but the forgiveness cannot be an accomplished fact while the offense continues. So God stands ready to forgive offenders, always; the divine heart is ever welling over with the desire to forgive, yet the forgiveness cannot be an accomplished fact while the sinner persists in his sins.

The forgiving of the sinner while he persists in sinning, would be the removal of a strong motive to forgiveness; would be an encouragement to sin; would be a removal of the distinction between sin and holiness, and would thus be an endorsement of sin.

We cannot abrogate the great fact that God shall "discern between him that doeth evil, and him that doeth it not." God's love would reach and save all, but only those who will be saved can have his approval. He cannot approbate sin. He saves men, not by approving them in sin, but by saving them from sin.—Wayside

REPORT OF PROGRESS.

To whom it may concern:—As Chairman of our Campmeeting Committee, we have tried to be faithful to our trust, and have secured by purchase a grove and plot of ground in full view of the beautiful Lake Memphramagog, within less than half a mile of a pleasant village, where to permanently locate our Conference Campmeeting, which we propose to call "The Lake View Campmeeting." We hope twenty family cottages will be built next spring as a commencement; and that ample funds will be raised in the different parts of our field, and sent as soon as convenient to the Treasurer of our committee—Bro. George Mitson, or myself, Magog, P. Q., that we may have the means of seating the ground, and making other needed preparations, previous to and in time for our first meeting to commence—June 24th, 1875—if time lasts until then, and the will of God be so. We have good reasons to expect a Railroad to be built from Waterloo to Sherbrooke, via. Magog, soon, if time permit, and we have secured very favorable terms of the steamboat Captain and Proprietor upon the Lake. Different railroad routes connect with the boat at the south end of the Lake. For the Committee.

AN OBJECT.

C. MENDENHALL.

We rarely find a person who drifts about in the world, without some object in view. The man whose god is gold makes all things subserve to his grand object, which is wealth. Anything which would retard his money-getting plans is cast aside. Is the goal knowledge? he toils and sacrifices, making all things else secondary. Is it fame, or office, or any other worthy aim, good or bad? every energy is brought to the rescue, hindering causes removed, and the desired result never lost sight of.

Notwithstanding all this, we find that when religion is to be exercised, and the object is "the mark of the prize of our high calling in Christ Jesus," that transient surroundings, worldly cares, carnal desires, and side issues of many varieties are allowed to interfere and turn aside.

Now we inquire, is this consistent? Are worldly ends worth so much, and religion and its future so little? Let us serve God with full purpose of heart, throwing aside every weight which may hinder us in the contest for immortality and glory through Christ?

It is written "whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, cannot be my disciple." May we be his followers, not by profession only, but in deed; showing that we consider "all things but dross that we may win Christ." It is required of us to present ourselves a complete sacrifice, not a partial one, to God. We must serve him with an undivided purpose, placing all at the disposal of him who doeth all things well. He who has done so much for us reasonably demands our whole time and talents, and surely we, as the recipients of his grace, should not withhold this service.

Reader, you are in your course of life living for one of two objects. Is it for life or death? You cannot at once serve God and the devil. Now which way are you going? Will you not just now decide? If you are on the broad and beaten track, change your route, repent, trust, and live. Are you in the narrow way? Faint not, but lift up your heads, for your redemption is nigh. Jesus is even at the door. He for whom all creation groans is coming to remove the curse, restore the dead, and change the living. Then will the faithful rejoice with joy unspeakable, because their race is run, the warfare ended, and they have gained the great object of their probationary state, which was life eternal, and an inheritance incorruptible.

THE LORD WILL PROVIDE.

A city missionary one Saturday night was going home with a basket of provisions on his arm. Meeting a policeman, he asked him if there had any families moved in the bounds of his beat during the week. He answered, "Yes," and pointing to a building up an alley said, "a woman and some children are living there now."

The missionary went to the house, rapped at the door, and was admitted. The woman was sitting by a small light sewing. In the corner of the room were two little girls, appparently from nine to twelve years of age, playing.

The missionary said, "Madam, I am here to see if you will allow your girls to attend Sunday school to-morrow morning."

"I would, sir; but what you see on them is all the clothing they have, and you would not wish them to go as they are now."

"The Lord will provide, madam. Have you no money?"

"Not yet, but I have committed my case into the hands of the Lord."

"Have you anything to eat?"

"Nothing, sir!

"What will you do for breakfast?"

"O, sir, I once had a husband; he provided when he could. These children had a father; he supplied their wants; but he is dead now. Yet my Maker, even God, is my husband, and he has promised to be a father to the fatherless. We have committed all to him in this our day of trouble. I am trusting in God to take care of a poor widow and her children in a strange place, and I know he will provide."

"Thank God for such faith," said the missionary; and handing her the basket, said, 'here is your breakfast, and you shall have the clothing for your children."

With tears streaming down her face, she replied:

"Oh, thank God for his faithfulness! He heareth and answereth prayer. May he bless you!" And, said our dear brother to us, "I felt the promise was sure, for she was blessed in receiving; I was more so in giving."—Selected.

PROOF READING.

Proof-reading is one of the most difficult, laborious and expensive things connected with the making of books and newspapers. We have rarely read a book without detecting in it some typographical error. An hour ago we were reading the one hundred and sixteenth Psalm, from the Bible of the new Wolf Creek church. The type-setter had turned "pains" into "gains," and made David say "the gains of hell." We have seen other blunders of a similar character in the Scriptures. A proof-reader omitted putting in a "c" which had been overlooked by the compositor, and then 1 Cor. 15: 51, 52, read as follows: "We shall not all sleep, but we shall be hanged in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye at the last trump."

There are few men who ever can become expert in proof-reading. Every man who willingly allows himself to be careless about his writing, must make a poor proof-reader; and the number who seem to care little how they write, so they express the sentiment they wish to convey, are a marvelously large proportion of those who wield the pen. As to typographical errors, a cotemporary thus lucidly writes:

"Every copy of a newspaper contains from ten to eighty thousand distinct pieces of metal, according to the size of the paper and type. The displacement of a single one makes an error. Is it any wonder that errors occur? In the large offices, professional proof readers are kept, whose practiced eyes, passing twice over every line of proof, detect most of the errors; a boy is also kept for that purpose, at the same time reading the copy aloud. Still mistakes are frequently occurring, after coming from such hands, and probably no book or newspaper was ever published without errors that might be detected by the merest novice. In book printing, it is estimated that proof reading costs half as much as composition. In country offices the editor is generally foreman, printer, book-keeper, and everything else, and if the same care should be exercised that is deemed indispensable on city sheets, the country newspapers could not be published at all, because of the expense."—National Independent.

HOME AND HEALTH.

DUTIES OF DAILY LIFE.

Life is not entirely made up of great evils or heavy trials; but the perpetual recurrence of petty evils and small trials is the ordinary and appointed exercise of the christian graces. To bear with the failings of those about us,—with their infirmities, their bad judgment, their ill-breeding, their perverse tempers,—to endure neglect when we feel we deserved attention, and ingratitude where we expected thanks,—to bear with the company of disagreeable people whom Providence has placed in our way, and whom he has provided or purposed for the trial of our virtue,—these are the best exercises of patience and self-denial, and the better because not chosen by ourselves. To bear with vexation in business, with disappointment in our expectations, with interruptions of our retirement, with folly, intrusion, disturbance,—in short, with whatever opposes our will or contradicts our humor—this habitual acquiescence appears to be more of the essence of self-denial than any little rigors or afflictions of our own imposing. These constant, inevitable, but inferior evils properly improved, furnish a good moral discipline, and might, in days of ignorance, have superseded pilgrimage and penance.—Hannah More.

NO COMPROMISE.

As I grow older as a parent, my views are changing fast as to the degree of conformity to the world which we should allow to our children. I am horror-struck to count up the profligate children of pious persons and even ministers. The door at which those influences enter, which countervail parental instruction and example, I am persuaded, is yielding to the ways of good society; by dress, books and amusements, an atmosphere is formed which is not that of christianity.

More than ever do I feel that our families must stand in a kind but determined opposition to the fashions of the world, breasting the waves like the Eddystone lighthouse. And I have found nothing yet which requires more courage and independence than to rise even a little, but decidedly, above the par of the religious world around us. Surely the way in which we commonly go on is not that way of self-denial, and sacrifice, and cross-bearing which the New Testament talks of.—Rev. J. W. Alexander.

LOOKING AT THE PATTERN.

A little girl named Hattie Jones was writing her copy in school one afternoon. The teacher had been looking over the girls, and at last came to to her. When Hattie found the teacher at her side she looked up and said, rather fretfully, "Oh, Miss Ford, what does make my writing look so crooked to-day? I try my best to do it well, but it doesn't seem to be of any use."

"I think I know what the trouble is, Hattie," said the teacher; "You don't keep looking at the pattern." Isn't that it?"

Yes, that was just it. This was the trouble with Hattie. And this is the trouble with all who go wrong when they wish to do right; they don't look enough at their pattern. The best pattern of all that is good—the best pattern that ever was—we have in Jesus. The apostle tells us, "Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that ye should follow his steps." The way to learn to write well is to take the copy given us and try to make another as much like it as we can. And this is the way to learn to live well.

We must take the example of Jesus as our pattern, and try to copy it or make our own life as near like to it as we can. And this was what Jesus meant when he said "Learn of me." And nothing will help us to overcome all selfishness better than to keep the example of Jesus before us. Christ pleased not himself. And if we only try to be like him in this respect, we shall soon find our selfishness plucked up by the roots. —Selected.

Mothers.—Many a discouraged mother folds her tired hands at night, and feels as if she had, after all, done nothing, although she has not spent an idle moment since she arose. Is it nothing that your little helpless children have had some one to come to with all their childish griefs and joys? Is it nothing that your husband feels "safe" when he is away to his business, because your careful hand directs everything at home? Is it nothing, when his business is over, that he has the blessed refuge of home, which you have that day done your best to brighten and refine? O, weary and faithful mother, you little know your power when you say, "I have done nothing." There is a book in which a fairer record than this is written over against your name.—Selected.

"By agreeable emotions, nervous currents are liberated which stimulate the blood, brain, and viscera. The 'emotions' of every living person are unquestionably of more importance to his health, happiness, and well-being than most physicians suppose. Agreeable emotions are curative in their influence, when coming to the relief of suffering invalids. Disagreeable emotions produce disease in individuals who, uninfluenced by them, would be in sound health. A dyspeptic who, at his own table, under the influence of depressing emotions, is unable to partake of an ounce of food without subsequent distress and pain, is able at the table of a friend, under different circumstances, to eat a hearty meal without discomfort. It is a mistake to regard most diseases as resulting from chemical derangements of the system, and it is a mistake to meet a majority of diseases with chemical remedies. We have known physicians who exerted a moral influence over their patients, which gave them a success more gratifying and positive than ever resulted from the administration of any drug. The mind, in its connection with the body, exerts a controlling influence; and one of the great secrets in regard to securing health and longevity is to train the emotions so as to keep them outside of the cloud which hangs ever ready to darken our mental and moral horizon."—Phrenological Journal.

Pure Water is the only proper drink for adult animals. Milk is adapted to nourish the young, but unsuitable for them after the natural weaning period. The juices of good, well matured fruit and melons supply all the fluid needed, and is no doubt the most natural and healthful drink of frugivorous animals. Take the pains to get and use such fruit for late breakfasts and dinners, and no other drinks will be called for. Ignore, as we should, sugars, salts, and all exciting, inflaming condiments, and, with pure fruits, we will experience no thirst. As, however, water will be used for cooking, washing, etc., every family should have a cistern with well filtered rain water; nor should this or any other fluids be swallowed while eating. If so, the saliva and gastric juice, essential to digestion, are diluted, and their work seriously impaired. Select good food; masticate deliberately; enjoy the meal thoroughly; live healthfully, cheerfully, and die happily.—Science of Health.

Dr. Playfair on Health.—The eminent Dr. Playfair, in his recent great address on health before the Health Congress, in Glasgow Scotland, declared that the one great hygienic agent was cleanliness. Keep every thing clean everywhere, and typhoid fever, scarlet fever, and all the other contagious diseases would forever disappear. Cleanliness is hygiene in a nutshell. Give us clean air, clean water, clean food, clean houses, clean gutters, clean streets, clean stomachs and clean bowels, as well as clean consciences, and most of our diseases would trouble us no more. Now how can a race of people who shall keep everything clean be inaugurated? Can Dr. Playfair answer this question?—Herald of Health.

Poisoned with Tea.—Dr. Knuggs, of New South Wales, writing, from there, says that the Australians are enormous tea drinkers, and that multitudes of cases of tea poisoning constantly occur. In speaking of this subject the London Sanitary Record declares that evidence is rapidly accumulating that tea, like alcohol, is a very bad narcotic, and that the temperance party, who advise it as a substitute for alcohol, will have to answer for it at the bar of scientific opinion. We are of a similar opinion.—Ibid.

DAWNING.

MRS. S. CLEMENS.

I know the end is nearing,
The end for which we sigh,
On which our hopes are centered—
For which we live and die.
I know it will not linger;—
That day of perfect rest;
The night is quickly passing—
Night of unrighteousness.

O haste to dawn, blest morning!
The night is cold and chill;
Let warmth from out thy presence,
Dear Lord, our cold hearts fill.
Kindle anew deep yearnings
For holiness of heart;
Let naught but perfect vict'ry
Remove the sin-sick smart.

And when that day is dawning,
The end of faith has come,
We'll swell the loud hosanna,
And reign with God's own Son.

DO THE THREE PERIODS IN DANIEL 9: 24-27 HAVE ONE COMMENCEMENT?

L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

These statements of prophecy and facts of history are in exact agreement, and no one can dispute it. There has been quite a lengthy discussion among linguists as to whether the word "finish" in the text of Dan. 9: 24, or the word "restrain" in the margin, be the most correct rendering of the original. Says Dr. Barnes—"It seems most probable that the true idea here is that denoted in the margin, and the sense is not that of finishing, but that of restraining, closing, shutting up, etc."; and then refers to several texts in which it is so rendered. He might have said it is rendered in every text where it occurs in the Bible with the sense of restrain, except in Dan. 9: 24, which proves that restrain is the true meaning. In this 24th verse is a general statement of the events to be fulfilled in those seventy weeks that relate to the temporal good of the Jews and their city Jerusalem. Although they were to return from their captivity, and rebuild Jerusalem, yet at the expiration of these 490 years, they would be visited with utter desolation and ruin.

After Gabriel had given Daniel the knowledge that the temporal good of his people would continue 490 years, in which period Messiah would come and make reconciliation for iniquity, and bring in everlasting righteousness, he says—"Know therefore and understand," or, as Hengstenberg renders it, "and thou wilt know and understand." We think this rendering more in harmony with the fact that Daniel was seeking information, and Gabriel came to impart it, and says—"Therefore, understand the matter"; i. e., about the end of the 70 years captivity; for the commandment was about to go forth by Cyrus for the return of the captive Jews.

If Daniel would know and understand all about this matter of difficulty on his mind, about the seventy years of captivity ending when the commandment went forth by Cyrus, he would also know that from the said epoch unto the Messiah's coming into the world, there would be weeks seven, threescore and two, or sixty-nine weeks, which is 483 years prophetic time. If Hengstenberg's rendering, as above, is correct (and Dr. Barnes gives it without questioning its validity), it would make it more strongly appear that there is no necessary connection of the seventy weeks with the sixty-nine; and therefore they are distinct and separate measurements of time, and cannot possibly have a common commencement. After Gabriel announces to the prophet that sixty-nine weeks would elapse from the going forth of said decree "to restore and build Jerusalem," he adds—"The street and wall shall be built in troublous times." There is no evidence that seven weeks or forty-nine years elapsed from the decree of Cyrus to the building of the wall of Jerusalem; or that the sixty-two weeks are associated with the sixty-nine weeks. Even if the assumption that the sixty-nine weeks began in the 7th of Artaxerxes were true, it cannot be made to appear that forty-nine years was the interval to the completion of the wall of Jerusalem under Nehemiah.

The object of Gabriel in referring to the building of the wall of Jerusalem evidently was to furnish the prophet with data from which to compute the sixty-two weeks, or 434 years; after which the Messiah was to be cut off. There is nothing in his language to Daniel that would lead the prophet to suppose that these sixty-two weeks had a commencement with the sixty-nine; or that forty-nine years were to elapse after the sixty-nine weeks began, before the sixty-two would commence. Such a view is entirely conjectural, growing out of a false application of the seventy weeks, which ends them at the crucifixion of Christ. The words of this prophecy are so at variance with the application referred to, that we think no one can be fully satisfied with it. Says Prof. Stuart—"It would require a volume of considerable magnitude, even to give a history of the ever-varying and contradictory opinions of critics respecting this locus vex a tissimus; and perhaps a still larger one to establish an exegesis which would stand. I am fully of opinion that no interpretation as yet published will stand the test of thorough grammatico-historical criticism; and that a candid and searching and thorough critique here is still a desideratum. May some expositor fully adequate to the task speedily appear." And yet (in our humble opinion) this ambiguity would all vanish if we would be governed by the literal meaning of the words of Gabriel to Daniel. Some deny any connection of the 9th with the 8th of Daniel, because the data they accept ends the seventy weeks at the cross. On this hypothesis the 2300 years must have ended in 1843. We think such had better give up their data, rather than the words of Gabriel, that requires a connection of the seventy weeks with the 2300 days.

These seventy weeks stand related to the 2300 days by reason of the words of Gabriel to Daniel, which are—"Consider the vision"; also by reason that the length of the vision formally (in the 8th chapter) made known to Daniel is the only period from which the seventy weeks could be cut off; and in view of the fact that "the vision" was the subject that Gabriel was instructing the prophet about. As these seventy weeks could with no propriety be said to be "cut off" from duration in general, they must necessarily be cut off from some specific period. Thus the 2300 years, the period that those kingdoms represented by the "ram" and "he goat" with the "little horn" were to tread under foot, first, the Jewish church, then the Gentile, and "the sanctuary," or their inheritance. The seventy weeks was the specified time allotted to the Jewish church; the remainder, 1810 years, to the Gentile church. This brings us to the justification of the sanctuary. Thus we have a general statement by Gabriel, in verse 24 of chapter 9, of the great events to be accomplished in those seventy weeks,—first, the "restraining of the transgression"; i. e., those heathen powers seen in the vision of the 8th chapter would be restrained, so that the Jews would not be overwhelmed in ruin by them till the end of those seventy weeks. Second, making an end of sin offerings by the death of Christ, the great antitype of all Jewish offerings. Third, by his death reconciliation was made for iniquity. Fourth, everlasting righteousness was brought in through the person of Christ, who is the Lord our Righteousness, having met the demands of the law against us in his own person. Fifth, the vision and prophecy "sealed up"; i. e., the seventy weeks would become a seal on the vision of the 2300 days; which vision and period of time would not be understood till a right application should be made of these seventy weeks. Sixth, "to anoint the Most Holy." As this phrase in the Scripture invariably applies to places, and not to persons, and often applying to the inner sanctuary; and as the order of the prophecy under consideration places its application after the death of Christ, and therefore can apply to no action of his connected with the temple of Jerusalem while on earth, but applies to his entrance with his own blood into the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched and not man, even the new Jerusalem, of which old Jerusalem was but a type; this is called by the apostle Paul in Heb 10: 19 the holiest (or sanctuary—Syriac), which Christ has consecrated for us. Let the reader peruse the eight, ninth and tenth chapters of Hebrews, and he will see that the anointing, or consecrating the "Holy of Holies," can apply only to the work of Christ after his ascension into heaven. Into this heavenly sanctuary the church of Christ may now enter by faith, through the blood of Christ, with assurance of acceptance; and will actually enter there after the great sacrificial work of Christ ends, and the "new Jerusalem comes down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband."

The question may arise in some minds, What things or places in heaven need consecrating, or purifying? Our reply is, that the garden in Eden, or the original paradise, was lost by Adam's sin, and the tree of life was guarded by cherubims and a flaming sword, to keep the way of the tree of life, and paradise transferred from earth to heaven; but by reason of Adam's sin needed a reconsecration, or purification, which has been effected by the sacrifice of Christ, who has now become the "minister of the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle which the Lord pitched and not man." As the tabernacle on earth and its utensils were sprinkled with the blood of the sacrifices then slain, so Paul says (Heb. 9: 23)—"It was therefore necessary that the patterns of things in the heavens should be purified with these; but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these." Thus paradise is restored to man by the second Adam, and is again to be located on the earth renewed, and rendered far more glorious, if possible, for the redeemed family by reason of the vicarious work accomplished by Christ.

Hengstenberg, Dr. Barnes, and the most learned among the commentators, do not understand the phrase "to anoint the Most Holy" as applying to Christ; because, as they say in the twenty-eight places of its occurrence in the Scriptures, it never is applied to persons, but to places or things. The six specifications referred to were all to be accomplished in this period of seventy weeks; therefore the work referred to pertaining to the upper sanctuary, or the heavenly paradise, is the last in the order, and would appear to be accomplished at the close of the seventy weeks, when old Jerusalem, so long in bondage with her children, was given up for destruction; and the "Jerusalem," consecrated for "the children of the promise," who are waiting the termination of the 1810 years—the remaining part of the 2300 years from which seventy weeks were "cut off" upon the Jews, and their city Jerusalem. Then the sanctuary will be justified; i. e., the koh-desh mountain, or "the holy hill"—the Mount Zion—will be prepared for the descent of the new Jerusalem, the capital city of the new world, and Christ inaugurated King over all the earth.

After Gabriel had given Daniel the six specifications, referred to, in a general form, within the limits of the seventy weeks, he proceeds to give the exact data of several of the most important of them. First, the exact time from the going forth of the decree to rebuild Jerusalem to the birth of Messiah. Second, the exact time reaching from the building of Jerusalem's wall in "troublous times," to the cutting off of the Messiah, in whom the justice of ages was met. Here ends the prophecy, so far as the Messiah is concerned. The remaining portion of Gabriel's instruction refers to a certain people associated with their prince, that were to destroy Jesusalem; therefore a period should have been placed after the phrase—"and not for himself." This is the opinion of some very learned linguists, and certainly the work described in the language that follows cannot be properly applied to Christ. From all these considerations touching these several periods of time, it is very evident that none of them can commence or end simultaneously; or that the events specified to be accomplished in those periods in those periods can have any connection.

(To be concluded.)

THE CONTROVERSY.

H. PRATT.

This word is from contra, and verto, to turn,—literally, to turn against (Webster). The Lord hath a controversy with the nations. Jer. 25. Jeremiah was chosen of God to predict God's dealings with nations,—the conditions upon which he will favor and bless, as also the conditions upon which he will controvert and curse. Jer. 1: 10—"See, I have this day set thee over the nations, and over the kingdoms, to root out and pull down, to build and to plant. Thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee; whatsoever I command thee thou shalt speak."

The Conditions

by which he will build, plant, root up or overthrow are found in chap. 18: 7—"At what instant I speak concerning a nation or kingdom, to pluck up, and to pull down, and to destroy it; if that nation, against whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, I will repent [or turn] from the evil that I thought to do unto them." This was verified in the case of Nineveh. Though Jonah unqualifiedly preached—"Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown," yet when they repented, God turned from the evil he had pronounced against them, "and did it not." Further, saith God to Jeremiah—"At what instant I shall speak concerning a kingdom, to build and to plant it, if it do evil in my sight that it obey not my voice, then I will repent of the good wherewith I said I would benefit them." Thus it was with the Jews. They turned from him and did that which was evil in his sight. "Therefore [saith Jesus] the kingdom of heaven shall be taken from you and given to a people [nation] bringing forth the fruits thereof." And lest they might hope to escape, with their beautiful city, the judgments God had pronounced against them, he says, "Even so will I break this people and this city, as one breaketh a potter's vessel that cannot be made whole again." When you can put a bottle together, and make it whole again after it has been broken; then you may talk of restoring that people and that city, which God says can never be made whole again. Here are the conditions upon which God deals with nations, and says, "As I have purposed so shall it stand."

In the 25th chapter of Jeremiah he speaks thus: The Lord hath a "controversy with the nations," and after enumerating the different nations that shall drink of the wine-cup of his wrath, he says, "Sheshach shall drink after them." In chap. 51: 41 it is called Babylon. This certainly could not refer to ancient Babylon, but mystic Babylon—"Babylon the great." "And great Babylon came into remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath." God's warning always goes before his judgments; and here he says—"My people, go ye out of the midst of her, and deliver ye every man his soul from the fierce anger of the Lord." Jer. 51: 45.

After Jeremiah had been commissioned to utter God's judgments concerning the nations, the Lord says to him—"Jeremiah, what seest thou? And I said, I see a rod of an almond tree. Then said the Lord unto me, Thou hast well seen, for I will hasten my word to perform it." The almond tree is called the wakeful or watching tree. While all other trees are asleep, it blossoms and fruits. I will watch over my Word. I will set watchmen to give the alarm. The almond rod shall not slumber; it shall warn the sleepers ere the "seething pot" shall appear, and the evil shall break forth. See Jer. 1: 11-15. Before this evil comes upon mystic Babylon, a voice is to be heard saying, "Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partaker of her plagues." This cry is now going in all lands, and the "controversy" is at hand.

This Babylon is the church of the seven-hilled city. It is the Roman Catholic church. God is waking her up to her doom. God will hasten his word to perform it. The almond rod has blossomed, and the seething and boiling have commenced from the "North." In Germany, Bismarck is stirring up the flame, and Mr. Gladstone of England is throwing on the rosin. The Roman Catholics have decided to hold a great International Catholic Congress in London, maintaining the doctrine of Infallibility, and reasserting the Pope's right to temporal as well as spiritual power. Archbishop Manning says—"If arbitration was ever to supercede war, the Pope would be the only possible authorized arbitrator." "The Catholic world," he adds, "is threatened with a controversy on all the decrees of the Ecumenical Council." "There is undoubtedly approaching one of the mightiest contests the world has ever seen." And it must come! My brethren, be patient, "the coming of the Lord draweth nigh."

A LIVING SACRIFICE.

D. K. BASSETT, JR.

I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."—Rom. 12: 1.

It is useless to offer any longer the dead bodies of animals to God, thinking to please him thereby; they are of no use to him. Neither is there need to any longer offer them for the remission of sins, since Christ has offered himself once for all. Yet there are sacrifices to be made for the service and honor of God. In every sacrifice something is presented to God, and when presented it is no longer ours, but God's. Seeing dead carcasses are useless, what shall we present? "For we are an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God, by Jesus Christ." 1 Pet. 2: 5. David says—"Offer the sacrifice of righteousness." Ps. 4: 5. "The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit; a broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise." 51: 17. "Let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving." 107: 22. Paul says—"By him, therefore, let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually; that is, the fruit of our lips, giving thanks to his name." And this is not all; "But to do good and communicate forget not; for with such sacrifices God is well pleased." Heb. 13: 15, 16. Such sacrifices it is not vain to offer; they are acceptable.

Nor does this quite cover all that is right to present to God. "Present your bodies, a living sacrifice, holy ["for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are"], acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." Reasonable, because of God's mercy to us, for we were without hope, lost, our existence forfeited. God "sent his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life." Says Paul—"We thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead [under sentence of death]. And that he died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him that died for them, and rose again." 1 Cor. 5: 15. "Ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are his." 1 Cor. 6: 2; 7: 23.

Considering it in the light of God's mercy, it is our reasonable service. And he would not have bought us had he not wanted us; hence we need not doubt that he accepts us when we are willing and do acknowledge ourselves his. If our body is his, then are all its members and all its faculties. If we labor with our hands, it is for God. They are his hands, and we have no right to use them except for him. Our power of thought is his; hence God should be in all our plans, and they be all sanctioned by him. Our time is God's, if we are his; hence we have no business to use it or our strength about what will not honor God. If you cannot go to a festival, fair, oyster supper, sociable, or any other place, and serve God by so doing, you have no business there; for you are not your own. God so abundantly blesses us in his service, we do not need such things.

SECRET PRAYER.

J. W. THOMAS.

"Enter into thy closet." Matt. 6: 6.

The christian will have a place for secret prayer. By this he is distinguished, from the time of his conversion. He delights to be alone with God. As the fish cannot live out of its native element—water, so the christian cannot live out of his native element—prayer. Whatever his engagements, or situation, or circumstances, whether on land or sea, in the city, or in the country, the true christian will find some place where he can retire occasionally and commune alone with his Savior. Rob him of this privilege, and you rob him of his joy and strength. Like Samson shorn of his locks, his strength is gone.

Jesus himself felt the need of secret prayer. Frequently he retired from the crowd, got out of the bustle and confusion of the city, and went away to the fields and mountains to pray. He continued all night in prayer. He does not require us to do what he did not do himself. He has taught us to pray in secret both by precept and example. All Bible characters, noted for piety and devotion, have had a time and place for secret prayer. David said, "Morning, evening, and at noon will I pray and cry aloud, and the Lord shall hear my voice." It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, to show forth his loving-kindness in the morning, and his faithfulness every night. Daniel went into his chamber and prayed three times a day. Ezekiel went forth into the field, and there God talked with him. Peter prayed on the housetop. Paul and Silas in prison. Lydia by the riverside. None have wanted for a time or a place where they have really thirsted for communion with God.

"Where'er we seek him he is found.
And every place is holy ground."

They have felt the need of this, and therefore have sought Divine guidance, and have committed their ways unto the Lord. Retirement prepares the christian for all other services. Said Judge Hale, in his letters to his children, "If I omit praying, and reading a portion of God's blessed Word, in the morning, nothing goes well with me all the day." Dr. Boerhaave said that "his daily practice of retiring for an hour in the morning, and spending it in devotion, and meditation, gave him firmness and vigor for the business of the whole day." It is in secret that the minister best prepares himself for the discharge of his duties. Tarrying at the throne of grace until he is endued with power from on high, he comes forth like a giant, able to conquer his enemies, and to lead on the armies to certain victory.

David never would have dared to go out and fight Goliath had he known nothing of secret communion with his God. It was in the wilderness that he had been trained for public service. There unnoticed by the world, he had found the source of abiding strength, and from the sheep-fold he came to slay the giant of the Philistines, and to lead on to final triumph Israel's retreating hosts. He was a chosen man,—a man after God's own heart—and why? Because he could say, "Whom have I in heaven but Thee? and there is none upon earth that I desire beside Thee." The Lord was his portion, his rock, his salvation, his strength. He communed much with his God, and became God-like. We soon assume the manner, and imbibe the spirit of those with whom we are familiar, especially if the individual be a distinguished personage, and we pre-eminently revere and love him. Upon this principle, the more we have to do with God, the more we shall grow into his likeness, and "be followers of him, as dear children."

When Moses came down from the mount his face shone; and although he was not aware of the lustre himself, the people could not steadfastly behold him for the glory of his countenance, and he was constrained to hide it under a vail. The christian, too, may be insensible of his excellences and proficiencies, but his profiting will appear unto all men; all will take knowledge of him that he has been with Jesus.

Do you pray in secret? Have you a place where you go at certain times each day and pour out your desires to God? Says good Matthew Henry, "Backsliding begins at the closet door." How is it with you? Do you take as much delight in secret prayer as you did once? Remember the words of Jesus. Enter into thy closet. Do it this very day.

THE BLESSING OF FORGIVENESS.

GEO E. LEE.

Reader, are your sins forgiven? Do you know what it is to have peace like a deep flowing river, and feel the blessing of God continually resting upon you? If not, you may at once be one of those who are "blessed" all the time from having their "transgressions forgiven," and "sins covered." You can have peace, which is the greatest blessing you ever enjoyed, by simply asking and believing. Do you say, "I never expect to be saved, but I wish I could feel that I should be?" Then follow the example of David, and you will no longer "wish" that you can be saved, but you will know that you are saved now. For if you are reconciled to God's terms of salvation, and are free from all guile, having forgiven all those who have "trespassed against you," then with confidence you may calmly rest assured that unto you the Lord "imputeth not iniquity."

Whenever your sins mar your peace, you should follow the example of the Psalmist, when he said—"I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord, and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin." Ps. 32: 5.

Here, then, is the whole secret of the blessedness there is in knowing that your sins are forgiven. "Acknowledge" and "confess," then it is only left for you to ask, believe, and receive. You can believe and rejoice, or you can disbelieve and mourn. The Lord will be your "hiding place" as well as mine; and he will "preserve you from trouble," if you will only seek shelter beneath his mighty arm. If you really desire salvation more than all things else, and feel that you are a lost sinner unless something is done for you, then say with determination that you will be saved if it becomes necessary to sacrifice your own life, and feel reconciled to part with everything but Christ, and he will come to your rescue, and every burden will be gone. Do you reply, "I can have no such faith as that?" Try it, and see if the Lord does not "compass you about with songs of deliverance." What better way can you conceive, than to yield yourself up now, and say, "Lord, save, or I perish?" It is when we yield, and are willing to take the first step,—in the dark though it seems to us—that we feel the blessing of deliverance from death to life, from sorrow to joy, from hate to love. Then we become heirs of that everlasting inheritance which is to be a land where is known no sorrow, and which embraces all that lieth "northward, southward, eastward and westward," under the whole heavens."

Is not this a sufficient incentive for us to seek pardon at once? Can we recall any earthly friends who could offer any such inducement as this, if they would? No, it is impossible; for "the earth is the Lord's," and hence no one has a foot of land he can promise to another. Then why not accept of Jesus, your best friend, and "he will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go." No longer "mourn because of sin," but let the Lord lead you, and then "your heart shall rejoice because you have trusted in his holy name." Then, when he shall come to redeem those whose "soul waiteth for the Lord," you also may be sure of redemption, for "the Lord redeemeth the soul of his servants: and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate." Ps. 34: 22.

Brimfield, Mass.

SINCERITY.

J. B. CLARK.

Says an eminent writer, "The word sincerity springs from two Latin words—sine—without, cere—wax. The meaning of which is,—without wax." From Roman history we learn that the words sine cere were inserted in making contracts for statues, and signified that the figures were to be free from flaws. This was done on account of trickery of certain sculptors, who invented a sort of wax, or cement, which they used to fill in the defective places of their work, so as to hide the cracks or holes, and give it the appearance of faultlessness. In time however, the wax or cement, not being able to resist the action of the air and other influences, dropped out, and the fraud was exposed.

Nothing renders a person more estimable than sincerity. And what can be more disliked than insincerity? Time and circumstances are often required to make a thorough test. To speak according to the figure mentioned above, the wax looks so much like the stone, is so hard, and lasts so long, that it is unsafe to be hasty in forming our conclusions. Selfishness and deceit may appear in another dress, may be attired in the garb of benevolence, and we cannot at first discern the real motive of what in itself is a good word, or a good act. We trust, until we find we are betrayed.

In trade, how easy and pleasant our business, where we are sure of sincerity. How unpleasant to deal with men who lack honor; who are striving for an unjust profit. How insincere some persons are. A look may mean a lie. In fact, anything or any manner which is resorted to with the intention to deceive is equivalent to a falsehood. Hence, how many are the crimes of which law cannot take hold. However mean men may be, and gain financial influence, yet in time the wax or cement will drop out, and the fraud be exposed. There is an All-Seeing eye, and an ear, that sees and hears, and will certainly reward every man in due time. There is a voice—the voice of God that will pronounce just sentence, and the guilty will not go unpunished. The righteous also will not go unrewarded. There is a light to guide the children of men in the way of sincerity and truth. There is a "godly sincerity" that christians should possess. Jesus said, "Now are ye clean through the Word that I have spoken unto you." The gospel commandments, if kept, can cleanse the filthy. Beware of the counterfeit in these days. Violence and greediness is the order of the day. As christians, our daily food should be "the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth." This is that which cometh down from heaven, whereof if a man eat he shall not die; that is, if he continue to eat.

Of all kinds of insincerity, the worst is the insincerity of love. This means feigned love. The divine admonition is "Let love be without dissimulation." It is often the case that nations as well as individuals are insincere. But what shall we say of those who profess before God and men to have laid aside all this and still practice deception like the world? Let us take lessons from little children. Seldom will they deceive. If they dislike you; they will not pretend to love you. They act out just what they feel. Brethren, be not children in understanding, howbeit in malice be ye children. Be what you seem to be.

THE INFLUENCE OF DEVOTION ON THE HAPPINESS OF LIFE.

SELECTED BY THOMAS FOOTE.

Whatever promotes and strengthens virtue, whatever calms and regulates the temper, is a source of happiness. Devotion produces these effects in a remarkable degree. It inspires composure of spirit, mildness, and benignity; weakens the painful, and cherishes the pleasing emotions; and, by these means, carries on the life of a pious man in a smooth and placid tenor.

Besides exerting this habitual influence on the mind, devotion opens a field of enjoyments, to which the vicious are entire strangers; enjoyments the more valuable, as they peculiarly belong to retirement, when the world leaves us; and to adversity, when it becomes our foe. These are the two seasons for which every wise man would most wish to provide some hidden store of comfort. For let him be placed in the most favorable situation which the human state admits, the world can neither always amuse him, nor always shield him from distress. There will be many hours of vacuity, and many of dejection in this life. If he be a stranger to God, and to devotion, how dreary will the gloom of solitude often prove. With what oppressive weight will sickness, disappointment, or old age fall upon his spirits. But for those pensive periods, the pious man has a relief prepared. From the tiresome repitition of the common vanities of life, or from the painful corrosion of its cares and sorrows, devotion transports him into a new region; and surrounds him there with such objects as are most fitted to cheer the dejection, to calm the tumults, and to heal the wounds of his heart. If the world has been empty and delusive, it gladdens him with the prospect of a higher and better order of things about to arise. If men have been ungrateful and base, it displays before him the faithfulness of that supreme Being, who, though every other friend fail, will never forsake him.

Let us consult our experience, and we shall find that the two greatest sources of inward joy, are the exercise of love directed towards a deserving object, and the exercise of hope terminating on some high and assured happiness. Both these are supplied by devotion; and therefore we have no reason to be surprised, if on some occasions, it fills the hearts of good men with a satisfaction not to be expressed.

The refined pleasures of a pious mind are, in many respects, superior to the coarse gratifications of sense. They are pleasures which belong to the highest powers and best affections of the soul; whereas the gratifications of sense reside in the lowest regions of our nature. To the latter, the soul stoops below its native dignity. The former raises it above itself. The latter leaves always a comfortless, often a mortifying remembrance behind them. The former are reviewed with applause and delight. The pleasures of sense resemble a foaming torrent, which, after a disorderly course, speedily runs out, and leaves an empty and offensive channel. But the pleasures of devotion resemble the equable current of a pure river, which enlivens the fields through which it passes, and diffuses verdure and fertility along its banks.

To thee, O devotion! we owe the highest improvement of our nature, and much of the enjoyment of our life. Thou art the support of our virtue, and the rest of our souls, in this turbulent world. Thou composest the thoughts. Thou calmest the passions. Thou exaltest the heart. Thy communications, and thine only, are imparted to the low, no less than to the high; to the poor as well as to the rich. In thy presence, worldly distinctions cease; and under thy influence, worldly sorrows are forgotten. Thou art the balm of the wounded mind. Thy sanctuary is ever open to the miserable; inaccessible only to the unrighteous and impure. Thou beginnest on earth the temper of heaven. In thee, the host of angels, and of just men made perfect, will eternally rejoice.

AND THEY SHALL SEE HIS FACE.

W. P. FAHENSTOCK.

Do we realize the great and glorious truth revealed by Jesus the Son of the great God? Faith almost staggers at the contemplation of the thought of poor worms of the dust, raised from his low, fallen condition, exalted far above what the human mind can fathom, in the promise "And they shall see his face." What! behold the face of the infinite Creator of the universe? The gorgeous brilliancy of his face reflected through the thick cloud on Mount Sinai, upon the face of Moses, was so blinding that the children of Israel could not look upon him without his face being covered with a veil. Yet, is it so, that "they shall see his face?" Yes, yes, humble follower of the meek and lowly Jesus, you cannot doubt it. Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God. Not only see him, but Jesus says, "And the glory thou gavest me I have given them, that they may be one even as we are one." "That they may be one in us; as thou Father art in me, and I in thee." Yes, he will change these vile bodies, and fashion them like unto his own glorious body. Then there shall be no more curse, and his saints shall reign forever and ever. These sayings are faithful and true.

How important it is for each one to look well to the path in which he is walking, and ask himself, How is it with me? Is my heart overcharged with surfeiting and the cares of this life? or am I constantly on the watch-tower with lights burning? Are we living epistles seen and read of all men? Are we holding forth the word of truth? or are we hiding our light under a bushel? Are we praying without ceasing, Even so, Lord Jesus, come quickly? Can we look every moment of our lives up to the heavens above us to see the beautiful blue sky "roll up as a scroll?" What else is there left to look for? Are we ready to receive Jesus who is coming in the clouds of heaven? Are we ready to say "This is our God; we have waited for him. Surely the contemplation of this glorious theme lifts the soul above earth, and we long for "that illustritrious day to come;" and with David we can say, "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness. I shall be satisfied when I awake in thy likeness." His servants shall serve him, and they shall see his face.

One Name.—"The number of christian men and women throughout America who are saying in the depths of their hearts that they want no designation, no badge, no banner but that of the one divine Leader and Savior, is greater than many suppose, and is daily multiplying. There is not a denomination in Christendom to-day which can generate within itself such enthusiasm for its own propagation as existed fifty years ago. Nothing so enkindles the hearts of our christian people as some united effort in religion that ignores sectarian distinctions. Union prayer-meetings, union revival services, union Sunday school conventions, anything and everything union, carry everywhere the evidence of popular favor. But put forth any single sect, and straightway you meet not only the suspicion of rival bodies, but also the indifference or the positive antipathy of the great outside world."—Alliance.

Every christian knows that his struggles with his evil tendencies can only be compared to a bodily conflict of one warrior with another. And of spiritual as of natural warfare we gain a knowledge of how to overcome by experience. It is only after many efforts and many failures that we are brought to see the real extent and power of the evils we have to grapple with, and the need we have of turning to the Divine wisdom for assistance.

And hereafter, all monies received at this office for advance pay on the Crisis will be credited from Jan. forward at the rate of $2.25 per year. THE LAST BATTLE.

The prophecies, representing a Christian church as seated upon seven mountains and seven kingdoms, was clearly fulfilled in the history of the Roman Catholic church. Its capital—Rome—was builded on seven mountains, and it was for many centuries closely allied to first-class Roman kingdoms, as specified. It did profess to have received authority from God to dictate and control the official acts of all civil rulers, as far as those acts related to its interests and wants. It did exercise that power over the Roman nations generally, by their consent, for more than twelve hundred years, just as foretold. But the tables have turned as indicated. That church is not now seated upon a single kingdom, great or small, upon the earth, as its arbiter; nor is there a single State connected with it as its support. She has had seven husbands, but they are all dead as her supporters, and she as their dictator is in absolute widowhood.

In this state of desertion by all the governments, the prophet represents her as still sustained by "multitudes" of the "peoples" of the nations; and in that situation comes to the last battle and judgment. Since the civil rulers have thrown off this church, as to supporting her in her claims of exclusive rights and privileges, and have refused to be dictated by her, as formerly, large masses of the people of those kingdoms have arisen to defend her, and declare their readiness to submit to all her Vatican decrees, and to restore to her the power she once exercised over the kings. She is "seated on many waters," and not on the kingdoms as formerly. Thus far the prophecy is duplicated perfectly by the history.

But the predictions show that her dethronement and complete separation from the civil governments would be the result of great words which she would speak. See Dan. 7:11. As those words must be expressive of authority, they must be given in the form of enactments or decrees; and as they are uttered by the Church and not the State, they must be Vatican decrees; all of which are passed by an Ecumenical Council. Therefore some decrees passed by an Ecumenical Council, which relate to the union of Church and State, involving the question of the supreme authority of the Church over the State, must be passed just before the great conflict between the Church and the kings shall come, which will introduce the last battle. Has such a council been held? and did it pass such decrees? If so, are those decrees exciting a warlike feeling between the Church and governments, as the prophecy indicates?

The only Ecumenical Council holden by the Roman Church for more than three hundred years was held at Rome in 1869 and 1870. The most important decree passed by that Council was the one declaring the Pope infallible. This was understood by churchmen and statesmen to clothe the Pope, as the head of the Church, with supreme power over men, to govern them in their temporal and spiritual associations. It was designed to say that the decrees of the Church shall be of higher authority than the laws of the State, so that when they are not in harmony, the State shall yield to the Church. When the proposition to pass such a decree was introduced into the Council, a protest to its adoption was immediately sent by the great nations of Europe—Austria, France, Spain, England, and Germany. They then saw that its design was to reinstate the Church of Rome in supreme power over the civil governments. The managers at Rome saw, when the governments were so prompt to protest against the decree, that a great storm of opposition would inevitably arise against them. They clearly saw that, if the real design of the dogma of infallibility was generally seen, and the nations had time to unite their efforts against them, they would be defeated in the final issue. They therefore determined to strike at once. Their first object to accomplish was to break down the strongest government in opposition. This was Germany. The Voce della Verita, the organ of the Jesuits at Rome, says that the overthrow of Prussia is necessary to strike a fatal blow at the spirit of individuality and rebellion against the Papacy. They considered France the strongest and most available government with which to break the German power. Bonaparte was a tool playing between the Ultramontane party and the Republicans, while his Queen was fully committed to the Jesuitical party; so, they thought the government could be carried in their interests without difficulty;—the real design being, to break Germany first, then to overthrow the Italian government and reinstate the Pope in civil power at Rome, and restore the Catholic dynasty in Spain, compel Austria to submit to the Pope's dictation, or drive Francis Joseph from his throne. Bismarck, in a recent speech in the German Reichstag unveiled this matter thus:—

"I am in possession of conclusive evidence that the Ecumenical Council was cut short on account of the Franco-German war. The Council's votes would have been very different had the French been victorious. I know from the very best sources that Napoleon was dragged into the war very much against his will by Jesuitical influences. He strove hard to resist these influences. At the eleventh hour he determined on peace, and kept his resolution half an hour. Ultimately he was overpowered by persons representing the Vatican."

It seems to us that these circumstances show clearly that the last decrees of the Vatican Council are resulting exactly as predicted of the great words spoken by the horn. But the end of the matter is not yet reached. The Papal party did not reckon themselves entirely defeated when France was so completely broken; but they immediately commenced an effort to put a king upon the throne of France who would throw the whole weight of the kingdom for the Pope, and break Germany, and all opposition. Bismarck recently said in the German Parliament—"It can be proved that the Vatican desired a victory for France in the late war." N. Y. Times. They also attempted to do the same thing in Spain. They have also organized a strong party in nearly all the legislative bodies in Europe, which is making gigantic efforts to defeat the government in every measure proposed to withstand this mighty shock of priestly influence. This is arousing all the politicians opposed to this jesuitical movement, and they are pressing the question of their right to maintain civil independence without ecclesiastical dictation.

Let us see how a few advocates of the principles, on each side, show their antagonism to each other.

Mr. Henry Petre writes to the London Times thus:—

"It will be no exaggeration to affirm that among the old Catholics of England, however loath they may be to appear in open opposition to the authority of their Church, there are many who watch with anxiety, not unmingled with regret, the reckless and irrational proceedings of the Ultramontane party—a party seeking to impose upon the world, with all the means of powerful combination at its command, the astounding claims issuing] from the Vatican—claims and pretensions long since supposed to have been extinct, which now in their resuscitation are tending to open hostility with modern progress, and to collision with every civil authority in Europe. . . . . The claims of the Vatican to supreme and infallible authority over all things pertaining to faith and morals, the limits of which the Vatican is alone to decide, embrace so vast and immense a range, entering into every relation and branch of human life, that we may easily contemplate the power of the church clashing with the civil authority. Under such circumstances, the only reply a loyal subject could possibly make to Mr. Gladstone's appeal would be—'An Englishman first, a Catholic after.'"

"London, Aug. 5.—During the discussion of the public worship regulation bill in the house of commons, to-day, Mr. Disraeli, referring to the strife between the Church and State on the continent, expressed the conviction that, however tranquil might be the general state of Europe, there were agencies at work preparing a period of great disturbance."—London Times.

"The well-known clerical organ, the Unita Cattolica, confirms the statement already made that the Pope has addressed a letter to the Emperor William, and that great indignation prevails at the Vatican owing to the nature of the Emperor's answer. The Archbishop of Paris says Italy is at present pursuing a false path. The King of Italy and the Pope cannot simultaneously remain in Rome."

In Archbishop Manning's reply to Mr. Gladstone, he says:—"Civil allegiance of Catholics is as undivided as that of all christians, and of all men who recognize a divine and moral law," and that the civil allegiance of Catholics is limited only, like that of other christians, "by conscience and the law of God." The controversy excited by the Decrees of the Council of the Vatican and the Pope's list of damnable errors is fast settling down on the only point which possesses much practical interest—namely, the extent to which they are likely to affect the relations of Catholic citizens to the civil government under which they live. . . . Accordingly, he (the Pope), offers to damn anybody who says the press ought to be free, or that the church may not employ physical force against its enemies when it can, or that the ecclesiastical power ought not to be superior to the civil power, or that the Pope ought not to be temporal sovereign of the Papal States, or that any state has a right to regulate the education of its children, or that any form of worship but the Catholic ought to be tolerated. . . . Accordingly, the controversy between Protestantism and Catholicism, which, long after the Reformation on the Continent and during the early part of the present century in England, turned on faith and works, and penance and purgatory, and confession, and tran-substantiation, is now recurring with considerable violence to the questions with which it was occupied in England in the reign of Elizabeth, namely, the extent of the Pope's political power, and the capacity of Catholic citizens for civil allegiance.—Christian Leader.

That there is a theological epidemic all over the civilized world is a fact patent to all who keep their eyes open. In every country there is a priestly, or sacramental party, putting forth doctrines and pretensions belonging to the dark ages. Even in the United States of America we find High Church proclaiming its principles, and flaunting its millinery. In every country there is also a Moderate party urging caution, and wondering why the more zealous cannot be quiet.—London Times.

Bismarck says:—"Rome is no longer recognized as possessed of any shadow of temporal power. The Pope is the head of the Church, not the arbiter of nations, nor the final authority in the disposal of thrones."—N. Y. Times.

If there can still be a doubt remaining in any mind that the great words of infallibility were designed to restore the Papacy to temporal power, superior to the state, the following statements from those who understand the subject as well as any persons living should settle it.

The Editor of the London Times commenting on the expositions of the decrees of infallibility, says:—

"Let us translate these principles into a concrete form, and they amount to this: that the Pope's power is superior to that of Queen Victoria, and defines the limit within which she may be obeyed, and that if the Legislature passes the province which the Pope defines as 'proper' for it, he has the right to condemn it, and consequently to exact from all Roman Catholics obedience to himself and disobedience to the law. There is no possible escape from this simple translation of Monsignor Capel's propositions. It can no longer be denied, since the proclamation of the Pope's infallibility, that 'the ecclesiastical power' means simply the Pope. A foreign ecclesiastic thus claims the right of defining the limits of Parliamentary and royal authority in England, and, if the allegiance of a man who admits this be not divided, there would seem no meaning in words. . . . It has been the obvious effect of the Vatican decree to render this intrusion of an external authority between the Queen and her subjects more visible, palpable, and undeniable than ever. . . . But that the Roman Catholic Church has brought itself into direct and visible antagonism with civil allegiance throughout the world has now become unquestionable to all but that portion of Roman Catholics who are content to believe without reasoning."—N. Y. World.

The following expresses the same facts: "There are various items of foreign news which look toward international complications and possibly war. The Pope has spoken of a mysterious crisis in his church, and his words seem to have been regarded with special significance in those European countries where he still has a certain amount of political power. Apparently the king of Italy is disturbed in mind by the situation of affairs, and has determined to take active measures to circumvent the Papist intrigues which distract and endanger his kingdom." . . . "Italy, unsupported, is too weak to take so important a step, but Germany is actively engaged in efforts to crush the power of the Jesuits, and would be likely to lend valuable assistance should its feeble neighbor require it. In the meantime, England, whatever the approaching crisis may be, will hardly remain an idle looker-on. The Pope is said to have expressed his hostility to the English government in emphatic terms, and these have been reciprocated in the recent manifesto of the Hon. Mr. Gladstone, who doubtless voices the sentiment of the intelligent English masses. He goes so far as to announce that the dogma of papal infallibility is totally inconsistent with good citizenship. He further says:—"The Catholic emancipation act was passed under the belief that the Catholic would give his allegiance to the Queen, but it is now known that his first allegiance is to the Pope. . . . France, as well as England, Germany and Italy will be involved in the 'crisis' when it comes. A dispatch of Saturday, says the legitimists see in the Pope's words "a direct prophecy of their return to power, and the Ultramontanes generally are looking for the millennium." The Spanish republic identifies the Pope with the Carlist movement, and will also be interested in the cataclysm, which, if it comes will thus be a momentous affair.—N. Y. World.

If these testimonies do not prove that the decrees of infallibility were designed to restore the Roman church to supreme power over the State, and that it is resulting in hostility between the civil and ecclesiastical rulers, just as the prophecies indicate, then we are at a loss to understand what would fulfill them. If the Catholic church is represented in the prophecies, and many parts of its history given, can we suppose that its present crisis, when it is making such unparalleled efforts to radically change its political status, should find no place in its prophetic history? No. It is perfectly unreasonable to suppose that God should leave blank a chapter of its history of such world wide importance. If the inspired writers have given its present position, it must be found in the passages we have quoted, and they show clearly that these troubles will culminate in the last battle, in which Roman power will be swept away, so that no place can be found for it. So, then, the kingdom of God will wave its sheltering folds under the whole heavens. Amen.

THE WAR ASPECT.

The war aspect in Europe keeps increasing in its proportions, and far-seeing men are becoming satisfied that the bloody crash is sure to come. The impression is gaining ground that the next will be the most terrible fighting of modern times. The feeling of hostility between Catholics and Protestants is being revived with much spirit. The former are determined the Pope shall have his temporal power restored, and the latter have come to the opposite conclusion. It is well known that Catholics are laying deep plans to accomplish their purposes. They have been steadily at work, with a definite object in view, since 1870, and now their schemes are beginning to come to the surface. This has caused Bismarck, in Germany, and Gladstone, in England, to speak out boldly on the subject, to the great annoyance of the Pope and his supporters. We may expect stronger talk before many months are passed. The winding-up scenes of the present dispensation cannot be far in the future.

"Father Hyacinthe and Victor Hugo have joined Mr. Disraeli and the Pope in prophesying the approach of a tremendous war, which shall rage all over Europe and elsewhere. Mr. Disraeli predicted that the war would be a religious one, and that it would convulse the globe. The Pope described the impending struggle as one between the armies of the Archangel Michael and the hosts of Satan. According to the prognostication of Father Hyacinthe, the coming war will be three-fold, and will include a fearful conflict between popular rights and the power of capital, in which the combatants will tear each other to pieces.

According to the vaticination of Victor Hugo, the great and inevitable encounter is to be 'between two principles, republic and empire.' He says that 'we have before us—in Europe—a series of catastrophies which engender each other, and which must be exhausted;' that 'we can get a glimpse of peace only across a shock of arms;' that 'between the present and the future there is a fatal interposition;' that the 'Kings must expiate their crimes;' and that the separation of the people will result in federation and fraternity. He thus closed his prophesy on the 'Universal Fatherland:' 'The solution is this: The United States of Europe. The end will be for the people—that is to say, for liberty and for God—that is to say, for peace.' There must surely be something in the atmosphere of Europe that leads so many prophets to prophesy the approach of war—war about religion, republicanism, and the rights of human nature." M. G.

PAPAL INFALLIBILITY.

It appears from movements in progress among the supporters of the Pope, that they intend to make a grand effort to bring all to accept his infallibility dogma, and thus cause the kings to submit to his authority, as above theirs in political, as well as ecclesiastical matters, thus again securing temporal power. Mr. Gladstone, formerly Prime Minister, and who is said to be now "the most powerful man in England," has taken a bold stand against the present encroachments of the Papacy upon Protestantism. A London correspondent of the New York Tribune says Mr. Gladstone has "assumed the position of one of the most conspicuous antagonists of the court of Rome." The Catholics are quite stirred up about what Mr. Gladstone has said and written. He has just issued a powerful tract against the present policy of the Papacy. He shows that "in the middle ages Rome claimed universal monarchy," and that "the Rome of to-day has abandoned nothing, retracted nothing."

When speaking on the "political aims of the Roman court," the London correspondent says many are led "to the painful and revolting conclusion that there is a fixed purpose among the secret inspirers of Roman policy to pursue, by the road of force, upon the arrival of any favorable opportunity, the favorite project of re-erecting the terrestial throne of the Popedom, even if it can only be re-erected on the ashes of the city, and amidst the whitening bones of the people. In other words, Rome is playing a long game to win back the temporal power. The mere existence of such an idea Mr. Gladstone regards as a portentous evil, an incentive to general disturbance, though the hope of its success is ridiculous."

In summing up, the correspondent says: "I add only that the appearance at such a moment of such a manifesto seems to me an event of which the importance can scarcely be overrated. Mr. Gladstone is no longer Prime Minister, but he is still the most powerful man in England. He might have remained silent, but he has chosen to come forward at a critical instant to throw all his influence in the scale against Rome in the conflict she is waging, not in England only or mainly, but on the Continent—and elsewhere. Such an act is not done without a clear aim and a careful weighing of consequences." M. G.

SIGNIFICANT.

"DREAM:"

"I thought that the morning of the 15th of the first month 1875 had come. I walked out in the field and looked over the hills and mountains. The sun was not yet up but the 14th of the first month had rolled into the past. I thought of my chart and knew that the prophetic dates of Daniel had reached their end, for it is easier to move the earth than to extend them beyond midnight of the 14th of the first month, and yet my Lord had not yet come. The trees, hills, mountains and all things continued as they were. Then what to do? Oh! I felt lonely now! I more than wept, for the tears flowed like rain. To live was more painful than death, and yet I could not die.

I forgot to pray, but as if out of pity to my unhappy soul, God had rolled back the wheels of time. I awoke from sleep and found that I yet have a few more months in which we may call sinners to repentance and exhibit faith in God, hence, feel more anxious than ever before, to sound the alarm in all the world, declaring by the authority of "Him that liveth forever" that at the time appointed on the 14th day of the first month the end shall be."

It may not be known to all our readers that Bro. Thurman is very positive that Christ will come on the 14th day of the first month, Jewish time) next spring. We think Bro. T. will do well to treasure up his dream, and accept it as a kind admonition from the Lord. We do not believe the day and hour of Christ's coming is now made known to any man on the earth, and that whoever trusts in such teaching will be disappointed.

In the October number of "The Time Appointed" Bro. Thurman says: "This I know, the only definite time, day and hour, found in the storehouse of the word of God, is the sixth hour of the night of the fourteenth of the first month, 1875."

That Christ will come soon, we have no doubts. Our heart says, the sooner the better. M. G.

CHURCH MUSIC.

Church music, in popular places, is very far removed from the spirit of devotion. It is shocking to a true disciple of Jesus. It has not in it the first element of real christian worship. It is cold as an iceberg, and as formal as Catholicism, and as worldly as the opera. Call it singing "to the praise of the Lord! Might as well say so of an Indian war song. But it is popular, and pleases the natural heart, and as but few among the hundreds of professors in such places truly love Jesus, they prefer music that will tickle the ear, and not trouble the heart.

Mr. Strakosch, in New York, announced for a Sunday concert, in which such music was to be sung as used in churches, but the authorities forbade him from having the concert. The Tribune very correctly says:

"There is hardly a church in the country, certainly none in the larger cities, in which secular music (if there is such a thing), very largely operatic in character, is not sung every Sunday. In New York city, much of this music is sung by professional opera singers, who eke out their stage salaries with choir salaries on Sunday. Now if it be proper for an organist to play operatic marches and arias, and for singers to sing the quartette from 'Martha,' the sextette from 'Lucia,' a concerted number from 'Lohengrin,' or whatever it may be, on Sunday, in church, wherein is it wrong for the same people to sing the same music in an opera-house or concert-hall on Sunday? 'But,' says the stickler for Sunday laws, 'it is sung in church for the praise of God.' It is much more reasonable to suppose that it is sung for the gratification of the worshipers, who pay the choir bills, and, if they did not like it, they would dispense with it without any reference to its divinely laudatory character. Between Mt. Strakosch's concert and a concert labeled 'sacred,' there is no difference. Between operatic music sung in a church choir by a paid artist and operatic music sung in a hall by a paid artist, there it no difference." M. G.

RICH MINES.—It is said the richest silver mines ever discovered are now being opened in Nevada. Good judges estimate that the mine will produce three hundred million dollars worth of silver, with a net profit of one hundred and fifty to two hundred million. California expects to reap the chief benefit. In a business sense, the discovery of this mine is considered the most important event in connection with the history of the Pacific coast. The mines are owned in San Francisco. It is expected that the working of these mines will give a fresh impulse to the present lively enterprise in the State. Viewed from a worldly stand-point, no State has such a promising prospect as California. M. G.

INFIDELITY.—Infidelity is making rapid strides at the present day, and terrible inroads upon nominal christianity. Preaching has but very little effect upon the unconverted and backslidden, because they are so full of skepticism. It is common to meet men, once active in the service of Christ, who now believe that he was only a man, and that the Bible is no more divinely inspired than many other books. These sentiments are so wide spread that they completely paralyze the effect of the faithful sermon. One might about as well preach to idiots or animals as to a large proportion of the present generation. The tares seem to be about ripe. The harvest must be near. M. G.

INDIFFERENCE.

It is truly alarming to see the indifference manifested at the present time in religious meetings, not only by the worldly people, but by professors of religion. It is very manifest that there is but a small interest in divine things. Where the church membership numbers hundreds, in the prayer meetings are found but about a dozen. In these hours of peril, every member, if possible, should be at the prayer-meeting, especially in those churches looking for the speedy coming of Jesus. A great reform is needed among us as a people. Never let your seat be vacant at the prayer-meeting. Let this rule be observed, and new life will be felt immediately. Try it. Do not discourage the faithful ones who attend, by staying away. We need all the help possible to stand in these last days. M. G.

DISCUSSION ON TRINE IMMERSION.—A correspondent from Virginia writes as follows:

"I have read the one-sided report of W. C. Thurman of his debate with you on the subject of "Trine Immersion," and I have been so completely impressed with the fact of his unfairness in representing an opponent's position, and his disposition to misconstrue the Scriptures, that I cannot believe that the discussion terminated as he claims."

We confess that when we read Bro. Thurman's report of the discussion, we felt considerable surprise. We can truly say that we have rarely been so badly represented as in that report, but we let it pass uncorrected for the present. M. G.

THE AGE WE LIVE IN.

The worship of the golden calf seems to be the only religion which really retains any vitality in this age. Faith and self-sacrifice are apparently dead and the main-spring of human energy is gold. The intrinsic value of a thing is of little consequence, but what it will fetch in the market is all-important. Art, which should at least be above the sordid worship of money-bags, has been degraded, and the painter or actor strives as earnestly to produce a marketable commodity as if the perception and reality of color and form had been given for no other purpose than to be turned into filthy lucre. The business of buying and selling is fast crushing every noble feeling and sentiment. The ledger has become the national Bible, and the counting house is the church. It is ludicrous, yet painful and humiliating, to contemplate the vice of the popular mind. The rising generation are systematically taught to revere only such things as tend to money getting.

The multiplication table is regarded as the city code, and men are rigidly classed in accordance with a rule which, more frequently than not, brings the worst to the surface. Even in scientific and purely intellectual circles it is quite common to measure a man by the style he keeps up, or the marked attention he is able by purely money influence to command. Respectability merely means a certain status in society, and many men are classed as mean who, possessing a certain income, are yet honestly determined to live within it. Unfortunately it is often considered a crime to be poor. Good men deplore these vices of our age, and talk as if mere words would cure those evils. Society is rotten at the core. We are standing on the crater of a social volcano, which bursting out at every moment, scatters into the air the temporary gilded structure which we are pleased to call people's prosperity.

Beneath this fair surface of glitter and fashion lies a seething pit of poverty, superstition, and vice. Ruffianism and crime stalk boldly in our midst, and vices which were once the special shame of the ancient world have made their appearance in modern society. In our leading thoroughfares and by-streets are to be found men and women from whose features all traces of humanity have been battered out by misery and debauchery. These are the dark shadows upon the picture of our fair world which no quantity of words will tone down.—Selected.

FLABBY RELIGION.

Much of the religion of the day is flabby, very flabby indeed. It is afflicted with a sort of Saint Vitus' dance; now bending this way, and now that; and it is uncertain which way it will wriggle next. It accommodates itself to the whims of the world. It is almost disposed to exchange our Bible for a science that, instead of tracing our origin to Adam, makes us only a better order of tadpoles; and instead of reading, "Abraham begat Isaac, and Isaac begat Jacob, and Jacob begat Joseph," would read: "The fish begat the reptile, and the reptile begat a marsupial animal, and the marsupial animal begat the inadrumana, and the inadrumana begat the gorilla, and the gorilla begat the ape, and the ape begat Darwin." Much of our modern religion begins with a eulogy of human nature, instead of an exposition of its utter downfall. It makes us sick to hear all this talk about the dignity of manhood. It is a heap of putrefaction, unless Saint John lied when he described it as "wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked."—Talmage.

"How much, should you say, this estate is worth!" said one friend to another, as they were riding past a beautiful park. "I don't know how much it is worth," was the answer, "but I think I know what it cost the owner." "How much?" "His soul," was the startling reply. The person then described the owner's death, in which he attributed his misery at last to his love of money, which had often led him into fraud and sin.

HALF WAY WON'T DO.—A gentleman, who for many years has been engulfed in the cares of trade, and in a measure yielded to its temptations, remarked, "I have tried for twenty years to be a half-way christian, and find it impossible, we must be at one or the other extreme; and as for myself, I am determined hereafter to do my whole duty, and be a complete christian."

THE TRACT FUND.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, a a meeting on Springfield camp-ground, August 13th, 1874, voted to raise Two Thousand Dollars for the free distribution of Tracts the ensuing year; and they invite the help and co-operation of all lovers of the Lord and of his truth, in the furtherance of the good cause. The times are ominous of coming events, and admonish us to diligence in the Master's work. The Lord is at the door, and what we do must be done quickly. Let the contributions be prompt, hearty, and liberal. The Lord will reward the liberal giver.

LETTER FROM T. J. GREEN.

TO THE A. A. M. SOCIETY.

Dear Brethren:—I should have written to you sooner, but am away from home so much of my time, that I have no opportunity to write often. I have met with dreadful opposition since I wrote you last, and have no cheering account to give; unless, however, we consider the opposition, which at times seems to crush the cause to death and meets me on every side, a reason sufficient to cheer us. It does encourage me, knowing that it is but a short time till we shall all be delivered.

The call for help seems to be mostly from Durant and Nassau counties. Many places in said counties can be reached, and much good accomplished. Many will turn out to hear the Word, and believe and embrace it, but what appears to be mostly wanting is sufficient help to hold our ground. After laboring hard for a length of time in a place to subdue scoffers and gain confidence in the people, other duties call me away, and as soon as I leave, the devil applies his craft again; and by the time I get back among them much work has to be done over again; so I find that the onward progress is quite slow, and in some localities the cause appears to be dead, only for want of attention. What can one poor afflicted man do in such a State as Florida, almost alone, and like sheep among wolves? This is my condition, but still I am not alone. I have the assurance of the divine acceptance, and still press onward to the prize which is now almost in sight.

O how much our cause suffers for want of a united effort among those who are looking for the Bridegroom's speedy return to reign on the earth. But, alas, division will come, and strife and contention will exist among the servants while the Master is absent. I have just received two packages of books sent by order of D. D. Reed, of Cal., and am very thankful for them. They shall be scattered to the best advantage possible. Would to God that there were more such brethren, who would remember me in this darkest corner of the Lord's vineyard, and send on books, tracts, and the means to enable me to go on sowing the precious seed, by the wayside, among thorns, and in stony places.

Dear brethren, we are almost through the conflict. Let us apply our strength once more, with renewed courage,—all put their shoulders to the wheel of ignorance, and turn it back, ere it crush many of the sons and daughters of Adam. Therefore, hoping and praying that you will all remember me, and help me with your prayers, I subscribe myself yours in hope.

Correspondence.

From Bro. B. Spaulding.

Dear Brethren:—I have just returned from a visit to East Pepperel, where I found a united, happy company of believers in Jesus' coming, the resurrection and restitution. It is a new field, but lately been occupied by Advent people. I found them good, substantial, gifted brethren, able to hold forth and expound Bible truth. There are about a dozen whose hearts are in the work, and quite a number of others fall in with them, who are interested in the Advent doctrine. They have hired a pleasant hall, where they worship Sundays, and have prayer-meetings twice a week.

I heard of them, and had a desire to see them; and though I had not been far from home for several years by reason of age and infirmity, yet I made an effort to go, and I had a blessed season. They received me with all kindness and respect, notwithstanding my age and infirmity, and gave me the privilege to speak to them, and a great privilege I felt it to be. I seemed to renew my youth, and to mount up like the eagles. My former zeal, life and animation seemed to return, and my memory to be quickened into activity, so that I could repeat proof texts as well as ever I could. I felt ten years younger when I returned home. Blessed be the Lord for his goodness to unworthy me.

It is wonderful that Pepperel, that long-neglected township, should receive the truth concerning the advent of Jesus, and the kingdom he is to set up. I felt as Jacob did when he said, "Surely, God is in this place, and I knew it not. . . . This is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven." The Lord bless that little church is my prayer. They had a tent meeting and God blessed it. Bro. Potter, from Keene, has visited them, and presented Bible truth to them. Bro. Boutell also attended their tent meeting, and they have sounded the midnight cry, and it has been heard and heeded. The seed sown has fallen upon good ground, and is taking root, and there is promise of a joyful crop. I feel some like Simeon when he said, "Now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation." Yet I would choose to live and praise God, and proclaim his truth; for if I die I cannot praise him. It takes a living man to do this.

My prayer is, let me live, that I may stand as a witness for the truth. I almost feel that I must again gird the gospel armor on, and go forth into the vineyard, even with seventy-five years on my head. O that I might live to see Jesus coming in all his glory, so that I could shout, This is my God, I have waited for him, and he will save me.

With all my infirmities, I propose to go again. I feel it would be blessed to die in this work. My health is good, and my faith in the truths of God's word remains firm and unshaken. Let me ask brethren and sisters to write to me. Letters are like cold water to a thirsty soul. I will return an answer.

Chelmsford, Mass.

From Bro. C. S. Branch.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:—I had often read of the work of the Lord in different parts of the country, and had longed to send you glad tidings in return. We could get no place to proclaim the Word, but we kept up our little prayer meetings, and ceased not to cry unto the God of our fathers, who always has an ear open to the cry of his children.

In due time he opened up a door for us in the 10th district, Milldale, Ct.; and every Sabbath since our dear Bro. O. D. Woodruff has been proclaiming eternal life through Jesus Christ. God bless him! About two weeks ago two made up their minds they would seek for glory, honor, immortality, and eternal life. Yesterday (Sabbath, Nov. 22nd), Bro. B. Hitchcock and Bro. Woodruff charged the enemy's works, and seven more were taken from the horrible pit and miry clay. Still the work is going on. God, by his Spirit, is with us in very deed.

Come, sinner, before the Son of man shall send forth his angels to gather the tares and they are burned. Come, before the angel shall separate the wicked from the just. Come, before it shall be said—"Depart, ye cursed." Come, before the day cometh that shall burn as on oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly shall be stubble. Come, while the Spirit says "Come." Come, while it is called to-day. Come, call upon God before you have to call upon the rocks to fall upon you, to hide you from Him who is soon to judge the quick and dead. By so doing you will be enabled to stand before the Son of man in that day.

Plantsville, Ct.

From Sr. Harriet Covey.

Dear Brethren:—I send you a few lines to express my thanks to you for your kindness in still sending the Crisis free to me. I am getting quite old and feeble, and cannot go very often to meeting; and your excellent paper cheers me in my lonely hours. I love its writings on the coming of Christ and holiness of heart. Jesus' coming is precious to me. When I see the desolation that sin and wickedness are making through our beloved land, I long for Jesus to come and make all things new and glorious. I feel to bless God that there are some men and women raised up to proclaim the last message of God to a dying world. I think the time is short for them to work. I feel we should be faithful in warning the wicked of their danger. Perhaps I may not pen another line to you. If this is my last, remember it is my purpose and determination to meet you in that land with all the redeemed. And if I never reward you for your kindness to unworthy me, God will reward you shortly in his everlasting kingdom.

Omri, Winnebago Co., Wis.

From Bro. C. Barnes.

Dear Brethren and Sisters:—I wish to let you know how I get along. I have been living for God ever since 1843. I am expecting to see Jesus soon, and I thank God he is coming. My prayer is, Lord, keep me watchful every day.

I went over to North Rutland, where Bro. Streeter baptized me. I have felt ever since that Jesus is mine. O, I do want to live faithful till the end. Dear friends, be joyful. Get ready to go home. I am here all alone working for God. May he bless and and keep me every day. Amen.

Obituaries.

TENNEY. In Wakefield, Mass., Dec. 8th, 1874, widow Doratha Tenney, aged eighty-one years.

She had been a disciple of Jesus by profession many years. When the message of Christ's soon coming was heard, she, with her husband, fell in love with it, maintaining their faith in hopeful expectation while life lasted. The aged mother knew how to trust the Lord, and had a sort of in dependence that caused her to take care of herself. Her last days were spent with her children, who looked after her interests. She loved her Lord, his people, and her meetings, and was enjoying her usual health till the fifteenth of November, when the house took fire and burned down. She narrowly escaped, much frightened. The family were taken into a tenement in the neighborhood, and before night by some mishap she fell down a flight of stairs, breaking both her wrists and injuring her otherwise, from the effects of which she died, giving glory to God, in love of the appearing of Jesus, and hope of a resurrection to life at the last trump. The funeral was attended in the Baptist vestry. The Baptist minister assisted in the services. May the same "good hope" sustain, cheer, comfort, and save the weeping children in the everlasting kingdom of God. L. BOUTELL.

DEVEREAUX. In Lewiston, Me., Dec. 1st, 1874, Louise L., youngest daughter of Dennis and Rhoda Devereaux of Corrinna, Me., aged seventeen years.

Our young sister leaves a christian father, mother, brother, and six sisters, with many other relatives to mourn for one beloved with the tenderest affection. She was a thoughtful, serious, praying child from her earliest youth. In her last sickness she came out happy in Jesus' love. We all have the blessed hope of meeting the precious jewel when Jesus comes. Funeral services in Corrinna, at her father's house, conducted by the writer. Sermon from Rom. 14: 8, 9.

F. A. BAKER.

PIERCE. In Gilmanton, N. H., Nov. 10th, 1874, Bro. Henry J. Pierce, aged sixty-one years.

For the last few months his confidence was strong in the Lord, and his soon coming to redeem his people. His last moments were quiet and peaceful. Funeral services by Eld. J. Harvey. M.

FOREIGN NEWS.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 8. A violent storm occurred here last night, causing much damage. The tide rose nine feet above high-water mark, partially inundating the lower portions of the city. A large number of families of the poorer classes were driven from their houses. Over a thousand persons were sheltered by the Police, and public kitchens were opened to supply the sufferers with food. The water is now falling rapidly.

Madrid, Dec. 10. Marshal Serrano will take his departure from this city for the North immediately.

London, Dec. 14. Intense feeling is aroused in France by some of the papers read in the Arnim trial. One dispatch especially, in which Bismarck says that he cannot but wish to see France weak, and deems it unadvisable to strengthen her by contributing to the establishment of a monarchy, causes profound indignation.

Hong Kong, Dec. 14. The steamship Mongol, from Shanghae for New York, has been wrecked, and sixteen persons perished.

The Khan of Khiva—as we learn by a telegram from St. Petersburg—has sent a letter by a deputation to Colonel Ivanoff, the commander of the Russian garrison on the right bank of the Oxus, stating that he has neither soldiers, nor arms, nor money enough to overcome his rebellious Turcoman subjects, and asking for aid against them. It is said the Colonel has thereupon written to the Turcomans, reminding them of last year's punishment, and threatening them with immediate reprisals should they continue to disobey the Khan.—London Times.

Winter has set in severely in Asia Minor, interrupting communication by road and telegraph with Angora and other centres of Provinces. Great anxiety is felt for those places where famine prevails. Transport has become more difficult and expensive. Handsome subscriptions have been made in Turkey, but the starving population are looking to English generosity for aid.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

Memphis, Dec. 11. A Vicksburg telegram of last night says the war is over and all is quiet. The Supervisors have appointed a committee to bury the dead. Twenty-eight negroes have been interred. Many others are yet to be buried. Several companies have organized to serve under militia officers, but their services will probably not be needed. The scouts represent all quiet in the country, and the negroes who were massing to come here from Hinds county have dispersed.

FIRES.—Two destructive fires in Boston Monday night, Dec. 14th. Loss $515,000. Forest City, Ark., loss $30,000; Charleston, S. C., loss $200,000; Cincinnati, loss $60,000; Lyndonville, Vt., loss $30,000; Baltimore, loss $33,000; Bangor, loss $70,000; Brockton, loss $115,000; Hartford, Ct., loss $200,000; Charlestown, W. Va., loss $200,000.

In Brief.

— The Presbyterian Board sustains the only existing mission in Brazil. In a territory nearly as large as Europe, and with a population of nearly 10,000,000, there are only thirteen Protestant ministers preaching the language of the people.

— Two burglars were shot and killed at Bay Ridge, Kong Island, N. Y., while leaving a dwelling in which they had been plying their trade. One of them, just before his death, voluntarily confessed his participation in the abduction of Charlie Ross.

— A Pottsville, Pa., despatch states that twenty collieries have closed up and eighty more will soon follow, so that three months from the first of December there will be some 15,000 in that region out of work, objects of suffering and starvation.

— The annual destruction of Buffaloes in Kansas, Texas, Colorado and Southern Nebraska is estimated at 210,000, of which about one-fourth are killed for the skins alone.

— A man named William H. Jones, residing in Somerville, murdered a friend of his named Mrs. Barry, wife of Octavious R. Barry, and then committed suicide. Both parties were married and leave families.

A Scranton (Penn.) letter, dated New York, Dec. 11th, says: "Murders continue by idle miners, and the incapacity of the authorities to deal with the daring ruffians and bring them to justice, encourages the outlaws to ply their murderous work fearlessly. We are at the commencement of a hard winter, which will doubtless lead to robbery and murder in an extraordinary degree. Within the past few nights some of the principal stores in our leading thoroughfares have been broken into and robbed. In every instance the burglars escaped. Our Chief of Police is under $5000 bail for alleged murder. Our Mayor is under $500 bail for perjury, and six of the members of the School Board or a majority of the entire number are under $78,000 bail for alleged malfeasance. If the present condition of affairs continues much longer the people of Scranton will, for self protection, be compelled to form vigilance committees. Even now every man is armed and every man's house an arsenal on a small scale. In many quarters vigilance committees are already talked of, and we may expect a season of red-handed vengeance before spring."

A JEWESS BURIED ALIVE.—A shocking case of premature interment is reported to have taken place in the burial ground of the Jewish community of Brody, in Gallicia. The Jews, as is well known, are prohibited keeping corpses in their houses more than one day, and in accordance with this prohibition, deceased Israelites are generally buried about twenty-four hours after death. A Jewish lady, the wife of a wealthy merchant residing at Brody, had long been a sufferer, and was interred the day following her demise. After the week of mourning prescribed by the Jewish law had passed over, the bereaved husband was animated by the singular desire of opening his wife's grave, that he might gaze upon her once more. The Jewish Rabbi granted him permission, and the widower was horrified to find, when the coffin was opened, the shroud in which the corpse was attired completely covered with blood. There were all the signs of a premature interment, and a fearful struggle for life.—London Times.

A FINE CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

As it is an almost universal custom, and a good one, to make "Christmas and New Year's presents" to kindred and friends, I will suggest to our brethren and sisters that it may be that they cannot serve the cause of Christ better at such a time than to present the to such of the ministers of the various denominations as they know to be candid inquirers, or such of the lay members, or your parents, children, brothers, sisters, husbands, wives, or other relatives or friends who you wish to become thoroughly acquainted with and interested in this God-given, dispensational message throughout the world, apart from the excesses and side issues which have been sometimes associated with it. We would venture to give ten thousand copies to the ministry had we the means to do so. We subjoin a few testimonials.

(From the Bible Banner.)

"The author has brought together an amount of material so vast and valuable as richly to repay for both purchase and perusal. Those who desire historical and doctrinal information, connected with the people who give special prominence to the personal and speedy coming of Christ, will find this work a library in itself. Let it have a wide sale and candid examination."

FROM ELD. J. B. COOK.

"You have made a beautiful book, cheaper by half than 'Beecher's Life of Christ' in its cheapest form, and containing unspeakably more than it, for the readers of this generation. All who can should buy it. I sympathize with the mighty message it records. You have excelled my utmost expectations as to its general execution."

We want agents, active, trusty men or women, whose hearts are in the message, and who work for the good of their race as well as for their bread, to canvass and sell this History to ministers, deacons, class-leaders, doctors, lawyers, teachers, students, Bible scholars, and thinkers of every class, everywhere. For terms, address I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

H. A. WAY.

NOTICE.—I have removed from my former place of residence (Rochester) to this place,—Ontario, Wayne Co., N. Y.,—where brethren and friends can address me until further notice. I expect my labors for the present to be confined to this circuit,—Ontario, Furnaceville, and Ontario Centre, and very soon at Williamson. Three places every Sabbath. The Lord is with us to bless.

JAS. E. WELLS.

NOTICE.—As my time is not all filled up, and having a desire to do what I can till the Master comes, I would say that I will go and preach the gospel of the kingdom as the Lord may open the way. Any wishing to correspond with me, will please address E. H. EGGLESTON, Keeneyville, Tioga Co., Penn.

TO VERMONTERS.—At our annual conference at Bethel, the State Committee were urged to carry the gospel of the kingdom into every new field which opened a door, and especially to offer a week of labor for any five dollars pledged by an isolated brother or sister living in a new field. This was to encourage individual effort and sacrifice on the part of the isolated. We want to hear immediately from those places where labors are desired, that we may make due arrangements to meet the demands. If you are too poor to raise five dollars, and yet the door is open for a meeting, write us just the same as though you raised the money. Write to me at Waterbury, Vt., or to A. A. Hoyt, Plainfield, Vt. Write full particulars of circumstances, people, time, and place. Write soon.

H. F. CARPENTER, President of Conference.

That New Book.

About two-thirds of this work—"Let us make Man," etc.,—is now in type; but owing to illness at the office, and want of help, the work must be delayed a short time. When ready, due notice will be given, and all orders promptly filled. I find it necessary to enlarge the size of the work beyond the first design, and consequently the price of the book must be correspondingly increased. Retail price, 20 cts.

T. M. PREBLE, Hyde Park, Mass.

REMOVAL.—"The Biblical Messenger" office is now removed from Plainfield to Waterbury, Vt., where our paper will be published hereafter. All communications for this office should be addressed to THE BIBLICAL MESSENGER, Waterbury, Vt.

A. A. HOYT.

P. S.—When you send private letters, direct to A. A. Hoyt, and write private on the corner of the envelope.

A. A. H.

HAVING moved from Fonthill, Canada, Ont., to Utica, Mich., I would say to the brethren that I purpose, the coming winter (the Lord willing), to labor in the cause of my Master by holding forth the gospel of the coming kingdom, as the Lord may open the way. Brethren wishing my services will please address HENRY STEVENS, Utica, Mich., McComb Co.

THOSE wishing to correspond with me, are hereby informed that my address hereafter will be at Fitchburg, Mass.

H. F. CARPENTER.

NOW READY,

The great Map of History, twenty-two feet long, and about thirty inches wide. This valuable work, of which mention has been made in the Crisis, we now have a supply of, and will send to those who may order at the reduced price of $15.00 per copy, by express. We have them on rollers, and in book form, and can supply either way.

The best method of using the chart or map of history is to hang the frame on the wall of the room (the map being in the frame, of course), by the two hooks in the upper bar of the frame, high enough to stand, or sit, in front of it, and there examine or study it.

Students and beginners in history should occasionally look over the map in its entire length—drawn out on the wall, or tables, or on the carpet—until they are well acquainted with the entire outlines, plan and compass of the map, which embraces all history.

"THE BIBLE DOCTRINE OF THE SOUL."

An Answer to the Question: "Is the Popular Conception of the Soul that of Holy Scripture?"

BY CHAS. L. IVES, M. D.

Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Yale College.

This is a pamphlet of 119 pages, in which the Author discusses the above question in an interesting and able manner,—showing the material nature of, the mortality and destiny of the Soul,—A future immortality to be the special portion of the Righteous,—What the Bible teaches as to the future of the Wicked,—The intermediate state,—The Resurrection,—That of the Righteous and of the Wicked, etc.

The Author claims that the doctrine set forth,—"Honors God, exalts the Bible, insures preaching of future punishment, subverts Universalism and Infidelity, errors of Romanism, of Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, helps in work of Missions, rightly values the body, brings Christian unity, and promotes personal holiness."

We are much pleased with this work. It ought to have a wide circulation. We have a good supply, and hope the friends will order freely. We will sell at the following prices:—25 cts. per copy; $2.00 per dozen, sent by mail; $15.00 per hundred, by express.

THE WIDOW'S ANSWER.

"Ah me! with so many little mouths,
What care must a widow feel!"
So said the deacon, with grief profound,
Such as only a christian can feel.
Now the widow was knitting a stocking,
And just rounding off at the heel.

"Care! deacon," she murmured, with saintly smile,
And gently she shook her head,
And turned soft eyes to her merry boys
At play near the garden-bed:
"Mouths, bless 'em, as red as a cardinal flower,
Seven pairs of sweet lips," she said.

"Not one too many, the curly pates,
Even Johnny, the baby; there!
I have given them all to the dear Lord Christ,
Trusting in faith and prayer;
And God, he leads them as he leads me;
I don't know the meaning of care."

"Not know the meaning, widow, widow!
And working, as work you must?
Not knowing the terrible meaning of care,
That cuts at the brain like rust?"
The gray-haired deacon doubtingly smiled.
"But I take the Lord on trust,"

Says the smiling widow; "I'm just as sure,
If my little stock be spent,
And the cruse runs low, and the flour be gone,
And the money be needed for rent,
That He who knows when a sparrow falls,
And whither a thought is sent,

"And where the down of the thistle blows,
And the course of the fickle wind;
And how the underworld paints the rose,
Without leaving a drop behind;
And why there are never two leaves alike,
Though a million leaves you find;

"And why ocean, bound by a mighty will,
Is yet in its vastness free—
Can without stint, from his bountiful store,
Give to my babes and me,
As that day must follow the risen dawn,
Or that rivers find the sea."

Christian Weekly.—Selected by M. C Kershaw.

This is more than poetry; it is eternal truth in rhyme. That truth is more valuable to a helpless widow and a poor loving mother, than bank treasures, or gilded palaces, or crowded store-houses. It is the immutable promise of Jehovah that his trusting friends shall never want any good thing. The palace may burn, and the store-house be swept away in a flood, but the treasures stored by the widow's God for the fatherless and helpless are more safely secured than the sunlight or the dews of heaven. NEWS FROM ENGLAND.

From our own Correspondent.

DEAR BRETHREN, THE EDITORS AND READERS OF THE Crisis:—I have much good news to add to that I sent you in my letter a few weeks ago. Every week enables me to say with a stronger emphasis, How wonderful is truth! There are those in England who have endeavored to identify us as a nation with the ten lost tribes of Israel; and such predict for us as a people all manner of good things, saying that a large if not the largest portion of the invaluable promises of the Bible is being given to us in possession. Without pronouncing on this pleasing theory (very satisfactory to such as can believe it), this one thing is certain, that God is granting us a great manifestation of his truth in these last days, and that the spirit of humble yet independent research is being greatly revived amongst us.

A brother came to me yesterday (employed to distribute the Bible Echo), and said, in his rounds he had come across an intelligent man who desired immersion, and shelter in the Name and under the blood of Jesus our Immanu-Ail. He had, as it were by chance, picked up a copy of our paper, the teachings of which had arrested him. He purchased succeeding numbers, and after thorough and honest examination, said that his old faith was no longer of any use to him; that his Bible was as a new book; and that for himself he wished to flee to the Shelter to hide him.

Some Methodists living in the West of England, by reading the Echo have been confirmed in the faith, and have just written to ask counsel as to the formation of a church. They are in want of a good book treating on scriptural order. There are many like them, in various parts, who require to be visited, taught the way of God more perfectly, banded in fellowship, and set in gospel order. The remark of a good brother yesterday, who is staunchly loyal to the Lord Jesus, came home to my mind with great force, as he said, "How about the picking up of the little ones? What about the folding of them?" I confessed that the work was a necessary one; that it had been much on my own heart; and that it was my prayer that a brother, adapted to the work, and called of God to that mission, might very soon appear in the field. His remark to me was a very true one. He said that individuals living solitarily, and believing the truth, were tempted to have misgivings with respect to their apprehension and conclusions, when they could not see the face of a brother of one mind with themselves. "Apples rot," said he, "if not picked up"; to which I almost involuntarily responded—"And fish are of no use if let lie ungathered." The brother who said this to me was formerly the chief apostle of a somewhat eccentric sect, having organizations in England called "The Peculiar People." He was their "best man," but is now walking uprightly in the truth, holding fast in power the form of sound words.

A Baptist minister in the North of England writes that he has long had communion with the truth which we are endeavoring to bring into such prominence, and he blesses God for the agencies which are working to spread the daylight all over the kingdom.

Bro. J. Smith of Bacup, Baptist minister, sound in the vitals of faith and practice, to whom I alluded in a former letter, is to be ousted from his pastorship of many years for his noble confession of the truth. He is a good man and a true, and probably poor. Not that he needs have been the latter; his adherence to a scriptural mode of sustenance and his open-handedness to persons in want being the chief reasons of his not having a heavy banking account, as have so many English critics. I hope he may yet be of the number of itinerants engaged in the arduous but holy work of propagating the words of life.

This is all I will write at this time on the growth of the truth in England. I hope you have been watching closely the state of affairs at the Vatican of late. The developments of the harlot's history, answering so fully to her fore-written doom are very striking. Those who take the Bible Echo will be able to read some important extracts from Romish papers respecting the situation of the Papacy. The moans of her press are full of anguish. There is the withdrawal of the Orenoque from an Italian port; and Romanists feel keenly this almost complete desertion of the Chair of St. Peter by the "eldest daughter of the Church." Added to this, the British government has ordered back its representative, Mr. Jervoise, from the Papal palace. Cardinal Antonelli has prayed it to revoke its decision in vain. Mr. Jervoise is back among us, and no ambassador is to be appointed in his place. This is a polite and practical way of saying to the Sovereign of Romish ecclesiasticism, "We no longer recognize you as a civil ruler."

Archbishop Manning thinks that the age when all men will be brothers is not far distant. (So do we; but not in the way in which he does.) He recommends that disputes between nations should for the future be settled by arbitration, and he would have his ex-Majesty Pius IX. arbitrator, as, he pretends, the Pontiff can have no partiality towards any one nation. (?)

Mr. Gladstone, the last premier of this realm, has written considerable against the Papacy and its claimed civil allegiance, which is making the hierarchy of Rome very wrathful.

Wonderful events are at hand. Judgment is flashing its lightnings and rumbling its thunders down upon the seat of the apostacy, which is in the seven-hilled city. But while vengeance is poured upon "the harlot," mercy goes through our land proclaiming words of grace and truth. And it is my belief and hope that thousands will listen to the gracious voice, and that at last, in the bundle of life, will be found nothing less than a multitude who will have profited by the visitation which we are receiving in these last moments of the age. W. KELLAWAY.

TO THE A. A. M. BOARD.

Dear Brethren:—The work of the Master is still progressing. After four days hard traveling, we reached this place, almost exhausted with cold and loss of sleep. The Memphis and Little Rock Rail Road is the poorest excuse for a road I ever saw. We traveled near thirty miles over trestle works which looks so rotten, as to be liable to tumble down at any time. We were going in the Lord's cause, and I told Bro. Gifford, while looking out of the window at the rickety works, that if we were on a trip for speculation, we would feel fearful; but as that was not the object of our journey, I felt perfectly safe, believing that if it was duty to preach to the people on the line of the Indian Nations, the Lord would see us through safely.

Arrived in Little Rock, and found no connection. Had to put up for the night. Started next morning in a mixed train, on the Little Rock and Fort Smith R. R., for Clarksville, a distance of one hundred miles. It took us all day to make the trip. Found the stage waiting for us, which is the first close connection we have made since we left Memphis. The stage was open at both sides, the night was unusually cold, and we traveled all night, only seeing fire once, while the horses were being changed; then we were so benumbed with cold, that the heat of the fire made us very sick. The road was the worst I ever traveled, and the only way we could keep our seats was to swing by the leather straps fastened to the top for that purpose. We could but think of the carpeted parlors and cushioned sofas of ministers who get fat salaries and live at ease in Zion. Then we could look at Paul's perils, shipwrecks, and privations, and took consolation by thinking the heavier the cross the brighter the crown.

About half past one o'clock, Saturday, we arrived in the nice flourishing village of Fort Smith, with aching heads, bruised flesh, sick stomachs, but, thank the Lord, no broken bones. We found Bro. John Maxwell waiting for us, and glad to see us. We went home with him and had a good rest that night. Sunday morning we began meetings which still continue with good interest. Praise the Lord! The people here are all in harmony, and go into the meetings, and every one seems anxious to know the truths that we as a people love so dearly.

I have a cold, which has settled on my lungs, and causes me much trouble in speaking. I shall never forget our stage ride. We paid $10 each for the privilege of being jolted and bumped all night, which I would not do again for the money back.

Day after to-morrow I start for home, expecting to have several meetings on the way. I often think and pray for the dear ones in Woodruff Co., where I was last week, and all the beloved brethren and sisters in Tenn., Ala., and Ga., who are battling for the glorious truths which I have tried in weakness to deliver to them. May God help them to stand firm. I feel sure, dear brethren, that the Master will come soon, and relieve us of all our trials. I am determined he shall find me telling the people he is coming. Pray for me.

JOHN A. CARGILE.

Fort Smith, Ark. Nov. 46th, 1874.

THE BIBLE.

Amid ancient lore and modern learning, the Word of God stands unique and preeminent. Wonderful in its construction, admirable in its adaptation; it contains truths that a child may comprehend, and mysteries into which angels desire to look. It is in harmony with that adaptation of ends to means, which pervades creation, from the polypus tribes, elaborating their coral houses, to man, the wondrous work of God. It forms the brightest link of that glorious chain which unites the humblest work of creation with the throne of the infinite and eternal Jehovah.

As light, with its infinite particles and curiously blended colors, is suited to an eye prepared for the alternations of day; as air, with its subtle and invisible essence, is fitted for the delicate organs of respiration; and, in a word, as this material world is adapted to man's physical nature, so the Word of eternal truth is adapted to his moral nature and mental constitution. It finds him wounded, sick and suffering, and points him to the balm of Gilead, and the Physician of souls. It finds him stained by transgression and defiled with sin and guilt, and directs him to the "blood that cleanseth from all unrighteousness and sin." It finds him athirst and faint, pining amid the deserts of life, and shows him the wells of salvation, and the rivers of life. It addresses itself to his moral and spiritual nature, makes provision for his wants and weaknesses, and meets his yearnings and aspirations. It is adapted to his mind in its earliest stages of progression, and its highest state of intellectuality. It provides light for his darkness, joy for his anguish, a solace for his woes, balm for his wounds, and heaven for his hopes. It unveils the unseen world, and reveals Him who is the light of creation, and the joy of the universe, reconciled through the death of his Son. It promises the faithful a blessed reunion in a land undimmed with tears, undarkened by sorrow. It affords a truth for the living, and a refuge for the dying. Aided by the Holy Spirit, it guides us through life, points out the shoals, the quicksands and hidden rocks which endanger our path, and at last leaves us with the eternal God for our refuge, and the everlasting arms for our protection.—*Sel. by H. A FEW THOUGHTS.

H. P. SIKES.

"Therefore the redeemed of the Lord shall return, and come with singing unto Zion; and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads: they shall obtain gladness and joy; and sorrow and mourning shall flee away." ISAIAH 51: 11.

To return signifies to come back, having been here before. Hence, we see that this earth, and not some other place in the heavens, is to be the home of the saints. This doctrine is abundantly taught throughout the inspired volume. I notice one or two passages. Prov. 11: 31. "Behold, the righteous snall be recompensed in the earth; much more the wicked and the sinner." Acts 3: 21. Speaking of Christ, Peter says, "Whom the heavens must receive, until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." Thus, we see "all things" are to be restored to the condition they were in before man sinned and fell, and the earth became cursed of God. And man is to be reinstated in the "first dominion." Micah 4: 8. And they will come back joyfully—"come with singing unto Zion." No more thorns, thistles, briars, storms, hurricanes, heat, cold, or any other effects of the curse. No; this earth, now so dreary, will have become the garden of God, where he will delight to dwell. Says the Revelator—"Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God."

Their joy is to be everlasting;—not transient like pleasures here. All causes of sorrow gone, their bliss will flow on and on, throughout eternity. We can understand but little of the glory then to be revealed. Let us pray to have our "eyes anointed with eye-salve" that we may be able to comprehend something of what it will be to be present with, and to know and feel that we are beloved by the infinite God,—by the dear Redeemer, and by all the countless myriads of heaven. Never have mortal ears been saluted with such sweet strains of melody as will then come pealing forth from all that vast multitude. Call to mind also the most beautiful landscape, or the most beautiful garden that ever you beheld, and then imagine the whole earth dressed up like this! See the streets of shining gold! See every individual of that innumerable throng all shining like the sun! All tears and sorrow will be forever excluded. Here we weep, and wade through trial after trial, till earth seems a dreary wilderness, and we sigh for home. Our loved ones are often snatched away by the relentless hand of death, and we have to lay them in the cold, cold ground. But there will be no dying there. Sin and death can never invade those blissful shores. Here, our friends often become our enemies, and our nearest and best friends often inflict the deepest wounds; but no such thing can ever enter there. Here, our hearts are often wrung with the ingratitude of those we love; but there, we shall as it were bask in the sunshine of the love and confidence of heaven's countless throng. Here, we suffer disappointment and losses; but there no such thing can ever mar our bliss. Here, we suffer pain and sickness, and meet with perils, accidents, hunger, thirst, aches, and weariness; but none of these things shall ever invade that happy land. The fountain of our "sorrow and mourning" will be dried up, and they will have "fled away" forever.

Gems.

— As sunshine seems brightest after rain, and calm is most welcome after storm; as pearls are fetched from deep waters, and gold is dug from deep mines; so joy is never so welcome as after sorrow; the truest joy is that poured into a broken heart.

— Many persons are like the murmuring farmer, who wanted sunshine for his wheat and barley, and rain for his grass and turnips, all at the same time.

— Men often forget that privation and retirement have sometimes hidden joys, as a flower blooms under a leaf. Shadow is sometimes shelter. Some flowers could not thrive in much sunshine.

— There are many pleasures which we should do well to deal with, as men do who buy honey—taste a little on the tip of the finger, not take up a handful, for fear of a surfeit.

— When you are reading a book in a dark room, and come to a difficult part, you take it to a window to get more light. So take your Bibles to Christ.

— A christian need not row himself down the stream; if he but rest upon his oars, the ebbing tide and rapid current will be enough.

— Many seek for ease, instead of healing; the believer seeks to be cured rather than eased.

— The feeling of duty is at times oppressive; but where his proper path is, there the christian should be willing to abide.

"Jesus Christ, the faithful witness,
First-begotten of the dead—
He who gave you form and fitness,
He who calls himself your head,
Bids you read his word of warning,
Blessing those who firmly stand
In good works, his truth adorning,
For the time is near at hand."

— The best way of increasing our money is not to lay it up, but lay it out.

— Cunning conquers force, force can subdue numbers, intellect can master courage, but love subdues all.

— The tears of our misery often prevent our eyes from seeing the mercy close at hand.

— If there be one fact or promise in the Bible which has produced no practical effect upon your temper or conduct, be assured that you do not rightly believe it.

— No good man would exchange his adversity for the prosperity of a bad man.

— Where there is the most love of God, there will be the most philanthropy.

WILMOT, the infidel, when dying, laid his trembling, emaciated hand upon the sacred volume, and exclaimed solemnly, and with unwonted energy, "The only objection against this book is a bad life!"

A DIVIDED HEART.

"Let us not serve Thee with a divided heart," prayed a good man in the prayer-meeting of a certain church, recently. We were impressed with the beauty and reasonableness of the petition. A divided heart is unhappy. It has no peace, no rest, no equipoise, no solid satisfaction. Longing for some rival object, it is never satisfied with that which might otherwise fill it with unmingled contentment. It is not a true heart. No divided heart can be sincere. Its fidelity can never be trusted. It will never rise in its devotion above the control of calculating policy.

A divided heart is a changeable one. It will throb with one impulse, beat with one resolve to-day, and another to-morrow. The double-minded are unstable as water. No supreme object leading them on, they are carried hither and thither by every shifting wind, by any caprice, fancy or impulse that may visit them. They will be one thing today and another to-morrow.

A divided heart can have no enthusiasm. It will burn with no supreme earnestness. can have no all-absorbing theme. A part of the energy of its affection will be reserved for other uses—to be poured into other channels. It will never flame with fervent zeal, nor bend toward the goal it seeks with passionate intensity. A divided heart will be cold, selfish, phlegmatic, unstable and untrustworthy. How reasonable the command of Him who is worthy of supreme love, that we love him with all the heart!—Rev. A. P. Burgess, in Banner of Holiness.

I AM WAITING.

I am waiting for the Savior—
Weary, faint and sore;
Waiting for his coming,
For the opening of the door;
Waiting, and yet working
Till he bids me rise and come
To the joys of yonder mansion,
To my everlasting home.
A weary path I've trodden,
'Mid toil and pain and strife—
Waiting for my Savior
To call me into life.
Ah! soon he'll bid me come—
My trials will be o'er;
Yes, I'm waiting and I'm watching
For the opening of the door;

Earnest Christian.

A CARD.

A FEW STUBBORN FACTS.

When Elder Miles Grant was on this coast last spring, he held a discussion in Napa City, with Canright, on the "Seventh Day Question." During that discussion Eld. Grant made certain statements, to which some of the Seventh Day Adventists took exceptions, and, after he left the State, and had returned home to Boston, he was violently assailed through a printed circular, and otherwise by some of the Seventh Day people and accused of mendaciousness and other serious offenses. Having returned to California, Elder Grant desired to meet his accusers face to face, and submit all the facts to an impartial public. His friends here felt that this was due to himself and to the cause he represents; and, furthermore, wished to have a public discussion of the Sabbath question.

Since Elder Grant was here last spring, Vallejo was visited by a minister of the Seventh Day faith, who consumed weeks in impressing his views upon the public. Those who keep the first day of the week desired that Elder Grant should present their side of the question, and wishing that the whole truth might be brought out, resolved to invite those of a contrary faith to meet him in discussion. A meeting of the Advent Christian Society, of Vallejo, was held on Wednesday evening, Nov. 25th, 1874, when a committee of three was appointed to confer with brothers of the Seventh Day Society, with a view to bringing about a discussion. They prepared the following communication, which they delivered to J. S. Howard for the Seventh Day Advent Society, on the day it was dated:

VALLEJO, Nov. 26th, 1874.

To the Society of Seventh Day Adventists, Vallejo.

BRETHREN:—We have been deputed by the Advent Christian Society of Vallejo to invite you to paticipate with them in a discussion of the points of disagreement between these two bodies of Adventists, upon what is familiarly known as "The Seventh Day Question." We name Elder Miles Grant to conduct the discussion on our part, and cordially invite you to name some one to represent you. The discussion to be held under fixed parliamentary rules, and a moderator to be mutually agreed upon. There are several reasons why this discussion should take place.

First, it should be held in the interest of truth. Secondly, because your views have been set forth in this community, and it is only fair that the other side should be heard; and we deem it best that this should be done from the same platform where no advantage can be taken or claimed afterward. Thirdly, it is eminently proper that Bro. Canright, or some other brother of your faith, should meet Bro. Grant, inasmuch as, after he returned east last spring, he was accused by a private circular, through the columns of the Signs of the Times, from the desk, and and privately, of having made statements which were untrue. He is here prepared to verify every assertion, or statement of history or of facts, heretofore made by him, and it is but fair that he should be confronted by his accusers, and convicted publicly of the grave offenses with which he is charged, if he is guilty.

We trust you will select Bro. Canright, or some one else, to represent you, and that we shall have the pleasure of mutually fixing upon an early day for the discussion. A prompt reply to this communication is respectfully solicited. May truth and righteousness prevail.

Yours in Christian love and fidelity,

A. J. YOUNG,

J. F. LINTHICUM,

Bro. Howard informed us that that he would communicate at once with his brethren, Canright and Loughborough, and, as soon as he received a reply from them, communicate the same to us. On Monday evening last he attended the meeting at the Advent Chapel, after the services were over, stated in conversation that he had heard from his brethren, and that they could not engage in a discussion because their time was too much occupied. He did not produce the letter which he said he had left at home, but promised to give a written reply to our communication. This he has declined to do, and has taken occasion to print a remarkable card in the Vallejo Evening Chronicle, denying that any response had been received from Elders Canright and Loughborough. We have no disposition to reply to his quibbles or scurrility, but simply desire to present the naked facts to an impartial public.

We have used every proper means in our power to secure a fair discussion of the "Seventh Day Question," in which a deep interest is felt. Elder Canright was approached personally by Elder Grant, and declined a discussion. We then addressed a respectful commnnication to the Society of Seventh Day Adventists in Vallejo, inviting a discussion, and in this we have failed.

But, more than this, it was the earnest desire of Elder Grant that those who had preferred charges against him during his absence, should meet him face to face, and substantiate them if they could. We sought to bring this about, and have failed.

No alternative is now left but for Elder Grant to proceed without his accusers, if they persist in declining to be present, and the Advent Christian Society of Vallejo, will insist upon his doing so, as a solemn duty he owes to himself and to the church.

On behalf of that Society we hereby give notice that he will take up the subject on Saturday evening Dec. 5th, 1874, at the Advent Christian Chapel in Vallejo, and we extend another and earnest invitation to the brethren of the Seventh Day faith to meet him in discussion.

Nay, more, we demand that those who have brought accusations against him when his back was turned, shall present themselves now, while he is here to defend himself, and make them good or retract them.

ELDER GRANT'S DEFENSE.

Last night Elder Grant took up the charges which had been preferred against him by the Seventh-Day people. He selected as the basis of his remarks the 16th verse of the 20th chapter of Exodus (the ninth commandment): "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." He said that he had paid but little attention to these charges, because personally he did not fear them, but that friends thought they should be replied to, and he consented to do so. He referred to the fact that they were made after he had left the State, and that upon his return his accusers could not be prevailed upon to confront him.

He took up the Advent Review and Herald of the Sabbath Extra, in which all the grievances urged against him were set forth, and replied fully and frankly to them. He was charged with continuing to try to provoke discussion in localities where his only hope is to distract and tear down, and said that when he first came to this coast he was challenged by Elder Cornell to a discussion, and accepted. Subsequently, when on another visit to California, he did challenge Elder Cornell, and finally had a discussion with Elder Canright at Napa.

He was accused of having dealt unfairly in regard to another challenge between other parties some years ago, the parties being Elder Andrews on the part of the Sabbatarians, and Elder Preble on the part of those who keep the first day. The charge was that he had refused to publish, in the World's Crisis Elder Andrews' acceptance of a challenge from Elder Preble. Elder Grant, in 1873, met Elder White, who complained of this, and, upon representations to this effect, promised to make an apology, which he did in the Crisis, having forgotten the real facts in the case, and assuming that what Elder White stated was correct. Upon the facts being recalled to mind, however, it turned out that the challenge really proceeded from Elder Andrews, and that this and Elder Preble's acceptance were published in the Crisis at the same time.

In answer to the charge of having slandered Mrs. Ellen White, he said he had never done anything of the kind. He had always spoken kindly of her personally, but had charged and was prepared to prove that her visions did not proceed from the Lord. This he promised to do Monday evening, when he would take up Mrs. White's visions.

He reviewed the Springfield campmeeting affair, and defended his course. We have neither time, nor the ability, to do justice to his discourse, as we have to rely upon memory to quote him, but his replies were clear and emphatic, and met the issues presented squarely and satisfactorily. In conclusion, he said if he had omitted anything material, or had not answered any charge satisfactorily, he would be glad to have his attention directed to it, and he would take it up at the openiug of the services Monday evening.—Vallejo (Cal.) Independent, Dec. 6th, '74.

WHAT MEN NEED.

How little most men know of their real condition before God, or the real wants of their soul. A man who has been leading an irregular life for years said to me, "I am not so bad as you think; I frequently have very good thoughts, and I sometimes pray to God; what I want is some good advice."

"No," I replied, "what you want is not good advice, but a new heart; and nothing but a new heart will be of any permanent advantage to you."

It is the merest superficiality to suppose that all we need is to amend our lives. A man is what his nature is. He does not make his nature, but his nature makes him. And down in the very depths of his being his nature itself must be changed, as the beginning of any good work in him. Our nature is corrupt and evil; that is why we are sinful. The fountain must be cleansed before the stream that flows from it shall be pure. We must get a new nature, pure and holy, before we ourselves can be good and true. And this new nature it is impossible that we should get by anything that we can do. To change our nature is not in our power. A new nature is the work and gift of God, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Have you this new nature? If not, then the first great necessity of your soul is not yet met. But God in grace is ready to meet that necessity now, and give you through the operation of his Spirit a new life in Christ.

"THE END OF PREACHING," says George Herbert, "is praying." A minister observing a poor man by the road-side, breaking stones with a pickaxe, and kneeling, to get at his work the better, said to him, "Ah, John, I wish I could break the stony hearts of my hearers, as easily as you are breaking these stones!" The man replied, "Perhaps, master, you don't work on your knees."

OUR POSITION AND PROSPECTS.

H. MUNGER.

For ten years we, as a people, have not had the doors open to us as now. In most places there are some minds inquiring after something more definite and scriptural, concerning the times we are living in, than they get in the churches. This produces a demand for our kind of preaching; and we can reach a class now that we never have before. I have preached within a few weeks in five different denominational churches, with good effect. There are reasons for this change in our favor. The bitterness of opposition has died; and many see God's Word fulfilling so clearly in the fashionable religion of the day and increasing wickedness, that they are alarmed, and acknowledge it. Many of the rising generation see the difference between preaching fables and God's Word, and they prefer to attend Advent meetings. Some have got half converted to the truth by our preaching already. So our prospects are better than for many years, for doing good. All we need now is to drop all little points of difference of opinion that have divided our effort, and unitedly battle for the great cardinal truths we came out on. All agree that this drawing off, and setting up an opposition meeting in the same place, is done generally by those who want to rule or ruin. Officers of the church ought to be such men as take the office as a duty, instead of the honor.

WHEN we build our churches by fairs; sweep off great debts by men hired, at a great price, to manipulate an audience under circumstances of tremendous pressure; sustain public worship by the sensationalism of the pulpit, or the artistic attractions of the choir; fill up our Sabbath schools by picnics and prizes; raise money for the various benevolent objects in all sorts of ways, we are weakening the legitimate motive that should govern us, and which it is the very purpose of God to develop within us, and without which the religion we would sustain is not worth sustaining; viz., the simple sense of duty.—Banner of Holiness.

"GOSPEL ministers should not only be like dials on watches, or mile-stones upon the road, but like clocks and larums, to sound the alarm to sinners. Aaron wore bells as well as pomegranates, and the prophets were commanded to lift up their voice like a trumpet. A sleeping sentinel may be the loss of the city."—Bishop Hall.

HOME AND HEALTH.

A DELIGHTFUL AND HEALTHFUL CLIMATE.

R. H. GRESHAM.

Dear Brethren in Christ (of New England and elsewhere):—Within a few weeks past I have received several letters from those of like precious faith, enquiring of me as to the healthfulness of the climate in this highland section etc; and supposing that many others may desire to make similar enquiries, I send this for publication.

I consider this section of country, called Western North Carolina, the most desirable for the promotion of good health of any locality in the United States lying east of the Mississippi River. I have never visited California, but will assure you that I consider this climate far preferable to that of Denver, Colorado; or of any portion of the Western or Eastern States east of Denver. Our Southern latitude here prevents the extreme cold as you have it in New England, and the altitude supplies us with fresh, dry, pure air, and prevents excessive heat in summer. I came here from Indiana. Have been here near twelve months, and am greatly delighted with the climate, the pure soft water gushing from the mountain sides in many hundreds of beautiful springs, and with the pleasant and intelligent society I have met with.

The people here are well informed on many subjects, but they neither know or care much about the soon coming of Jesus Christ. I find a few persons who seem willing to be taught in the Word of truth, and I am trying to teach them; and I think that much good may be done here if the Master should not come for several years. I am treated by all classes with marked attention and kindness, but some of the preachers call me a heretic because I tell them that the Bible says "All the wicked will God destroy."

In New York City the heat in summer is generally about fifteen to twenty degrees warmer than here; and in winter generally about twenty degrees colder than here. We have some cold blustering days here in winter and early spring, but the air is nearly always very pure and refreshing. We never have chills and fever unless it is brought here, and then it soon leaves a man.

The report of this country by Doctor Getchell I think very reliable. There are a few Northern people throughout this mountain region, and the number is fast increasing. Mr. Spear, a prominent gentleman from Lynn, Mass., has lately bought a fine residence and settled here. A gentleman from New Bedford, Mass, in very poor health has been here a few weeks, and is much improved. Board in this town is $20 to $30 a month; but ten to twenty miles from here, in smaller towns and among the farmers, can be had at $7 to $14 per month for comfortable and wholesome living. Land five miles from this town is cheap;—$2 to $10 per acre for wood lands and $6 to $25 per acre for improved farms. Weaverville which is about nine miles north of here has a good high school. The location is delightful, and the land round about there can be bought cheap. I will be pleased to answer my brethren or others about any of these matters.

MENTAL TRAINING AND HEALTH.

In the advancing knowledge of physiology it has been discovered that all mental culture should be based upon the brain—that education should be pursued in harmony with the laws of life and health, and that, where these are violated, the advantages of the former afford poor compensation. Formerly no attention, or scarcely any, was paid by school boards and teachers, in the matter of education, to the condition of the body or the development of the brain, and even at the present day very little attention is paid them, compared with what should be given to those great physical laws which underlie all mental culture. The lives of a multitude of children and youth are sacrificed every year in this Commonwealth by violating the laws of physiology and hygiene, through mistaken or wrong methods of mental training; besides, the constitution and health of a multitude of others are thus impaired or broken down for life.

No where else in society is a radical reform needed more than in our educational systems. Inasmuch as the laws of the body lie at the foundation of all proper culture, they should receive the first consideration. But, in educating the boy or girl, from the age of five to fifteen, how little attention is given to the growth and physical changes which necessarily occur at this most important period of life! The age of the child should be considered; the place of schooling, the hours of confinement and recreation, the number and kinds of studies, together with the modes of teaching should all harmonize with physical laws—especially those of the brain.—Dr. Nathan Allen, in Popular Science Monthly, for Dec.

DON'T FRET AT HOME.

Of all places on earth, the one which should be most carefully guarded from every thing of an unpleasant nature, is home. And yet how many there are who seem to consider it the place where they may give free utterance to unkind words, which they would never inflict upon the ears of a stranger. There are men who seem to exhaust their daily supply of smiles and kind words upon those whom they meet through the day, while absent from home, so that they have only frowns and fretful words to bestow on their families upon their return. Such men, although they may enjoy the reputation of being strictly honest in business matters, are robbers. They rob their dearest friends of that which is of far greater value than silver or gold. They take from those depending upon them that happiness which they can obtain from no other source.

But not alone upon the "lords of creation" rests this charge of robbery. Who does not know women who exert all their powers to make home pleasant for guests, and yet who render the lives of their own families wretched by constant fretfulness.—Ex.

CONSCIENTIOUS STOMACHS.

Quite frequently we hear from the lips of those who have been complying with the requirements of hygiene relating to diet for some months, remarks like the following:

"I believe that health reform is making me a dyspeptic; I am certain my stomach is not half as strong as it used to be. When I lived as people generally do, I could eat anything I pleased, and never know the difference; but now, I cannot vary in the least degree from the hygienic diet without suffering for it. Formerly, I could eat between meals as much as I pleased, and at any time of the night or day. Now, if I even take a small bite at night, I get up in the morning with a headache, and feel ill all day."

The individual is correct in attributing this change in the disposition of his stomach to the effects of hygienic diet; but he should regard it as a matter of rejoicing, rather than as a thing to be regretted. He need entertain no fears of dyspepsia; the change which he notices is the result of the return to health of his digestive organs. The nerves which were once stupefied and blunted by caustic and irritating condiments, have become acute and active. Instead of allowing the stomach to be imposed upon with all manner of disturbing and unwholesome compounds, as formerly, they are now faithful sentinels, and at once protest whenever any violation of the laws which govern its healthy action occurs.

People who find that their stomachs are become much more sensitive than formerly as the result of a reformatory change in diet, should accept the same as an evidence of returning health. All they need to do is to follow implicity the indications of experience. Of course these suggestions are not intended to apply to that class of dyspeptics who are continually watching their feelings, and anticipating injury from their food. Such persons must act upon principle rather than feeling if they would acquire health.—Health Reformer.

TEMPER AND THE VOICE.—The influence of temper upon tone deserves much consideration. Habits of querulousness or ill-nature will communicate a cat like quality to the singing, as infallibly as they give a quality to the speaking voice. That there really exists amiable tones is not an unfounded opinion. In the voice there is no deception; it is to many the index of the mind, denoting moral qualities; and it may be remarked that the low, soft tones of gentle and amiable beings, whatever their musical endowments may be, seldom fail to please; besides which, the singing of ladies indicates the cultivation of their taste generally, and the embellishment of their mind.—Mordaunt.—Ex.

DR. STREETER, of Santa Barbara, tells the Alta that the worst case of gravel may be cured, the deposit dissolved and passed away, by using the water in which potatoes have been boiled to pieces. Strain the water, sweeten to taste, and drink for two or three weeks. This is a painless cure.

THE practice of drinking large quantities of tea, coffee, or water, with meals, retards digestion. Water, or drinks of which water is the basis, taken while eating, is removed by absorption before digestion takes place.

AWAKE!

Bride of the Lamb, awake! awake!
Why sleep for sorrow now?
The hope of glory, Christ, is thine,
A child of glory thou.

Thy spirit, through the lonely night,
From earthly joy apart,
Hath sigh'd for one that's far away,—
The Bridegroom of thy heart.

But see, the night is waning fast,
The breaking morn is near;
And Jesus comes, with voice of love,
Thy drooping heart to cheer.

He comes—for oh! his yearning heart
No more can bear delay—
To scenes of full unmingled joy,
To call his bride away.

This earth, the scene of all his woe,
A homeless wild to thee,
Full soon upon his heavenly throne
Its rightful King shall see.

Thou, too, shalt reign—He will not wear
His crown of joy alone!
And earth his royal bride shall see
Beside him on the throne.

Then weep no more—'tis all thine own—
His crown, his joy divine,
And sweeter far than all beside,
He, he himself, is thine.

"OUR EARTHLY HOUSE."

J. F. LINTHICUM.

"For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven. If so be that being clothed, we shall not be found naked. For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened; not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life. Now he that hath wrought us for the self same thing is God, who also hath given us the earnest of his Spirit. Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord; (for we walk by faith, not by sight); we are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord." 2 Cor. 5. 1–8.

To many, the language of Paul in these verses conveys the idea that there is a soul residing in the body, and that Paul, when he uses the personal pronoun "we," refers always to this inhabitant of the body, the latter being the house and tabernacle alluded to, and the former the real Paul who is speaking. Admitting for argument's sake that this view is correct, still there is nothing in the language used upon which to base the opinion that the soul is immortal. On the contrary, Paul expressly declares that, "we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that every man may receive the things done in his body," and in another place he declares that "the wages of sin is death."

If we interpret these verses according to the orthodox idea, the most that can be claimed is that there is continued existence of the real man after the decay of the body, and that upon its separation from the body, it goes to the presence of the Lord. The great question of the immortality of the soul remains untouched, for the judgment and punishment are yet to take place. Now the adherents to this idea will not deny that, if Paul's writings were dictated by inspiration, they are consistent. There can be no contradiction and stultification, because when two contradictory views are presented, one must be erroneous, and inspiration does not err. Bearing this in mind, let us turn to another portion of Paul's writings, and when he was addressing these same Corinthians. 1 Cor. 15, commencing at the 16th verse, reads as follows: "For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised; and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." Here Paul clearly teaches that the only hope of a life beyond the present one is in the resurrection of Christ. If Christ be not raised, then they that have died (or fallen asleep, as he expresses it) "are perished." That is the last of them, for Christ, in whom is their only hope of future life, has not been raised and is therefore dead; and how can the dead raise the dead? The reasoning of the apostle is so conclusive on this point that it is unnecessary for us to multiply words upon it. But let us go a step further.

In the verses under consideration (2nd Cor. 5: 1–8), the personal pronoun is relied upon to show that there is a man within the body and that Paul, when speaking of himself, did not refer to the body, but this dweller within it. In other words, whenever he used the pronoun "we," he referred to the soul and not to the body. Now let us apply the same rule to the verses quoted 1 Cor. 15: 16–18). "For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised; and if Christ be not raised your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins; then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." Here we have the pronoun "they" referring to the dead, and of course it refers to the real man, just as "we" refers to the real Paul in the other case. It refers then to the souls of the persons alluded to, and Paul says that, unless Christ be risen they are perished. According to orthodoxy, the soul cannot perish, because it is immortal; and hence Paul was mistaken, because the souls of them that had fallen asleep were in heaven, and consequently were not dependent upon the resurrection of Christ. It will be seen, therefore, that if the popular interpretation of the first eight verses of the fifth chapter of Second Corinthians is correct, Paul had previously led the same people astray by teaching them false doctrines. Paul would contradict Paul, and inspiration would be convicted of fallibility.

But another reason for believing that Paul did not intend to teach that he would be with Christ as soon as he died, is that such a view is inconsistent with the teachings of other inspired writers, who teach that the dead rest in the grave until the resurrection, and know nothing. In Ecclesiastes 9: 10, we read that "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave whither thou goest." And again the fifth verse of the same chapter says, "the dead know not anything." In Job 14: 12, we read that "man lieth down, and riseth not, till the heavens be no more; they shall not awake nor be raised out of their sleep." Again, Psalms 6: 4–5, reads thus: "Return, O Lord, deliver my soul. Oh save me for thy mercy's sake. For in death there is no remembrance of thee; in the grave who shall give thee thanks?" As there is no remembrance of God in the grave, and "the dead know not anything," Paul could not expect to be present with the Lord as soon as he died, in a conscious state, or at all, until the resurrection.

Another reason why Paul could not expect to go to the Lord when he died is that Paul knew that the Lord was in heaven at the right hand of the Father, and Jesus had declared that "no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven" (John 3: 13); and this same Paul wrote to Timothy, that God "dwelleth in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath seen, nor can see." 1 Tim. 6: 16. So Paul could not expect, when he died, to be with the Lord in heaven, where the Father is.

Peter demonstrated to the Jews that people do not go to heaven when they die, in the second chapter of Acts. He quoted David's prophecy (Ps. 16: 8–11), concerning the Lord: "Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope; because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thy Holy One to see corruption. Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance." After quoting this, Peter proceeded to show that David did not refer to himself, but to the Lord; and how does he prove it? He does it by calling their attention to the fact that David had not ascended into heaven. He says (verse 29), "Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us to this day. Therefore, being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne; he seeing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption. For David is not ascended into the heavens," etc. Peter here showed that David could not have referred to himself, because he, David, was dead and buried, and had not ascended into the heavens. If it was only the house that David lived in that had fallen to decay, and still remained among them, and the real David, who once inhabited it, had ascended into heaven, Peter did not know it, for he asserted positively that "David is not ascended into the heavens." Now, if the prophet David had not ascended, but still lay in his grave, is it reasonable to suppose that Paul believed, or meant to assert, that he would ascend as soon as he died? We submit this question to the candid reader.

We have endeavored to show, and think we have adduced sufficient proof to satisfy any reasonable mind, that Paul does not refer in the first eight verses of the fifth chapter of First Corinthians to a literal house, tabernacle or body, or to a soul within the body; nor did he teach that the body is no part of the real man, nor a mere tenement in which the man temporarily dwells.

Let us now see if we can get at the true meaning of the Apostle. In the first place, we will remark that all admit that Paul's language was figurative. "House," "tabernacle," and "body," are frequently used in a figurative sense in the Scriptures, and particularly by Paul. If therefore, we can, by any means, ascertain what that sense is, we shall be in a fair way to interpret correctly the language of the apostle. The word "house" is of frequent occurrence. In the Old Testament, it is sometimes used to denote the tabernacle erected by Moses (Judg. 18: 31), and later for the temple (2 Chron. 5: 14). Paul and Peter, taking up the figure, employ the word to denote the Church of God in a spiritual sense. In 1 Tim. 3: 15, Paul speaks of "the house of God, which is the church of the living God." Again, in Heb. 3: 6, he says—"But Christ, as a son over his own house, whose house are we," etc.; and 1 Pet. 2: 5—"Ye also as lively stones are built up a spiritual house"; and in 1 Cor. 2: 5, he tells the very people he addresses in the text that "ye are God's building." We find, therefore, that Paul frequently used the word "house" in a figurative sense to denote the church. The tabernacle was the temporary dwelling which God commanded Moses to make. It was divided into two apartments,—one the holy place, where the priests went to officiate; the other the most holy place, where the ark of the covenant was kept, and into which the high priest entered alone once a year. The tabernacle was covered by a tent, or "house," and is used by Paul to represent God's dwelling-place within the church, which is called a "house." Paul and Timothy were his priests, or ministers, and, to preserve the figure, represented themselves as being in the holy place, in the tabernacle, the Lord being in the most holy place, which is heaven, interceding with the Father.

The third word that comes under our notice as being used figuratively is "body." Paul frequently employed it in a figurative sense, for the church, as the following examples will suffice to show: 1 Cor. 10: 17—"For we being many are one bread and one body," etc. Eph. 5: 15, 16—"But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ; from whom the whole body fitly joined together, and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love." 1 Cor. 12: 27—"Now are ye the body of Christ and members in particular; and God hath set some in the church," etc. It is clear from these qnotations, and others that might be adduced, that Paul frequently used "body" as a figure of the church, and it cannot be shown that he ever employed either "house" or "body" figuratively to denote the natural body. Having seen that the language of Paul in the text is figurative, and ascertained in what sense he uses the words "house" and "body" in other portions of his writings, and the necessity of using "tabernacle" in connection with "house" to complete the figure, and that he had already addressed these same Corinthians to whom the words of the text were written, as "God's building" and "the body of Christ," we now remark that, if the popular idea be correct, two or more persons must occupy the same body; for Paul uses the plural pronoun "we," and speaks of but one house and but one tabernacle. All the persons, therefore, represented by "we" must have occupied one house or body. This phraseology is kept up throughout: "We know that if our earthly house," etc. "For in this we groan," etc. "We that are in this tabernacle," and, "whilst we are at home in the body." Hence all the souls represented by "we" must have been in one and the same house or body. This ought to be sufficient to show that the orthodox interpretation of these verses is incorrect.

Having ascertained what Paul does not mean, let us inquire what is the true interpretation of his language. We remark, in the first place, that "Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God and Timothy our brother," wrote this epistle "unto the church of God which is at Corinth," and that Paul and Timothy were addressing this church when the verses we are considering were written. The entire context demonstrates this, and hence it follows that the pronoun "we" refers to Paul and Timothy, and no one else, and it was addressed to "the church of God which is at Corinth." Bearing these facts in mind, and remembering the figurative sense in which the words "house," "tabernacle" and "body" are used, and that they had already addressed these Corinthians as "God's building" and "the body of Christ," we are prepared to understand the text. Paul's meaning was that they (he and Timothy) knew that if the church (or house of God on earth) of which they were ministers, were dissolved, they had a building of God, an house not made with hands, which would descend from heaven.

In this tabernacle, or ministry, they groaned, for said they, just previously (2 Cor. 4: 8–10,—"We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, but not in despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed." Being troubled, perplexed, persecuted, and cast down, it is not strange that they groaned, being burdened with their ministry; or that they earnestly desired the time to come when their house should descend "from heaven." Then mortality would be swallowed up of life, and Paul and Timothy craved this, for then they would be clothed indeed. They knew that, as long as the present dispensation continued, Christ would be absent from his figurative body, the church. They therefore desired that the new order of things should be inaugurated, when the church on earth would have fulfilled its mission, and the earthly house would be dissolved to give place to the house from heaven." Then the Lord would come to establish his kingdom, of which the church is a type, and they would be with him, or "present with the Lord." "Wherefore," said they, "we labor, that whether present or absent, we may be accepted of him; for we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that every one may receive the things done in his body, whether it be good or bad."

The language of the apostle (2 Pet. 1: 12–15) in this view becomes plain, and is easily understood: "Wherefore I will not be negligent [speaking as a minister to his flock] to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the truth; yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir you up by putting you in remembrance, knowing that shortly I must put off this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus Christ hath showed me." Orthodoxy contends that by "tabernacle" here Peter meant his body, but this is clearly disproved by the following (ver. 15)—"Moreover, I will endeavor that ye may be able after MY decease to have these things always in remembrance." Now, it is evident that the same person that was to put off his tabernacle was to die, "I" and "my" referring to the same person. Hence, if it was Peter's immortal soul that must put off its tabernacle (the body), then Peter's immortal soul was soon to die. It is clear, therefore, that Peter's language does not admit of such an interpretation. As "a servant and apostle of Jesus Christ," in the ministry, which was his tabernacle, knowing that he must soon die, and his ministry as an apostle cease, and thus be put off, he exhorted the christians to give due diligence to make their calling and election sure; and this ministry, and not his body, was what Peter was shortly to "put off."

DO THE THREE PERIODS IN DANIEL 9: 24-27 HAVE ONE COMMENCEMENT?

L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

The only remaining point in our inquiry is, whether the "one week" of v. 27 is any part of the "seventy"? If, as has been supposed, the one week, as part of the seventy, begins with the baptism of Christ, it should end, on this hypothesis, with the "seventy," at the crucifixion of Christ. But this would be impossible if Christ was "cut off" in the midst of this "week." If Christ was the one that is referred to that "confirmed the covenant with many for one week," by his personal ministry, it is idle to talk of his delegating others to finish the work; for in this case the miraculous power attending the preaching of the apostles must end at the close of the "week," which is not true. Moreover the sacrifice and the oblation must cease in the midst of this "week." But Jewish sacrifices and offerings did not cease at the crucifixion of Christ; not until forty years afterwards.

That this "one week" is a period of time separate from the "seventy," is evident from the connection in which it is used. The angel uses it in relation to a prince that was to destroy Jerusalem by his army—"And the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city, and the sanctuary, and the end thereof shall be with a flood; and unto the end of the war desolations are determined; and he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week, and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease; and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the desolator." Thus we see, by the connection in which this "one week" is used, that it stands related to the war on Jerusalem by the Romans,—a period of seven years, as history gives to this war. If Christ is the one referred to by the term "prince," in this connection, then Christ and his people, or Christians, destroyed Jerusalem; which is untrue, for Christ told his people that "when ye shall see Jerusalem compassed with armies, then know that the desolation thereof is nigh. Then let them which are in Judea flee to the mountains; and let them which are in the midst of it depart out; and let not them in the countries enter thereinto. For these be the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled."

Says Dr. Gill on the phrase, "and the people of the prince," etc.:—"That is, the people of the Romans under Vespasian their prince, emperor and general, should in a little time after the cutting off of the Messiah enter into the land of Judea and destroy the city of Jerusalem, and the temple that stood in it. . . . Jewish writers interpret it as applying to Vespasian, Aben Ezra, Jarchi, Abarbinel, and Jaccobiades." Dr. Gill then says on the "one week": "A covenant should be confirmed with many; which is not to be understood of the Messiah's confirming the covenant of grace with many, or on account of all his people, by fulfilling the conditions of it, and by his blood and sacrifice, through which all the blessings of it come to them; for this is not for one week only, but forever; but this is to be interpreted by the Roman people, spoken of in the latter part of the preceding verse." Then on the phrase, "in the midst of the week," etc., he says:—"The daily sacrifice of the Jews, and all their other offerings; and which was literally fulfilled in the half part of this week, as it may be rendered; towards the close of the latter half of it, when the city of Jerusalem being closely besieged by Titus, what, through the closeness of the siege, the divisions of the people, and the want both of time and men and beasts to offer, the daily sacrifice ceased, as Josephus says, to the great grief of the people; nor have the Jews, ever since the destruction of their city and temple offered any sacrifice, esteeming it unlawful so to do in a strange land."

Says Dr. Barnes on the passage—"the people of the prince," etc.—"The word people is a word that may well be applied to subjects or armies; such a people as an invading prince or warrior would lead with him for purposes of conquest. It denotes properly (a) people, or tribe, or race, in general; and then (b) the people as opposed to kings, princes, rulers, . . . and then as soldiers. Judges 5: 2. Hence it may be applied, as it would be understood to be here, to the soldiers of the prince that should come.

"Of the prince that shall come. The word prince here is the same which occurs in v. 25—'Messiah the prince.' It is clear, however, that another prince is meant here, for (a) it is just said that that prince—the Messiah—would be cut off, and this clearly refers to one that was to follow; (b) the phrase 'that is to come' would also imply this. It would naturally suggest the idea that he would come from abroad, or that he would be a foreign prince; for he would 'come' for the purposes of destruction. No one can fail to see the applicability of this to the destruction of Jerusalem by the Roman powers after the Lord Jesus was put to death. If that was the design of the prophecy, or if it be admitted that the prophecy contemplated that, the language could not have been better chosen, or the prediction more exact. No one can reasonably doubt that, if the ancient Hebrews had understood the former part of the prophecy as meaning that the true Messiah would be put to death soon after his appearing, they could not fail to anticipate that a foreign prince would soon come and lay waste their city and sanctuary.

"Shall destroy the city and the sanctuary. The 'holy place'—the temple. This is the termination of the prophecy. It begins with the command to rebuild and restore the city, and ends with its destruction. The time is not fixed, nor is there in the prophecy any direct intimation when it would occur, unless it be found in the general declaration in ver. 24, that 'seventy weeks were determined upon the people and the city.' The whole scope of the prophecy, however, would lead to the supposition that this was soon to occur after the Messiah should be "cut off." The series of events under the Romans, which led to the destruction of the city and temple, in fact began very soon after the death of the Lord Jesus, and ceased only when the city was razed to its foundations, and the temple wholly demolished."

Here Dr. Barnes gives the correct view, in the application he makes, of the phrase—"the people of the prince," etc.; yet with strange inconsistency applies the remaining part of the prophecy partly to the work of Christ and his apostles, in confirming the covenant, etc., and then to the Romans as desolators of the city of Jerusalem. Thus Dr. Barnes is not as consistent as Dr. Gill in his application of the "one week." If, Drs. Gill and Barnes' application of the term "prince" to a "foreign prince," or to the Roman prince, is correct, then Dr. Barnes should accept, as does Dr. Gill, that this Roman prince confirmed the covenant with many for one week, or seven years; for it is the same prince that "destroys the city and sanctuary," that "confirms the covenant" and "causes the sacrifice and the oblation to cease." The same antecedent "he" that destroys the city and sanctuary, "confirms the covenant," causes "the sacrifice and offerings to cease," and makes the city desolate until the consummation; and then in turn is himself desolated, as the Roman power will be, at the coming of Christ.

If we are to follow the order of prophecy, and are governed by the express words of Gabriel to Daniel, when he presents to the prophet the work of destruction to be visited upon the city of Jerusalem, to follow shortly after the "cutting off" of their Messiah, as recorded in verse 26, we cannot fail to perceive that Gabriel, after leaving Messiah "cut off," proceeds immediately to describe the work of desolation coming upon Jerusalem, and that "one week" is the period of time specified in which to accomplish said work. This "one week" also stands related to this work of desolation, being introduced in the midst of the predictions on this subject; also being one continued discourse from verse 26, after leaving Messiah "cut off," to the end of chapter 9. The confirmation of the covenant must therefore refer to the fulfillment of the prophecy in Deut. 28, and called in chap. 29, v. 1, "the words of the covenant which the Lord commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, beside the covenant which he made with them in Horeb." This covenant related to "blessings" and "curses";—blessings to follow obedience; curses to follow disobedience; called in verse 21 of chapter 29 "the curses of the covenant." These curses culminated on the Jewish nation at the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, which left them forever a desolated people. God carried out the conditions of this covenant on his part in bringing the curses upon them as foretold by Moses, and uses the Roman prince as the agent in confirming or establishing this covenant.

The siege of Jerusalem and its final overthrow, with the dispersion of the Jews, are among the closing events specified in the "curses" of said covenant in Deut. 28. And certainly the awful scenes witnessed, and the calamities experienced by the Jewish nation, during those seven years of war and famine which were visited upon the city of Jerusalem from A. D. 65 to 72, confirmed or established "the words of the covenant," as above alluded to.

That the "covenant" here referred to cannot mean the "new covenant" is evident, because it is not thus distinguished here by Gabriel, nor qualified, as in Jer. 31: 31, and Heb. 8: 8; also because, instead of its being confirmed or established for a period of seven years, it has been thus confirmed or established for more than eighteen hundred years. And, moreover, Paul does not speak in Heb. 8: 13 of the old covenant as then (A. D. 64) ended, or vanished away, but as waxing old—decaying—"ready to vanish away," or near dissolution—(Syriac translation). This dissolution occurred in A. D. 70, when the temple worship ended by the destruction of the temple itself. This forever ended all legal worship among the Jews.

From these considerations, it is clearly manifest that the "one week" is a period of time distinct from the seventy, in which this special work of wrath was to be visited upon the Jewish nation, which ended their theocracy, and closed up that dispensation forever. Thus we see a naturalness in these applications that we make of the several periods, not only to historical facts, but also to the plain and literal import of the prophecy itself.

In conclusion, let me say to all inquirers after the truth, Examine closely what has been presented in our expositions of the periods, and if you discover anything therein not according to sound doctrine, please point it out, and give us a better exposition of this prophecy, and we will rejoice; for it is the truth we want, and not speculation, or fanciful interpretations of the holy Oracles. Our desire is to see more prophetical research exhibited among us, and sound expositions of prophecy brought forth to feed the waiting household with "meat in due season." Amen.

HOW THE MILLENNIUM IS TO COME.

People think they see signs of promise in the movement of reform. They think to give the church a better shape, and the state a better government, and the world a freer Bible, and that thus the millennium will come. I have no confidence in any such hopes. I see more of promise in the darkest features of the time than in all these pious and patriotic dreams. The world is perhaps more wicked now than it has been since Noah's flood—considering the light which it rejects. And yet in this very darkness I read the promise of coming light. In this very misgiving, desperation and gloom, I see the argument for the speedy springing forth of glorious and unfading hopes, not as human reason calculates, but as God purposes. I behold in it the rapid winding up of the present dispensation to give place to that better state of things of which the prophets all have spoken. Statesmen and churchmen see in it the unmistakable evidences of unprecedented changes, though they widely differ as to what those changes are to be.

I have read somewhere, in a very sagacious writer, that when happy changes are contemplated, most people erroneously turn to the quarters of light for the signs of its approach. This has ever been man's mistake when looking for the fulfillment of God's great purposes, and is the mistake of many now. People are looking for the setting up of Christ's kingdom, and the introduction of millennial glory by reforming and rebaptizing present modes of effort and thought. But so it will not be. God's method of progress is to make darkness the way to light, death the prelude to life, despair the introduction to salvation, and corruption and confusion the road to order and glory. It is not in what seems hopeful, but in what seems gloomy and untoward, that we are to look for the signs of the speedy forth-coming of God's wonder-working goodness. It is the stirring upon the dark waters that give prognostics of the breaking forth of light, and life, and beauty.

The bursting glories of spring come directly out of the bleak winter. It is from the corrupting seed that we obtain the harvest. The darkest hour is said to be that which immediately precedes the day. The period most hopeful is that when the apparent motives for despondency are most overwhelming. The stress of the controversy between hope and fear always falls upon the eve of triumph. Those dim hours of dismay to the scattered followers of Christ at his crucifixion were but the preludes to the bringing in of light and immortality for man. The bloody persecutions under the Roman emperors which threatened the extinction of Christianity were the immediate precursors of its victory over even the throne of the Cæsars. And so the Scriptures teach that it will be in the ushering in of the great consummation. The sun must darken, and the moon withhold her light, and then shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings.—Dr. J. Seiss, in Messiah's Herald.

HOME RELIGION.

J. W. THOMAS.

"Then David returned to bless his household." 2 Sam. 6: 20.

How can a christian bless his household? Here we suppose that he has a family. He is not a poor, illiberal, solitary individual; preferring vice, or mopishness, or an escape from expense, care, and trouble, to a state which was designed to complete the happiness of Adam in Paradise, and which Inspiration has pronounced to be "honorable in all. He believes in the wisdom and veracity of God, who has said, "It is not good for man to be alone." The head of a family may bless his household by example. It is natural for the soldier to look to his captain, the scholar to his teacher, the servant to his master, the child to his parent. Superiors are watched. How you live, the example you set, has a controlling influence over those under you. It will amount to but little for you to require your household to walk in the right path, unless you walk there yourself. Children are imitators; they do what they see others do.

He may "bless his household" by government. Order is heaven's first law. All of God's arrangements are harmonious. Everything in a family should be in order. Your meals, your devotional exercises, your rising and your rest. It is important to peace, to temper, to diligence, and economy; confusion is friendly to every evil work. What strife, and misery, and poverty there is in some households, just because there is no order, no regularity. Children eating at all times a day, clothes scattered about the floor, and everything in general confusion. Have order. If you are the head of the family, be the head. Give the commands, and have them obeyed. Train up a child in the way he should go, and not in the way that he would. For what is Abraham commended? "I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the ways of the Lord to do justice and judgment." What did Joshua say? "As for me, and my house, we will serve the Lord."

You may "bless your household" by instruction. Get your head full of the right kind of knowledge. Study good books on various subjects. Some parents do not know much of anything. They live in ignorance, and bring up their children the same. I suppose there are many homes in this enlightened country, where there are not half a dozen good books in the house. You should be able to instruct your children in those things that pertain to the health of their bodies, as well as to the purity of their minds. Know where your children go, know what they read, know with whom they associate. Evil communications corrupt good manners.

You may "bless your household" by securing their attendance on the means of grace. How strange and inconsistent it looks for parents to attend church, and allow their children to stroll about on the Sabbath. Early impressions and practices are not soon forgotten. Take them with you to the house of God, and let them hear the word of truth proclaimed. Ministers ought to preach simple enough so the children can understand them. Do not starve the lambs to death, nor drive them away by scolding at them. Give them something to eat. In your deep researches after truth, and eagerness to present it, do not forget the lambs. Jesus did not. He took them in his arms and blessed them, and in his last charge to Peter, he said, "Feed my lambs."

You may "bless your household" by having family devotion. Read the Bible, and pray with your family. Serve God at home. Let your home be a pure, sweet, heavenly, attractive place. If there is anything beautiful and lovely in this world, it is a christian home, where parents and children live in peace and harmony, and sing the praises of Jesus. O fathers, O mothers, whatever your engagements in other directions, do not forget your homes. Whatever else you neglect do not neglect your homes. Bring up your children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. You are responsible. If you want your children to bless you through eternal years, then "bless your household" while you have health, time, and opportunity.

SOMETHING TO DO.

C. MENDENHALL.

As christians, we are engaged in a work of vast importance and responsibility.

Although we know that faith is the great saving feature in the plan of salvation, we are taught that to become effective it must be coupled with works. Your faith prompts activity, hence, you are told to "work out your own salvation with fear and trembling."

Invitations to those who are ungodly and impure show that some action, some step is to be made by man in co-operation with God. Isaiah says—"Wash ye, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well. Seek judgment; relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow." The Psalmist has said—"Depart from evil."

Naturally we are impure and evil;—"For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God;" therefore our position must be changed. We are offered pardon, purity and reward: but to gain the advantages of these things we must come to the fountain, partake of the bread of life, and lay hold on eternal life.

As one might starve in the midst of plenty, if he did not appropriate and utilize that which sustains life, so we, when we felt the weight of guilt upon us, might have been crushed beneath the load, had we not relieved ourselves by God's appointed way.

The divine Being has opened a way for reconciliation; he has offered pardon, but man must exercise his moral agency, he must apply the remedy—he must look and live. With him is the choice. No one is compelled to walk in the narrow way. He is warned, cautioned, but not forced.

Sinner, do you realize the responsibility which rests upon you? Life and death is set before you; your danger is known to you; the way of escape is plain, you cannot plead ignorance. Will you not then arouse, leave your present dangerous ground, and come over to the side of Him who is All-Powerful? You are dead in trespasses and sins, yet there is hope, there is healing, aye, there is life, if you will only do your part. "Wherefore he saith, Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light." Eph. 5: 13.

Saints cannot consistently be idle. There is a work to do. The field is white for harvest. Many are unsaved. No time for idleness, for strife, for folly; but be living your religion daily and hourly. True Christianity is not only negative, but positive. It is a warfare against evil and error, aggressive and defensive. We all have something to do, and but little time to do it in. Then let us devote all our strength to that end. Serve God with singleness of heart and earnestness of purpose. Pray for wisdom to know our duty, and for strength to perform it. We cannot do too much for Christ. In view of this fact, press on. Weary not in well-doing, for God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love, which ye have shown toward his name." Do we love Christ? Let us then be watchful, active, and jealous for his cause, remembering that he has said, "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you."

The provisions of the new postal law, requiring pre-payment of postage on all newspapers, go into operation on the first of January next. After that date all postage (excepting on newspapers within the County in which they are published) will have to be paid at the Office from which the paper is mailed. This change relieves the subscribers from the care and trouble of postage payment, placing it upon the publishers, and making the expense, which is quite an item, to come directly upon the latter.

To meet this (in regard to the Crisis), the Adv. Chris. Pub. Society, at a late meeting, voted to add twenty-five cents to the price of our paper; so that from Jan. 1st, 1875, the World's Crisis will be $2.25 per year in advance. And hereafter, all monies received at this office for advance pay on the Crisis will be credited from Jan. forward at the rate of $2.25 per year. And if any, who have already paid for the paper in advance, are disposed to send us what they would have to pay at their Post Office, under the old law, we will thankfully receive the same; and so of those who receive the Crisis FREE.

IN CANADA AND THE PROVINCES we would say—That having had to pay the postage to the Line in time past, we shall only have to do the same from Jan. 1st, 1875. CLOSE OF THE YEAR.

Another year, with its varied changes, is about to be closed up for examination at the day of judgment. Is the review of it pleasant to the reader? Has it been a year of sweet peace in Christ? or has it left a cup full of remorse? Does the retrospect bring condemnation? or does it appear as a shining way, full of heavenly light, strewed with great blessings, and constant rest in Jesus? It is well to criticise ourselves closely at the close of the year, to see if there is anything about us that we do not wish to have continued. It is a good time to clean up, provided anything filthy remains in the heart, or in our habits. No sinful weight should be carried into another year to harass us, and destroy our peace. Throw it away at once, now. Let the will be firm, unyielding, trusting in the Lord for help, and the victory is easily gained. Let no one, who is looking for the coming of Jesus, be a slave to a bad habit any longer. Begin the new year with a clean heart, in order that all the desires, thoughts, feelings, and words may be clean. If the mouth has been polluted with the use of tobacco, clean it out, and not allow the filthy weed to corrupt the system any longer. Be decided to be free from the yoke of bondage, and the loathsome habit. Let every idol be crucified with Christ. Give him the whole heart, for his absolute control.

Are there any usettled difficulties with any one? be reconciled immediately, so as to begin the new year without hatred, grudge or variance. Let us begin it as we wish to have it continued. Carry none of Satan's luggage any further. It costs too much to sin. The coming of Christ is at the door, and it is important that we live in continual preparation to meet him. In order to be ready, it is necessary that we "cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit." 2 Cor. 7: 1. Think of the worth of eternal life. Let us run no risks of losing it. Sin, and nothing else, will cause the second death. If we give up all to Jesus, he will supply us with power to resist all the temptations of the world, the flesh and the devil. If we live in 1875, let us live in Christ, and out of sin, free from all corrupting habits. Let no unkind words escape our lips to a living soul; let no murmuring be heard when things do not please us; but bear all patiently, and thus grow in grace, and enjoy abounding peace. We shall have plenty of temptations and crosses, but keep the mind staid on the Lord, and we have nothing to fear. Jesus can protect us as easily in the storm as in the calm, if we only trust in his strength. In all trials, remember he has said, "My grace is sufficient for thee, for my strength is made perfect in weakness." 2 Cor. 1 2: 9. Bless his dear name, we know this to be true from happy experience. In the heaviest trials, he draws the nearest, and his helping hands are felt most sensibly.

Come, dear Brn. and Srs., let us all be given up to Jesus from this hour, so that we may be "free indeed" all the days we may live in 1875.

VALLEJO.

We closed our first series of meetings in Vallejo (Cal.,) last evening, Dec. 11th. It was a precious season of heavenly communion with Jesus and his saints. The church stands firmer in the Lord than ever before. Sweet peace and harmony prevail, and like a true and loving bride, this church stands anxiously waiting for the coming of our glorious King. The Vallejo church delights in the subject of holiness, and feasts on the pure things of the gospel. Heavy storms have been encountered during the past year, but the great Pilot has been in their midst, guiding them safely through all their dangerous perils, and now they are sailing delightfully with a fair breeze towards the heavenly harbor, with a good prospect of soon landing "on the evergreen shore."

We had a precious season around the communion table, at the close of the evening meeting. Members of other churches gathered with us in loving harmony, rejoicing in the same blessed hope. We part with the Vallejo church at this time with very pleasing emotions as to their spiritual condition and prospects of salvation when Jesus comes. We have great reason to praise the Lord for what he has done in this city, even during the past two weeks.

To-morrow, Dec. 13th (our birthday), we are to preach in San Francisco; Tuesday evening, the 15th, commence meetings in Sacramento, and the 21st, in Santa Clara; then, probably have a series of meetings in San Francisco. Pray for us, dear friends in Jesus.
M. G.

SACRAMENTO.

We commenced meetings in Sacramento last evening (Tuesday, Dec. 15th) in a pleasant hall, which was crowded with an intelligent audience, that listened very attentively to a discourse on "the signs of the times." Two ministers were in, who appeared very friendly, and anxious to hear. The prospect is very encouraging. The church in this city, looking for the coming of Christ, is doing well, and heartily at work in the Lord's vineyard. Bro. G. W. Ficks, and the two Bro. Nichols (from Massachusetts) have been proclaiming with good success the glad news that Jesus is coming soon. They are all fine young men, and bid fair to be useful laborers in the cause of Christ, in these last days.

This city lies in wickedness, and makes one think of Sodom. Holy men are not plenty. Righteousness seldom appears among business men, or in fashionable society. Bold, earnest men of God are much needed here to arouse the careless multitude, as they lie sleeping on the very brink of eternal ruin. They seem as careless as did the Sodomites the day before their destruction. They live as though they believed the Bible a fiction, sin of no consequence, the judgment a farce, future punishment a fancy dream, Satan a myth, and Jesus about the same. They appear to be perfectly indifferent to all sacred things, and live as though the whole duty of man consisted in getting money in every possible way, and then to live in pleasure, regardless of the future life. Present gratification fills their will to satisfaction. Practically they say, If there is a future, we do not care to trouble our minds about the matter. Much of this state of feeling has been produced by the unchristian lives of professors. A radical reform is needed,
M. G.

REGENERATION AND SANCTIFICATION.

What is the difference between the moral and spiritual status of men, expressed by the terms regeneration and sanctification? Does one represent a more perfect and God-like condition than the other? Does it require both, to produce true christian experience? These are questions which are engaging much thought and prayerful inquiry at the present time. They should be discussed by all christians, and with an undivided purpose to obtain the truth upon the subject, so as to be able to occupy a safe position upon the questions. Both terms, in their biblical use, express a change of moral character.

Regeneration is to produce in one the likeness, image, or distinguishing characteristics of another. The regenerated person has the elements of the divine nature implanted in him, so that he is "renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him." It is filling him with divine love, as the controlling element of his life. It is a washing from sin and moral pollution, and a preparation of heart and spirit for the service of God. This change is accomplished by Jesus Christ, and is therefore perfect, as are all his works. The cleansing from sin is perfect, so that he can never be made more sinless. The love with which he is filled is perfect, for it emanates from God the fountain of all perfection. He is God's "workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works;" that is, he is prepared by God for christian service. Solomon said—"The preparation of the heart in man, and the answer of the tongue is from the Lord." This part of christian experience, or conversion, is accomplished by the direct agency and favor of God, and is therefore absolutely perfect, as far as it extends, as to the work wrought, the change made, and the condition obtained.

This we understand to be gospel regeneration. It does not result from a nominal profession of faith in Christ, but from a genuine faith vitalized by the Holy Spirit. It is not produced by sectarian influences, but by the divine power of the gospel, which breaks down all opposition of the heart and will to Christ, and effects a radical and unreserved yielding to God and the claims of his gospel. When a person is thus changed, he is truly a "new creature." Old things (his spiritual character and condition) "are passed away, and all things are become new." It is not and cannot be a partial, superficial change; for God has wrought it. He has created in him a "right spirit." He has given him a pure heart, and it is entirely pure; for he himself has cleansed it.

This work is accomplished in the sinner when he puts himself in a passive state, consenting to let God change him as he pleases.

As the work of regeneration is accomplished by Christ, we should be very careful not to cast reflections on him by directly or indirectly representing it as being imperfect, and the standard of moral character which he established too low. We are not required to find a higher plane to walk on than he placed our feet upon, but as we received Christ Jesus we are so to walk in him. We are only condemned when we lose our first love.

There is no growth implied or experienced in regeneration. A sinner cannot grow out of his sins, any more than sin can grow into righteousness. Sins are not gradually taken from us, one after another; but when any of them is taken away, they are all removed. There is no shade or stain left. We can no more grow into Christianity than a lion can grow into a lamb. If a lion becomes a lamb, God must change it. So it is with a sinner. If he becomes a saint, God must change his spiritual nature. We cannot change ourselves any more than a leopard can change his spots, or an African his color. Christ is our great Regenerator. Let us be careful how we represent or esteem his work.

SANCTIFICATION.

Sanctification, in some passages, signifies the employing of men in the service of God who are prepared for that service by regeneration. Jesus prayed that his people might be sanctified through the truth, and said—"For their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth." His language implies that as he was sanctified, so his people should be sanctified. He was not changed from a sinful to a holy state, as is represented by regeneration; but being in a sinless state he was qualified to engage in a holy work, and set himself apart from every thing and position which would hinder the accomplishment of that work, and gave himself to the work of saving a lost race and world.

His appropriating himself to that holy use was his sanctification. That work was predicted and specified in the Scriptures, and when Jesus employed himself to do it, as specified, he was sanctified through the truth; that is, he was set apart to do that which the Word of God required him to do. He designed and prayed that his people might also (same as himself) be sanctified through the truth. The sanctification of believers in Christ will be, then, to be set apart from all sinful work, and to be employed in doing the holy work which God has revealed to them in his Word to do.

The work of regeneration must precede sanctification; for God will not employ unholy beings to do a holy work. Those who handled sacred vessels under the law had to have clean hands; and those who entered the holy places, purified garments; which were types of Christ's servants. As a certain degree of education is required to qualify a man for a professorship, so a certain degree of purity or holiness is necessary for sanctification. God never sets apart a man to do a work who is not qualified to do it. He may not be able to do more than a child's portion when he commences; but if he is faithful to his trust, he will grow to do a man's work. God will not call a man to do that which requires a pure heart to perform, until his heart is purified. He will call none his children, who do not possess a spiritual likeness to himself;—who do not love their brethren and enemies as he loves them.

Regeneration is like a lock in a canal; it raises the boat to the level of the water in which it is to run. So regeneration raises the sinner from the depths of his pollution to the level of sinlessness and purity, where he can run the christian race successfully.

We understand, therefore, that regeneration and sanctificatinn represent the same moral and spiritual status in the christian; the first is accomplished by God and the second approved of God. They are both regulated by the divine standard, and are not subject to the variations of the human standard. We quote the following from the Christian Standard:—

"John Wesley says 'Regeneration is only the threshold of sanctification, the first entrance upon it.' And in the same sermon he says regeneration is an 'inward change from all unholy to all holy tempers, from pride to humility, from passionateness to meekness, from peevishness and discontent, to patience and resignation; in a word, from an earthly, sensual, devilish mind, to the mind that was in Christ Jesus.'

It is no honor to God or his cause, for any of us to lower the state of regeneration, that we may show the greater contrast with entire holiness. Hence we quote again from Wesley: 'A third scriptural mark of those who are born of God, and the greatest of all, is love; even 'the love of God shed abroad in their hearts by the Holy Ghost given unto them.' Because they are sons, God has sent forth the Spirit of his Son in their hearts, crying, 'Abba, Father.' "

If regeneration "is an inward change from all unholy to all holy tempers," and from an earthly, sensual, devilish mind, to the mind that was in Christ Jesus," we do not see how there can be a higher plane; for that would carry us above "the mind that was in Christ Jesus," into a more holy position than "all holy tempers." When we receive the "love of God shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost," can we obtain in this life any thing more heavenly and perfect? Surely the love and Spirit of God are the characteristic elements of the divine nature. The possession of these divine elements constitute us the "sons" of God; causing us to cry "Abba Father."

We hope all will understand us upon these momentous questions; for we wish to warn all against the snare of superficial, worldly, half-hearted religion, which does not come up to the gospel standard of regeneration, sanctification, or holiness. We have no confidence that any type of christianity will stand the fiery tests of the last day, which has not been produced by the direct power of God, and consequently fitted to the gospel mold.

Readers, be careful! Do not rest satisfied an hour without feeling conscious that Christ saves you now, to-day, from worldly aspirations and fleshly lusts. Try youselves by the gospel, and see if you are habitually indulging in anything prohibited, or neglecting to do do anything required. If you see that you fall short of occupying the position required, then your sanctification is not complete;—your heart or conscience condemns you, and you are not ready to meet your Judge. "If our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God." "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit."

Do not, we beseech you, risk your eternal salvation on any theory which contradicts such passages. Remember that a "holy nation" will be the subjects of Christ's glorious kingdom.

ARE THEY CONVERTED?

As we go around among the churches, and see the kind of material gathered in as the result of the machine operations of the protracted meeting system, we seriously ask the questions, "Are they converted? Do they know the mystery of the new birth? Have they really passed the strait gate of repentance? If so, why do they continue to appear in the fashion of the world, from the associations of which they profess to have taken their departure? Why are they mute in the love-feast or experience meeting? If they have an inward testimony of the Holy Ghost, why have they no outward testimony to give? Depend upon it, there is cause for alarm at this point. The strait-gate by the broad church-ism of the times, is made into a gate standing wide open—wide enough to receive sin in considerable display. Beware brethren, beware of churches filled with unconverted people! —Christian Standard.

We would add our note of warning to that of our editorial brother to the professed christian church, that we have drifted into strange seas of christian labor and experience. The apostolic standard has been lost to many, and a false one raised, graded by worldly aspirations, so as to secure numbers rather than holiness, wealth rather than the divine unction, a good name on earth rather than one in heaven. The strait gate of repentance is widened to a broad gate of liberalism, so that the fashions of Jerusalem are brought from Babylon, and the conduct of Israel are habits contracted in Egypt. If they have experienced a birth, it is of the "bond woman," and not of the "free;" for they are in bondage to the world, and slaves to its wicked customs and habits. They have not been evangelized, but only proselyted to creeds and parties. They have not been stirred by the power of a pure gospel, but by sensational influences artfully and mechanically gotten up for that purpose.

We believe that this superficial, worldly religion, which approaches the communion table with the same confidence from the card-table and billiard hall as it does from the sacred prayer room, is a fatal delusion, one of the most dangerous snares coiled by Satan in Christendom. This is ignorantly endorsed and strengthened by many religious teachers, who encourage many to believe they have become christians because they have come forward to the anxious seats, when they had no particular anxiety about their sins or the faithful service of Christ; but they had been over-persuaded, and a little excited with some sensational subject, and against their voluntary choice to yield to the claims of the gospel, had made this move to gratify the importunity of friends, or go in the current of the hour rather than to seek pardon of Jesus.

A sinner truly renewed by divine grace is a new creature,—thoroughly changed in faith, hope, love, purposes; and is in heart and life moulded into the image of Jesus Christ. He is separated from the world as Jesus was; for the change is accomplished by him, and cannot be superficially done. If any one assumes to be in Christ who is unlike him in spirit and purposes, he is deceived, and that deception will prove fatal if carried to the judgment.
J. C.

THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD.—The church has been bending down to the world till there is but very little difference in their positions. Their spirit and manners blend together so harmoniously, that it is difficult to find a contrast between them. This has become so apparent, that the secular press has its attention called to the sad fact, as one that should cause alarm among all true christian people. See article in another column, headed "Fashion and the Churches."

FROM BRO. S. S. BREWER.

To the Ministers, Delegates, and all that were assembled at the late Conference in Lake Village, N. H.:—

Dearly Beloved:—I received from Elder Daniel Churchill your expressions of deep heartfelt sympathy and pecuniary aid. I have reason to believe that your prayers and the outgushing of christian kindness and brotherly love, on that occasion, were like unto that recorded in the blessed gospel of love, peace, and purity,—Acts 10: 4. The words of Scotia's sweetest bard came instantly into my heaving, swelling heart—

"Affliction's sons are brothers in distress;

This wave of affliction and intense suffering has wafted my shattered, debilitated bark sweetly above the surging deep,

"Nearer, my God, to thee."

I know of no language that seems more expressive of my feelings than that of a certain poet, as breathed in the following strain—

"But how shall words with equal warmth
The gratitude declare,
That glows within my bosom, Lord?
But thou canst read it there."

I am deeply impressed with a constant conviction that we are now in close proximity with the closing up of the dark, dark, gloomy conflict of ages, that has made this mundane system like unto the "role" of the prophet Ezekiel,—"full of lamentation, mourning, and wo."

Brethren in the ministry, accept a few words of exhortation from your aged brother in Christ. Do not preach the coming of Christ formally, theoretically, but with a realizing sense of its nearness, and the absolute necessity of the speedy revelation of the holy and just One, in order to keep the harmony of the prophetic history of this world complete. In order to do this you must consecrate all your being to God, daily, hourly, momentarily; then you can tell it with words that will be permeated with a living, breathing, holy fervor.

God bless you, dearly beloved; and when yonder massive portals shall unfold the pent-up glory of our descending King, I pray that you may hear the words that are recorded in the Gospel of Matthew, 25: 40.

Should time last, and the Lord in great mercy permit me to preach the blessed word of life, I am certain it will be with a deeper love for his appearing, the salvation of the perishing, and a more earnest desire to see our people advance into a closer communion with God, than ever I have in all my past life. Brethren, pray for your aged brother and sister.

Roxbury, Mass., Dec. 22nd, 1874.

TAKE CARE OF GOD'S HOUSE.

H. MUNGER.

There is nothing so likely to be neglected as the warming of a meeting-house, or hall. It will take five to six hours to warm a room 40×50, suitable to preach or sit in, and four hours for a room 20×30; and nearly all sextons neglect to build a fire till just before meeting time. One hour is thought sufficient. I went four miles to meeting a few Sabbaths ago, in an open wagon. It was quite cold, and the house was cold all the forenoon. The people around the stove took what heat ought to have been thrown out into the room. At noon-time the stove was heated red hot, and the consequence was a stifling atmosphere in the afternoon, so the doors had to be opened, disturbing the meeting two or three times. When the meeting was out the stove was left red hot, wasting the heat, when a little common sense and work at an earlier hour would have made all comfortable. Some men ought to preach five years in cold houses to know enough to be a sexton. A coal fire ought to be kindled the night before. It takes no more fuel to make the fires early, and if it is too warm, five minutes will lower the temperature by opening the doors, which is better than raising or lowering windows, as this causes some few to suffer—take cold, or move after the congregation is seated.

I ask attention to these suggestions, for the benefit of all. Get a good sexton that knows his business, and will do it in season, and in order; for God's house is a house of order, and should be comfortable for his people.

PARTICULAR SINS.—It is a delusion to think of getting rid of sin as a whole when you are not willing to part with it in particular. What is conversion or sanctification but an abandonment of our evil? And, if you are not willing to set about rooting up covetousness, over-reaching in trade, corrupting pleasures, envy, malice, hatred, or any other evil passion or habit, how can you expect the more general purification of being sanctified? Our ideas of the general change involved by the terms conversion, regeneration, and sanctification, are totally false if we expect to reach it except as we give up one sin after another, as fast and as far as they come to our view.

JESUS is always near us. Some day there may arise a perplexing question of duty. You know not what to do. Selfishness counsels one course. Intimate friends advise the same thing. You are half inclined to adopt it. But conscience whispers, "What will Jesus say?" Then your better self, your converted self, springs up and says, "I will please Christ; Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" The light breaks on your path, and Jesus is at your side, and he leads you by the way you knew not of.—Cuyler.

FROM BRO. J. A. CARGILE.

TO THE A. A. M. SOCIETY.

Dear Brethren:—Our meetings at Pleasant Grove, ten miles east of Fort Smith, in Sebastian Co., continued to increase in interest. On Thursday, Nov. 26th, we visited Ft. Smith, where are plenty of Choctaw and Cherokee Indians. Here is also the residence built by Gen. Zachary Taylor, now owned by the Catholics, and used by them as a Convent. They kindly let us into their church, in which is a painting of the crucifixion of Christ, 14×18 feet, said to have cost $5000. That night we went out two and a half miles, and spoke at a school-house, called Rocky Point. The people gave good attention. A Bro. Riggs and a Bro. Prescott heartily endorsed all we had said, and Bro. Riggs suggested that the audience extend to me their hand in token of christian love, and appreciation of the truth they had heard. Many came forward with much apparent good feeling. We then bade them adieu, and went seven and a half miles that night in a wagon to the home of Bro. John Maxwell.

Friday, 27th, 11 A. M., spoke at Pleasant Grove on the faith of the gospel, and announced communion that night at the closing service. Although it rained, many dear brethren and sisters came out, and we enjoyed a melting time. We then parted with those who but a few days ago were entire strangers, but now seem as dear as old friends.

Saturday, 28th, started with Bro. Maxwell and Bro. Gifford for home. Arrived at a little town called Caulkville, in Sarben Co., where Bro. Maxwell found a Dr. Notts. We had camped in the woods, but were kindly taken to his house about eight o'clock that night. The Dr. told the lodge to come next morning and hear one of his men preach.

Sunday, 29th, 11 A. M. Met a few, who seemed astonished at our talk on the restitution. That night had a house full. Spoke on the coming kingdom, to which they all gave the best attention. On going away from church I heard one say—"Well, what do you think of that?" Some one replied—"Well, sir, I never heard the like in all my life. He just proved everything by the Bible."

Monday, Nov. 30th. Arrived at Clarksville, in Johnson county, just at dark; and learned that the minister had not published my appointment; so we drove out into the woods and camped for the night. Three of us slept in a lumber wagon, on a bed of hay, which was better than our dear Jesus had at one time. Tuesday, we parted with Bro. Maxwell, and took the cars for Little Rock. We lay over in Little Rock, and visited the Senate and House of Representatives, which is a fine looking body of gray-headed men. Left there this morning at five, and arrived here (Brinkley, Monroe Co., Ark.) at 11.45, just 17 hours behind time, and have had nothing but a little lunch since breakfast yesterday morning. I would warn all who wish to go West by Chattanooga, to go by way of St. Louis, Mo.; for this Memphis and Little Rock road is the most dangerous I ever saw. It is mostly old rotten trestle work, through the "Arkansas bottoms," covered with cane from fifteen to twenty feet high. I was informed that some of the "piling" had been driven two hundred feet, and still did not reach firm ground.

Arriving here to-day, Thursday, Dec. 3d, I called on a Methodist minister to get an opportunity to speak in his church; but he bluntly refused because I did not advocate the immortality of the soul. I told him I would give him one hundred dollars to prove by the Bible that the soul is immortal. He felt sure he could do so, by the thief on the cross, Rich Man and Lazarus, etc.; but found he could not, and bade me good bye. I then called on Squire Lynch, a member of the Presbyterian church, who heartily consented to let me preach in their church. After I had posted up and circulated printed notices, a Dr. Earle objected to my using the house. He is not a member of any church, but is one of the building committee.

So I am praying and trusting God to guide in the matter. I may have to speak in the open street, which I will do rather than leave without giving them a judgment warning. Pray for me and my dear family, which I hope to see next Saturday.

Brinkley, Ark., Dec. 3d, 1874.

MISSION WORK.

Dear Friends in Christ:—Our meetings at Ottawa, Franklin Co., closed Sunday night last. Meetings were held in the Christian church up to Saturday night. They wanted to use it themselves on Lord's day, so Bro. Roller secured Turner's Hall for us, and a goodly number were out to hear the Word.

At the commencement of our meetings in the Christian church they sent for one of their debaters to come and rebut what we had to say. The Lord overruled this to his own glory. Several times we spoke from the chart, showing that the kingdoms of this world would soon "become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ." The congregations constantly increased, and every night the man sent for endeavored to overthrow positive proof, and turn things into ridicule; but this amounted to nothing in the minds of the honest and intelligent. Bro. Hunt came to help, and other subjects were taken up. He did nobly in defending the truth, and many of the unprejudiced remarked that the young man had the best of the argument. Here we had a good chance to scatter the seed in tract form, and many are stirred to read for themselves.

On Monday, the 7th of Dec., we came to Eudora, Douglass Co., distance twenty-five miles, to Bro. Rotes' home. Arrived late at night. In the morning we went to Lawrence and returned, distance twenty miles, and at night had a prayer-meeting. Appointment was out for preaching the 9th. When we arrived at the school-house, we found a large company out to attend their Literary, but they kindly gave way to the preaching of the Word, and the Lord helped in presenting evidences that Christ's kingdom was nigh. The 10th and 11th we had meetings at the same place. Many of the M. E. people would not come out on account of prejudice. The Christadelphians in this vicinity have hurt the cause much, claiming the name Adventist, and still claiming something else; holding to no prayer in public, no resurrection of some of the wicked dead, immortal subjects to reign over mortal subjects in the age to come, and other things not consistent. Thus the work in many places has been impeded. But Bro. Rote is doing what he can in this vicinity to let the people know that pure and undefiled religion is to be had here, preparatory to an entrance into the heavenly kingdom.

This morning we came from Bro. Rotes home, accompanied by him and family, and a few others; and as we came to a "certain water," we tarried, and there buried his dear companion in the liquid grave. She and her family returned rejoicing; and we came on to this place to have meetings.

Here, as elsewhere, the people are very destitute, and need much help; and must have it or perish. Hundreds of families are almost on the point of starvation. They must have help before spring, and as yet no way has been provided for them, except in a few Counties in the extreme West. Many families in every County have not raised anything to speak of for two years, and thousands have almost completely consumed their entire property for the necessaries of life. Their farms are completely eaten up by heavy mortgages, heavy interest and high taxes. Many have been turned out of house and home. The last two years of drouth, bugs, etc., have made many of the wealthiest, poor; and still many of those that hold the lands, and own nearly all the property are crying, for policy's sake, that Kansas does not need help. They are very anxious to keep up the idea that Kansas is the state, after all. But when people have lived here eight and ten years, as many of them have, and work hard all the time, and spend all that they brought with them, and are now in destitute circumstances, they begin to be discouraged, and think that a livelihood in Kansas is much easier talked of than obtained. Thousands have left their homes already; some, never to return, and others to find employment elsewhere for winter, and to return in the spring if times grow better. Many families are distressingly poor;—children without clothing and shoes, and no means of obtaining them, or of providing food. In every Co. we have visited we have found distressed ones.

I do hope that some of our missionaries East, will interest themselves for the poor in this State, and send to Geo. T. Adams, Business Agent of the A. C. M. S., and we will let him know where the things are needed, and who to send to. The Lord grant that a hearty action may be taken at once in this matter. The Lord grant aid is my prayer.

We arrived at this place—Rino—last night, and sent out notice for meeting. This morning we rode a number of miles to give notice to others. Pray for us, that we may be filled with full assurance of faith, and meet you all in the heavenly kingdom. From your Bro. and Sr. in Christ.

HOW TO KEEP OUT THE MOTHS.—A good old lady gave the best receipt to her niece, whom she found one day examining her wardrobe. The receipt was copied from an old-fashioned book, with the title obliterated, but the receipt was this: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal." Matt. 6: 19, 20.

The application of this ancient receipt was very simple:—Look over the wardrobe and bring out all that can be spared—blankets and shawls, coats and cloaks, and send them to the poor in time; let the widow and the destitute have them before the moths have begun their inroads. "He that hath two coats let him impart to him that hath none" (Luke 3: 11); and this will do more to keep out moths than all the cedar closets or snuff and camphor in the world, and will be more likely, if done in a christian generous spirit, to secure the blessing of Him that maketh rich, and doubly sweeten what is left.—Chris. Treasurer.

REVIVALS of religion have begun by intercessory prayer in the church. Dr. Franklin hits the truth when he says, "Kindle the dry sticks, and the green ones will catch."

ELDER S. S. BREWER.

Dear Friends:—I am thankful to inform you that I am gradually improving, and hope by God's blessing to be able to be removed to my daughter's as soon as the doctor will allow me, which I trust will be early in January. For the months of January and February I shall be compelled to avoid exposure to the cold and public labor. Dear friends, pray for me. Your Bro. in the hope of the gospel.

Correspondence.

From Mrs. L. Buxter.

Editors of Crisis:—Dear Brn. in Christ: I write to express my heartfelt thanks for your excellent paper. I am trying also to benefit others with it. I do like your instructions on the book of Revelation; please give us more of the good things. Also what you say about purity of heart is what I always believed. We must be pure if we belong to Christ. I gave my heart to him when I was a child, and the enemy has often hurled his fiery darts at me, but I still stand erect for Jesus and his truth; having been kept by the power of God, through the faith once delivered to the saints. If I had to live my life over, I should make the very same choice; but I believe there is a better life in store for me.

It was in 1842 that I first heard of Christ's personal coming to earth. Never can I forget how it made my heart thrill with delight, for I loved him, and wanted it to be so. In 1845 it pleased the Lord to pour a flood of light upon baptism. The Spirit taught me I ought to obey God in this ordinance, and I said I would the earliest opportunity; although I had been a member of a Congregational church many years, and having many friends, whom I lost for what they deemed my error.

The Lord made himself very dear to me then, and he never leaves me. Praise his dear name.

Syracuse, N. Y.

From Bro. A. A. Waite.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:—I have resolved to serve God, and want to be saved in his kingdom; and I do want all to forgive me for every thing I may have done to injure them or the cause of Christ. I openly confess that I have been backslidden for four years, wandering into sin, being led by the devil, never thinking that I ever could return to God, be forgiven and blest. But I do believe I have been forgiven through Christ, and have been encouraged by doing every duty that presented itself. The Lord has fulfilled every promise to me, where I have kept the conditions of the promise.

Pray for me that I may continue unto the end, and that God may work in me to will and do of his own good pleasure.

Rutland, Vt., Dec. 16th, 1874.

From Bro. O. D. Woodruff.

The Lord is truly at work in this vicinity. Several have been converted. We held meetings every evening last week, with a continually increasing interest. Thursday evening six arose for prayers. Friday evening fifteen came forward as seekers of the Lord, and Saturday evening nine more came forward; some of these give bright evidence of their acceptance with Jesus. Praise the Lord for the power of the gospel of Christ to save. We hold meetings this week every evening, if the Lord will. Brethren Seth Woodruff and B. Hitchcock are assisting us in the good work.

Obituaries.

HUTCHINS. In Massena, N. Y., Nov. 11th, 1874, Horace H. Hutchins, aged thirty-six years.

Bro. Hutchins found Jesus to be precious about three years ago, and it was our privilege to bury him in baptism. Since then he has been considered a disciple of Christ. He died trusting in Jesus. He leaves a wife and three children, with a large circle of friends, to mourn his loss. Bro. Couch was with us, and spoke comforting words, founded upon 1 Thess. 4: 18. The services were held in the Baptist church. Elder Seeley, the Baptist minister, was present, and assisted in the services. C. PIKE.

PEASE. At Scitico, Conn., Nov. 6th, 1874, my mother, Rhoda Pease, wife of Walter Pease, aged eighty-five years.

My father and mother have lived together sixty-seven years, and this is the first time death has been permitted to enter their dwelling.

Mother experienced the saving grace of God in her younger days, and for many years was a devoted member of the M. E. Church. About twenty years ago she became interested in the preaching of the second advent of our Lord and its kindred doctrines, and heartily embraced them. All her sufferings have been patiently endured. Not a murmur is known to have escaped her lips. But her sufferings are over. Rest has come at last. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord. Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors." Bro. Pratt spoke words of comfort to us from Job 14: 14; after which her four grand-sons laid her gently down to rest until the morn of the resurrection. R. L. PARKER.

Bro. Wood's sickness reaches back over a period of about three years. Until within about eleven weeks prior to his death, he was a very faithful attendant upon all "the means of grace." His days are all filled, and he now sleeps. An extreme sufferer was he during the last four weeks of his confinement. But all his pains were encountered with the heroism of a christian soldier. His trembling voice, so often heard in the sweet songs of redeeming grace, is now hushed; but soon, aye, soon to burst forth with immortal vigor amidst the eternal songs in the realms of the new creation.

"Sleep on, beloved, sleep!
And take thy rest!"

An affectionate wife, with a son and daughter, and only brother, who shared his tenderest affection, remain behind to mourn. Words of comfort to the mourning, and of warning to the unsaved, were offered by N. F. NICKERSON.

WILBER. In Freeport, Me., Nov. 17th, 1874, Sister Eva Wilber, aged thirty-three years.

Sister Wilber was, until recently, identified with the Christian order. Just before her death she changed her views in relation to the state of the dead, believing the dead sleep, and was prepared for the event. She now rests in hope of a resurrection to life. She leaves a husband and large circle of friends to mourn her loss. The funeral was at her father's house in Harrison. Funeral sermon by the writer. Text, 2 Cor. 1: 3, 4. JARED WHITMAN.

STRATTON. In Threerivers, Palmer, Mass., Dec. 17th, 1874, of that terrible disease diphtheria, Alice May Stratton, aged three years.

She sleeps in Jesus. Words of comfort from Jer. 31: 17, by the writer. H. H. TUCKER.

DORE. In Ossipee, N. H., Nov. 28th, 1874, Mr. Benire Dore, aged seventy-four years.

Words of comfort were spoken by A. Stillings, from Rev. 21: 4.

HAWKINS. Fell asleep in Jesus, in Dover, N. H., Dec. 5th, 1874, Bro. Benjamin Hawkins, aged eighty years.

The subject of this notice embraced Christ when fifteen years of age, and was a preacher in the Free Will Baptist denomination forty years. He embraced the Advent faith some ten years since, and was a firm believer in the speedy coming of Christ and kindred doctrines, and went down to the grave like a shock of corn fully ripe; dying in full hope of a glorious resurrection at the coming of the Just One. He leaves an aged companion and several children to mourn his loss. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer from Isaiah 26: 21. H. S. PINKHAM.

TRUMBEL. In Wilmot, N. H., Sept. 30th, 1874, of lung fever, my dear mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Trumbel, aged sixty-eight years.

We believe her disease to have been brought on by over exertion and a severe cold, in taking care of her dear companion, who fell asleep thirteen days previous to her decease. Our dear parents leave six children to mourn their great loss, but not without the blessed hope that when Christ who is our life shall appear, they will appear with him in glory. Text, Nahum 1: 7.

"Sleep, dearest mother, sleep;
Death shall not hold thee long;
And in the morning thou shalt rise
And join the blood-washed throng."

MRS. J. C. BEAN.

NELSON. In Oxford, Me., Nov. 20th, 1874, Sister Caroline Nelson, aged forty-five years.

Amid all her suffering she found Jesus very precious, and died in full assurance of eernal life at the resurrection of the just. In her last moments she selected the following hymn to be sung at her funeral:—

"If I in thy likeness, O Lord, may awake,
And shine a pure image of thee,
Then I shall be satisfied when I can break
The fetters of death and be free."

May God bless Bro. Nelson and the surviving children, and prepare them to meet her on the renewed earth. Funeral attended by the writer. G. L. TRACY.

RANSOM. In Mattapoisett, Mass., Nov. 30th, 1874, Eunice H., wife of James B. Ransom, aged sixty-five years.

Dr. A. M. Higgins spoke words of comfort to the afflicted at her burial. Her flesh rests in hope. C. G.

H. S. MITCHELL.

NOTICE.—I have removed from my former place of residence (Rochester) to this place,—Ontario, Wayne Co., N. Y.,—where brethren and friends can address me until further notice. I expect my labors for the present to be confined to this circuit,—Ontario, Furnaceville, and Ontario Centre, and very soon at Williamson. Three places every Sabbath. The Lord is with us to bless.
JAS. E. WELLS.

NOTICE.—As my time is not all filled up, and having a desire to do what I can till the Master comes, I would say that I will go and preach the gospel of the kingdom as the Lord may open the way. Any wishing to correspond with me, will please address E. H. EGGLESTON, Keeneyville, Tioga Co., Penn.

TO VERMONTERS.—At our annual conference at Bethel, the State Committee were urged to carry the gospel of the kingdom into every new field which opened a door, and especially to offer a week of labor for any five dollars pledged by an isolated brother or sister living in a new field. This was to encourage individual effort and sacrifice on the part of the isolated. We want to hear immediately from those places where labors are desired, that we may make due arrangements to meet the demands. If you are too poor to raise five dollars, and yet the door is open for a meeting, write us just the same as though you raised the money. Write to me at Waterbury, Vt., or to A. A. NOW READY,

The great Map of History, twenty-two feet long, and about thirty inches wide. This valuable work, of which mention has been made in the Crisis, we now have a supply of, and will send to those who may order at the reduced price of $15.00 per copy, by express. We have them on rollers, and in book form, and can supply either way.

The best method of using the chart or map of history is to hang the frame on the wall of the room (the map being in the frame, of course), by the two hooks in the upper bar of the frame, high enough to stand, or sit, in front of it, and there examine or study it.

Students and beginners in history should occasionally look over the map in its entire length—drawn out on the wall, or tables, or on the carpet—until they are well acquainted with the entire outlines, plan and compass of the map, which embraces all history.

"THE BIBLE DOCTRINE OF THE SOUL."

An Answer to the Question: "Is the Popular Conception of the Soul that of Holy Scripture?"

BY CHAS. L. IVES, M. D.

Professor of the Theory and Practice of Medicine in Yale College.

This is a pamphlet of 119 pages, in which the Author discusses the above question in an interesting and able manner,—showing the material nature of, the mortality and destiny of the Soul,—A future immortality to be the special portion of the Righteous,—What the Bible teaches as to the future of the Wicked,—The intermediate state,—The Resurrection,—That of the Righteous and of the Wicked, etc.

The Author claims that the doctrine set forth,—"Honors God, exalts the Bible, insures preaching of future punishment, subverts Universalism and Infidelity, errors of Romanism, of Spiritualism and Swedenborgianism, helps in work of Missions, rightly values the body, brings Christian unity, and promotes personal holiness."

We are much pleased with this work. It ought to have a wide circulation. We have a good supply, and hope the friends will order freely. We will sell at the following prices:—25 cts. per copy; $2.00 per dozen, sent by mail; $15.00 per hundred, by express.

HOW TO LIVE.

H. BONAR.

He liveth long who liveth well!
All other life is short and vain.
He liveth longest who can tell
Of living most for heav'nly gain.
Waste not thy being; back to Him
Who freely gave it, freely give;
Else is that being but a dream,
'Tis but to be, and not to live.

Be thou in truthfulness arrayed;
Hold up to earth thy torch divine!
Be what thou prayest to be made;
Let steps of charity be thine!
Fill up each hour with what will last;
Buy up the moments as they go;
The life above, when this is past,
Is the ripe fruit of life below.

Sow truth if thou the truth would'st reap;
Who sows the false shall reap the vain;
Erect and sound thy conscience keep;
From hollow words and deeds refrain.
Sow love, and taste its fruitage pure;
Sow peace, and reap its harvest bright;
Sow sunbeams on the rock and moor,
And find a harvest-home of light.

ESTHER'S AHASUERUS.

WM. SHELDON.

When the claim is pressed that the decree of Ahasuerus for the extermination of the Jews constitutes the pushing of the ram (Dan. 8th), and when the position is taken that this Ahasuerus was Artaxerxes, the son of Xerxes, it may be well to examine this assumption, for such I now regard it, though I once accepted it as correct. In the first place, the Bible never asserts that Ahasuerus was Artaxerxes, and unless he was, it follows that the 12th of Ahasuerus has nothing to do with the 12th of Artaxerxes; and this is the point that needs proof, and not assumption, to make it reliable. To take this position for granted, without positive proof, and proceed to base an argument upon it, when its correctness is questioned, is a waste of effort. If we begin the measurement of the 2300 days with the 12th of Ahasuerus, and then in order to get a starting point, claim that Ahasuerus is Artaxerxes, we want this claim backed up by proof. But the proof is not to be found in the Bible.

In the second place, while some historians make Ahasuerus synchronize with Artaxerxes, other historians clash with this claim, and some make Ahasuerus identical with Darius Hystaspes, others with Xerxes. Malcolm, in his Bible dictionary, speaks of Ahasuerus as "Darius Hystaspes, the husband of Esther." In the absence of Bible proof, and in view of the fact that historians disagree on this point, we want more light before insisting that the 12th of Ahasuerus is the same as the 12th of Artaxerxes. Bible facts strongly conflict with the claim that Ahasuerus, the husband of Esther, is the same as Artaxerxes. 1. The claim that Esther's Ahasuerus reigned as far down the stream of time as the time of Artaxerxes, the son of Xerxes, is rendered not only improbable, but absolutely impossible without the aid of a miracle, from the fact that Mordecai, the son of Jair, the son of Shimei, the son of Kish, a Benjamite; who had been carried away from Jerusalem with the captivity which had been carried away with Jeconiah [Margin, Jehoiachin] king of Judah, whom Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had carried away." Esther 2: 5, 6. Also Ezra and Nehemiah speak of his having come from Jerusalem with the captives. As this captivity was of seventy years duration, ending with the first of Cyrus, by adding the reign of subsequent kings to the 12th of Artaxerxes, we learn how old Mordecai must then have been, thus—

For the Captivity, . . .	70 years.
For reign of Cyrus, . . .	6 "
For Cambysis, ...	3 "
For Darius, ...	20 "
For Xerxes, ...	21 "
For Artaxerxes, ...	12 "
	132

Thus it is seen that in order to make out that the 12th of Ahasuerus is the 12th of Artaxerxes, and that Esther, Mordecai's adopted child, was Artaxerxes' wife, it must be admitted that Mordecai must have been one hundred and thirty-two years old at the time the Jews triumphed over their enemies by his help, even if he had been but one day old when he was taken out of Jerusalem; and if he was then twenty years old (and who knows but he was even more), it would make him one hundred and fifty-two years old at the time of the slaughter; and after all this, Mordecai became a ruler for years, and was "next unto king Ahasuerus." Esther 10: 3.

Malcolm says that Mordecai "was carried to Babylon with Jehoiachin when he was very young." How young he does not say; but certainly he could not have been less than one day old, and might have been twenty years old; so if Ahasuerus is really Artaxerxes, Mordecai must have lived till then, being at that time somewhere between one hundred and thirty-two and one hundred and fifty-two years old, and an active, business man, and then became a joint ruler with the king for future years. Yet all who are conversant with the history of men who lived in that period of time, know that men were then rarely fit for public business at the age of one hundred, or when much older than at the present time.

In this estimate of the time that elapsed between the commencement of the captivity and the 12th of Artaxerxes, I have followed the shortest Chronology (Thurman's), but by taking Usher's Chronology, the age of Mordecai in the 12th of Artaxerxes would be made, at the least, to be 146 years, or (if 20 years old when carried to Babylon) about 166 years old. These facts are fatal to the claim that Ahasuerus was Artaxerxes Longimanus. The historic claim that Ahasuerus, the husband of Esther, was Darius, is more plausible, though not fully satisfactory, as the same objection, in a smaller degree, presents itself. Counting seventy years for Mordecai's captivity, six years under Cyrus, three years under Cambysis, and twelve years under Darius, he is found to be ninety-one years old at the time of the Jewish slaughter, if it took place under Darius. It is hard to believe that Mordecai performed all that is attributed to him at that age, or that the king would receive so old a man into his cabinet, to help administer in the government affairs; but not half so hard as it would be to believe that all this occurred when Mordecai became forty-one years older.

It is sometimes said that this Ahasuerus must have been Artaxerxes instead of Darius, because it is said in Esther 1: 1, "This is Ahasuerus which reigned from India even unto Ethiopia, over an hundred and twenty-seven provinces;" and then we are told that Artaxerxes reigned over just that number of provinces. Very well; and so did Darius; for Josephus says, "Now in the first year of the king's reign, Darius feasted those that were about him, and those born in his house, with the rulers of the Medes, and princes of the Persians, and the toparchs of India and Ethiopia, and the generals of the armies of his hundred and twenty-seven provinces." (Ant. B. 11, C. 3, S. 2.)

So this feature will fit Darius as well as it will Artaxerxes, and a little better, because Darius reigned over these provinces before Artaxerxes did. But there is another person who in some respects has a better claim to being this Ahasuerus than Darius; but having demonstrated the fact that there is no valid argument in favor of Artaxerxes as the Ahasuerus of Esther, we leave this point for the present.

From the facts already adduced, it is clear that the decree of Ahasuerus against the Jews, being in the lifetime of Mordecai, was too early to be in the 12th of Artaxerxes, and consequently cannot be the pushing of the Ram, nor the starting point of the 2300 days. Ezra tells us that Mordecai went from Babylon to Jerusalem, with the first caravan, under Zerrubbabel (Ezra 2: 1, 2), and Josephus tells us that the Jews sent him back to Darius as a delegate, after the building of the temple, which was in the 6th of Darius' reign (Ant. B. 11, C. 4, S. G), this being but six days before the 12th of Ahasuerus, if Darius was the one meant, Mordecai being still alive at the age of 85, or more.

Another thought worthy of consideration is this: when Ahasuerus issued his decree, the Jews were still in captivity to a large extent, scattered over the provinces; but before reaching the 12th of Artaxerxes several caravans had returned, leaving only a minority behind.

In leaving this point, let it be remembered,

1. The Bible never affirms that Ahasuerus is Artaxerxes.

2. While some historians make this claim, others as strongly deny it, so the claim cannot be established by history.

3. As Mordecai was a leader in the slaughter that took place in the 12th year of Ahasuerus, and was born early enough to be carried captive from Jerusalem to Babylon at the beginning of the seventy years captivity, it is not possible that he could have lived to have thus officiated as late as the 12th of Artaxerxes, at which time he must have been, if then living, between one hundred and thirty-two and one hundred and fifty-two years old. In the light of these facts it is neither positive, probable, or hardly possible that the 12th of Ahasuerus is the 12th of Artaxerxes, so it is not wisdom to base an argument on the claim that the pushing of the Ram was in the 12th of Artaxerxes, and that the 2300 days positively begin there. Indeed, I am now convinced that the pushing of the Ram covers a long term of years, including various military campaigns, and that the pushing does not date the commencement of the 2300 days at all; for the question is, "How long the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of desolation?" If the whole vision is to be measured, instead of the part only that is "concerning the daily sacrifice, and transgression of desolation," then it must measure the time that the ram "stood before the river," before the pushing commenced, for that is as really a part of the vision as the pushing. But the question is not, How long the entire vision, but, "How long the vision concerning the daily sacrifice and the transgression of desolation?" That is, How long these two things—the daily sacrifice (which the Roman horn was to take away), and the subsequent desolation. At the time the vision was given, that daily sacrifice was not in existence, and could not be measured till it should come into existence; then it could be measured till the horn should take it away; then the subsequent desolation could be measured, the measurement of both being 2300 years. We think we have light on this measurement which we hope to present in due time, proving the end near.

OUR WORK AND PROSPECT.

C. PIKE.

Who can look back over a space of years and see no imperfections? Who can read their own history and see no act recorded, around which cluster circumstances which he could wish had never been? Who can count his work of days, weeks, months, or years without saying "I am an unprofitable servant." Who can estimate the amount of knowledge acquired by him for many years, and then consider the great field yet unexplored, without saying—Oh, how little knowledge I possess, and how much there is yet to be obtained, and how very very small is the place occupied by me in God's great work shop? God has designed to do his work by the littles, and has often chosen little instruments to perform it. He can take a worm and thresh a mountain. The effects of a single stone thrown by a shepherd boy astonishes thousands, and puts a whole army to flight. When David's rod springs the bow, the arrow hits the mark. When the great Captain of our salvation gives marching orders there is no danger of defeat.

Our work the past year has been wrought with much anxiety. God had impressed upon our mind the importance of building a house in this place for his name; where his children could worship the God of their fathers according to the dictates of their own consciences. Accordingly, in July, 1873, we began by circulating a subscription paper. We were encouraged by liberal pledges, from fifty to five hundred dollars. Thus the work went forward. We did not lack friends, or means; for many of the citizens who did not believe in our preaching, gave us a word of cheer, and put into our hands the amount of one hundred and fifty dollars, for which we return them our sincere thanks.

February 26th, 1874, we purchased a half acre of land for three hundred and fifty dollars, within twenty or thirty rods of the river, which all agree is a very desirable location. May 5th, 1874, Bro. H. Smith cleared the ground for the foundation, and the 13th of Nov., 1874, the house was completed.

THE DEDICATION.

The dedication took place Nov. 14th. Bro. J. Couch preached the dedicatory sermon, from Ps. 27, 4. It was a very able and well chosen discourse, and left a good impression. Eld. Seely, the Baptist minister, and Mr. Bramley, pastor of the Methodist church were present and took part in the services.

Bro. Couch remained over the Sabbath, and gave us rich, and well served dishes of gospel food. His visit among us will not be forgotten. We would have been glad to have had Bro. and Sr. Couch remained longer, but they felt that they must return to their responsible post in the Crisis Office. May the Lord bless them, and all others engaged in that glorious enterprise.

Our prospect was never so good as now. We are united in faith and love. We have no hobby riders, nor fault finders. "Onward" is our motto. Christ is our standard, and the kingdom of God our anticipated home. Our brethren have made a sacrifice to build, and we trust the Lord will repay them richly. The whole cost of house, land, and furniture, was about $3550,00. We lacked one hundred and sixty dollars the day before the dedication, when a friend, who had given his word that it should be paid for, came and canceled the debt; making in all six hundred and seventy-one dollars he had given. It shows that Bro. Earle loves the truth. May he give himself wholly to the Lord, that he may be saved with the dear brethren and sisters when Jesus comes.

We had made no extra charges for our labor while building the house, but last Thanksgiving day we received a visit from our brethren and sisters, who left us in money, presents, and other necessaries, to the amount of one hundred and seven dollars, as a token of their appreciation. We were well paid before in seeing the house neatly finished and paid for, and given to the Lord. God has built the house; hence we trust we have not labored in vain.

Looking from the present stand-point, our prospect is fair. Yet our prospect of eternal life eclipses all other prospects. We ask the prayers of all christians, that this branch, planted as we believe it was by God's own right hand, may be preserved from Satan's snares. As it is the only one of our faith in all this region of country, may it prove a great light house, to light many on their way to the kingdom of God. And when the great Temple (which is to be this earth renewed) is fitted up, may we all worship God together in one house, and in one place. Amen, and Amen.

RIPE WHEAT.

We bent to-day o'er a coffined form,
And our tears fell softly down;
We looked our last on the aged face,
With its look of peace, its patient grace,
And hair like a silver crown.

We touched our own to the clay-cold hands,
From life's long labor at rest:
And among the blossoms white and sweet
We noted a bunch of golden wheat
Clasped close to the silent breast.

The blossoms whispered of fadeless bloom,
Of a land where fall no tears;
The ripe wheat told of toil and care,
The patient waiting, the trusting prayer,
The garnered good of the years.

We knew not what works her hands had found,
What rugged places her feet;
What cross was hers—what blackness of night;
We saw but the peace, and the blossoms white,
And the bunch of ripened wheat.

FASHION AND THE CHURCHES.

It is a fact which all who possess any powers of observation must have noticed, that one of the modern uses to which the churches are put, is the display of personal adornment. It is true that there has always been more or less of this tendency toward display, but what we refer to is quite another thing than the harmless vanity of our ancestors; it is rather a sinking of the religious character and a raising of a new and meretricious character, in the Sunday observance. And the results of this change are of a kind deserving notice, inasmuch as they afford some clue to the steady growth of that coldness and skepticism which every minister feels to be spreading among the masses. As things are, the poor are practically excluded from all the better churches. The latter have become aristocratic and select. The pious christians forming the congregation attend to show off their good clothes and to criticise the costumes of their neighbor. They all rent pews. They all carry their noses in the air. And the poor man and woman have discovered that there is no room for them among such excessively genteel worshipers. We state it as a fact within the knowledge of numbers of people, that there are scores and scores of decent, respectable industrious folks, who desire to go to church, but cannot because they are too poor to buy fine clothes, and because those who wear shabby clothes are not tolerated in our modern fashionable churches.

And now concerning the causes of this state of things. What is it that has wrought such a change, has put frivolity and silly conceit so far above true piety, and has made of half the churches mere places of assemblage—show-rooms, in fact? A close analysis would show that the causes were not simple, but complex, but prominent among them must be placed the general decline of religious enthusiasm which marks this period. It is evident that before dress can have become the controlling element in a congregation, the original purposes of their organization must have been largely forgotten. It is further evident that though piety may consist with costly dress, it cannot consist with that preposterous and odious regard for dress per se, which causes fools to look with supercilious eyes upon those who are less pretentiously arrayed than themselves. This latter feeling is simply barbarous, and is entertained in common with the lowest and nastiest savages, and with a large section of the brute creation.

But our modern churches display the exclusive barbarism in its most repulsive—its most heathen form, and it is impossible to believe that any sincere or deep-grounded religious convictions can coexist with such a frame of mind. Ministers see and deplore the change, and ascribe it to this, that and the other carnal attraction, without apparently reflecting that there may be some defect in their own ministry; that their people may have backslid into the pomps and vanities of this wicked world through the weakness of the inducements held out to them. It was not always so. We have in our mind's eye the picture of an old-fashioned church, with its venerable and deeply beloved pastor, deferred to by all his flock; and the latter, made up, like the world, of rich and poor, but so saturated with the spirit of the gospel that there was no visible distinction of positions, and so abounding in cordiality that the poorer members were the charge of the church, though never regarded in the light of a burden.

It used to be pleasant to see the genial tenderness with which the old-fashioned rich men inquired after the old fashioned poor men, and how sweetly the old fashioned rich women put aside their wealth to comfort and aid the old-fashioned poor women. Was it because human nature was better then than now? Nothing of the sort. Human nature has undergone very few changes, either for better or worse, since it was created. No! it was because the true religious spirit was rife then, and has almost perished from the earth now. It was because lip-service was abhorred in those days. It was because enthusiasm was warm enough then to carry christianity over Sunday, and infuse some of it into the work of the week.

Christ came, according to his own statement, to preach the gospel to the poor. Who preaches the gospel to the poor in this year of grace? The poor have been hustled out of the churches, and pulpit ranters like Talmage fumigate against the gin-mills and concert saloons which after all are the only places where poverty can find toleration. It is well for those blind leaders to rave against amusements on Sunday. It is well for them to declare the duty of all to be in attending church. Yet their own sextons would turn from the doors nine-tenths of the people whose absence they affect to deplore, and they themselves would not be able, in the event of their admittance, to offer them anything they could understand. But whose fault is it that the churches are given up to frivolity and display, and that they are little better than empty shells? Is is not at least as much the fault of the preachers as of the congregations? This, for example, is an age of broken barriers and the out-rushing of pent-up floods. It is an age of inquiry, of anxiety, and above all of doubt. Those who have need of earnest convictions in their hearts are troubled by misgivings. Do the preachers allay their doubts, explain away difficult things, face objections manfully? Nothing of the kind. On the contrary, they continue to dogmatize, in a way simply exasperating to the intelligent seeker who knows that dogmatism is little better than brazen incompetence. They dogmatize, and they denounce. All who dare to differ from their received opinions, are declared anathema. There is no analysis, no recognition of formidable objections, no attempt to break the force of hostile argument by counter argument. It is all either assumption, or circumlocution, or incomprehensible subtilty, or refined namby-pambyism.

Is it any wonder that under such religious pabulum the churches should lose faith and enthusiasm, and become what we see them? Is it any wonder that when, to the unparalleled frivolity of secular life at the present day, there should be superadded the deteriorating influence of what may be called a negative ministry, there should be a lack of vitality, an absence of true religious feeling and conduct?

Nor can it be forgotten that there has occurred during the last twenty years a marked change in public opinion, as well upon matters of ritualism as upon matters of doctrine. It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that the prevailing sentiment of the day on many of these questions is what to the last generation would have seemed absolute irreligion, if not frightful impiety.

Now, when men and women over whose minds so great a change has passed, find themselves served with precisely the same religious exhortations that their fathers had, they naturally become restive, and though they may cling to the church from conservative instincts, they are growing away from it all the time, and becoming more and more what used to be called free-thinkers. Such a state of things is to be deplored; first, because there is no reason to believe that mankind will ever outgrow the need of religion; and, second, because this condition tends to weaken the hold of religion upon the public mind for all purposes.

We do not apprehend that any good could be effected by a crusade against fashion and dress, but we have no doubt that very much might be done by giving the people a renewed interest in the original purposes of the church organization. In regard to the practical exclusion of the poor from the more popular places of worship, we think the remedy lies pretty much in the hands of the clergy, who naturally lead their flocks, and who would hardly exert their influence in vain in such a cause. It is perfectly clear, however, that ministers are wasting time fulminating against outside abuses, while their own churches present anomalies and degradations of religion, of so wide-spread and serious a character.—*Sacramento (Cal.) Gems.

— What strange servants some christians are—always at work for themselves, and never doing anything for him whom they call their Master! And what subjects! ever desiring to take the reins of government into their own hands.

— Pride is the ape of charity. Charity feeds the poor; so does pride. Charity builds a hospital; so does pride; only in this they differ,—Charity gives the glory to God; pride takes her glory from man.

— Those whom the devil tempts to presume, he afterwards tempts to despair.

— The sins of believers are like weeds in a well-kept garden, which may hinder the growth of the flowers, but cannot kill them, because the gardener is always keeping them down.

— He that waits for repentance, waits for what cannot be had so long as it is waited for. It is absurd for a man to wait for what he should himself be trying to do.

— If the Lord lead you in a rough way, it is to keep your heart humble before him.

I deem his faith best
Who daily puts it into loving deeds,—
Done for the poor, the sorrowing, the oppressed,
For these are more than creeds;
And though our blended reason oft may err,
The heart that loves is faith's interpreter.

— Judge not of God's love by providences, but by promises.

— The wheels of Satan's chariot are sometimes oiled with carnal rest, and then they go without rattling or noise.

— Extraordinary afflictions are not always the punishment of extraordinary sins, but sometimes the trial of extraordinary graces.

— You lie nearest to the river of life when you bend to it. You cannot drink but as you stoop.

— Sin dwells in the believer, but the believer does not dwell in sin.

THE LIVING SAINTS AT THE COMING OF CHRIST WILL BE TRANSFIGURED.

When all the saints sleeping the sleep of death shall at the Lord's coming have been restored to life, immortality, holiness, blessedness, then the living saints, the saints in the body on the earth, ready for the change, who were not to go before the saints sleeping in the grave, into the glorious restituted creation, the wise virgins who go out to meet the coming bridegroom, shall be changed or transformed, and caught up to meet the Lord and the risen saints in the air.

The saints in the body ready for the Lord's coming, though mortal and under the sentence of death, shall not die. The sentence of death, through the blood of the Lamb, shall be repeated to them. They shall be changed, or, as the word signifies, transformed, that is, "the corruptible body shall put on incorruption, the mortal body shall put on immortality; then shall death be swallowed up in victory." The vile body in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, shall be purified from every stain of sin, from every seed of disease and corruption, and fashioned like unto Christ's glorious body, made holy, as he is holy; invested in robes washed and made white in his blood; glorious as the resurrection saints, radiant as the raiment of Jesus on the mount of transfiguration; they shall ascend, and meet the Lord, and all his resurrection saints in the air. This complete and divine change or transformation will make their restitution perfect and glorious, and then ever with the Lord in his image. Forever with the Lord in his glory! Forever with the Lord in his kingdom. Forever with the Lord in the eternity of his being and blessedness.

When thus changed and transformed, they will be restituted, and more than restituted; for they will be more glorious, being enrobed in the righteousness of Christ, which they would not have been, had they not sinned, and he had not become their Savior; more nearly related to God, being made one with him through unity with his Son, which they would not have been, had he not taken upon him their nature. For this restitution the whole creation is groaning and travailing together, and waiting for the time when the heavens shall reveal the Lord Jesus Christ for the accomplishment of the great and glorious work.—Prophetic Times.

SIGNS OF AWAKENING, AND WHAT TO DO.

T. DE. WITT TALMAGE.

When a cloud of mercy breaks over a city, and hundreds and thousands are saved, as in Glasgow and Belfast, the man who does not acknowledge the especial presence of God, must be a stupid ingrate. But there are places where there needs a delicate watching of symptoms in order to discover the gracious working. There are two or three unfailing tests.

When God is unusually present, it is manifest in the praying circles. The dullest thing on earth is a dull prayer-meeting—long prayers, long exhortations, long chapters, long hymns. I notice that men are protracted in their prayers just in proportion as their hearts are cold, and they have really nothing to say. What our public prayers most need is to be cut off at both ends, and set on fire in the middle. When the church is all full of coldness, three prayers will take up the whole meeting; but when the Spirit of God mightily appears, you can have fifteen prayers and fifteen exhortations in an hour and a half, and not be crowded.

Oh! sweet hour of prayer! Bower of peace, where we talk to the Beloved, his locks wet with the dew of the night. Oh! mountain of frankincense, sweet with all fragrance for a weary soul. Oh! harbor for a driven and storm-tossed spirit, a place where fountains spring, and gates of glory open, and a ladder soars into the skies, bright with the shining messengers of salvation. Can it be that there are those who do not know the might, the majesty, the grandeur, the glory, the tenderness of prayer?

When God's Spirit is unusually present, it is seen in the Sabbath congregations. There may be no larger audience; but there is a tenderness of feeling all through the house. It is as much as to say, "I am bereaved; give me some comfort. I am awfully tempted; help me out." And the minister of Christ, instead of addressing the people in a perfunctory way, and talking because he is expected to talk, speaks as a brother addresses a brother in some time of peril and anxiety. Oh, what a scene!—a congregation brooded over by the Spirit. Penitents weeping; backsliders bowing the head; imploring recovery; hearers pale with emotion; deep silence, broken only by sigh and sob, and outcry of anxiety; the Spirit calling; the devil tempting; Christ inviting; Sinai beating with all its thunders; Calvary proclaiming its love; angels of light contending for the soul's redemption; spirits of darkness fighting for its overthrow.

Do you wait for an outpouring of the Holy Ghost? Would you like to have a great multitude pressing into the kingdom? Would you like to hear the song of many thousands of delivered captives? You may. There is bread enough for the famished, and heaven has diadems enough to crown all the people as the sons and daughters of the Lord Almighty.

If you see any encouraging symptoms, rouse yourselves to the settling of old grudges, and the extirpation of all animosities. There are, of course, at times, antagonisms of belief. Independent natures most certainly will have a difference of opinion about different things, but there should be in the house of the Lord no room for fighting christians. Spit-fire saints are an incongruity. When two drops of dew, born of the same cloud, assault each other from the grass-blades; when hedge-flowers, fed of the same soil, and kissed of the same sun, and watered of the same shower, thrust at each other with venom and hate, then can people of God, born of the same Spirit, and on the same way to heaven, indulge in feud, and spleen, and squabble.

Oh, if there be a man with whom you have not shaken hands for a long time, because you do not like him, give him your right hand to-day. You say he is in the fault. Perhaps he is, but I know very seriously you are in the fault, or you would have long ago forgiven him. Bury all your animosities underneath the cross of the Son of God, who died for you. "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Still further, rouse up to the work of visitation and exhortation. When you have your heart full of the love of God, and you go and talk about Christ's salvation to a man, he will listen. The reason we so often fail is because our own hearts are not right. Go from house to house, and commend Christ to the people, not only with heart on fire, but with common sense and tact. I stood beside a man who was very worldly, talking to him on secular subjects, when a very good man came up to him, and said—

"John, what is the first step of wisdom?"

It was a rough answer, but he had been roughly accosted. . . .

When the Lord Jesus Christ uncrowned himself, and went up on the cross, to bleed his life away in our behalf, does it not seem as if his voice dropped from the throne today, saying to us as he looks towards those souls whom we have neglected, "Their blood will I require at thy hands." Can you conjecture what will be the future of this great multitude of souls that are marching on across Bibles, and sermons, and the torn and bleeding heart of the Son of God? Do you not know, O christian, that your chance for doing them good will soon be gone? Your strength begins to bend in the blast, and soon from the door of your tomb the wave of your life will dash back into a death-foam. "What thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might."

THE THREE DISCOVERIES.

"The process of enlightenment in many Romanist minds," says an observer, "is shadowed forth by the experience of one whom I saw recently. He sat down to read the Bible an hour each evening with his wife. One evening he stopped in the midst of his reading and said,

'Wife, if this book is true, we are wrong.' He read on, and a few evenings after said, 'Wife, if this book is true, we are lost."

Riveted to the book, and deeply anxious, he still read, and in a week more joyfully exclaimed,—

'Wife, if this book is true, we may be saved.'

A few weeks more reading, and taught by the Spirit of God through the exhortations and instructions of a city missionary, they both placed their faith in Christ, and are now rejoicing in hope."—Chris. Treasury.

"THE CROOKED STICK.—James Therrol, an old carpenter on Salisbury Plain, once reproved a young christian, who complained that she was unworthy to serve the Lord. 'I used,' he said, 'to think as you do, but the Lord taught me by a crooked stick. One day my son went to a sale of timber, and in the lot he bought, was a piece so twisted and bent, that he said sharply, "It will be of no use." "Wait a bit," said I, "don't fret. Let us keep a look-out—there is a place somewhere for it;" and soon after I was building a house. There was a corner to turn in it: not a stick in the yard would fit. I thought of the crooked one and fetched it. It seemed as if the tree had grown for the purpose. Then, said I, there was a place for the crooked stick after all, and there is a place for James Therrol as much.'"—British Messenger.

"A POOR woman sat upon the steps of a dark prison weeping bitterly over the sentence of a ruined son.

"'My heart is broken, sir,' she replied.

"'Can I do anything for you?'

"'No, sir, nothing.'

"'Well, God can help you, and I will go home and ask him to do it,' said the gentleman.

It was a little thing he did. It neither clothed nor fed the poor woman, but that one sweet word, 'sister,' fell like healing oil upon her wounded spirit. She arose strengthened, and went to her lowly home. When she knelt to tell her Savior her sorrows, she felt that some one had been there before her. His prayer was answered, her spirit was calmed."—Christian Treasury.

HOME AND HEALTH.

"DEATH IN THE BARN-YARD."

Careless and neglectful farmers permit the accumulations of animal excrement, decaying straw, chaff, and hay to lie and rot all summer in close proximity to the dwelling, whence bad odors are wafted into every room, and the inmates breathe the foul and pestilential odors, night and day, all through the year. In hot weather, windows must be kept shut to keep out these sickening and deathly barn-yard smells. Finally, one of the members has an attack of typhus fever. The doctor is sent for, and prescribes what?—a lot of poisonous drugs! The patient dies, and another one sickens in the same way and goes through the same experiences, with the same results; and then another, and that stricken family is left without a mother, a daughter, or the younger children that made it happy. Those away at school, or at work away from the house, escaped with their lives. Here is a case of of the most palpable cause and effect, and yet it was not seen till death had thinned the ranks of that family.

In a pleasant town in Massachusetts there was a young ladies' seminary. The reputation of the place and the fame of the teachers drew a large number of blooming girls there, to be educated and trained to the accomplishments and duties of life. High hopes animated all—parents, principals, teachers, and pupils. But ere long pale death made his appearance and claimed a victim. Then another and another until a panic raged in the institution at beautiful "Maplewood," and all who could do so hastened to their homes; some to die in their own family circle; others, with more constitution, to recover slowly and thank God for their escape. But what was the cause of this epidemic? Was it the water? No. Was it the food? No. Overstudy? No. Well, was it in a malarious region of country? No; for it was in the charming town of Litchfield, an educational centre, from which have come some of the brightest intellectual lights of the age. It is a healthy place. Then what was the cause of this epidemic at the young ladies' seminary? We answer, it was a filthy barn-yard!"

The institute stood near by and a little east of an uncleaned barn-yard, whence the sickening odors were wafted through the house, and those young creatures breathed the death-giving fumes, all unconscious of its fatal effects, till one after another fell before the destroyer. That school failed.

Last summer, when the weather was hot, cattle dealers were transporting a cargo from Texas north, when the boat struck a snag in the Red river and sank just above Shreveport, in Louisiana. The drowned cattle were hauled on shore, their hides taken off, and their carcasses left to decay on the bank or tumbled into the river. The foul stench which supervened, soon rendered life in Shreveport intolerable. Air and water were polluted. The festering stench filled the air for miles around. A few weeks later the telegraph announced the scourge of yellow fever to be raging in that town. It soon spread to other places, where the sanitary, or rather where the want of the sanitary conditions gave it a foothold, and it peeled several of the Southern cities, among others Nashville and Memphis, in Tennessee.—Herald of Health.

EFFECTS OF OPIUM IN CHINA.

I have just returned from a tour of visitation of the stations of the China Inland Mission, which has occupied two years, and has extended into five provinces. When I compare the present state of China with that of twenty years ago, when my itineration in the interior commenced, the contrast is startling. Then the traffic in the drug was contraband; away from the free ports the dens for opium-smoking were few and hidden, and the number of smokers was comparitively small. Now, the trade is legalized; the dens are unblushingly opened in large public streets; and the number of victims has increased at least tenfold; in some districts well-known to me, I incline to think it has increased fully a hundred-fold.

Notwithstanding the failure of the rice crop in a large part of the province of Cheh-kiang in 1873, I saw hundreds of acres under opium this spring, much of it for the first time, and but for the great scarcity and consequent high price of grain, I was told that there would have been a great deal more planted.

As a medical missionary, I am but too familiar with the moral and physical evils wrought directly and indirectly, by the use of opium. Many of them have often been dwelt upon, but there is one result which, during the last two years, has filled me with grave concern—the rapid increase in the consumption of spirituous liquors, and consequent increase of drunkenness and misery. The use of a sedative and astringent narcotic affects the appetite, impairs digestion, and lowers the vital powers. Stimulants are resorted to with temporary relief, and habits, expensive, and every way prejudicial result. The number of retail shops for the sale of these beverages has increased three-fold in the last five years in some districts I am acquainted with, according to native testimony, confirmed by my own observations.

Have these facts been sufficiently dwelt on in connection with their undoubted cause, the opium traffic! Fifteen years ago drunkeness was rare; now it is very common. And many persons who have escaped the seductions of the pipe are falling victims to the cup, to the ruin of their families; for the opium smoker does not drink alone.—Letter from Hudson Taylor.

ALCOHOL A POISON.—The entire medical and chemical world of science pronounces alcohol a poison. The Encyclopedia terms it a poison. The Dispensatory calls it a poison. Dr. Kavanagh terms it "the poison of alcohol." Sir Astly Cooper wrote, "spirits and poisons are synonymous terms." Dr. Alden says, "on every organ they touch, ardent spirits operate as a poison." Dr. Gilman says it is "a poison inimical to the human constitution." Dr. Dodge, who had experience in treating over eight hundred inebriates at Binghamton, N.Y., Asylum, calls alcohol "a narcotic, irritant poison." Prof. Youman asserts, "alcohol is specifically a brain poison." And Dr. James R. Nichols has just nobly said, "Alcohol is a poison, and in its vile associations as presented in these modern times, it kills with the certainty and almost the rapidity of strychnine and arsenic."—Boston Jour. of Chemistry.

MORE TESTAMENT IN IT.

A little boy who had been to meeting but a few times, expressed some anxiety one Sabbath morning as to where his parents were going to church.

"Johnny," said his father, "why do you care where we go to church?"

"Because," said the little boy, "I like to hear Mr. B. preach the best."

"Because his sermons have more Testament in them than Mr. C.'s," he replied.

The comparison between the two clergymen was a correct one, and no minister ever received a better commendation. More Testament in it! Just the element most needed, not only more of the doctrine, but more of the letter; for the words of Jesus, "they are spirit, they are life." Yes, eighteen hundred years ago he took little children in his arms, and "the common people" heard him gladly. "He spake as one having authority, and not as the Scribes." So, nowadays, not only the "common people," but little children, would listen to modern sermons more gladly, and more understandingly, if there were more of the New Testament in them.

Little Johnny's face always brightened when any of the words he had read with his mother were repeated in sermons. Had the boy been obliged to read his Bible as a task, and without selections suited to his age, without that motherly help which he needed, the words he had read at home would have been an added weariness in church instead of the charm of the services. Children should never read the Bible as a disagreeable duty, but as a delight.—Mrs. R. B. Gleason, M. D.
